City planning process almost at standstill

The comprehensive plan, as mandated by the 1971 city charter, does not exist and cannot until at least 1980, City Planner Charles Thomas admitted to the City Planning Committee this week.

The problem apparently is money.

Thomas said he has submitted a request to be included in the 1975-76 fiscal-year budget for four professionals at a cost of $71,000 a year after increases. The four additional personnel will work exclusively on various aspects of the comprehensive plan.

A comprehensive plan means different things to different people, but is generally understood to mean a document or documents that will describe the goals and objectives for the city in the fields of land use, including zoning, housing, future development, and the like.

The form of a comprehensive plan used to be that of a single book outlining the pattern of progress for a community.

More modern thinking, according to Thomas, recognizes that such a single document may gathered be obsolete before all the data are and published.

Further, Thomas says in his 1973 "background paper" on the comprehensive planning process, the "systems called, approach," as it is has introduced the concept that planning must be an ongoing process.

Together with the ongoing process, there must be citizen participation, Thomas says, so he has proposed a blend of citizen participation "a structured set of staff activities."

Thomas said this week that he will have a package to present to the Board of Aldermen "within the next three weeks" that will outline in greater detail his outline of what he considers the comprehensive planning process.

As reported at the City Planning Committee this week by Thomas, the comprehensive plan will consist of a cycle of studies and reports on of land use, housing and so on.

Two studies that have been under way, a ousing inventory and a study of population trends, were due in 1973 and 1974 but have not yet been completed.

Thomas explained that these are components of the plan from which the land use plan will ultimately derived. . Ald. Susan Schur to Thomas commented that she was "amazed to hear you say that you are starting from scratch" on the comprehensive plan.

Thomas denied that he is starting from scratch.

Ald. Schur also commented that she was disappointed that a land-use plan appears in Thomas' timetable to be deferred until 1978.

She questioned whether the advancement of the land use plan to an earlier date might now free some of the man-hours now spent in the Planning Department on evaluation of land use petitions and on preparing reports for the Board of Aldermen.

Ald. White added that "for our (the Board's) benefit it would be good to know what the general pattern of the city should be."

Thomas maintained that the housing and population studies must be completed first.

Asked whether the expected computer programs for storing and analyzing gathered statistics by the Planning Department have been done, Thomas answered, "There are no computer programs in existence. Data Processing is supposed to have done it and they

Ald. Schur urged the committee to recognize the need for development of a comprehensive plan and to urge the full Board to support Thomas' request for an increased budget.

She added that there should be a deadline of five years from now for the completion of the comprehensive plan.

Thomas said, "Whem I came here two years ago there was no comprehensive planning process "

Schur responded, "I got the impression all along that we were in it. So did a lot of other people."

Experts quibble over 1980 births

By RICHARD WILLIAMS
of the Graphic staff

Vincent Silluzio, director of Research and Plannning for the School Department, recently issued elementary school enrollment projection8 eetimates up to 1980, a change from his previous release of statistical information.

Silluzio was urged to respond by a challenge of his projections in his February, 1974, study called, "Declining Enrollment and School District Organization."

Frances Korten, of Erie Ave. in the Hyde School district, a professional in the population field working for the International Committee for the Management of Population Programs, submitted a challenge to Silluzio's statistics at the declining enrollment committee's public hearing in November.

Korten's challenge

Mrs. Korten criticized Silluzio's study because it only made enrollment projections through 1977.

She understood that Silluzio "declined to look further ahead as this would involve estimates based on unborn children — estimates considered too risky to make."

Korten stressed it is important to look beyond 1977 since school closing decisions may have long-term effects, and said such estimates can be made "based on existing relevant facts."

She claims the number of children born in the next 15 years can be estimated by using the number of childbearing women who are already born for the 15-year period, and the fertility rate

Her report stated the "peak reproductive years in an educated population such as Newton's . . . (is) the age group of 25-34."

Mrs. Korten said Newton "is about to have an 'echo' effect'" as the children born during the baby boom of the late 1940's and early 1950's reach peak reproductive age.

Her study notes that in 1960, Newton had 5,164 women between the ages of 25 and 34, and only 5,061 in this group in 1970, but "it is probable that in 1980 there will be well over 8000 such women."

Apparently considering the recently declining fertility rate, she said that even though each of these 8000 or more women may have fewer babies than the 5,164 women in 1960, "the total babies in Newton, and consequently the total number of children entering the school system. is likely to be greater."

She backs up this conclusion by drawing from statistics from the U.S. Office of Education.

She wrote,"By 1983 there will be slightly more 5-year-olds in the population than there were in 1970, and their numbers are likely to rise throughout the decade of the 1980's as the post-war generation continues in its peak reproductive years."

Silluzio's response

Silluzio's 19-page response to Korten's report begins by summarizing her points, and notes that she did not use information available in his October, 1974, study, "Enrollment and Demographic Analysis."

This study showed that from 1970 to 1974, the number of women between ages 25 and 34 increased 17.8 per cent to 5,960, but the number of births during these four years decreased 34.5 per cent from 1,020 to 666.

Thus Silluzio wrote, " . . .the 'mushrooming' of the number of women in the 'peak reproductive' age group . . . has already begun, but has had, as yet, little effect on the number of children born." ..

Silluzio's second main point of contention with Korten's report was her prediction of more than 8000 women in the peak reproductive age group in Newton in 1980. He refers to U.S. Census data that shows for th e last 30 years out-migration of Newton men and women betwween the ages of 15-24 and 25-34. Silluzio summarized this. "Apparently, after completing their education, increasing large numbers of Newton young people leave the city, raise their families elsewhere, and are not replaced by an equal number of people in the same age group." Over the 20 years until 1970, the average out-migration in this age group is 22 per cent. Subtracting this percentage from the 8,902 women in the 15-24 age group in 1970, Silluzio figures "just under 7000 women" would be in the peak reproductive age in 1980.

Using the present fertility rate in Newton applied to the 7000 projected women gives a birth estimate for 1980 of 721 children' Silluzio wrote.

Using a new fertility rate for just the 25-34 age group in 1980, a high estimate of 913 births is obtained.

Commentary

Why is planning overdue?

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
of the Graphic staff

The revelation that the Planning Department is behind in preparing the comprehensive plan as required by the city charter should not have been a surprise.

The extent to which the Planning Department has fallen behind is a surprise.

The work asked of the department by other departments has increased several times, and although the staff has also been greatly increa&ed, it cannot perform the outside functions it is called on to do.

For the comprehensive plan, the Planning Departtnent has had the services of only one full-time person on housing for one year and one full-time person on populationfor nine months.

Thomas has had good supportin his budget requestsfrom the administration at City Hall, and the mayor seems to think the world of Thomas' work.

Why then did it take a resolution from two aldermen to pry out of him the fact that there is no chance of ever having a comprehensive plan unless he can add four people to his staff at a fairly acceptable figure of $71,000 per year ?

Some aldermen undoubtedly will question the need for the new personnel, but it seems fairly clear that , for whatever reason, there will be no comprehensive plan until the Planning Department staff is augmented.

The money being requested for this will come out of the money coming to the city from the Housing and Community Development Act, and so will cut down by $71,000 the amount that can be spent on other housing and development programs.

Planning Director Charles Thomas has indicated that he will need additional administrative personnel. Whether they are to come from the four new people was not made clear, but what did come through clearly is that he has realized that administration is a necessary complication.

Some aldermen will probably question the decision to spend time on a bicycle path, with its accompanying graphics, and on an aqueduct-loop pathway, when comprehensive planning was in such a sorry condition.

But others will say that the aesthetics of a city are as necessary to the quality of life as land use planning.

Nearly everyone will question why the mayor, when asked about a comprehensive plan, repeatedly said that Thomas was making good progress toward a comprehensive plan.

The package that Thomas will present to the Board "within three weeks" (three weeks ago it was to be presented within two weeks) will outline Thomas' view of the comprehensive planning process and will show the cyclical nature of the process.

The package will also demonstrate Thomas' nontraditional views of comprehensive planning, which seemed in effect to say at the meeting not to expect a comprehensive "comprehensive plan."

Wilfred Dery dies at 63

Wilfred Dery, purchasing agent for the city of Newton, died unexpectedly Dec. 29 at Jordan Hospital in Plymouth. He was 63.

A funeral mass was to be held yesterday (Thursday) at Our Lady Help of Christians Church in Newtonville.

Mr. Dery lived at 331 Newtonville Ave.

He had been purchasing agent for Newton for the past five years. Before assuming that post he had worked for 31 years for the P. F. Avery Corp. of Billerica, now in New Hampshire.

Mr. Dery was born in Pittsfield, son of the late Ernest and Josephine (Gelinas) Dery.

Mr. Dery was a past grand knight of the Knights of Columbus, a member of the National Purchasing Agents Association and a member of the Municipal Purchasing Agents Association.

He was active in Our Lady's Church as a member of the Holy Name Society and was a member of the usher's club and the parish council.

Besides his wife, Delphine A. (Reaneaud) Dery, he is survived by two sons, Phillip A. Dery of Rochester, N.Y., and Richard E Dery of Auburndale; a brother, Dery Charles A. of Dalton; a sister, Mrs Lucille Marquette of Bradenton, Fla., and two grandchildren.

Victory Field housing again under discussion

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
of the Graphic staff

Nearly four years after the Board of Aldermen made clear its intent to have four low-income housing units built on city-owned land in Nonantum, efforts are being made to scuttle the project.

There has been no public housing for low-income families built in the city yet. The closest the Housing Authority has come is the Beaconwood Road units now under construction, but delayed by site problems.

Resurgence of opposition to the Housing Authority's construction of four family units on what is left of Victory Field at California and Rustic Streets occurred during City Planning Committee discussion of an offer for adjoining land by American Legion post Post 440 this week.

In 1970 the city sold moet of Victory Field to the Legion to build a new post building, incorporating rooms for comzunity facilities. The remainder of the land, some 46,000 square feet, was kept by the city.

In 1971 the Board resolved that 14,000 feet be used for housing and the remainder for recreation purposes.

It had been the stated intent of Post 440 to lease the 32,000 feet remaining and construct a park for small children and elderly persons as a gesture of gratitude to the city.

Last year the post realized that the 114 parking spaces on its property fell far short of the number needed for its building and offered the city 25 cents a square foot (now upped to 50 cents) for the 32,000-foot parcel fronting on California Street.

The post's plan is to increase the parking by 58 spaces, make a smaller park (160 by 40 feet) between the parking area and the site for the four units of housing, and create a 20-foot-deep grass strip between the parking area and California Street.

Although the item before the City Planning Committee was merely whether the land should be sold, the whole question of whether housing should be built in that location was resurrected, over the ob-

Poet Worth publishes 'Of Earth'

Douglas Worth

By RICHARD WILLIAMS
of the Graphic staff

When Douglas Worth was 18, he won third prize in the Seventeeen Magazine poetry contest.

This year he will be 35 and he has his first book of poetry published, called, "Of Earth."

Worth has been an English teacher at Meadowbrook Junior HIgh School for the past five years, and the youths and the experiences of teaching here and five years previously in New York City private schools contributed are expressed in part of the last section of his 78-page book,called "Widening Circles."

The paperback book is published by William Bauhan, Dublin, N.H., sells for $3.95, and is available in local bookstores.

Worth grew up in Swarthmore, N.Y., and graduated from Swarthmore College with a B.A. in English and a minor8 . in music' and has an M.A. in American literature from Columbia University.

Music was an important creative outlet for him during college .

" There were some feelings I could express on the saxophone that I couldn't put down in words. Now the same feelings of beauty and tragedy are in my poetry," Worth said.

During the past 10 years in which the poems in the book were written, the poet said, "The style started with sonnets and rhyming verse, and moved toward free verse, and includes some surrealistic images which have no real logic, but make emotional sense."

Worth pointed to an example of his surrealism in "Cupid,"the first poem in the book.

" Once prying open my chest I found a nest of throbbing tarnished pearls."

In the first section of the book entitled "Love Sequence," is a short work called, "0My Hands during Your Absence."

"In company they slip away to sulk in my pockets or mock my words drawing aimless patterns of smoke. Here in the apartment they drift from object to object unable to focus their desire. Nothing they touch is at home. "

The second section of the book is "Notes from an Unborn Father," which he wrote in the months before and after the birth of his son Colin, who is now about 4 years old and is on the cover photograph of the book with his father.

Worth's poem called "Profession" in the third section seems to summarize the intense questions that confront hi m as a poet-teacher. "

First he questions the meaning of "Junior High Level." He said at an interview that this age-group of children categorized, but each is an individual at a different stage of sensitivity and maturity.

Second, he questions politicians who have"the gall to say they will preserve the country's honor from stain by dropping 2000 tons of bombs."

In his teaching, he tries to get his students to get closer to the real meanings of words, and to avoid using cliches. Worth said when he writes, he "looks deeply" within himself "to express my feeling of human condition.'"

He said he tries to teach his students to do the same thing without being tritein a style that will be their own.

Winners

Prizewinners in the Newton YMCA's annual fund-raising drive to benefit YMCA World Service were given their prizes recently by Physical Director Vin Goglia. Winners (from left) are: Drew Lane, Susan Roderick, Kirstin Howard, Goglia, Ed Wigmore, Margaret Bradley and Kim Barres, all of Newton. Lane and Barres won 10-speed bicycles for winning their divisions in the Swimathon. Roderick and Wigmore got toboggans for finishing first and second in the candy sale. Howard and Bradley won memberships for placing third in the candy sale.

Winter programs underway

Christmas Day's surprise snowstorm not only provided the traditional White Christmas but also marked the start of the Newton Recreation Department's winter outdoor program.

The toboggan slide at the Newton Centre Playground was ready for use Friday morning, and with the cooperation of the weather will continue operational for the winter months.

The slide is open 9 a.m.-5 p.m. and 7-10 p.m., weather conditions permitting.

During the day toboggans may be rented for 25 cents an hour. The rate on night nights and weekends is 50 cents an hour.

If you have your own toboggan the use of the slide is free.

Skating

It will take a prolonged spell of cold weather before the Recreation Department's skating areas are open for public skating. Once there has been a hard freeze and the ice is deemed safe by the Maintenance Department, Bullough's Pond, Ware's Cove and Crystal Lake will be open 10 a.m. to 10 p.m.

Officials wish to remind the public that no one should venture out on the ice until it has been declared safe by the Recreation Department.

Skating areas will be ready for use earlier if people refrain from throwing rocks and debris on the thin ice.

Dance Exercise Class

Registration is now being conducted for the winter term of the dance exercise class to be held at the Newton Centre Playground house.

The instructor will be Amy Morris and the classes will be held at the Hut on the following schedule: Tuesdays, 9:30 - 10:30 a.m. for intermediates and beginners.

The fee for the ten-week course, either two or three classes a week, is $10. Call Gail Forman at 969-3171 for further information.

Basketball Taps Off

The Newton Recreation Department's winter basketball season got underway Friday night when the Pony League, for junior high age boys, began play at the Warren Junior High School gym.

The Hawthorn B team played the Newton Boys' Club, and last year's champs, Hawthorn A, played Sacred Heart. The third game of the night was between Newton Centre and Newton Upper Falls.

The American League's A, B and C divisions and the National League will begin play the week of Jan. 6.

The expanded American League is for adults, and the National League is for high-school-age players.

Senior Aduit Trip

The Newton Recreation Department reports that the senior adult trip to Wayland and Sudbury on Jan. 15 is booked solid.

Those who have been notified that they have been accepted for this bus trip are urged to get their checks for $3 made out to the Newton Senior Adult Association and sent to Senior Adult Bus Trip, c-o Newton Recreation Department, 70 Crescent St., Auburndale, Ma. 02166, as soon as possible.

The number of people for each trip is 80, plus four Recreation leaders.

There is no charge for the bus transportation furnished by the Newton Recreation Department.

Co-ed Gymnestics

The Newton Recreation Department will sponsor a coed recreational gymnastics program for people 14 years of age and older.

The program will run for 12 weeks and will be held every Thursday at Newton North High School's simulated outdoor area.

The program is scheduled to start Jan. 9.

New visiting hours at Newton-Wellesley

Newton-Wellesley Hospital has recently revised visiting hours for several of its patient floors. Four basic rules still apply throught the hospital - only two visitors at a time, no children under 12, everyone out by 8:30 p.m., and return visitor passes to the information desk in the Main Lobby.

On medical and surgical floors, hours are 2 to 8:30 p.m. For patients on the danger list, members of the immediate family may visit any time. On the day of surgery, patients should be visited only briefly and only by immediate family.

In the mental health unit, 3-East, hours are 2 to 8:30 p.m., or as arranged with staff.

Maternity and gynecology, 5 South, allows huebans+ husbands to visit from 7:30 a.m. to 10 p.m. For gynecology patients only, visitors may come from 3 to 4:40 p.m. There is additional visiting time for both gynecology and maternity patients from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. Newborns may be seen from 7:30 to 8:15 p.m.

In pediatrics, 6-South, parents may visit anytime, and others may come from 2 to 8:30 p.m.

Visitors to special care, 2-North, must call for clearance from the family room adjacent to the intensive and coronary care units. Two members of the immediate family may see patients anytime for 5-to-10-minute intervals per hour with the exception of the 12:30 - 1:30 p.m. rest hour for coronary patients.

Visitors are advised to call the hospital before coming to determine if and when the patient may have visitors. For patient information, call the hospital at 964-2800, extension 336.

3 men held after Brigham's robbery

Newton Police arrested three men in connection with a robbery of $120 from Brigham's, 19 Commonwealth Ave., Chestnut Hill, Sunday, Dec. 29, at 7:54 p.m.

Arrested after pursuit on foot by police were Dyrell Walker, 23, of 80 Walnut Pk., Dorchester, and Dana Walker, 21, also of Dorchester. Both men were charged with assault and battery and armed robbery.

Also arrested Monday on a warrant was Paul L. Cassiana, 20, of 20a Greylock Rd., Allston, and was charged with assault and battery and armed robbery.

Detective Joseph W. Donahue, Jr., was parked in his patrolcar on Commonwealth Avenue when he saw two men leave Manet-Lake Street Pharmacy, 17 Commonwealth Ave., and meet a third man in front of St. Ignatius Church, police said.

The three men crossed the street and two went into Brigham's and one stayed behind at the bus stop and waved at the other two before Donahue saw the two run out of the store.

Donahue heard over police radio that Brigham's had just been robbed, and pursued and apprehended DanaWalker behind a house on Commonwealth Avenue.

Officers Paul C. Cantiloro, Paul F. Ginnetty, and Harold J. Travers, Jr., arrived on the scene and were in the area and apprehended Dyrell Walker on Algonquin Road, police said.

Inside the store, manager Robert Harnden told police, one man pointed what appeared to be a gun in his pocket at a waitress and him.

The second suspect in the store grabbed a customer around the waist and pointed an object in his pocket at the person. A second customer who tried to leave the store was orderedto sit on the floor. by the men

Fineberg given grant for work in diabetes

Dr. Samuel E. Fineberg of 6 Sterns St., Newton Centre, recently was awarded a $37,500 research grant from the Public Health Service for work at Boston University Medical Center.

The study will investigate the existence of insulin in resistance in diabetes mellitus. It will also explore the genesis of insulin resistance in diabetics and in non-diabetics with normal blood counts but who show resistance to injected dosages of insulin.

Currently Fineberg is an assistant professor of medicine at Boston University School of Medicine and assistant program director of the General Clinical Research Center at Boston City Hospital. He received the 1974 Research and Development Award from the American Diabetes Association and is the author or co-author of many articles in scientific journals.

Philadelphia hosted the centennial celebration of the formation of the Constitution Sept. 15, 16, and 17, 1887.

Highlands Council to meet Jan. 8

The newly elected Newton Highlands Neighborhood Area Council will hold its first meeting on Wednesday, Jan. 8, at the Highlands Branch library from 7:15 to 10 p.m.

The group is expected to discuss bylaws of the new council and other organizational business.

Elected members are Phyllis Adelberg, Jean Artin, Rodney Barker, Stanley Fleischman, Ann Herrnstadt, John Howard, Thomas G. Jones, Barbara Kaplan, and Carol Rector.

Ex officio members are Ward 5 Alderman Susan Schur and Ward 6 Alderman Ernest Dietz.

All meeting of the council are open to the public.

Municipal officers support control of school spending

The 1975 legislative package of the Massachusetts Selectmen's Association includes proposals to, among other things, alter municipal school budgeting procedures, put all communities at full property evaluation, offer senior citizens further tax advantages, and ban statewide all non-recyclable bottles.

The selectmen, meeting earlier this year at a convention in Hyannis, voted to accept a number of proposals which will be supported by the membership during the current session of the Massachusetts legislature.

The Selectmen's Association is asking the General Court+Court:

—for an amendment to the constitution authorizing cities and towns to control school expenditures, by allowing limitation of new expenditures or item increases over the previous year, by a four-fifths majority vote of town meetings, city councils, or aldermanic boards.

— for legislation to provide that school committee budgets contain detailed accounts of all expenditures, item by item. which, after approval by the town meeting, councilmen or aldermen, can be spent only for that purpose.

—to enact a bill that would allow communities to rescind, by the same method used to accept, any statute which calls for funding by the Commonwealth and is not so funded within three years of its acceptance.

—for an act requiring full disclosure of the amounts entitled to cities and towns from the Commonwealth, showing full statutory funding, and further, the net difference between that amount and the amount actually received.

—to enact legislation requiring all communities to be assessed at 100 per cent evaluation.

to allow persons over seventy years of age a tax exemption for the equivalent of $4,000 in evaluation on property taxes, $350.00, or the further option of the sum attributable to the annual school tax levy, whichever is greater.

—to ban nonrecyclable beverage containers.

—to enact legislation which would include police and fire personnel under Workmen's Compensation laws of the Commonwealth, subject to local acceptance.

Murder-suicide investigation ends

Newton Police have closed their investigation of the murder-suicide in Auburndale on Christmas Eve that resulted in the death of Brenda Callen and Donald Tenteris.

Last week's Graphic printed an early report from police that had Tenteris' name misspelled as Teterian.

This week police report that Tenteris, 24, from 8 Independence Ave., Franklin, N.H., registered at the Holiday Inn in Newton on Dec. 23.

Dressed in a Santa Claus suit, he went to the apartment of Miss Callen at about midnight and rang the buzzer of the superintendent, John Vaughn, at 181 Lexington St.

Police said Vaughn recognized Tenteris from previous visits, and he told Vaughn that he wanted to surprise the Callen's.

Tenteris went up to apartment 30 and Brenda's sister Florence let him in.

When Brenda, 21, came out of a bedroom, she saw Tenteris and ran into the bathroom, and was followed by her former boyfriend.

The family told police they heard two gunshots in the bathroom, then Tenteris came out and shot himself once in the head. Both were pronounced dead on arrival at Newton-Wellesley Hospital.

However, police said there were four shots fired because of the bullet holes found in the apartment.

Police said the case was closed because medical examiner Nathaniel Bracket decided against an autopsy.

Police said Miss Callen "seperated from the company of" Tenteris is in April, 1974.

Superintendent Vaughn said Tenteris did not appear to be intoxicated or disturbed, police said.

Tenteris once attended Boston College and worked at a gas station in Auburndale.

Backman files nine bills for consumer protection

Sen. Jack H. Backman's 1975 legislative recommendations include a consumer-protection package covering nine different areas in which the Brookline lawmaker would establish additional consumer rights.

Included in the Backman consumer package are:

S. 566, providing funding to the Consumer's Council for counsel and expert witnesses to protect the public interest in utility rate increase hearings. There is also a companion bill which would require the same initial low-cost utility rates for residential consumers as large industrial users now enjoy (the Lifeline Bill).

S. 563 co-sponsors Cong. Michael Harrington legislation to establish a Massachusetts Public Power Authority, while S. 575 would establish a nuclear advisory group to study nuclearfiesion power-plant safety.

S. 253 would require any manufacturer selling something labeled "ice cream" to tell consumers the exact contents.

A Backman bill, S. 254, would promote fair dealing in franchises by requiring disclosure and licensing in the granting of franchises. The bill would also eliminate oppressive and anticompetitive practices.

In the housing area Backmar has filed S. 1552, the Truth-in-Condominium Act which calls for safeguards on behalf of both the purchasers of condominiums, as well as tenants of buildings to be converted.

In the health field, two Backman bills would increase consumer rights and public participation. S. 641 would establish a Patients' Bill of Rights for personal care in hospitals, while consumers would be placed on the boards of charitable hospitals under S. 640.

The state-federal food stamp program would be codified by S. 611 to eliminate the confusion and poor administration in the present food stamp bureaucracy.

Sen. Backman stated, "Along with the major economic and social welfare problems that our society must solve, we cannot neglect the day-to-day consumer protection that is lacking in nearly every field. The growth of large enterprises, both private and public, has left the average citizen in a poor bargaining position in regard to minimal human requirements.

"This legislation seeks to establish improved consumer protection between sellers and buyers, hospitals and patients, manufacturers and purchasers in areas which directly affect individual rights," Sen. Backman eaid.

Newton gets $425,674 from lottery

Newton has received $425,673.93 in the distribution of proceeds from the Massachueetts state lottery.

The new figure is almoet 10 percent over last year's amount of $39,478.61.

According to State Treasurer Robert Q. Crane, chairman of the lottery commission, to date the lottery has raised more than $95 million for use by local communities since it began in March, 1972.

Drinan supports Speedy Trial Act

Cong. Robert F. Drinan (D-Mass.), speaking to the House of Representatives during debate on the Speedy Trial Act of 1974, strongly supported the measure which would simultaneously protect "the public interest and the rights of defendants by expediting criminal proceedings."

Essentially, the bill would set limits on the length of time between the various stages of a criminal proceeding. Those time periods would grow progressively shorter over a period of five years. "Ultimately, the act would require that a defendant be indicted within 30 days of arrest, be arraigned within 10 days of indictment, and be tried within 60 days of arraignment," the Congressman observed.

Drinan said reduci reducing the time lags should reduce recidivism and noted the effect the bill would have on plea bargaining. "The Justice Department opposes this bill, among other reasons, for fear it will increase the demand for jury trials and reduce guilty pleas. Those fears are groundless. First, we should not perpetuate a system which forces people to relinquish their right to trial by jury," he maintained.

Congressman Drinan also spoke of the importance of the provisions in the Speedy Trial Act which establish ten demonstration pre-trial services agencies.

"Such agencies hold great promise for revolutionizing the manner in which defendants are released and supervised in the pre-trial period," the Congressman said. "In conjunction with other innovative concepts, such as pre-trial diversion, the pre-trial services agency could provide the ultimate solution to the gnawing problems of crime."

The bill passed by voice vote.

Census forms in mail

Forms for the state-mandated city census were mailed this week, according to Alan Licarie, executive secretary of the Election Commission.

Licaries urges all residents to return the forms as c.uickly as possible.

The questions about residents are the same as last year, and in addition there are three questions to obtain information for the School Department.

Residents will be asked to check children who will qualify under Chapter 766 (the state law for handicapped children). There will be another question on whether a language other than English is spoken as the primary language in the home, and a question asking that all students be listed.

Even though by state law Licarie is required to take a census as of Jan. 1 every year, another census will have to be taken as of March 1, in order to comply with the referendum vote to cut the size of the House in 1978.

Licarie hopes that the bill requiring the state census to be taken as of March 1 will be defeated, since there will be insufficient time to prepare a mailing for another census and he would probably have to pay about $50,000 for a police census.

In 1971, the last year in which the census was taken by police, the cost was $37,000; the cost of taking the census by mail is about half that.

Licarie reasons that, after the January census is over, it would be a small matter to list the nonresidents, primarily students, instead of having to check the entire population.

Licarie is chairman of the legislation committee of the City Clerks' Association which is strongly supportive of his objection to taking two censuses in one year.

Quincy men held for bakery break

Two Quincy men were arrested in the basement of Oak Hill Pharmacy and charged with burglary and forced entry Christmas morning at 3:30 a.m.

Arrested were Paul G. Williams, 20, of 31 Gilmore St., and Kevin E. Rantuccio, 19, of 273 Wilson Ave., Quincy.

Officer Paul C. Cantiloro checked the drug store for the third time that night and found wood shavings at the rear door of Woolfie's bakery at 1201 Walnut St., next to the. But going through a hole in the wall of the bakery basement that leads into the pharmacy basement, the dcg followed a scent that led the police to the two suspects hiding behind piles of wood and cardboard. the The hole in wall was from a previous robbery Sunday, Dec. 22' when a safe was the only thing stolen from the pharmacy. Missing from the drugstore in this incident were several wristwatches. The missing safe was found Monday in Mashpee, Mass., one or two miles from Poponesset Beach. Mashpee Police Chief Bingham said, cio" "There is a Rantuccio femily" that owns a residence on Wilson Grove, a street that runs perpendicular into the beach, and is also about "one or two miles" from where the safe was found. The Mashpee police chief declined further comment because the safe was returned to Newton Police, and the case is in the hands of Newton Police Chief William F. Quinn, who also owns a residence in Mashpee.

First Baby Contest

A reminder that Monday, Jan. 6, is the deadline for the Graphic's annual "First Baby Contest."

Newton's first baby of 1975 and his or her parents will be the recipients of a number of gifts from local merchants.

The contest is open to babies born to parents who live in Newton, regardless of where the baby is born.

The birth date, including the hour and minute of birth should be included in entries.

Eligible parents can notify the Newton Graphic via Box 400, Newton, Mass. 02161 or by calling 965-6300. The name of the attending physician is required too.

Neighborhood schools will be discussed

The Citizens Advisory Committee on Declining Enrollment will meet Jan. 9 and 16 to hear information and discuss various meaningful aspects of neighborhood schools.

Citizen groups can direct relevant information to Lillian Radlo, School Department, 265 Watertown St., Newtonville

Members of the advisroy committee are available to receive information.

The Jan. 9 meeting, to be held at the Newton School Department, 265 Watertwon St., begins study four on the committee's outline called the alternatives to ease the impact of closing.

Previous studies have dealt with definiation of excess space, utilizetion of excess space, and criteria for closing schools.

Information already received from the public hearing in November and from communications to the committee will be summarized for presentation to committee members on Jan. 9.

Another public hearing is scheduled -or Feb. 26, at the Bigelow Junior High School Auditorium.

All meetings of the committee are open to the public and up to 30 minutes of each meeting is devoted to observer comment.

Republicans to study transportation needs

Mrs. Maudyea Campbell, chairman of the Newton Republican City Committee, announced that at a recent meeting of the Executive Committee it was voted to undertake the investigation of public transportation in the city of Newton and to develop a policy statement dealing with the projected future development of public transportation in the city.

Mrs. Campbell stated that public traneportation was deemed by the original investigating committee to have the greatest potential for future needs as well as cumulative positive effects on the quality of air, land use and general citizen mobility.

Additionally, with the increasing possibility of higher cost gasoline, it will be important to the economic well-being of the various shopping centers and other public facilities to have the availability of low-cost convenient transportation.

A variety of sources will be asked to develop and contribute data, including students, various institutions, as well as local and nearby community clubs to insure that the final policy statement reflects local needs and is consistent with the socioeconomic climate of the city.

Appointed as co-chairman of the study are Donald J. Sweeney, Newton Centre. who has served on the Crime Commission and is chairman of the Ward 6 Republican Ward Committee, and Joseph I. Weinrebe, Waban.

Backyard to appeal permit suspension

The Backyard, a restaurant in Newton Centre Square, is seeking a hearing over the proposed suspension of its liquor license.

The firm wants an injunction to prevent the suspension of its license that was ordered by the Newton Licensing Board and is supposed to go into effect Monday.

The two-week suspension was ordered by the Licensing Board because the Backyard allegedly illegally permits Le Jungle, a singles club operating on the premisis, to sell liquor.

Reuse of old buildings topic of lecture series

"New Life for Old Buildings," a series of 16 lectures on conservation of the manmade environment, is being offered to public officials and citizen representatives at the Harvard Graduate School of Design.

The series is made possible by financial assistance from the Commonwealth of Massachusetts Council on the Arts and Humanities and the National Endowment for the Arts.

The series will examine the reuse of old buildings, the preservation of historic structures, and the stabilization of neighborhoods. Presentations will cover successful conservation efforts, the resources currently available, and what can be done to create a more favorable legal and economic environment for conservation.

Practicing professionals from government agencies and private companies will cover specific topics and describe the services their organizations provide. The series will include visual presentations, lectures, panel discussions, readings, and opportunities for questions. At the end of the series participants will receive a building conservation catalogue summarizing the resources presented.

The lectures will take place on Tuesday evenings, 6:30-9 p.m., from Feb. 4 through May 20. The fee for the series and all materials is $50.

Further information and applications are available from the program coordinator, Peter Lawrence, in care of Continuing Education, Gund Hall 404, Harvard Graduate School of Design, Cambridge, MA 02138; telephone (617) 495-2578.

United Way nears goal

The United Way of Massachusetts Bay campaign in Newton has reached 77.9 percent of goal, according to Paul Daley, Newton community chairman. Daley urges all Newton residents to give generously to the 1974 United Way campaign so Newton will reach 100 percent of its United Way goal by the end of the year.

Each year the United Way of Massachusetts Bay campaign helps more than a million people living in the 66 cities and towns in the Massachusetts Bay area.

Editorial

No voice for the public

Back through the years, whenever there was talk about wiping out the Governor's Council, discussion invariable arose as to what body would take over the Council's function of confirming or rejecting judicial nominations.

The 40-member State Senate usually was named as the logical body to assume the duty of passing on judicial nominations, but that idea generally was deemed impractical and drew sharp opposition, some of it coming from Senators.

The question of who would perform this function if the Governor's Council went out of existence never was really resolved, and the Council continued in business mostly for that reason, after most of its other powers had been stripped away.

"Immediately," as expressed by Dukakis, probably means four years from now because that's how long it would take to push through a constitutional amendment abolishing the Council, and there's no doubt it could be pushed through to take effect at the start of 1979.

It would be practical now because the judges must retire at the age of 70, and it would be known in advance what judicial posts would be open.

A judge could be elected for a period of years and then stand for reelection on his record on the bench. A good judge, who was respected by the public, would have no trouble getting reelected. A poor judge not deserving of reelection, probably would be defeated at the polls.

Contrary to the arguments which will be raised by the alleged reformers, there is nothing sacred about the appointment of a judge. The political definition of a judge is a lawyer who knew a Governor.

Some very competent attorneys, who aspire to become judges, never realize that ambition because they never get to know any Governors.

Governor-elect Dukakis unquestionably would oppose the election of judges. No Governor ever would voluntarily surrender the power of appointing judges.

Dukakis apparently would substitute a screening committee, which the Governor would largely control, for the Governor's Council. The screening committee would recommend several candidates for a judicial position to be filled, and the Governor would pick one from the list. It's not beyond the realm of political possibility that a Governor would tell the committee whom to recommend.

Michael Dukakis wouldn't do that, of course but his present term only runs through 1978 when voters probably will vote the Governor's Council out of existence.

The criticism here is directed at his proposal that no public body would have the authority to pass on his appointments or those of future Governors.

Sarge Seemed Relieved To Be Rid of Worries

As Governor Francis W. Sargent cleared out his desk for the last time and prepared to take the traditional walk down the steep flight of stairs at the front middle of the State House, he appeared relieved that the enormous task of running the state government during the New Yezr of 1975 would be the responsibility of someone else.

Sarge seemed almost sorry for the new Governor, Michael S. Dukakis, although Dukakis obviously wasn't sorry for himself. He acted as if he could hardly wait to get at his problems.

Outgoing Governor Sargent did not look glum or sad. He smiled most of the time, and they didn't seem to be smiles he was putting on in an attempt to appear cheerful.

He said Dukakis faces a difficult situation—too difficult to warrant any carping criticism from him. Sargent told newsmen he agreed with the appraisal by Senate President Kevin Harrington that Dukakis will be either "a great Governor or a disaster."

If Francis Sargent felt any heartache or deep disappointment that as a result of the decision by the people of Massachusetts Nov. 5, the time for him to walk from the Governorship into retirement and the quiet of private life was close at hand, he didn't show it.

Persons close to Francis Sargent say he has not ruled out the possibility of attempting a political comeback in 1978.

That has been true of most defeated Governors at the time they were leaving office. But they very rarely come back, and it is highly unlikely Francis Sargent ever again will serve as Governor.

John A. Volpe was one of the few exceptions. He was elected Governor in 1960 but was toppled by Endicott Peabody in an upset in 1962 after only two years in office.

Volpe, who was stunned by his 1962 defeat, surged back to win election in 1964 and then achieved election to a four-year term asiGovernor in 1966.

But the cares and worries imposed on a Governor rested heavily on Volpe, and he wearied under them by 1968 when he tried to maneuver himself into a position to be picked as the Republican nominee for Vice President.

Volpe probably would have been tapped by Richard Nixon as his Vice Presidential running mate in 1968 and might be President today except that Senator Edward W. Brooke engineered a political coup which caught Volpe by surprise in the 1968 Presidential Primary and brought in Nelson Rockefeller as the winner over Richard Nixon in Massachusetts.

The Bay State delegation went to the GOP national convention pledged to Rockefeller. Volpe was unable to deliver any delegate votes to Nixon who finally picked Spiro Agnew as his running mate. Agnew had started with Rockefeller but had shifted to Nixon.

In order to get away from the strain of the Governorship, Volpe accepted an appointment to the rather unimportant post of Secretary of Transportation in Nixon's Cabinet. He presently is U.S. Ambassador to Rome.

The cares of the Governorship did not appear to rest as heavily on Francis Sargent as they did on John Volpe, but Sarge must be tired after serving six consecutive years as Governor. The only other Governor in modern time who held the Governorship for as long an unbroken period was Leverett Saltonstall who won three successive elections, the first over James M. Curley in 1938.

As Francis Sargent was garcious and good-natured during his final days and hours in the Governor's suite, this reporter gathered the distinct impression that he is quite content that it will be Michael Dukakis, not he, who must decide whether to enact new taxes or cut back state programs during 1975.

Mr. Dukakis promised during his campaign last fall that no new or increased state taxes would be imposed on the people of Massachusetts in 1975. In fairness, he did not know the size of the state deficit he would inherit. In fact, there is still a dispute as to exactly how much that deficit will be.

But it is certain that during part of the next six months the state will be spending money it doesn't have, although Dukakis will try to trim down that deficit spending.

As a liberal Democrat, Dukakisiis reluctant to curb human services programs or restrain spending for higher education. But he will be forced to choose between such economies and raising taxes.

Like every housewife in Massachusetts, Dukakis is confronted with the problem of inflation. Just as it costs more to feed a family, so does it take more dollars to run the state government.

Even before he assumed the Governorship, Michael Dukakis was involved in a public dispute with Robert C. Wood, president of the University of Massachusetts, over the amount of money which should be provided for that institution and higher education generally in the Commonwealth in the next fiscal year.

One Boston television station has urged that Dukakisiexplore the possibility of obtaining additional revenue for the state from sources other than taxes. A spokesman for the station suggested that one such method might be an increase in tuition charges at the state-operated colleges. Such a move, of course, would spark a furious controversy.

The smile which played on Governor Sargent's face seemed to reflect his realization that the clash between Dukakis and Wood was not his row and that the decision on raising tuition fees was someone else's to make. A political defeat can have its redeeming features.

Dukakis Will Revamp Powerful PWD Agency

Back through the decades, the State Public Works Department has been the most important agency in the State government, providing both patronage and power for the Governor in office and his administration.

Governors, who faced the unpleasant fact that the PWD was being run by unfriendly officials, moved quickly to gain control of the far-reaching department.

Two former State Public Works Commissioners—John A. Volpe and FrancisiW. Sargent—went on to win election as Governor. Volpe achieved election three times to the highest office within the gift of the people of Massachusetts.

The State PWD was headed by a single commissioner when Endicott Peabody assumed office back in 1963. He took advantage of a Crime Commission report to reorganize the agency, oust the then Commissioner Jack Ricciardi, who actually was not accused of any wrong-doing, and replace him with a multi-member board.

Two of the commissioners Democratic Governor Peabody appointed to the PWD board were Republicans Francis W. Sargent and Donald R. Dwight who served not only under Peabody but also in 1965 and 1966, the second Volpe administration.

Volpe tapped Sargent to team with him as his Lieutenant Governor running mate in 1966, and Sarge, in turn, picked Dwight to be his companion on the 1970 GOP ticket.

Governor Sargent, having served several years on the PWD Board, made no changes in it when he succeeded Volpe at the head of the State government. (Volpe and Sargent later had a falling-out which resulted in some sharp words at the 1972 Republican National Convention.)

Now we have come full cycle since ex-Governor Peabody reorganized the State Public Works Department by obtaining the passage of legislation which allowed him to replace the single commissioner with a multi-member board.

One of the measures Dukakis is urging the Legislature to adopt early in its session is a bill which would wipe out the PWD Board and replace it with a single commissioner who, of course, would be appointed by the new Governor.

Dukakis maintains that a single commissioner will function more efficiently than a board at the head of the PWD. He may be right.iHis bill also will allow him to gain control quickly of the massive agency.

Anticipating questions from our readers, John Volpe served as the PWD Commissioner under Governor Christian A. Herter. Volpe resigned in a huff and took a federal job in Washington when a controversy developed over a recommendation by Volpe that Herter name a certain lawyer to the Superior Court bench.

Herter at first intended to grant Volpe's request but then changed his mind when it became clear he would be involved in a dispute if he did so. Volpe was not satisfied with Herter's explanation and walked out of the Herter administration.

The late Bill Callahan, who served both as State Public Works Commissioner and chairman of the Massachusetts Turnpike Authority under Governor Paul A. Dever, was probably the best known of all the PWD heads.

Many persons have wondered down through the years how Governor Herter persuaded him to resign from his PWD post. The answer is that Herter called him in and requested his resignation, threatening to remove him from both jobs if he did not comply. Bill Callahan thought it over and resigned.

That Bad, Old "System" Guilty of Many Crimes

It's truly tragic that the "system" committed all those murders, robberies, rapes, holdups, burglaries and assorted crimes of violence.

We don't know exactly how the faceless system did all those evil things, but the Governor's Advisory Committee on Corrections declared in its year-end report that the blame rests with the prison system, not with the prisoners or even the officers who guard them.

Many convicts, although subjected to "dehumanizing" conditions, have been "patient beyond human endurance," the committee asserted. The recent uprising at the Walpole State Prison was cited as "a symbol of all the things wrong" at that facility.

The prisoners who seized and held three hostages didn't really mean any harm, according to the committee. It was just the only way they could call public attention to their needs.

While the committee lamented the dehumanizing of the convicts who held the hostages, it did not point out that one of them had been convicted of murder which must be the ultimate in dehumanization.

The report touched upon a broad spectrum of matters and covered almost everything except the protection of the public who almost always seem to wind up last in such tomes.

The committee stopped short of urging that John O. Boone be restored as corrections commissioner, but it did advocate an increase in furloughs, work-release programs and contact with families as offering the only "glimmer of hope" for rehabilitation of prisoners.

We favor more furloughs and other excursions outside the prison walls for those inmates who can be trusted not to do violence or harm to the general public.

The officials who approve the furloughs have made some bad guesses in the past. While these reports are constructive in many ways, they invariably seem to consider the law-abiding public last.

Sen. Brooke Has Lost Some Public Support

Senator Edward W. Brooke has not lost an electionsince Kevin H. White defeated him in a fight for the post of Secretary of State back in 1960.

In the years since White toppled him Brooke has won election as Attorney General in 1962 and 1964 and as U.S. Senator in 1966 and 1972.

Some sound students of politics believe Brooke would have been in serious trouble if he had been standing for reelection on Nov. 5 and that he would have been swept out of office by the strong Democratic tide.

Brooke's term has another four years in which to run and he may be able to regain some of his lost popularity before he again places his name on an election ballot but there is little doubt that Brooke's political banners are presently dropping and that he is not nealy as strong today as he was when he was overwhelmingly reelected in 1972.

Political pundits were astounded when Brooke recently proposed a 20-cent-per-gallon increase in the tax on gasoline.

Such an impost would hit hard at many thousands of Massachusetts residents in modest circumstances who use their automobiles to earn their livelihood. It would not seem to reflect Brooke's usual political philosophy.

The only justification for such a staggering hike in the gasoline tax would be if an urgent need exists for a reduction in the use of gasoline in order to avoid a seriou shortage and lines at the gas pumps again this winter.

If we are threatened with a crisis of such proportions as to warrant Brooke's proposal the Ford administration has not given the facts to the American people; nor has it taken steps to avert a shortage such as we experienced last winter.

Meanwhile Brooke has done at least temporary political damge to himself however good his intentions and motives.

With the defeat of Goveror Sargent and Lieutenant Governor Dwight in the November election Brooke is now the only surviving top Republican leader in Massachusetts.

He is trying to rebuild the GOP in the Bay State and has started with the Republian State Committee some of whose members deserted Governor Sargent in his time of need last autumn.

Brooke appears to be making progress slowly but the guessing is he will need a stronger Republian organization behind him when he stands for reelection in 1978, than exists in Massachusetts today.

Congressman Michael Harrington of Beverly has indicated that he is giving serious thouht to the possibility of challenging Brooke in 1978. Persons close to Governor Dukakis assert that it is entirely within the realm of political possibility that Dukakis will make a run for Brooke's seat at the end of his term as Governor.

The impression is growing in the Democratic party that Brooke no longer is invincible at the polls. Congressman Harrington incidentally supported Dukakis in his fight with Attorney General Robert Quinn for the Democratic nomination for Governor in the primary last September. It would be a strange turn of events if Dukakis and Harrington should find themselves on a collision course in 1978.

Neighbors still object to Life Care Center

(Editor's note: The following is a copy of a letter sent to the Board of Aldermen):

Dear Aldermen:

You have been asked to grant a permissive use permit on Stanton Avenue in Auburndale for a "Life Care Facility" consisting of 179 Units, for up to 235 residents and 79 staff on a tract of approximately 3.5 acres. It is respectfully requested that you give consideration to the following factors in making your determination in this matter:

1. The extremely serious and dangerous traffic problem at Route 16 (Washington Street) and Stanton Avenue has never been adequately addressed. As has been pointed out previously, the Consultant's Traffic Report dealing with the problem is defective in that it arrived at its conclusions under the assumption that Route 16, being posted at 35 m.p.h., would not have speeds that exceeded 45 m.p.h.! (p. 17 of Report.) The Report also completely omitted the Woodland Country Club road access, across the street from the site, on all of its key analytical maps for the area.

The physical limitations of the MBTA overpass bridge, with its underlying city water conduits and the newly laid MBTA tracks make adequate physical changes difficult and extremely disruptive. Also, during the one year construction time at the site, estimated by the petitioners, one can hardly imagine the chaos created by trucks and construction equipment moving in and out of what is essentially a five-way intersection with extremely poor line-of-site characteristics. It should be recognized that the disruption from corrective bridge construction would be added to site construction activities on Route 16.

2. There is no basis in sound planning practice for the location of this type of development at this site. The planning studies submitted to the Board appear to be based only on "averages" of various existing facilities (and not claimed to be model projects); there is a marked absence of city-wide site analyses typical to good zoning and planning practice. The drastic shift — on contiguous lots — from single family to over 50 units per acre, at excessive height, is bad precedent, and "spot zoning" in its baldest form. Good zoning practice has always called for some "buffering" or "transitional" zones between such uses.

3. Forit developers, after being rejected on a similar proposal, have developed a deceptive non-profit vehicle to evade the intention of the zoning ordinance. In fact, at no time up to the present, has there been in existence the non-profit corporation to file these applications, and this is supposed to be the basis for any such drastic departure from the existing zoning for the area.

4. The overall impact and serious future consequences of so extreme a density, height, land use and traffic change in this area have not been given the consideration they deserve. Located at a sensitive point between the vast Woodland and Braeburn open land tracts, the precedent that will be established by this change cannot be minimized. This proposal, by introducing commercial and high-intensity development, is bound to build up the pressures for further intense development that have already been represented by the Leahy Clinic, proposed shopping center, and Mass. College of Arts incidents.

5. The initial Certificate of Need for this proposal appears to have been obtained on or about Oct. 4, 1973 after advertisement in the Boston Globe on April 22, 1973, by the "Retirement Center Nursing Home," a name that appears nowhere in the petition notices for zoning change. No advertisement in a local Newton Newspaper appears to have been made, as specified under Dept. of Health rules. The Dept. has stated that this certificate is not transferable as a matter of right; in any case, the "charitable corporation" does not yet exist that would be the recipient of any such transfer. Such a corporation would have to obtain a permit in its own right, subject to a further hearing by the Dept. of Health.

6. The contractual relationships proposed by the petitioners are illusory and constitute clear attempts to evade the purposes of the zoning act and the conditions set forth as part of the aldermanic review: the for-profit developer would reain in a landlord-tenant relationship to the proposed charitable corporation. Under these circumstances, it is doubtful that the pretended "indepenence" can be maintained. Further, there is as yet no contractual relationship; nor does there appear to be any binding obligation, on the part of the "volunteers," to continue to pursue or operate this facility.

It has never been made clear what authority these individuals who have been appearing have from their respective congregations or organizations to make commitments of any sort. In fact, these individuals have publicly stated, that they would "pull out" if things were not to their liking. They have also stated that they, as individuals, would not take on the responsibility for the management of the facilities, nor would the churches, synagogues, or other organizations they are employed by do so. What is proposed, is a hired management, as yet completely unknown to us. Thus, the Board is made to consider a proposal from petitioners that do not yet exist, and who, if they actually come to exist, willl supposedly contract to actual operators who are also as yet unnamed and unknown.

7. Inaccurate and misleading evidence has continued to be presented to the Board by the petitioners in this matter. The latest example is a scale model of the area introduced at the Land Use Committee meeting of December 9, 1974. This purported to show the properties surrounding the proposed project, and it was clearly stated when introduced that it contained all properties shown on the Assessor's Maps used as the base map for the model. Your attention is called to Page 32, Section 43, Block 44 of the Assessors Maps. Eighteen lots with 16 main structures are shown. (One building has been removed.) Of these, six main structures were omitted from the model presented to the Committee as showing all properties on the assessment block, including my own. I am legally an abutter to the Braeburn tract, on Stanton Avenue, which directly abuts the site.

8. There has been a complete lack of concern for the people in the neighborhood of this proposed project. The Aubrundale Community Association has officially gone on record as against the massiveness and inappropriateness of this project for the area. In spite of this, representations have continued to be made to this Board that there is no community opposition to this proposal. Even the Newton Graphic, on Dec. 12, 1974, saw fit to run an editorial cartoon on its editorial page critical of this project. After so many hearings, and so much testimony, after the Dec. 9 meeting, the architect for the proposed project walked up to me and asked me where my house was located!

For the reasons above stated, objection is registered and it is respectfully requested that you vote to deny the permit.

With best wishes for the New Year to all,

Michael M. Bernard

Sen. Brooke's tax legislation

(Editor's note: Following is a copy of a letter that was sent to Senator Edward Brooke):

Dear Senator Brooke:

When I head and read of your new proposed legislation of a 20icent tax increase on gasoline and a weight tax on cars over 2500 pounds I became filled with such contemtp I could remain silent no longer.

How do you and fellow politicians have the gall and audacitu to propose such legislation? How much longer will it be before politicnasn such as yourself pull the trap door open below the scaffold on the working people of this country?

According to birth control advocates, I am over my allowed 2.4 children. If I were in this category, I could purchase a small import such as a Toyota or Datsun. Then I could placj my wife in the front seat, my two children in the rear seat and my .4 child in the glove compartment. Being that I am above this average of 2.4 by 1.6, which you realize Mr. Brooke is four whole children, I did my patriotic duty of Buying American and purchased the only ssnsible car for my family, a six-passenger station wagon.

Not only does it cost more for me to feed, clothe, educate and provice for my family's general welfare, but now you, Mr. Brooke, have the premeditated gall to suggest legislation that would generally endanger the continued well-being of my family. You seem to think, Mr. Brooke, that a family car is a luxury. By what stretch of yohr imagination did you think of this?

To state, Mr. Brooke, tha the gas tax increase will help the present energy crisis is ridiculous. The American people were asked to reduce their consumption of electricity and they did! Their just rewurds are tripled rates plus a fuel adjustment. T The reason, because the elctric companies were not making a large enough profit with the decrease in usage. The American people were asked to decrease the amount of hearing fuel and gasoline they were consuming and they did! Their just reward was the largest price gouging war in history.

President Ford has asked the people to "Bit the Bullet." Mr. Brooke, we have swalloed it!

You speak of a rebate for those earning a gross income of $15,000 or under. What makes $15,000 magic? The lower and middle income are carrying the brunt of all the tax and price increases and here you propose two further ones.

Enough is Enough!!!

Mr. Brooke, come out into the real world and participate in the day to day necessities. Walk down a shopping aisle in a supermarket and tell me what you are going to do about the price of sugar, the price of milk and aprice of bread in your deliberation. Really help us by stopping the political chicanery in governmental agencies pricing techniques.

Until people in political power respond to the needs and demands of their constituencies the great hope for American looks dismal.

Camp taking registrations

The Sharon Travel Camp has opened registration for its cross country program for the summer of 1975.

The six-week program for boys and girls 12 to 16 combines elements of a camping program with travel and exploration of places of interest across the country.

A "summer's end" 10-day camping trip will also be offered this year.

The program is directed by Warren and Dorothy Kline.

Pines heads commission to study flammable clothing

State Rep. Lois G. Pines (D-Newton) has been named House chairman of a special legislative commission set up to study the manufacture, sale, and use of flammable clothing, especially sleepwear as it relates to the elderly.

Rep. Pines has said that 12,000 people die annually in the United States as a result of fires, and one-third of them are young or elderly. She further estimates that there are 3 to 5,000 deaths, and 150 to 250,000 injuries from burns associated with flammable fabrics.

"These statistics are appalling," stated Rep. Pines," and compel this special commission to take appropriate steps to deal with this severe problem with the utmost urgency."

At the first public hearing of the commission on Dec. 4, a demonstration was put on by the Boston Fire Department using a nightgown purchased at a department store. It was set afire to show how easily such flammable garments burn and in many cases drip molten material which can cause the most severe burns.

A nationally recognized expert on flammable clothing, Dr. Ann Phillips of Massachusetts General Hospital, testified that burns among the elderly are much more likely to be fatal, especially for those over 70. Also, the elderly tend to use matches inadequately; they often fall asleep while smoking, and because of their age their reactions to emergencies are slower.

Dr. Phillips noted that while making sleepwear fire-resistant increases the expense of the garment and may be a financial problem to those elderly citizens on a fixed income, the only way to assure their safety is to make all sleepwear non-flammable. She recommended to the commission that federal and state governments embark on an educational program to alert the public to the dangers of flammable sleepwear.

Recommendations to the commission included the following suggested campaign:

1. Make users more aware of the potential injury and death from matches, lighters, smoking, and appliances.
2. Make users aware that clothing burns.
3. Educate people regarding the best action to take if clothing is ignited to smother flames quickly and reduce injuries.
4. Provide a recognition of clothing that is fire-resistant by distinct labeling.
5. Do not limit regulation of clothing to sleepwear, but definitely include robes, housecoats, blouses, and possibly other items that are worn.

The special legislative commission, composed of three state senators, five representatives, and a representative of the Secretary of Elderly Affairs, will report its findings and recommendations by April 4.

Open house at N-W School of Nursing

Prospective students, parents and guidance counselors are invited to attend an open house at Newton-Wellesley Hospital's School of Nursing Thursday, Jan. 16, from 2 to 4 p.m.

The open house will be held at Allen Riddle Hall, the school's dormitory. The event provides an opportunity for guests to meet with the members of the faculty as well as the coordinator of admissions and the admissions counselor to discuss the school's curriculum, facilities, financial aid and other topics of interest.

Students currently enrolled at the school also will be available to answer questions. Tours of the hospital and school will be provided, and an exhibition of student activities and interests will be on display. Refreshments also will be served.

Newton-Wellesley Hospital's School of Nursing in 1971 became the first in New England to offer the condensed twoyear diploma program for the preparation of registered nurses.

Students complete requirements in 80 weeks of intensive education, incorporating 900 hours of classroom study and 1;200 hours of clinical experience throughout the hospital.

Reservations for the open house should be made by calling the School of Nursing et 964-2800, ext. 343 or 347.

Red Cross thanks you

The Newton Chapter of the American Red Cross distributed candy-filled favors, decorations and woolen goods to various nursing homes, hospitals and children's programs during the Christmas holiday. Also, the chapter sponsored a caroling program at the Heritaqe Hill Convalescent and Retirement Home.

The chapter has issued a special thanks to the caroling group of students and teachers from Bigelow Junior Hi.Wh School and Newton North High School. Also, they have thanked the students of Chestnut Hill School for the mittens and other woolen goods from their annual Christmas Mitten Tree.

Other groups which participated in contributions for the holidays were the Camp Fire Girle, Girl Scouts, Cub Scout Troop and students from Warren Junior High School.

Million dollar meal set

The Rotary Foundation is sponsoring its annual Million Dollar Meal on Monday, Dec. 30 at the new Newton North High School cafeteria at 12:15 p.m. Guests are asked to pay the regular price for the meal, but bring their own sandwich. Coffee, tea, plates and cups will be provided. A tour of Newton's newest schooi building will be the program. Guests should enter the high school on Elm Road.

Silluzio noted that although both estimates are greater than the current number of births, both estimates are also "considerably lower than the 1,020 births that produced this year's kindergarten class."

Silluzio also considers the Newton housing situation. Since only 154 building permits for one- and two-family housing units have been issued in the past four years, he said his own prediction of 7000 women "in this age group may be extravagant."

Silluzio further challenge Mrs. Korte's predictions of school children in the 1980's. The table she used assumes a fertility rate of 2.1, and Silluzio agrees that this is the current rate, but he also notes that last year the federal education office used 2.5 as a fertility rate.

This modified the kindergarten projections down by 10 per cent, and if the fertility rate drops to 1.8, the number of 5-year-olds will be considerably less than in the peak year of 1963, Silluzio noted.

Silluzio's predictions

Silluzio then used different assumptions with variations in the fertility rate and migration patterns to make school enrollment projections up to 1984-85.

On the basis of what Silluzio calls an "unprecedented" high birth rate, in his first assumption, he figures elementary school enrollment dropping 28 per cent below this year's 7,994 in 1981, and leveling off to about 20 per cent less than this year by 1984. The total school system decline in enrollment would be 23 per cent from6 15,999 to 12,304.

On the basis of a fertility rate of 1.8 and a an out-migration of 25.3 per cent over the past 10 years, elementary school enrollment will be down 38.5 per cent by 1984, with a system-wide decline of 32 per cent .

In his third assumption, Silluzio keeps the present fertility rate of 34.5 per 1000 women aged 15-44 and assumes an out-migration of 22 per cent.

On the basis of this assumption, elementary school enrollment will decline b about 33 per cent in 1984, and total enrollment will be down 29 per cent.

In his conclusion, Silluzio agreed with Mrs. Korten's conclusion that he quoted. "If planning is done so that our schools are full in 1978, they are soon likely to be overcrowded."

He also said in his conclusion,8 " . . . it would be as unjustified to consider closing large numbers of schools on the basis of the projections as it would be not to consider closing any school on the basis of long-range projections that have enrollments increasing to 'numbers higher than the United States has ever before experienced.'"

jections of City Planning Chairman David Jackson.

Jackson pointed out that under a fairly new ordinance, the City Planning Committee is charged with only determining whether the land should go out of the ownership of the city and the committee is not officially concerned with the housing.

Nevertheless, Ald. Robert Tennant repeated his long-held opinion that the proposed housing site "is the least place in the city of Newton where I'd want to put housing."

Ald. Robert Gaynor asked Housing Authority Director Frank Quinn, who was present at the meeting, whether the Victory Field land is a good location for housing.

To Quinn's response that a "anyplace in the city is a good location for housing," Gaynor rejoined, "Anybody would have to be a lunatic to build housing here."

John Webber, representing the Nonantum community, when asked his opinion on the addition of parking to the Post 440 land, said, "I don't agree with anything here (meaning either the increased parking or the housing). There are more problems than here. I don't think of Post 440 so much as a philanthropic organization as a profit-making business."

Residents of the Nonantum community are almost 100 per cent opposed to building any low-income housing in their community.

The presence of Post 440 is the major objection to the use of the any portion of the site for low-income or any housing. Those who oppose building there point to the lights, noise, late hours, and the sale of alcoholic beverages connected with the Legion building, as well as the high volume of traffic, reportedly 16,000 cars a day, on California Street.

All action related to the post land offer and the related proposal by Ald. Andrew Magni to use the entire 46,000-square-foot percel for recreation purposes, which would defeat the use of the land for housing, was postponed, following the suggestion of Ald. Susan Schur that the Legion submit a more definitive site plan and the request by Gaynor that "some consideration be given the neighbors," in the form of notification to abutters when the matter comes up again.

Before the land can be sold to the Legion and used for parking, both the Land Use and Committees Finance will to have to hold a public hearing.

Mailing dates changed for welfare checks

The Massachusetts Department of Public Welfare has announced plans to increase from two to twenty days eech month the number of dates on which assistance checks are mailed to AFDC and general relief recipients.

The new "cyclical" system, which will go into effect in January, is designed to reduce the incidence of lost and stolen checks and to alleviate peak food-stamp and check-cashing days now experienced by banks and retail stores on the first and fifteenth of each month, when the department mails checks to all recipients.

A sever strain has been placed on banks since the expansion of the food stamp program. "Food Stamp bank transactions can now amount to 257,000 per month, and the Program is still growing,"Commissioner Steven Minter said. "The department also currently issues approximately 272,000 assistance checks monthly. This means that well over half a million transactions are concentrated in four or five banking days each month, creating an extremely difficult situation for the banks. The staggered mailing system will distribute the workload evenly throughout the month, for both the banks and the department, and reduce the waiting period that now exists before most recipients can receive their initial check."

Under the cyclical system, recipients will continue to receive two semi-monthly checks, but the dates on which the cheks are mailed will be based on the last digit of the client's Social Security number. Payroll dates will be as follows: Last digitPayment dates

2	4 & 19
3	5 & 20
4	7 & 22
5	8 & 23
6	10 & 25
7	11 & 26
8	13 & 28
9	14 & 29a

aFor February, those cases whose Social Security Numbers end in a 9 will be paid on the 28th. Recipients whose payroll date falls on a Sunday or a legal holiday will be paid on the day before.

—The new system will not affect eligibility or benefit levels — no grants will be recuded.

—Supplemental Security Income (SSI) and Social Security recipients will not be affected. Checks for these recipients (SSI, gold check, received on the first of each month; SS, green check, received on the third of each month), will continue to be issued once a month by the Social Security Administration.

—Notification will be sent to AFDC and general relief recipients in their Dec. 15, Jan. 1, and Jan. 15 checks, explaing the new payment system. The Jan. 1 check will also include a separate notification for recipients to give to their landlords, describing the new payment schedule.

—On Jan. 15, AFDC and general relief recipients who receive their checks by mail will receive an "adjustment" check to cover the period from Jan. 16 up to the recipient's new payroll date. For example, if a recipient's Social Security number ends in 6, his payroll dates will be the 10th and 25th of each month. So, the adjustment check would cover the nine intervening days, and a full semimonthly check would be issued on Jan. 25.

—General Relief recipients who pick up their checks at the Division of Employment Security will receive an "adjustment" payment in their Jan. 1 check to cover the period up to their new payment date. These clients will collect their checks are mailed to other general relief and AFDC recipients.

—AFDC flat grant quarterly payments will be unaffected by the new system. These checks will continue to be received on March 18, June 18, Sept. 18, and Dec. 18.

—Medicaid identification cards will be unaffected by the new system, and will continue to be issued on the first of each month.

—Authorization-to-purchase cards for food stamps will continue to be received on the first of each month, and will still be valid only for the calendar month for which they are issued.

Nursing classes begin in geriatrics

Middlesex Community College will again offer a special nursing-assistant program beginning Jan. 27 to prepare students for employment in the field of geriatrics.

The classes, offered through the Division of Continuing Education, will be held at the college between 9 a.m. and 2 p.m. for theory on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays. Supervised clinical learning experiences will be scheduled on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

According to the instructor, Mrs. Ellen MacDonald, this unusual program will require special interviews for prospective students. Candidates for the program should call the Allied Health Office, 275-8910, ext. 294, for more information and to make interview appointments. Registration for this eight-credit program will be permitted only after approval by Mrs. MacDonald. The full tuition of $125, plus a $3 registration fee, must be paid at the time of registration before classes begin.

ACA meets on recreation

The Auburndale community Association will hold a special meeting Jan. 9 at 7:30 p.m. at Corpus Christi Church in Auburndale.

Russell Halloran, Newton recreation commissioner will discuss Recreation Department plans for the Auburndale area. Dr. Robert Buxbaum is expected to present his plans for a "parcour" or Life Course to be built at Auburndale Playground.

Silluzio noted that although both estimates are greater than the current number of births, both estimates are also "considerably lower than the 1,020 births that produced this year's kindergarten class."

Silluzio also considers the Newton housing situation. Since only 154 building permits for one- and two-family housing units have been issued in the past four years, he said his own prediction of 7000 women "in this age group may be extravagant."

Silluzio further challenge Mrs. Korte's predictions of school children in the 1980's. The table she used assumes a fertility rate of 2.1, and Silluzio agrees that this is the current rate, but he also notes that last year the federal education office used 2.5 as a fertility rate.

This modified the kindergarten projections down by 10 per cent, and if the fertility rate drops to 1.8, the number of 5-year-olds will be considerably less than in the peak year of 1963, Silluzio noted.

Silluzio's predictions

Silluzio then used different assumptions with variations in the fertility rate and migration patterns to make school enrollment projections up to 1984-85.

On the basis of what Silluzio calls an "unprecedented" high birth rate, in his first assumption, he figures elementary school enrollment dropping 28 per cent below this year's 7,994 in 1981, and leveling off to about 20 per cent less than this year by 1984. The total school system decline in enrollment would be 23 per cent from6 15,999 to 12,304.

On the basis of a fertility rate of 1.8 and a an out-migration of 25.3 per cent over the past 10 years, elementary school enrollment will be down 38.5 per cent by 1984, with a system-wide decline of 32 per cent .

In his third assumption, Silluzio keeps the present fertility rate of 34.5 per 1000 women aged 15-44 and assumes an out-migration of 22 per cent.

On the basis of this assumption, elementary school enrollment will decline b about 33 per cent in 1984, and total enrollment will be down 29 per cent.

In his conclusion, Silluzio agreed with Mrs. Korten's conclusion that he quoted.

"If planning is done so that our schools are full in 1978, they are soon likely to be overcrowded."

He also said in his conclusion,8 " . . . it would be as unjustified to consider closing large numbers of schools on the basis of the projections as it would be not to consider closing any school on the basis of long-range projections that have enrollments increasing to 'numbers higher than the United States has ever before experienced.'"

jections of City Planning Chairman David Jackson.

Jackson pointed out that under a fairly new ordinance, the City Planning Committee is charged with only determining whether the land should go out of the ownership of the city and the committee is not officially concerned with the housing.

Nevertheless, Ald. Robert Tennant repeated his long-held opinion that the proposed housing site "is the least place in the city of Newton where I'd want to put housing."

Ald. Robert Gaynor asked Housing Authority Director Frank Quinn, who was present at the meeting, whether the Victory Field land is a good location for housing.

To Quinn's response that a "anyplace in the city is a good location for housing," Gaynor rejoined, "Anybody would have to be a lunatic to build housing here."

John Webber, representing the Nonantum community, when asked his opinion on the addition of parking to the Post 440 land, said, "I don't agree with anything here (meaning either the increased parking or the housing). There are more problems than here. I don't think of Post 440 so much as a philanthropic organization as a profit-making business."

Residents of the Nonantum community are almost 100 per cent opposed to building any low-income housing in their community.

The presence of Post 440 is the major objection to the use of the any portion of the site for low-income or any housing. Those who oppose building there point to the lights, noise, late hours, and the sale of alcoholic beverages connected with the Legion building, as well as the high volume of traffic, reportedly 16,000 cars a day, on California Street.

All action related to the post land offer and the related proposal by Ald. Andrew Magni to use the entire 46,000-square-foot percel for recreation purposes, which would defeat the use of the land for housing, was postponed, following the suggestion of Ald. Susan Schur that the Legion submit a more definitive site plan and the request by Gaynor that "some consideration be given the neighbors," in the form of notification to abutters when the matter comes up again.

Before the land can be sold to the Legion and used for parking, both the Land Use and Committees Finance will to have to hold a public hearing.

Nursing classes begin in geriatrics

Middlesex Community College will again offer a special nursing-assistant program beginning Jan. 27 to prepare students for employment in the field of geriatrics.

The classes, offered through the Division of Continuing Education, will be held at the college between 9 a.m. and 2 p.m. for theory on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays. Supervised clinical learning experiences will be scheduled on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

According to the instructor, Mrs. Ellen MacDonald, this unusual program will require special interviews for prospective students. Candidates for the program should call the Allied Health Office, 275-8910, ext. 294, for more information and to make interview appointments. Registration for this eight-credit program will be permitted only after approval by Mrs. MacDonald. The full tuition of $125, plus a $3 registration fee, must be paid at the time of registration before classes begin.

Mailing dates changed for welfare checks

The Massachusetts Department of Public Welfare has announced plans to increase from two to twenty days eech month the number of dates on which assistance checks are mailed to AFDC and general relief recipients.

The new "cyclical" system, which will go into effect in January, is designed to reduce the incidence of lost and stolen checks and to alleviate peak food-stamp and check-cashing days now experienced by banks and retail stores on the first and fifteenth of each month, when the department mails checks to all recipients.

A sever strain has been placed on banks since the expansion of the food stamp program. "Food Stamp bank transactions can now amount to 257,000 per month, and the Program is still growing,"Commissioner Steven Minter said. "The department also currently issues approximately 272,000 assistance checks monthly. This means that well over half a million transactions are concentrated in four or five banking days each month, creating an extremely difficult situation for the banks. The staggered mailing system will distribute the workload evenly throughout the month, for both the banks and the department, and reduce the waiting period that now exists before most recipients can receive their initial check."

Under the cyclical system, recipients will continue to receive two semi-monthly checks, but the dates on which the cheks are mailed will be based on the last digit of the client's Social Security number. Payroll dates will be as follows: Last digitPayment dates

2	4 & 19
3	5 & 20
4	7 & 22
5	8 & 23
6	10 & 25
7	11 & 26
8	13 & 28
9	14 & 29a

aFor February, those cases whose Social Security Numbers end in a 9 will be paid on the 28th. Recipients whose payroll date falls on a Sunday or a legal holiday will be paid on the day before.

—The new system will not affect eligibility or benefit levels — no grants will be recuded.

—Supplemental Security Income (SSI) and Social Security recipients will not be affected. Checks for these recipients (SSI, gold check, received on the first of each month; SS, green check, received on the third of each month), will continue to be issued once a month by the Social Security Administration.

—Notification will be sent to AFDC and general relief recipients in their Dec. 15, Jan. 1, and Jan. 15 checks, explaing the new payment system. The Jan. 1 check will also include a separate notification for recipients to give to their landlords, describing the new payment schedule.

—On Jan. 15, AFDC and general relief recipients who receive their checks by mail will receive an "adjustment" check to cover the period from Jan. 16 up to the recipient's new payroll date. For example, if a recipient's Social Security number ends in 6, his payroll dates will be the 10th and 25th of each month. So, the adjustment check would cover the nine intervening days, and a full semimonthly check would be issued on Jan. 25.

—General Relief recipients who pick up their checks at the Division of Employment Security will receive an "adjustment" payment in their Jan. 1 check to cover the period up to their new payment date. These clients will collect their checks are mailed to other general relief and AFDC recipients.

—AFDC flat grant quarterly payments will be unaffected by the new system. These checks will continue to be received on March 18, June 18, Sept. 18, and Dec. 18.

—Medicaid identification cards will be unaffected by the new system, and will continue to be issued on the first of each month.

—Authorization-to-purchase cards for food stamps will continue to be received on the first of each month, and will still be valid only for the calendar month for which they are issued.

Sundell reappointed to Israel bond group

The board of governors of the Greater Boston Committee, Stete of Israel Bonds, this week announced the reappointment of Jeremiah Sundell of Newton as General Chairman of the Hub Bond Organization.

Known for his participation in communal and humanitarian endeavors, Sundell's leadership as head of the Boston bond committee this past year produced record resulte for Israel'e domestic development program.

Under Sundell's guidance, the Greater Boston community participated on a level of maximum effectiveness in the purchase of Israel Bonds for the strengtheming of Israel's economy at a time cf grave crisis.

The bond leader was a member of the first official American Delegation to tour Israel on a fact-finding trip following the Yom Kippur War. His observations on the economic situation following that trip and subsequent trips have given impetus to the Israel bond campaign.

During his tenure as general chairman, many new facets were added to the Israel Bond program, including the establishment of two major honor societies, the Prime Minister's Club for top level investors, and Shomrei Israel (Guardians of Israel) for bond purchasers of $1,000 or more.

A partner in Clarence Rainess and Co., Sundell is chairman of the board of Guaranty First Trust Company of Waltham and New England Bankcorp. He is a director of the Massachusetts Mental Health Research Corporation, president of Pine Brook Country Club and treasurer of the Stadium Club. In addition, he is a member of the board of Solomon Schechter School and a life member of the Greater Boston Brandeis Club.

Jeremiah Sundell

Tarmy, Larkin elected to office in B'nai B'rith

Two Newton men were elected to high office in B'nai B'rith at the organy dtion's international convention in Israel.

Isaac Tarmy of 9 Newbrook Circle, Chestnut Hill, was elected to the Adult Jewish Education Commission. AJE fosters Jewish education through home study, group meetings, lectures, and conferences; it also publishes books on Jewish history and philosophy.

Tarmy, president and treasurer of Friend Lumber Corp. of Medford, is also a member of District 1 board of governors.

Allan Larkin, of 239 Ward St., Newton Centre, was named to the Hillel Commission. Hillel serves as a center for social, cultural, and religious activity of Jewish students and faculty at more than 300 college campuses around the world.

Larkin, a publisher of trade magazines and producer of trade shows, has been president of B'nai B'rith's Greater Boston Council.

South wrestlers unbeaten

By HOWIE APPELSTEIN
Sports Correspondent

NEWTON - While the Newton South basketball and hockey teams have fallen on hard times, the Newton South wrestling team is breezing along to another successful season.

At the moment, the graplers are 4-0 with wins over Walpole, Brookline, Springfield Cathedral and Springfield Tech.

The Lions opened their eeason by crushing Walpole 48-12. South always opens its season against the Rebels and usually Walpole gives the Lions a tough battle, but year South completely dominated by winning nine out of twelve matches.

Senior Chuck Pippo got the Lions off to a flying start by pinning his opponent at 100 lbs. Walpole evened the match at 6-6 when their man pinned sophomore Billy Surrette at 107 lbs.

Luis MacDonaid got the lead back when he pinned his foe to give South a 12-6 advantage. All three pins occurred in the first period.

Junior Gary Fireman lost a tough match at 121 lbs. ae he came out on the short end of a 2-0 decision. Senior Bruce Arafe pinned hie Walpole opponent in the third period at p+ 128 pounds to give South an 18-9 lead.

Co-captain Peter Nathanson, wrestling at 134 lbs., also pinned his foe in the third period, upping South's edge to 24-9.

Howie Appelstein, wrestling at 140 lbs., pinned his man in the first period to give South a 21 point lead. Senior Barry Horowitz lost 5-0 at 147 lbs., but that turned out to be Walpole's last victory of the afternoon.

Senior Aaron Moynahan quickly pinned his Walpole counterpart in the first stanza at 157 lbs. Junior Keith Washington decisioned his man at 167 lbs., 9-6.

Junior Mike Costa filled in for co-captain Peter Maples at 187 lbs. and he won by default. Costa's opponent was injured during the match and was unable to continue.

Lion heavyweight Scott Groper was losing most of the way but he managed to win in a close match, 4-3.

Defeat Brookline

Two days later the Lions traveled to Brookline and South again won by a large margin as they stomped Brookline, 39-15.

Chuck Pippo had a tough time of it but he stil managed to win, 5-3, to give South an early 3-0 lead. Sophomore Ronny Lombardo did an excellent job at 107 lbs. despite losing a 9-6 decision.

Brookline simply did not have a 114 pounder so Louis MacDonald got a forfeit victory. Gary Fireman upped South'e lead to 12-3 when he easily decisioned his opponent, 5-0, at 121 lbs. The lead closed to 12-9 when Brookline's 128 lb wrester pinned Bruce Arafe in the second period.

Peter Nathanson pinned his foe with fifteen seconds left in the third period to regain South's nine point lead. Howie Appelstein bowed in a tough decision at 140 lbs., 5-4.

Barry Horowitz edged his man at 147 lbs., 7-5, to again give South a nine point lead, 21-12. Aaron Moynahan iced the match for the Lions when he pinned his opponent in the third period.

Keith Washington lost 5-2 at 167 lbs. but South still led in the match, 27-15. Peter Maples had no troubles pi2 pinning his man at 187 lbs. as he pinned his foe midway through the first period.

Paul Tormey wrestled heavyweight and he pinned i+ his foe in the third period.

Quadrangular Meet

Last Saturday the Lions traveled to Springfield with Waltham High to wrestle in a quadrangular meet. The first team South faced was Springfield Cathedral. This team was by far South's toughest opponent of the year, but the Lions still came out on top, 31-19.

Chuck Pippo again was involved in a close match and again he won by two points as he edged his foe 11-9 in a very exciting match. Luis Macdonald wrestled at 107 lbs. for this match and he pinned his foe in the first period.

Billy Surrette moved up to 114 pounds and he was pinned in the first period. Gary Fireman was tied 6-6, but many o- the South wrestlers and Coach Aredis Kojoyian felt Fireman deserved the victory. A stalling penalty was called against Fireman with only six seconds remaining in the match. Kojoyian protested the call but you know who won the argument.

Brude Arafe also tied his opponent 2-2 and South led at that point, 13-10. Peter Nathanson came from behind brilliantly to squeak out a 3-2 decision. Losing 2-1, Natahnson got a takedown in the closing seconds of the match.

Howie Appelstein won a 5-2 decision to up the Lions lead to nine points, 19-10. The lead closed to 19-16 when Barry Horowitz was pinned at 147 lbs.

Aaron Moynahan edged his foe 5-4 at 157 lbs. to add three points to the slim South lead. South's lead again dropped to only three points when Keith Washington lost 11-3 heavyweight, giving Scott Groper a forfeit victory. at 167 lbs.

Peter Maples clinched the victory for South when he decisioned his foe, 6-3, at 187 lbs. Cathedral did not have a heavyweight, giving H+ctorH+ Scott Groper a forfeit victory.

Tech Destroyed

One hour later, South came back and destroyed Springfield Tech, 41-10.

Chuck Pippo tied his opponent four-all as he came from behind to get the tie. Tech did not have a 107 lbs wrestler and Ronny Lombardo got the forfeit victory. Luis Macdonald wrestled at 114 pounds and he won on a decision, 9 to 6.

Gary Fireman pinned his Tech opponent in the third period to give South a 17-2 lead. Bruce Arafe was the only South wrestler to lose as he was pinned in the first period.

At 134, Nathanson easily won his match as he decisioned his foe, 15-3+ 15-4. Howie Appelstein also won on a decision at 140 lbs, 4-1. Craig Sousy wrestled at 147 lbs. and he too won a decision, 10-7. Sousy would have been wrestling earlier matcbes but he sprained his ankle in pre-season practice.

Aaron Moynahan won his fourth straight match of the season as he decisioned his foe 6 to 3. Keith Washington tied his opponent at 167 lbs., one-al!, as both wrestlers scored on escape moves. Tech also did not have a 187 lb wrestler so Maples got a forfeit victory.

Scott Groper finished off the romp with a 12-7 win at heavyweight.

A good reason for the Lions' success has to be the coaching. Head coach Aredis Kojoyian and assistant coach Chuck Hurwitz have built a wrestling dynasty at Newton South. For the past several seasons South wrestling teams have never lost more than two matches and have always placed in the top ten in the state.

South's next two matches are at home against Cathclic Memorial on Friday and Lincoln-Sudbury next Tuesday. Both matched begin at 3:30 p.m.

North harriers win two meets

By RICH RAUM
Sports Correspondent

It can't be bought. It can't be sold. It can't be touched. Team spirit is that intangible ingredient that either you have or you don't have. This year, the Newton North track team has it.

By tying Weymouth South 43-43, and stopping North Quincy 48-38, the Tigers appear to be tough challengers for the Suburban League title.

"Weymouth South has beaten us for the last three years. Our tying them is a strong indication of just how strong this team has become," said coach Fred Yaitaines.

The Tigers fcund themselves in a battle the entire meet.

Tom Hightower won the mile for Newton, but Weymouth took second and third.

The roles were reversed in the thousand, as Weymouth took first and second, while Tony Morales finished third for the Tigers.

Perhaps the turning point in the meet took place in the 600. The Tigers were hanging tough and their strong events were yet to come, when Ken Tocci, who was expected to place highly, was tripped and eliminated from the race.

But the Tigers still came on strong.

Bob Meek and Randall took first and third for the Tigers in the 300. Duncan Scott won the 2-mile, and James Connolly and Rich Jaffee placed first and second in the hurdles.

Meanwhile in the field events the Tigers were sweeping the shot put. Tom and John Cardillo took first and second and Pete Saravis finished third.

Martin took third in the high jump.

With Al Shockett taking second for Newton in the dash the Tigers found themselves in a do-or-die situation. They had to win the relay to salvage a tie.

They not only won the relay, it was the fastest time recorded in the league.

North Quincy

North Quincy was Newton's next opponent on December 27.

Again Tom Hightower started things off by winning the mile and Howard Pierce finished third.

The Tigers' Alan Yun salvaged a third in the thousand.

Ken Tocci had the fastest time of the day in the 600 as he won it in 1:27.7.

Then Randall and Rich Raum took second and third, respectively, for the Tigers in the 300. Duncan Scott grabbed a second in the 2-mile while James Connoly and Rich Jaffe took first and second in the hurdles.

Hugh Caplan plac&d second for Newton in the dash.

Newton proved to be strong again in the field events as Tom and John Cardillo took first and second in the shot put and Ricker won the high jump.

Going into the relay the tigers found themselves in a similar situation as they were a week earlier. But this time only if they lost would they tie.

This was not to be as again Newton's relay team was the fastest of the day.

A GOOD CALL

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Southern California Coach John McKay said after his team's Rose Bowl win Wednesday that his Trojans have "as good a call as anybody" to the national championship.

"We have as good a call to it as anybody," said an elated McKay. "We beat the teams that beat the teams. We beat Ohio State who beat (third-ranked) Michigan and we beat Notre Dame, who beat Alabama."

"I tell you I know who I'm going to vote for."

Center gets more money

The Educational Development Center Child Care Project in Newton has been the recipient of a new grant from the Office for Children and the Department of Public Welfare for a Demonstration Day Care! program designed to provide child care services for working families who cannot afford to pay the full cost of day care.

The funds will be used to pay the difference between the actual cost of care and the amount of money the family is able to pay. The fee will be decided according to a sliding 8 scale, based on income and family size.

The grant will enable to the center to include kindergartners in their program in addition to their present after school program for children from 8 to 14. Infants and preschoolers will be cared for in home-based programs in the area. The funds apply only to families in which parents are working or in training. For further information, call Meg Cline at 969-7100, ext. 553.

Office for Children reviewing programs

The Newton-Wellesley-Weston Council for Children is beginning its decision making process for funding programs for the fiscal year beginning July 1. The first task is to set priorities for types of programs that are needed in the area. At the council meeting Jan. 7, the members will discuss what services are needed.

Interested citizens are invited to attend the meeting at 7:45 p.m. in the area office, 442 Walnut St., Newtonville.

Once the timetable for funding programs has been set, the council will begin advertising for letters of intent to submit proposals for programs.

At this time, the evaluation committee of the council has begun to evaluate and monitor the programs that are currently receiving funding from the area council.

Among the nine programs now being funded are the Wellesley Community Child Care program, Families Extended and various day care and after school care programs.

Each program will be visited by a team of community people trained by the council to observe and assess the programs.

The Nominating Committee is now considering candidates for election to the board of the Council for Children. Anyone interested in serving on the board or anyone who would like to recommend a candidate can contact Sonny Kravitz at 332-5084 or 965-9610.

Crochet a pretty cap and scarf

With a little practice, a barblike hook that is about 6-inches long and any kind of cotton or yarn, you can become a crochet artist!

If you're a beginner, you will be amazed at how quickly you can create more variations of pattern with crochet stitches than with knitting needles. The first step is the acquiring of skills in the basic stitches, beginning and ending rows, increasing and decreasing and then building up your stitch vocabulary. Doing pot holders or simple squares for an afghan would be an excellent beginning, but if you crave the artistic, you've just got to see Del Pitt Feldman's new book "The Crocheter's Art" or New Dimensions in Free-form Crochet. With patterns and photographs, she shows you how to break the barriers of conformity and use this type of needle work to create imaginative wall hangings and other free form designs.

To get you started, we are giving you directions for making a hat and scarf offered by the American Wool Council, who advise you that it's best to invest in pure wool yarns. Wool breathes, absorbs moisture and is the best protection from cold. Many yarns are machine washable.

Question: My grandmother used to make the most delicious lentil soup ever and even my mother has attempted but failed to reproduce the thick soup which used to have pieces of sausage and ham in it. Do you suppose you could find a recipe similiar to what I've described? Thank you very much.

Mrs. A.M., Walpole

Answer: There is something wonderful about memories of good food prepared by our grandparents who used to cook "instinctively" rarely using a written recipe. I just hope this recipe comes close to the real thing!

LENTIL SOUP

¼ cup salad oil
3 cups diced cooked ham
½ pound Polish sausage, cut in ½-inch slices
2 large onions, chopped
1 clove garlic, crushed
2 cups chopped celery with leaves
1 large tomato, peeled and cut in wedges
1 pound lentils, washed
3 quarts water
½ teaspoon Tabasco pepper sauce
1½ teaspoons salt
1 pkg. (10 oz.) frozen leaf spinach, thawed, cut

In a large kettle, heat oil; add ham, sausage, onion and garlic; cook for 5 minutes. Add celery, tomato, lentils, water, Tabasco and salt. Cover and cook over low heat for 2 hours. Add spiniach and cook for 10 minutes. Yield: 4 qts.

Mrs. G. H., Dedham has taken time out of her busy day to send us a recipe she concocted on the spur of the moment when unexpected guests dropped by. Our thanks for:

CHILI CORNBREAD CASSEROLE

1½ pounds ground beef
2 tablespoons salad oil
1 can (28 oz.) tomatoes
1 can (20 oz.) red kidney beans
¾ cup chopped ripe olives
2 tablespoons chili powder
2 tablespoons instant minced onion
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon ground black pepper
1 pkg (12 oz.) corn miffin mix

Brown meat in oil. Add remaining ingredients except corn muffin mix and mix well. Pour into greased 3-quart casserole. Bake in preheated 325 degree oven for 30 minutes. Prepare muffin mix according to package directions. Spoon mixture around edge of hot casserole leaving an opening in the middle. Return to oven and increase oven temperature to 425 degrees and bake for an additional 25 minutes. Serves 6-8.

Question: I am looking for a particular chicken recipe, one that is the very best. As I recall, the pieces of chicken are dipped in evaporated milk and then in a biscuit mix and then baked and the crust is crunchy and not oily and heavy. Thank you for any assistance you can give me.

Mrs. S.D., Dedham

Answer: I found your receipe–it was a winner in the Chicken Cooking contest back in 1962. Here it is in all its glory:

DEEP SOUTH OVENLY CHICKEN

1 broiler-fryer chicken cut in serving pieces
1 cup bixcuit mix
½ teaspoon poultry seasoning
1 teaspoon paprika
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup finely chopped pecans
1 cup evaporated milk
¼ pound butter or margarine

Mix together biscuit mix, poultry seasoning, paprika, salt and pecans. Dip chicken in evaporated milk, then roll in the biscuit mixture. Heat the butter in a shallow baking pan and place coated chicken pieces in the pan, allowing at least ½ inch between each piece. Bake uncovered at 350 degrees for 40 minutes. Turn pieces and bake for 20 more minutes or until done. Serves 4.

Our thanks to Mrs. D.R., Norwood for her letter in which she says, "Recently we were entertained at a friend's home and she served a spectacular dessert called a Strawberry Party Cake. I now have the recipe and thought your readers would also enjoy this cake that's filled with pudding and preserves and frosted with whipped cream.

STRAWBERRY PARTY CAKE

1 pkg (18-½ oz.) yellow cake mix
1 pkg. (3-¼) oz. regular vanilla pudding
1½ cups milk
1 cup orange juice
1 cup strawberry preserves
1 pint heavy cream
3 tablespoons confectioners' sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
one-third cup toasted sliced almonds

Bake cake mix according to package directions using two 9-inch layer cake pans. Cool layers on wire racks. Meanwhile prepare pudding mix as directed on package, but use ONLY 1-½ cups milk. Cool throughly. Slice each cake layer horizontally into 2 layers of equal thickness. Spoon orange juice evenly over cake layers; set aside one top layer.

Spread each of the remaining 3 layers first with one-third of the preserves, then one-third of the prepared pudding. Reassemble cake, putting reserved cake layer on top. Cover with plastic wrap and chill several hours or overnight. Before serving, whip cream with sugar and vanilla and spread top and sides of cake with whipped cream. Garnish with almonds. Serves 12.

Question: Can you help me find a good recipe for baked macaroni and cheese? I'd really appreciate this because it's a favorite of mine when we have lunch at a restaurant and yet I've never attempted to make the dish. Thanks.

Mrs. K. M., Roslindale

Answer: Easily made and can be frozen, here's your recipe:

BAKED MACARONI AND CHEESE

2 tablespoons margarine
1 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons dry mustard
2½ cups milk
2 cups cheddar cheese, shredded
Paprika
2 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
3 quarts boiling water
8 oz. elbow macaroni
¼ cup buttered bread crumbs

In saucepan, melt the butter; remove from heat and blend in flour, salt and mustard. Add milk, stirring constantly until sauce thickens and is smooth. Add 1½ cups cheese; heat until melted, stirring occasionally. Cook macaroni in the boiling water with salt for 6-7 minutes. Combine drained macaroni and sauce in greased 2-quart casserole; top with remaining cheese, bread crumbs and paprika. Bake at 375 degrees for 20-25 minutes or until brown. Serves 6-8.

Food and fashion

by Ruth Lenson

Across the kitchen counter

Have you been having a good time enjoying the holiday feasting season and ignoring the extra pounds? You don't hear too much about New Years Resolutions nowadays, but wouldn't this be the ideal time to promise yourself that you'll get rid of the extra weight you're lugging around?

Too often dieting is coupled with privations and that's negative thinking. A dieter should think about all the delicious foods she (or he) may have — foods that are varied and tasty. A positive attitude is the first step towards slimming down — psychologists tell us that self love is important, so consider dieting as a special kind of care that will make you a healthier, happier person . . . and you deserve all the effort it involves.

Meals need not be dull, repetitive nor bland. Plan menus that include lean meat, poultry or fish, succulent vegetables as well as most fruits. Generally, overweight people crave rich desserts; take heart because even though you're dieting you can still enjoy dessert, the low calorie way. Cheesecake, usually reserved for those without weight problems, now comes in a low calorie version for everyone's pleasure. The one we offer here has only 100 calories per serving.

Here's to a slimmed down you in 1975!

NIPPY VEGETABLE DUNK

1-½ cups cottage cheese
½ cup yogurt
2 teaspoons sharp prepared mustard
1 tablespoon snipped parsley
1 teaspoon seasoned salt
½ teaspoon grated lemon rind

Early in the day, thoroughly combine cheese, yogurt, mustard, parsley, salt and lemon rind in serving bowl. Refrigerate. Serve with raw carrot, cauliflower, radishes, dill pickles and celery.

SKILLET CHICKEN AND GREEN BEANS

3 tablespoons Promise margarine
2 whole broiler-fryer chicken breasts, boned, skinned, cut into ½-inch strips
1 small onion, sliced
2 tomatoes, cut in eighths
1 teaspoon lemon juice
¼ teaspoon dried leaf thyme
1-½ teaspoons salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 pkg. (10 oz.) frozen green beans, broccoli flowerets of okra

Melt margarine in large skillet. Add chicken and cook over high heat until meat turns white. Add remaining ingredients and mix well. Cover and cook over medium heat for 10 minutes. If desired, serve with hot cooked rice. Serves 4.

SPICED DESSERT COFFEE

1 jar (2 oz.) freeze-dried decaffeinated coffee
1 cup granulated sugar (or sugar substitute)
1 tablespoon ground cinnamon
2 teaspoons dried orange peel

Combine all ingredients and mix well; store in a tightly covered jar. Makes about 2 cups mix. For each serving, place 1 tablespoon mix in a cup or mug and add ¾ cup boiling water. Stir until mixture dissolves. Yields approximately 28 calories per serving.

LIGHT ORANGE CHEESECAKE

2 envelopes unflavored gelatine
1-½ cups orange juice, divided
3 strips orange rind
¾ cup sugar, divided
⅛ teaspoon salt
2 eggs, separated
3 cups (24 oz.) creamed cottage cheese
1 teaspoon vanilla
¼ cup graham cracker crumbs

Sprinkle gelatine over ½ cup orange juice in container of electric blender. Heat remaining 1 cup orange juice to boiling and add to blender. Cover and process at high speed until gelatine dissolves. Stop blender; add orange rind, ½ cup sugar, salt, egg yolks, cottage cheese and vanilla. Cover and process until smooth.

Pour into large bowl; chill until mixture mounds slightly when dropped from a spoon. Beat egg whites until soft peaks form, gradually beat in remaining ½ cup sugar and beat until stiff. Fold into orange mixture. Sprinkle graham cracker crumbs over bottom of 8-inch springform pan; carefully spoon cheesecake filling over crumbs. Chill until firm. Yield: 16 servings of 100 calories per serving.

GRAPEFRUIT COCKTAIL

2 cups Florida grapefruit juice
Non-nutritive sweetener equivalent to 4 teaspoons sugar
1 egg white
Ice cubes
Nutmeg

Combine grapefruit juice and non-nutritive sweetener. Beat egg white until stiff, add juice and beat until frothy. Pour over ice in glasses and sprinkle with nutmeg. Yields: Four 4-oz. servings, 57 calories each.

IRISH SHORTBREAD

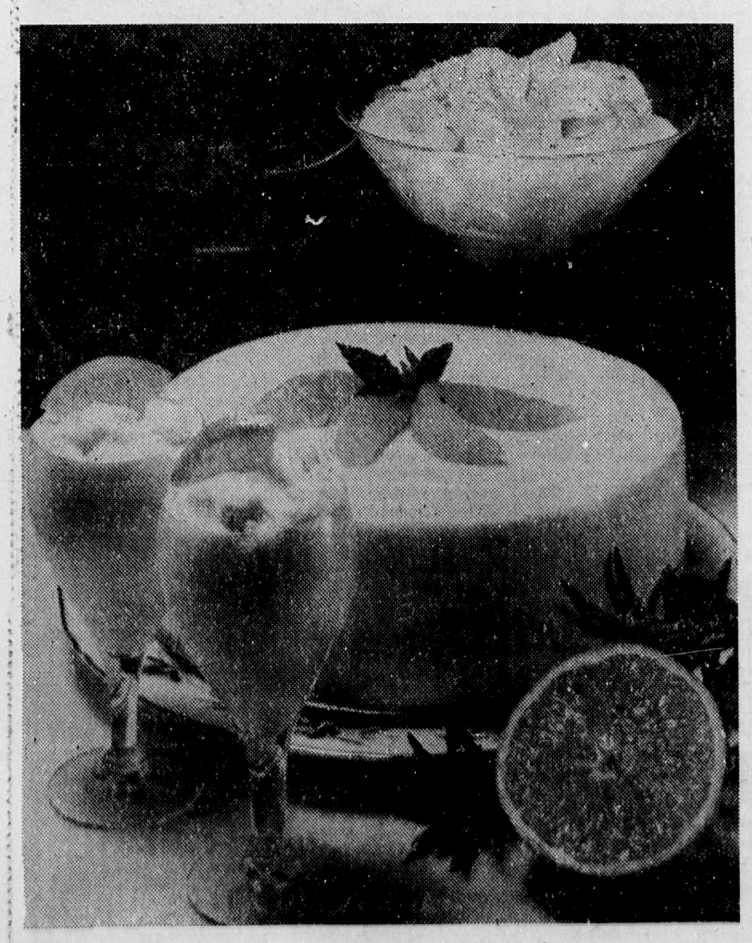
¼ cup butter
1 cup self rising cake flour
1 egg
2 tablespoons brown sugar
3 packets granulated sugar substitute

Blend butter into cake flour until mixture resembles graham cracker crumbs. Add egg, brown sugar and sugar substitute. Work dough until it forms into a ball. Shape into a thick roll. Wrap in waxed paper and place in refrigerator overnight. When ready to bake, cut roll in ¼ inch slices. Place on cookie sheet in 350 degree preheated oven and bake about 12 minutes until honey brown. Makes about 20 slices; 49 calories per slice.

VANILLA MILK SHAKE

½ cup evaporated skim milk
½ cup cold water
2 tablespoons frozen whipped dessert topping
1 teaspoon vanilla
6 ice cubes

In blender container combine evaporated skim milk, water, dessert topping, and vanilla. Add ice cubes, one at a time, blending at lowest speed till slushy. Serves two, 59 calories per serving.



Delicious light orange cheesecake . . . .

Bargain month for museum goers

Ten Boston area museums offer the best inflation beater in town during Museum Goers Month in January.

With one paid admission at any of the ten participating museums, the visitor will receive a free pass to one other museum of his choice. Free passes are redeemable weekday afternoons from 1 or 2 p.m. unitl the museums closing.

Participating in this year's Museum Goers Month are: the Museum of Science, New England Aquarium, Museum of Fine Arts, The Transportation Museum, Children's Museum, Museum of Afro American History, the Institute of Contemporary Art, Museum of the American China Trade, Drumlin Farm, and Blue Hills Trailside Museum.

Each museum offers something special for the visitor during January.

The Museum of Fine Arts is featuring a new exhibition entitled "Fronteir American: The Far West", which opens January 24. This pre-Centennial exhibition highlights the dramatic history of America's Far West and represents the first major showing of Western Art in the East. A collection of Kasmir and Paisley shawls will be on view beginning January 21, and an exhibition of Navajo blankets January 23. Continuing exhibitions are: "Trends in contemporary Realist Painting" through January 27, and, "Clarence Kennedy: A Photographer Looks at Sculpture" through February 23.

At the Museum of Science, F,riday evening special events in January are: "Laser Light Beams,' January 3; Music, Dance and Demonstrations of the rick heritage and culture of the people of Demonstratione of the rich heritage and culture of the people of India, January 10; programs on "Medieval Astronomy, Alchemy, and Ailments," January 17 through February 7. The Hayden Planetarium features an overview of progress in space travel and research since Sputnik, daily and Friday nights, January 2 through March 17.

The current stars at the New England Aquarium are dolphins and sea lions who perform daily on board the floating amphitheatre, "Discovery," docked at Commonwealth Pier. In the main Aquarium building on Central Wharf, the 200,000 gallon giant ocean tank with its 456 pound green sea turtle and six foot long sharks continues to fascinate visitors. Films in the "Sea Theatre" are free to aquarium visitors at 2:30 p.m. weekdays.

The Transportation Museum in Brookline is closed Mondays; but special exhibitions there are an Antique Toy Show through January 12. On January 20, a "funny car" show opens.

The Museum of the American China Trade is located in Milton, and is also closed on Mondays. Its special exhibit is a collection of Cineses and Japanese art objects which range in date from the Western Chou dynasty (12-8th centures B.C.) to the mid-nineteenth century. The exhibit includes a wide variety of objects. Ceramics comprise the largest number of pieces, but jade, lacquerware, stading screens and bronzes are also shown.

WATER is the feature exhibit at the Children's Museum a water play table, exploration of fresh, salt and pond water, a water clock, prisms, water sounds and the power of water. The museum is closed on Mondays.

Drumlin Farm in Lincoln is the major facility of the Massachusetts Audubon Society. On its 240 acres, Museum-goers can visit an active farm modeled after a turn-of-the-century farm along with domestic animals and a variety of native New England wildlife. It is closed to the public on Monday.

The Blue Hills Trailside Museum in Milton offers miles of woodland trails in the MDC Blue Hills Reservation, with a Trailside Museum and outdoor exhibits area interpreting the natural history of New England. Trailside is located on Route 138 in Milton. Take exit 64 North off Route 128. Public transportation also serves the museum. The Blue Hills Trailside Museum is operated for the Metropolitan District Commission by the Massachusetts Audubon Society, and is closed Mondays.

January 7 through 11 is "Video Week" at the Institute on Contemporary Art. From January 22, an exhibit of the recent works of eight Boston artists is on display.

The Museum of Afro American History is the newest member of the Museums of Boston. Of special interest to Museum-goers is the Black Heritage Trail (by reservation at 445-7400) and the Meeting House Hill in Roxbury.

Three-dimensional travelogue on India at Science Museum

A three-dimensional travelogue on India takes place Friday evening, Jan. 10, at Boston's Museum of Science.

Festival costumes, dances, music, demonstrations, and exhibits offer a varied sampling of Indian cultural life. The program is given with the cooperation of the M.I.T. organization of Indian students, Sangam; the Indian Association for Greater Boston; the International Institute, and the Museum's Service League Volunteers.

A demonstration on the use of Indian spices, and performance by two fold dance groups will be held at intervals all evening from 6 to 10 p.m. The dance groups are organized by Tara Singh Chana and Kirthi Shah.

A choice of two programs is arranged for 7 p.m.

Members of the Indian Community in Boston will form a costume parade to show and explain what is worn in different parts of India for marriages and other impoeta+ important occasions. Directed by Bindu Parikh, Cambridge, and R. Gopalakrishnan, Lawrence, this program will be repeated at 9 p.m.

The other program at 7 p.m. is an illustrated talk on Indian religions by Diana Eck, a doctoral candidate at the Center for the Study of World Religions, Harvard University. Ms. Eck did research during the last academic year at Banaras Hindu University toward a dissertation on the sacred city of Banaras.

A program of classical dancing followed by a demonstration of the sitar with tabla accompaniment will be at 8 p.m. Lakshkmi Vullimiri, a graduate student at M.I.T., and students from the Belmont Music School, Belmont, will be the dancers. The sitar will be played by Peter Rowe, a member of the faculty of the New England Conservatory of Music and Brown University. He stidied in Calcutta for eight years and has given many performances both in India and in this country.

Indian dishes will be served in the Museum's Skyline Cafeteria, open from 5 to 8 p.m.

There is no charge for the program except regular Museum admission of $2.50 for adults and $1.25 for children, senior citizens, and college students with I.D. Admission is 50c extra to the Planetarium, which is showing "Of Probes and Plenets" at 8 p.m.

Survey of home upkeep by Census Bureau

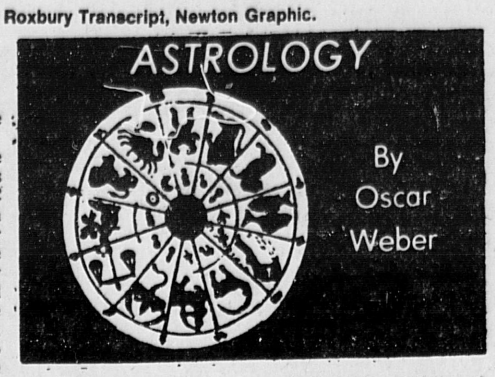
A sample of households in this area will be included in a nationwide survey of home upkeep and improvement costs to be taken by the bureau of the Census. The Bureau is part of the U.S. Department of Commerce's Social and Economic Statistics Administration.

Arthur G. Dukakis, director of the Bureau's Regional Office in Boston, announced that households will be interviewed during the period January 2-10, 1975.

The survey is taken four times yearly to provide a continuing measure of this segment of America's economy. The sample of households here is included among the approximately 6,000 throughout the United States that will be asked about additions, alterations' maintenance and repairs to their homes.

Results of the July survey showed that during the second quarter of 1974 owner-occupants of single unit properties spend $2.5 billion on improvements such as additions, alterations, or major replacements. This was 80 percent of the total spent for improvements on residential properties, while $1.2 billion was spent for maintenance and repair.

Information reported to the Census Bureau is held in strict confidence by law. The reports published are in terms of totals only. No information that would identify any individual or household is released.



Artistically Talented

Q. I am a Capricon born on January 8, 1951 in Boston, Mass. at 3:00 p.m. My trouble is decision making, right now I am considering my career. I have artistic talents and I write poetry. I am working at a bank and I can go to school for banking.

Banking would be "secure" career and commercial art is very competitive as well as nearly impossible to get started in. Since I have waited six years to decide on any career for myself it is really important that I choose just the right one. What does my horoscope show? M.K.P.

A. Your horoscope confirms your observations. You do have artistic talents and in time you could achieve recognition and a fine degree of success as shown astrologically by the planet Jupiter in the Sign of Pisces in the Midheaven in Favorably aspect to your Ascendent and both the Sun and your planet Mercury.

However, the planet Uranus in the Sign of Cancer in your First House indicates you must feel "secure" before your particular genius can fully and freely function.

You may want to consider furthering your banking career for the security it offers and developing your artistic possibilities as an avocation until such time as you establish yourself in it even if only as a part time basis.

In the past many have achieved full self-realization and outstanding financial success by turning their hobby from a spare time pleasure into a profession.

You have the ability and can be determined. You are fully aware of your natural talents and instinctively want the opportunity to have others appreciate them. With patience and persistence your hopes and wishes can be realized.

Exhibit of Kashmir and Paisley shawls

Kashmir and "Paisley" Shawls will be on view at the Boston Museum, Jan. 21 through March 30. This is the first exhibition devoted to the MFA's collection of these finely woven 18th and 19th century textiles.

Woven from Tibetan goat fleece, square or rectangular Kashmiri shwals were often designed with borders of delicate, naturalistic flowers. In time, these flowers were increasingly stylized until finall becoming elongated "cones" that covered the entire shawl.

From the late 18th century to about 1870, Indian shawls made for export were widely imitated in Scotland, England, and on the Continent. These exports were luxury items for the fashionable upper classes—an indispensable accessory that stayed in vogue for almost a century. The European copies, today known as "Paisley" after Scotland's leading weaving center, were produced more quickly and less expensively than the Kashmiri originals.

The high standards of production set by Indian weavers could not be maintained by their European imitators. Without the rare T.-betan goat fleece the unique softness of Indian shawls could not be simulated. Kashmiri designs were frequently copied, but Europeans freely adapted their own patterns until what had been a unique fashion accessory became commonplace.

Certain benefits available for veterans who travel overseas

If you're a veteran with a yen to travel or establish residence overseas, you'd better check first with the Veterans Administration.

Under the law, VA cannot provide certain benefits in foreign countries, the agency advised. Knowing what benefits are available could become crucial to a veteran's well-being, it was stressed, especially if medical problems arise.

Before traveling outside the U.S., a veteran should obtain a statement of his service-connected disabilities from the VA office which maintains his medical records.

In an emergency, an eligible veteran is entitled to VA-paid hospitalization for service-connected conditions if he or a representative presents the VA statement to the embassy or consular office within 72 hours after hospitalization begins, together with an application for medical benefits. Notification of outpatient treatment must be made within 15 days.

Care for veterans with both service-connected and non-service-connected disabilities is available only in the Philippines at the Veterans Memorial Hospital in Manila. As in the United States, however, veterans with non-service-connected disabilities are eligible on a space available basis, and only if they are unable to defray expenses.

Only veterans who are retired servicemen are eligible for medical benefits from military hospitals and clinics.

Education benefits are available overseas to eligible veterans, eligible wives, widows and children pursuing degrees in VA-approved foreign schools.

Compensation and pension checks also may be mailed to most overseas addresses but GI home loans are not available to veterans living in foreign countries.

To insure prompt receipt of checks, veterans traveling in foreign countries should maintain stateside mailing addresses, where possible.

Status of women in obtaining credit

"Can a woman obtain credit in her own name, regardless of her marital status?" The volunteer operator for the Voter Information Phone of the League of Women Voters of Massachusetts replied: "Yes."

Massachusetts law forbids applying different standards of credit eligibility because of sex or marital status. Eligibility for credit must be determined solely on the basis of the applicant's own tangible source of regular income.

Proposed guidelines for implementation of this new law define income to include alimony and child support as well as wages, and make it illegal to require an applicant to indicate marital status or to require that a married woman use her husband's name in applying for credit.

A public hearing on these proposed regulations has been tentatively scheduled by the Massachusetts Commission Against Discrimination for December 23, 1974 at 10 a.m. in the Minihan Lecture Hall, 6th floor, Charles Hurley Building, Government Center.

This question is one of the many now being received by the League of Women Voters Voter Information Phone. Individuals with any question on government may call the VIPhone Monday through Friday between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. The number in the Boston area is 357-5880. Outside the Boston metropolitan area callers should dial the toll-free number 1-800-882-1649. The Voter Information Phone will be closed between December 23 and January 1.

"Free Legal Clinic" in Brookline Jan. 9

Norfolk County's fifth "free legal clinic" will be held at Brookline Municipal Court, Thursday evening, January 9th, from 7 to 9:30.

The clinic is aimed at providing free legal advice from the county's leading lawyers on a variety of topics as a public service.

The program is intended to serve those who can afford a lawyer as well as those who cannot. Fifteen lawyers are expected to be on hand for the evening session.

Attorneys will be prepared to field questions in virtually any area, domestic, property, landlord, accident, zoning and jury duty.

A number of private consultation rooms are being provided by the court. The courthouse is located a short distance from Brookline Village, near Brookline Police Headquarters.

The first two clinics were held at Stoughton District Court, the third in the new district court building in Quincy and the fourth at Dedham.

Leon Rubin, Norfolk Bar president, said about fifty persons sought advice at the last clinic. He indicated that the clinics would be continued on a regular basis.

Norfolk County is believed to be one of the nation's first areas in which the bar association has sponsored free clinics on a continuing basis.

The Norfolk Bar Association is one of the country's oldest. It was established in 1886.

Attorney Rubin said that under the clinic rules, lawyers who hear the cases must decline taking the individuals as clients.

Utter privacy is guaranteed under the clinic program.

Richard P. Melick of Needham, prominent Boston attorney, is chairman of the Brookline clinic.

Tigers tie Latin, fall to Weymouth

By RON MACLEAN
Sports Correspondent

NEWTON — Cambridge Latin's George Yeomelarkis scored with 2:43 left in the game to offset an earlier Newton comeback, and tie the Tigers 3-3 last Saturday.

Yeomelarkis's goal spoiled Newton's two goal second period comeback, in which Newton dominated both ends of the ice. The final goal came on a screened rebound. Chris Terranova blocked a shot by Rick Waterman, but Yeomelarkis grabbed the puck and slid it by Joe Steele.

Cambridge opened the scoring at 4:17 of the first period as George Yeomelarkis slipped a rebound under the leg of the sprawled out Steele.

Six minutes later Rick Waterman made it 2-0 with a wrist shot to Steele's right. Waterman came in on a breakaway, faked Steele to the left and shot it by on the right.

Newton wasted no time in the second period as Ray Valente scored on a hard wrist shot from the point. Ray stole the puck and shot it straight at goalie Mike Pratt but the puck was tipped by a Cambridge defenseman and went over the head of a startled Pratt.

Steve Marchessault tied the g ame at 7:53 of the middle period on a tip-in of a Doug Jessup shot off a face off.

The Tigers first lead of the season came at 1:20 of the third period as center Bob Karem jammed a rebound through the pads of Pratt. Assists on the play went to Dave Solomon and Chris Terranova and it was 3-2.

Cambridge had a goal called back two minutes later as a penalty had been called before the shot. Steele came out of the net to clear the puck, but it was stolen and put into the empty net to no avail.

Latin again applied pressure later on keeping the puck in the Newton end for a long period, only escaped when the Tigers iced the puck. A f ace off was called in the Tiger end, and that set the stage for the tying goal.

Weymouth Wins

Weymouth North, spurred by a Mark Haley hat trick, jumed on Newton for five third period goals, to hand the Tigers their third loss in a row by an 8-2 score last Thursday.

Weymouth was in control all the way as they went out to a 2-0 lead in the first period on goals by Bob Balchunas and Neil O'Shaughnessy. Balchmans' goal came at 4:55, beating Steele to the glove side, while O'Shaughnessy scored at 10:50 on a crisp pass play.

The teams traded goals in the middle period as Bob Karem scored at 3:52 for Newton from Scott Mertons and Rick Cavanaugh and Masrk Haley scored at 6:35, the first of his three goals.

Haley continued his onslaught in the third period with two goals, at 1:21 and 5:55 to put the game out of reach at 5-1. Rich Castagnazzi; 0'Shaughnessy and Balchunas added goals for Cambridge while B ill Egan scored on a pass from Ray Valente to end the Tiger scoring.

The two games brought the Tiger record to 0-3-1' Newton plays e9ain on Saturday at North Quincy.

Lions lose 3 in row

By MARK COOPER
Sports Correspondent

NEWTON—In a dramatic reversal from the form they displayed in their opening game win versus Wayland, Newton South's hockey team dropped three consecutive games to Dual County League opponents Concord-Carlisle, Bedford and Lincoln-Sudbury.

In fairness to the Lions, it must be noted that all three defeats came at the hands of undefeated, and in most cases untied teams.

The Concord-Carlisle game rivaled the Boston Massacre in terms of one-sidedness, as the Patriots routed South 10-2. The Lions were blown right out of the stadium, and South absorbed one of its worst setbacks ever.

The game started out innocently enough when at 4:32 of the first period Concord scored on a power play. John Tortella registered the fir t ofhis three goals as he beat South goalie Dave Satter from

Yet South bounced back and Kenny Schmidlein, on a picture pass from Jan Waalewyn, fired a hard shot into the net to tie the score at one.

Only 20 seconds later Concord scored the first of nine consecutive goals as Paul Mareau tallied. Ten seconds later Concord scored again and at the end of one period Concord led 4-1. Although South hustled trying desperately to get back into the game, individual mistakes hurt the Lions' cause and Concord's lead soared to 7-1 at the close of two periods.

In a meaningless third period as far as victory or defeat was concerned, Concord pushed their total to 10 goals when South finally responded, as senior Brian Cain, on a pass from Mark Cooper, made a brilliant fake and beat the Concord goalie neatly, making the final score read 10-2.

BEDFORD WINS

The game was termed a disaster by Coach McPhee, and South sought to put it out of their minds and concentrate on beating Bedford. Unfortunately it just wasn't to be, as both teams battled fiercely through a scoreless first period.

In the middle stanza Bedford popped a goal past a surprised Satter to open a 1-0 lead on the Lions. Neither team demonstrated a potent offense until Brian Cain brought South into a shortlived tie with Bedford at one. Moments later second-liner Jim Steffenelli stepped by the South defense and beat the South goalie cleanly.

In the third period Bedford scored two unanswered goals to pull ahead before Kevin 8Schmidlein rapped home a pass from Mark Cooper to slice the margin to 4-2. Yet Bedford scored on an empty net with only one minute left in the contest and with that goal iced the game 5-2.

Individual mistakes defensively, and a noticeable lack of offensive punch, were the Lions biggest worries after the back-to-back setbacks and a victory over Lincoln-Sudbury was sorely needed to get the Lions back on the winning track.

Another loss

Yet once again no happy ending was in sight as Lincoln, the perennial offensive power in the league socked it to South early and often.

At 3:52 of the opening period Tom Lanes scored on a two-on-one break that left the South goalie helpless to stop his shot. Although the Lions continued to hustle, something they have done very well so far, a beleaguered and besieged defensive corps took the brunt of a Lincoln attack that unloaded 45 shots on goalie Satter. With the offerise nonexistent for the third straight game most of the ection was staged in the Newton end of the rink. South remained tough, however, until Lincoln pumped two quick goals home to raise the score to 3-0 at the end of two periods.

As the third period commenced South unleashed a brief offensive attack that was stymied by the strong Lincoln-Sudbury defense. Midway through the final period Lincoln pummeled the South goalie and scored to make it 4-0. That was more than enough for the Warriors, although scnior sensation Bob Magnuson blasted a slapshot by a startled Bobby Driscoll, who had taken over for Satter in goal. Final score Lincoln-Sudbury 5, Newton South 0.

This week's foes include defending state champion Acton-Boxboro on Monday, and Weston High School at Natick's Weet Suburban Arena on Friday night.

South loses South High hockey players,in white shirts, were cut through by the Acton offense for the second goal in Acton's sweep of Newton South.

Wayland falls to South; Bedford wins

By BRUCE BOYNICK
Sports Correspondent

BEDFORD - The Bedford Bucaneers broke open a seesaw battle in the waning moments to beat Uewton South 55-46 on Monday at Bedford. For the Lions, it was their d+fifth defeat in their first six outings.

Strong shooting and some much needed hustle helped the Lions to a 17-14 first quarter lead. They improved their lead to 29-24, but a late Bedford surge made it 31-29 at halftime.

Bedford came out strong in the second half and a 15-4 surge helped them to a 35-44 advantage with 1:20 remaining in the thrid quart er. But the Lions came roaring back, and a Mark Aronson (16 points) bucket brought the Lions to within three at 44-41 at the end of the W.uarter.

The teams traded baskets and the Lions trailed 50-46 with 3:12 remaining in the game. The Lione had numerous chances to come back but missed six straight shots. From then on it was all Bedford, as the Bucs put the came out of reach with 37 seconds remaining, leading 54-46.

Defeat Wayland

Against Wayland, on Thursday, Aronson gave a brilliant 21 point performance, but reserve guard Matt Sabetti was the hero. Sabetti's jumper with no time remaining gave the Lions a come-from- behind 55-54 victory.

South led 13-11 after one quarter of play, but a strong shooting Wayland team reeled off nine unanswered points to lead 20-13. Wayland improved its lead to 30-20, but the Lions came back to trail 30-25 at intermission.

During the third quarter, Wayland controlled tempo of the game and subsequently enjoyed a nine point lead going into the fourth quarter.

Two Aronson buckets helped cut the Wayland lead to 46-43. The Warriors then rebounded for two hoops of their own and led 50-43 with 5:21 remaining. The teams traded points andNewton South trailed 53-46 with two minutes left to play. The Lions remained poised and baskets by Aronson and Sabetti closed the gap to 53-50 with 1:22 remaining in the game.

A tight defense forced a Wayland travel and a Bob hoop made the score 53-52 with 40 seconds remaining. The teams traded foul shots and Wayland had the ball and a 54-53 lead with ten seconds to go. Then, the referees blessed South with a homecourt call, and the Lions had possession with seven seconds remaining. The inbounds pass went to forward Chandler Bosworth. His shot failed, but in the scurry for the loose ball, Sabetti came up with it. Ne shot a 10 foot jumper which bounced off the rim and went in, giving the Lions a one point victory with no time reamining.

While the varsity has suffered a very slow start, the junior varsity has fared well, winning four of its firet six.

Pete Laskaris earns starting UNH berth

DURHAM, N.H. - Peter Laskaris of Newton has won a starting berth on the University of New Hampshire basketball team. A June 1974 graduate of Newton North High, Laskaris is just the second freshman in Gerry Friel's six years of coaching at UNH to win a starting position.

The 6'5", 205 pound forward was MVP of the Suburban League last year and was twice named all-state. In addition he won numerous honors and played on several championships during summer league play.

Through the Wildcats' first five games (two wins and three losses) Laskaris is the second leading rebounder and third leading scorer on the team. He has averaged 10.8 points for those five contests and pulled down 30 rebounds.'

His best games came against Vermont when he scored 16 points and grbbed six rebounds and against Merrimack when he scored 13 points and pulled down 16 rebounds. That 16 rebound total is a single game high for a UNH player this season.

Friel feels that Laskaris is one of the top, if not the top recruit, in his tenure at UNH. "Peter gives up much needed physical play especially near the boards," Friel said. "He has total enthusiasm and dedication to the game. His only problem is that he must cut down on fouls which have limited his playing time."

North five defeated

NEWTON - The Newton North basketball team bowed to North Quincy High last Thursday by the score of 58-49 in Suburban League action.

Quincy had the lead throughout the contest, s jumping into a 16-10 advantage in the first period, upping it to 31-25 at the half, 44-39 at the three quarter pole, and finally 58-49.

John Williams was the big scorer for Newton as he netted 23 points in the game to lead all scorers, However, he received only minimal support from his teammates as no other North player could hit double figures. Ryan connected for seven points from his backcourt position while Brilliant and Kinsella added six apiece in the losing effort.

Quincy had a big game from their pivotman, Tim Clifford, who bagged fourteen points. Paul Kelleher added thirteen and Steve Martinelli twelve to pace the balanced North Quincy attack.

The Newton junior varsity team also bowed, 53-51, in a disputed contest.

In wrestling action, North destroyed North Quincy last Tuesday by the lopsided score of 51 to 12.

A big injustice to Hurricane Carter

All my conscious life I've never given much of a damn about so called "social causes." Sure I thought Ross Barnett and Bull Connors were fools but I thought they were colorful fools as opposed to dangerous ones, and, after all, I really didn't care where James Meredith went to school. I suppose my attitude stems from over exposure to bleeding liberals (all of whom went to St. Grottlesex), as well as the never ending indignent cries, no yelps, of minority groups. In fact, the extent of my social awareness is that I took a course in college offered by the SDS; my thinking being that since the SDSers were so idiotic the course would have to be incredibly simple. I, along with the hockey team was not disappointed.

But that was then, for never have my sensibilities been so outraged as they are now over the current Ruben "Hurricane" Carter case. How in God's name can a man whose conviction was based largely on evidence by two witnesses who later admitted they lied not be granted a new trial. The same judge, one Samuel A. Larner, who sentenced Carter also disallowed his appeal. We all know justice is blind, but did we know it was stupid. The two men who put Carter behind bars recently confessed that the New Jersey police "persuaded" them to say they were witnesses to Carter's killing three white men in a Elizabeth, Newark, Seekonk, Paramus and Perth Amboy to name a savory few, I'm not sure but I think they even had a WHA team for a day or two. You feel you've got poor judges in New York and Massachusetts, what about this guy, he ought to be publicly defrocked, tarred and feathered by Frank Perdue and deported to Hoboken.

Carter was a pretty good fighter, not a great one, but he gave you your money's worth, and apparently he's still not going down for the full count without a struggle. Fortunately he hasn't exhausted his appeals, and with a little luck and less of a seemingly hack judge, he should get a retrial before 1976. Once free I imagine Carter will have a lucrative career on talk shows promoting his book or books. That sure doesn't make up for the time lost and I hope he sues the city of Newark and or Patterson for their every cent which I understand isn't much. Just as I feel Muhammed Ali should take honest John Hersey and the U.S. government right to the proverbial cleaners.

I don't know what Carter did to the Newark police department that they wanted him so badly, for all I know he could be a totally despicable person and quite possibly guilty but I do know he's where he is without fair trial and Nixon's where he is without fiar trial and if that's what we call justice, forget it! Patterson bar, when it now would appear that they never even saw Carter. Their testimony constituted virtually all the evidence against Carter, who not incidently had a record at the time and was widely considered a troublemaker by the police. Yet The Learned Larner reasoned in his 46 page opinion that he found the two witnesses so "devious and amoral" that he couldn't possibly comprehend their motivation. It would seem to me and my untutored legal mind that if these two men are as corrupt as His Honor contends then there would be all the more reason for a retrial. How on the one hand if these men are so degenerate that they cannot be believed that they lied, how on the other hand can they be believed they told the truth, in other words how can Carter not be granted a mistrial? Are you sure Larner didn't get his law degree from the Staley College of the Spoken Word.

However, when taking Larner's decision into hand one should not forget that New Jersey, or if the more literate and wittier of us prefer New Joisey, is the same state that brought us Hugh Addonizio, Gyp, "pardoned by Nixon" DeCarlo, The Amboy Dukes, Tony Imperiale and his White Knights, not to mention the former great Nixonite Charles "Stonewall" Sandman. Yes endeared New Jersey, the laughing stock of the nation, the Garden State, ha, ha, the poor stepchild of New York and Pennsylvania, the home of

Kodak Teen-age Movie Competition

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Duchy of Frog, in case you never knew, is ruled over by King Croak III.

The king every year runs a frog race as an everlasting monument to his father, King Croak II. Usually at this Toad Derby a delegation comes from San Frogcisco to cheer its entry, Frog Biscuit.

Doings of King Croak and goi..gs on in the Duchy are featured in a move made by David M. Daniels, 15, of San Diego, Calif.

For its rib-tickling capacity and good use of music the funny film won first place, Junior Category, in the 1974 Kodak Teen-age Movie competition.

Of the dozen winners in various categories this year, most worked humor into their creations. The competition, around since 1963, through the years reflects the concerns of teen-agers.

If more are looking on the funny side of life, it may indicate their generation's less grim.

In past competitions young film-makers mainly focused on themes dealing with war (during the sixties), with the space race (also the sixties), and sociological issues — preachy types of movies.

Humor, never out of fashion, always was among the films — especially those group creations from elementary school youngsters. But it is more in fashion in 1974's entries.

A sense of comedy and a good twist ending won for Richard N. Miller, 11, of Simi Valley, Calif. Hhis award in the pre-teen category is entitled "The Junior American Dream."

It's about this boy who mows lawns, washes cars, collects newspapers, returns bottles, rakes leaves and even babysits to get enough money for a 10-speed bike. So he can keep up with his friends who have 10-speeds.

He just about earns sufficient dollars. But a bseball he hits breaks a window. The bill for that lees him $5 poore

Sittig on a rb, he sots a wlet in te gutter It contains the $15 and much more.

Our hero resists the impulse to keep the money. His honesty is rewarded with $20. Happy as can be —or so he thinks —our hero proudly rides his new 10-speed. And just then, a friend happens by —on a brand new motorized mini-bike. Back to wishing.

Little Black Riding Hood, another winner in the 1974 competition, won a second place in the pre-teen category for Charlesetta Turner and Angelia Gavin, 9 and 10, respectively.

The lassies from Lincoln Elementary School in Richmond, Calif., put on film a story that would please all those crusading for a better chance for antisocial types.

In this adaption of the classic children's story, a "fine chick", Little Black Riding Hood, takes a basket of soul food to grandma's house.

A "jive wolf" she meets along the way is impressed with the "chitlins, corn bread, green gumbo, black-eyed peas, pig's feet, hogshead cheese and other goodies."

He hustles ahead and stashes grandma in a closet, first disguising himself in her bifocals and shawl. When the pint-sized samaritan arrives, the wolf pounces.

Her screams are heared by a passerby who saves her and then solves the wolf's problem.

"I was so hungry I could eat a cockroach," says the wolf in his own defense before he is escorted to a place where he will get "three square meals a day."

"As far as I know," concludes the narrator of this tale, "that wolf is still partying it up at the city zoo, listening to his Stevie Wonder albums. He is very fat and happy."

"The film," said the judges, "is quite sensitive to the feelings of people, especially children before they are spoiled by adult values."

Another winner, second place, came from John P. Mullen, 19, of Florham Park, N.J. His film, "The Masticators," starts with a card game that ends when two players turn up identical hands.

Instead of reaching for guns or swords to fight it out, the players reach for a postgame snack. It quickly escalates into a feast of pizza, hot dogs, bananas, potato chips, ice cream, pop, pies and other munchies, all delightful.

The feast goes on and the film becomes one big food commercial.

"A parody of all television food commercials that works very well," a judge said.

More than 5,000 young moviemakers have submitted homemade movies since the contest's start.

A rundown of winners traces the major teen-ager preoccupations over the years. To wit:

—"Sons of War Shorts," in 1963 re-enacted the Battle of Iwo Jima and in a way foretold new activism that was stirring in the younger generation.

—In 1964 a three-dimensional animation featured a musical combo of skeletons, reflecting the Beatlemania craze that was sweeping the country. And "Diamonds are Forever," a James Bond type movie, became the first of a line of parodies on suave and not-so-suave secret agents.

In later years, science fiction dominated, much in step with youth's interest in the space race and puzzles it brought into focus —such as: "Is there life out there?"

"When narcotics hit epidemic proportions, the young filmmakers mirrored tensions with such films as "The Trip." That one described the highs and lows of an LSD trip.

By 1969, a generation some observers suggested was edging toward cynicism from its earlier idealism spawned spirited animated films about the little struggles of everyday life.

Then came 1970 and its concern with the environment. That was the year of the first Earth Day. A prize-winning film, Where We Seldom Wander, made a strong, yet poetic, statement for the preservation of the environment.

The concern with outer space, by the way, peaked with U.S. space triumphs and Stanley Kubrick's "2001."

The amazing, incredible, indestructible Bond.

Nothing can hurt a U.S. Savings Bond.

Suppose yours are lost. Or stolen. Or burned. No problem.

Just let us know they're missing. And we'll replace them.

So you see, if Bonds can't make you feel secure, probably nothing will.

Young people's radio contest on at WBUR

Young people between the ages of 6 and 18 who aspire to becoming future producers of radio broadcasts may enter the Young People's Radio Festival, a nationwide contest sponsored by National Public Radio (NPR) and participating stations.

According to Bonnie Cronin, program director of WBUR-FM, tapes may be reel-to-reel, cassette, or cartridge, and contest entrants can submit as many tapes as they wish. However, only tapes produced after Jan. 1, 1973, are eligible.

The deadline is Jan. 15, 1975.

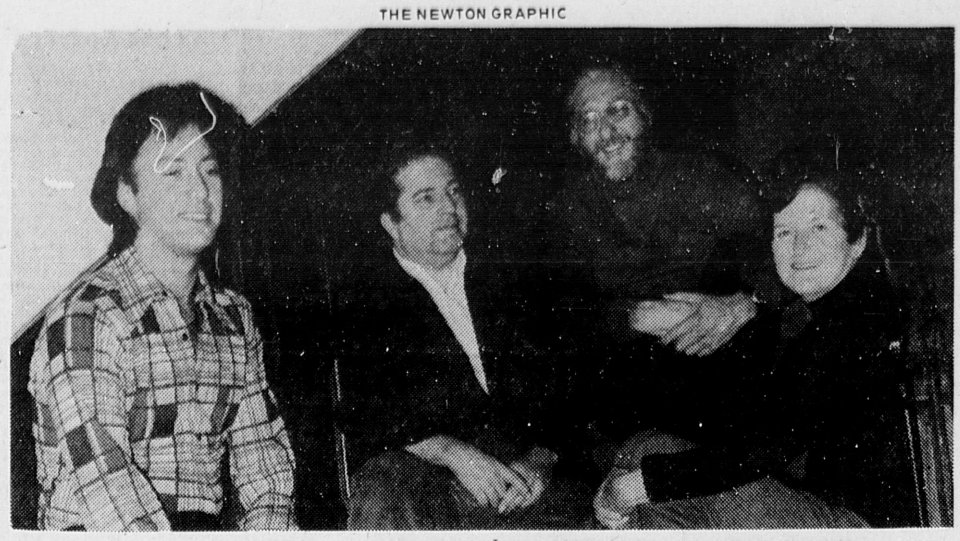
Official entry blanks are available by writing to WBUR, 630 Commonwealth Ave., Boston, MA. 02215. Interested individuals may also call the station at (617) 353-2790.

WBUR, a community service of Boston University, will award three cash prizes in each of three age categories: primary, ages 6-10; junior, ages 11-14; senior, ages 15-18. Prizes are: first, $40; second, $20; third, $10.

In addition, all prize-winning tapes will be aired on WBUR and will automatically be entered in the national contest, where additional cash prizes $500, $300, and $200) will be awarded.

The national prize-winning tapes will be aired on a nationwide NPR special broadcast.

WBUR will also award several additional honorary prizes of tapes and other supplies. As many other honorary award winning tapes will be played as programming time allows.



Concert

The first concert in a series of three to benefit the All Newton Music School scholarship fund will be played Friday, Jan. 10. The 8 p.m. concert will be an all-Brahms program. Performers will include (clockwise): Ronald Feldman, cello; Bernard Kadinoff, viola; Ayrton Pinto, violin; and Phyllis Moss, pianist. The performance will be given at the school, 321 Chestnut St. The second concert in the series will be Feb. 2.

Ski guide available

The 1974-75 edition of the ALA Auto and Travel Club's popular "New England Where to Ski Guide" is now available to area skiing enthusiasts at no charge, according to Jerry Swerling, ALA Director of Public Affairs.

The colorful and comprehensive brochure lists nearly 100 large and small downhill skiing facilities located throughout New England, including 20 here in Massachusetts. In addition to maps which pinpoint the ski areas' locations and outline access routes, the vrochure includes extensive information on lifts, slopes, and services offered by each area.

The New England Ski Guide can be obtained by writing to: ALA Where to Ski, 888 Worcester Street, Wellesley, Ma. 02181.

Ski clubs are invited to request quantities for distribution to members.

State funds available for cultural programs

Feb. 28, 1975, is the deadline for applications to the financial assistance program of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts Council on the Arts and Humanities. The program provides funds to nonprofit, professionally directed cultural organizations in Massachusetts for programs that directly or indirectly provide services to the public. This is the only application period for projects occurring between July 1, 1975, and June 30, 1976. and application forms are available from the council office aat 14 Beacon Street in Boston.

Groups seeking funding must have an interview in person or by telephone with a member of the Council staff to discuss programs. Appointments can be arranged through calling the council at 727-3668. Completed applications must be received on or before Feb. 28.

The council is currently providing a total of $900,000 under this program to more than 145 organizations across the state. Other council services to organizations include technical assistance, state-local partnership, dance touring, artists-in-residence, and historic conservation.

United Community Planning Corporation (formerly United Community Services of Metropolitan Boston) is a nonprofit, citizen-led human services planning and research organization for 67 Massachusetts Bay area cities and towns including Newton.

The Voluntary Action Center serves agency volunteer programs through workshops, training and consultation and places individuals and groups wanting to volunteer their time in service opportunities within the metropolitan Boston area.

As the official planning partner of the United Way of Massachusetts Bay from which it receives its primary financial support, UCPC works with a wide variety of persons, community and minority groups, and public and private organizations toward a common goal: the overall improvement of human services policies and delivery systems.

Tuesdays are music days at main library

Listen to the world's great music when you attend a free recorded music concert beginning Tuesday, Jan. 7, at noon at the Newton Free Library, 414 Centre St., Newton Corner.

There is excitement in listening to the music of Debussy, Bartok, and Mozart, of hearing symphonies performed by the world's finest orchestras, of learning operas, or hearing folk songs.

The free recorded music concerts, which have a different theme each week, are held every Tuesday at noon in the Trustees' Room at the Main Library. Members of the library staff write the program notes that are available at each concert.

The recorded music concert series is but one in a wide range of programs that includes lectures, films, discussion groups, book reviews, children's programs, demonetratios and consumer information programs that are planned to appeal to the varied interests of Newton residents of all ages.

Wellesley chorus meets

The Wellesley Choral Society will resume its regular rehearsal schedule on Monday evening, Jan. 6.

Membership is not restricted to Wellesley residents and new members are welcome to join at this time. The Chorus meets every Monday at 8 p.m. at the Wellesley Junior High School on Donazette Street, Wellesley,

The group, under the direction of Mr. Keith L. Phinney, will perform Handel's '.Judas Maccabaeus'' with soloists and orchestra.

Singers are welcome in all sections, but particularly in the men's sections. Although some previous musical experience is helpful, sight-reading is not a requirement.

Anyone wishing to learn more about the group may call membership chairman, Mrs. Clayton Paltrineri, at 235-0736, or the group's president, Mrs. C. William Allen, at 237-2673.

Program links music, French

An unusual study binding music and the inspiration of French literature is being offered at Mt. Ida Junior College. Entitled "Matinee," it hae been formulated by Marilyn Stewart Lazare, chairman of the department.

Mrs. Lazare, a Waban resident, is also a faculty memeb member of the New England Conservatory at Wellesley.

The course covers 300 years of French inspiration in musical composition — poetry, opera, symphony, ballet, and musical comedy.

Life Care Center expected to pass

Killed by a vote of 14-8, the proposed Life Care motion Center was brought back from the dead by a to reconsider the vote Monday night.

Ald. Robert Tennant, who will vote in favor of the Life Care Center at the next Board of Aldermen meeting, filed the motion to reconsider after he had voted intentionally against the petition so that he would be on the prevailing side of the vote and therefore would , according to the rules of the Board, be able to ask reconsideration.

The controversial residence for the elderly, planned for Stanton Avenue, Auburndale, will, if built, contain 179 units of one-room and one- and two-bedroom apartments. The entry fee for the residence will be $10,000 per room, and there will be a monthly charge for food, maid service, linens and utilities.

Many aldermen, and most of the residents of the immediate area, have objected to the size of the facility, to the traffic they fear will be generated, and the "institutionalizing" of Washington Street.

The greatest objection on the part of the aldermen has been to the increased density on the land.

Last month the Board of Aldermen approved a zone change from Residence A to Residence E, a greatly increased density, and then approved the inclusion of a "residential care facility" in the allowable Residence E district.

Land Use Committee Chairman Joseph McDonnell, who has indicated his present intention to vote against the petition for permissive use, was absent from Monday night's meeting, as was Ald. Terry Morris.

It was Morris' absence that prompted the reconsideration motion. Tennant, at least, expects Morris to vote in favor of the Life Care Center. Morris' vote plus the affirmative vote of Tennant will provide the required 16 votes necessary for permissive use.

McDonnell commented Tuesday that he was surprised that the matter came to a vote Monday night, since it was his understanding that the agreement between the developers, Arthur Ullian and Dr. Edwin Guiney, and the nonprofit Interfaith Group that will operate the residence had not been signed .

Several of the aldermen who had voted for the zone change decided not to go along with the proposed facility. On Dec. 2, Ald. Joan Saklad, Susan Schur, and Sidney Small voted in favor of the zone change, but did not vote in favor of the Life Care proposal as finally presented to the Board Monday night.

Ald. Schur said, "The need is not balanced in my mind by the massiveness of the building."

One provision of the Board order, which was worked out between the Land Use Committee and the petitioners, Newton Interfaith Life Care Center, disturbed Ald. Sidney Small.

He described the paragraph, which almost guarantees life tenancy at the facility even if the resident becomes indigent, as a condition that "we hope means what it says, but nobody believes it."

Ald. David Jackson pointed out an apparent contradiction of this paragraph, by which Life Care would be required to continue to provide services if no source of funds is available for the resident, with another paragraph that gives Life Care the right to terminate an agreement with a tenant upon 30 days notice.

Ald. Joan Saklad tried unsuccessfully to attach an amendment to the permissive use specifying a minimum staff for the facility.

It appears at this time that the permissive use will pass with exactly the 16 votes required, if no aldermen change their minds between now and Jan. 20, when the matter can be voted on again.

McDonnell said Tuesday that short of a major reduction in density, which the developers have already said is economically unfeasible, he will not vote for the granting of permissive use for the Life Care Center.

Shooting called senseless

Karen Sundell, daughter of Newton businessman Jerimiah Sundell, remained in "poor" condition Wednesday afternoon after a shooting authorities have described as "senseless."

Miss Sundeli, 24, of 95 Chestnut St., Brookline, underwent seven hours of brain surgery Monday at Faulkner Hospital .

Her father was recently named chairman of the Greater Boston Isreal Israel Bond Committee. Members of her family were vacationing in Florida when the shooting occurred Momday morning at about 11:30 a.m.

Four shots were fired at her as she was driving along the Arborway Monday near the entrance to the Arnold Arboretum. Three hit the car and one struck her in the left temple.

MDC Det. Sgt. Thomas White called it "a senseless shooting." Law enforcement officials investigating the case had not established a motive Wednesday. They are searching for two white males who were driving either a red or maroon station wagon.

State may finance junior college

By RICHARD WILLIAMS

At the School Committee meeting Monday night the nine members reelected the present offices officers to serve another year.

Reelected were Eleanor Rosenblum, chairwoman, by a vote of 7-0-2, with Mayor Theodore Mann and Manuel Beckwith abstaining.

Dorothy Reichard was reelected vice-chairwoman by a vote of 8-0-1, with Mayor Mann, who was moderating the elections elections, abstaining.

Lilian Radlo was reelected secretary by a vote of 8-0-1, and Manueal Beckwith was reelected as chairman emeritius by a vote of 7-0-2, with Herbert Regal and Mann abstaining.

The elections began at 7:30 before before the regular meeting of 7:45.T

In other action, Mayor Mann reported to the committee on the state takeover of Newton Junior College, the committee put off action on capital outlay for next school year, approved a request to install tow-away signs at Newton North high, and approved an extensiono of the Edco Brookline-Newton Collaboration is in Special Education.

Mann told the committee that the Massachusetts Board of Community Colleges will consider taking the reins of Newton Junior College at a meeting Friday, Jan. 10 .

School Aaron Fink said if the state takes over the school, the city will save more than $576,000 from next year's budget, without a freshman class.

The overall savings from closing the college will be more than $5 million in five years, Fink said, because of expected increases in salries and operating costs.

The capital outlay budget action for fiscal year 1976 was postponed because the presentation from Director of Support Services John Gilleland was "not in a form we can work with," according to Mrs. Rosenblum.

Gilleland presente d the commi ttee with a copy of each request from school principals that totaled $240,000 for all 61 items of various priorities.

Committeeman Gerard Byrne questioned Gilleland about the $86,300 for health and safety priority items, asking for his own priorities and not the priorities of the principals.

Gillealnd began explaining each item in the pro posal, noting that some would come from this year's funds, and some would be fininaced financed by the city's public buildings fund' y requests and some items were included in outla to the Board of Alcer Aldermen for funding of in the nine school study.

The committee was "disappointed at the condition of the recommendations"' according to Mrs. Rosenblum, and asked Gilleland to report , Jan. 13. back at the next meeting'

They tow-away signs are needed at the bus parking area in the new high school because this is a fire lane often used by night students for parking' and the city couldn't post the signs without the committees's sanction.

the request for the exchange of more Brookline preschool special education students to be exchanged with Brookline wor similar Newton children was approved by the committee as long as they are advised whenever more children come in under the program, which is reimbursed by the state.

The committee will begin considering its budget at the next meeting, Jan. 13. This meeting will be an overview of the entire budget, followed by a meeting Thursday, Jan. 16, on the section of administration and personnel.

The School Committee will meet the following Mondays and Wednesdays at Bigelow Junior High School until Feb. 5, when the members will vote on the final budget. All meetings are open to the public.

Asbestos not serious in air at North

Results of tests of seven of the 13 air samples collectcd at Newton North High School indicate that asbestos concentrations "do not give rise to serious concern," a letter from Dr. William Nicholson of Mt. Sinai Hospital in New York said.

The letter, addressed to Buildings Commissioner Gene Larson, nevertheless recommended that six more samples of air be taken, this time filtering 10 liters of air rather than the two used for the earlier sampling.

The new samples are to be taken in the main library room, Main Street, the chemistry storeroom, the stage, a corridor between rooms 3374 and 3375, and outside.

"None of the samples had levels even approaching those we had measured previously in the environment near sites of asbestos spraying or in the community about factories," Nicholson wrote.

Nicholson's letter went on to say that the data of the tests confirm his initial impression that where the asbestos spray is undisturbed, there is little additional air contamination.

"While no erosion appears to be taking place now from a above the slatted ceilings (in Main Street, the cafeteria and the library), past experience suggests that possible future deterioration of the binders may present a risk of later contamination."

Nicholson advised that the work of sealing the asbestos-covered beams in these areas above the slatted ceilings be done "at a convenient time in the future, when the school is not in use."

The suspended ceilings already in place effectively contain the asbestos on the beams above, Nicholson said, and should present no problem if care is taken when the ceiling panels are removed by maintenance people and the area is throughly thoroughly cleaned afterward.

During the Christmas vacation, exposed beams in the school were sealed in the stage, a suspended ceiling was installed in the library storage room, the ductwork in the chemistry laboratory and supply room was modified to prevent moving air from disturbing the asbestos-covered beams above the suspended ceilings.

By Jan. 31, all the work for which money has been appropriated will have been completed, Larson has told the Board of Aldermen.

He proposes to seal the beams above the slatted ceilings during the summer. The cost has been estimated at $100,000.

Student says police refused information

A Tewksbury high school senior doing a research paper on police women was refused the names of the two women Newton police officers last Thureday and Friday when she called and visited the police station.

Diane Mahabedian, of 8 Bailey Rd., Tewsksbury, told the Graphic she called the police early Thursday nim.ht asking for their names, and was told by the person answering the phone to come to station.

When she arrived Friday, Jan. 3, she spoke to Capt. Richard F. Donahue, who refused to give her the names of officers Marilyn Connell and Patricia MacMaster, who have been personally referred to in past news releases from the police.

Sgt. Charles E. Feeley, public information director for the department, said Wednesaday morning in a telephone interview that he did not know why the information was not given out.

"I can't comprehend that at all. Both women's names have been in newspaper and radio interviews in the pant, and we just sent out a release about their role in the rape unit," he said.

He added that the women have been very busy with street crossing and traffic dut ee and have been the subject of numerous interviews in the past that have treated their work humorously, trying to find if they had a John Wayne or liberated woman attitude.

Miso Mahabedian is a student in Robert Macdougall's Social and Political Action class at Tewksbury Memorial High School.

Coughlin is charged with possession of a dangerous weapon in connection with the shooting death of Nino Apodemi at the Rt. 9 Getty gas station Nov. 29.

Coughin's case was separated from the other defendants in the case who will be tried Jan. 31.

Snow crash Tuesday's snow caused hazardous driving conditions, and Eleanor Nickerson, of 21 Norman Rd., Newton Highlands, skidded and into this light pole on Commonwealth Avenue near Centre Street.

Mofenson refutes opponents of state gun-control law

State Rep. David J. Mofenson (D-Newton) last week called for support of handgun control in Massachusetts.

"In Massachusetts, with its proud traditions of liberty and independence, an attempt is again being made, in the face of strong opposition, to ban handguns."

Mofenson expressed particular concern about the claim of the gun lobby that the Second Amendment guarantees citizens an absolute right to bear arms. "The Second Amendment was adopted only to protect against the disarming of state militia by a powerful national government," Mofenson explained.

"To claim that everybody has a constitutional right to bear arms is to misread both the intent and the language of the Second Amendment. In fact, the government can regulate private ownership of guns as much as it wishes, as long as the militia — in our case, the Massachusetts National Guard — is not disarmed," Mofenson said.

"In short, except for lawful police and military purposes, the possession of weapons by individuals is not constitutionally protected. Moreover, strong gun-control legielation is necessary to foster the atmosphere of open and fearless debate without which a free society cannot survive. Where guns ere freely available, out political leaders cannot speak to or travel among the people without elaborate safety precautions. The easy availability of firearms in this country has violently disrupted our orderly political life several times in the last decade," he continued.

Mofehson pointed to a number of developments on the local and national level which demonstrate the public's interest in gun control.

"First" he says, "27 Congressmen who in the past either introduced or supported measures favorable to firearm owners were defeated. Not a single Congressman who supported restrictive firearm legislation lost in November."

A recent referendum in Newton to ban handguns carried by a greater than 4-to-1

Mofenson also says that all polls ahve consistently favored gun control.

Common Cause bill strengthens lobbying law

State Rep. David J. Mofenson (D—Newton) is the principal legislative sponsor of a Common Cause bill regulating lobbying.

The bill reforms and clarifies a strong 1973 lobbying law. That law, the first major legislation passes in 60 years, redefined the term "lobbyist" and required lobbyists and employers to file semi-annual expense statements, including expenditures by lobbyists over $35.

The Mofenson—Common Cause bill would:

—redefine "legislative agent" to clarify the distinction between lobbying the legislature as opposed to the executive branch. —reduce the registration fee from $35 to $5.

—reduce the registration fee from $35 to $5.

—require quarterly reporting by lobbyists and their employees, listing all expenditures for lobbying activity.

—require the Secretary of State to compile, publish, and disseminete reports and refer violations to the attorney general.

—provide that the Secretary of State assess a $10 per diem fine for late-filed reports.

—prohibit lobbyists from giving gifts to any constitutional officer or member of the General Court, their families or their employees, or candidates for those offices.

—prohibit a person from acting as a legislative agent within 12 months after having been an employee or member of the General Court of the executive branch.

—requires groups or organizations which do not hire a legislative egent but spend over $250 per year on lobbying to -wile eemiannual reports listing total expenditures, major stockholders, directors, and officers, but not membership lists as is the case now if membership dues are $15 or over.

—provides for a citizen to seek enforcement of the law through the courts if the citizen believes that public officials are not enforcing the law.

The bill will be given a public hearing by the Committee on State Administration, of which Mofenson has been a member for four years. The committee hears all bills relating to lobbying.

Mofenson to chair Committee on Human Services

With the appointment Monday of Rep. David Mofenson as House chairman of the Joint Committee on Human Services, Newton and Brookline are in charge.

State Sen. Jack Backman, who has just assumed his new role as senator for the Newton-Brookline district, is Senate chairman.

Mofenson, 31, is beginning his third term in the State House.

The Human Services Committee, which used to be called the Social Welfare Committee, deals with a multitude of services, including corrections, mental health, alcoholism, youth services, elder affairs, veterans' services and public welfare.

Since 50 per cent of the state budget goes for human services, Mofenson pointed out, the funds will be under close scrutiny by new Gov. Michael Dukakis.

"I plan to thoroughly immerse myself in the budget," Mofenson said, "so that I can evaluate budget decisions coming from the governor's office and make an independent judgment as to whether to follow the governor's recommendations."

"I want to use my legislative position so that useful services will not be cut and people will not be hurt," Mofenson said.

Many of the areas under the Human Services Committee relate to Mofenson's previous positions and interests as a legislator.

As a member of the Judiciary Committee Mofenson was active in protecting the legal rights of children.

As chairman of the special Commission on Privacy, he was concerned with record keeping in the Corrections Department and in connection with mental health treatment.

Mosher honored by Brandeis Univ.

Giles E. Mosher, Jr., 41, chairman of the board and president of the Newton-Waltham Bank and Trust Co., will receive the Brandeis University Distinguished Community Service Award.

The Distinguished Community Service Award, established in 1971, is presented to leading men and women throughout the country whose exceptional contributions and concern enrich the philanthropic and organizational life of the local and national communities. The award will be presented by Brandeis President Marver H. Bernstein.

In presenting the award, Brandeis will recognize Mosher's rapid rise in the banking profession while paying tribute to his continued dedication to community service.

Mosher joined the Newton-Waltham Bank in 1955 following his graduation from Boston College. Four years later he was named credit department manager. He later assumed posts of assistant treasurer, assistant vice-president, vice-president, executive vice-president and director. He was named president in 1970 and chairman of the board in 1971.

The award pays special tribute to the Newton resident's continued commitment to a host of worthy causes that serve higher education, young people and the civic and philanthropic life of Greater Boston.

He is a trustee of Boston College, the Newton-Wellesley Hospital and St. Elizabeth's Hospital and a member of the advisory board of Emmanuel College.

He has served as president of the Newton Boys Club, the Newton Bankers Association and the Newton Chamber of Commerce. He is also a chairman of the West Division of the United Way of Massachusetts.

He has been cited by the City of Newton, the Boys Clubs of America and has been selected one of the "outstanding young men" of Greater Boston, of Massachusetts and of New England by the respective Chambers of Commerce.

Giles E. Mosher, Jr.

WILLIAM E. CAREY, son of Mr. and Mrs. W.E. Carey of Newton was promoted to district service manager for Star Market Co. He joined the firm in 1972 after graduating from Suffolk University. He also attended Newton public schools and Newton Junior College.

Pines bill calls for health and safety rules in camps

State Reps. Lois G. Pines (D-Newton) and Nils Nordberg (R-Reading) have jointly filed legislation calling for stringent safety and health standards in youth camps throughout the Commonwealth. This bill is supported by the New England Camping Association.

Rep. Pines cites current statistics of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare: "Fight million children across the country now attend camp annually. Each year, 250,000 of these children are involved in accidents; 70 to 80 of these accidents are fatal."

"For the sake of each and every child, and for the peace of mind of parents and the public, we must enact state laws to prevent these tragedies. At present there are no federal or state standards for the operation of camps,'. Rep. Pines said.

Pines stated that federal legislation has been proposed which would provide minimum standards at least as strict as those to be developed by H.E.W. In fact, only if a state fails to develop a plan, or if it develops one which fails to meet HEW approval, would federal standaYds be applied to that state and would federal officials begin enforcement.

"The Massachusetts proposal is timely," Pines stated, "since it provides a state plan which, when Congress passes the pending legislation, would qualify Massachusetts for federal aid in the administration of the program."

The legislation calls for the setting up of a youth camp advisory council within the office for children to advise and consult on all policy matters dealing with youth camps. Included on the proposed council would be representatives of the commissioner of public health, natural resources, public safety, public welfare, and youth services, and a youth camp inspector. Also serving will be representatives of children with special needs; representatives of privately owned camps, and camps sponsored by charitable organizations; and representatives from industry and the public-at-large.

"The program envisioned by this bill is self-sustaining," stated Rep. Pines. She concluded," This proposal should provide Massachusetts with a very much needed, uniform, rigorous system of regulation of youth camps. The time has come to demand that standards be set and enforced to protect our children."

2 men held on drug charges

Two men were arrested Monday night at Howard Johnson's Motor Lodge, 300 Washington St., and charged with possession of a class D substance .

Police responded to a disturbance reported in a room and found what appeared to be a bag of marijauna in the room that was in shambles, with furniture broken.

Arrested shortly after 11:35 p.m. were Michael Hirsch, 18, of 94 Coolidge St., Sherborn, and Steven Russo, 23, of 101 Rutland St., Watertown.

Newton man arrested in Oak Hill Pharmacy

Lawrence McMahon, Jr., 19, of 253 Winchester St., Newton, was arrested in Oak Hill Pharmacy, Sunday, at about 2:50 a.m. and charged with breaking and entering and possession of burgalarious tools.

In the third break in as many weeks in the drug store, the suspect was found by police in the back room of which was ransacked and had pills ell over the floor, police said.

Police said entrance was gained by crawling through exhaust fan above the rear door of Woolfie's Bakery, an 1201 Walnut St., next door to the drug store.

Then the suspect apparently went into the basement of the bakery and through a hole in the basement from the first break into the drugstore.

10 rings stolen from Muses antique store

Two men escaped with 10 rings worth about $120 from the Muses Antiques, 77 Union St., Newton Centre.

Police reported that at about 3:30, Momday, a man who locked about 28 came in to the store and asked to look at some rings in the showcase.

The clerk in the store took out the rings, and another man entered and asked to look at a lamp in the back of the store.

When the clerk realized what might be happening, she returned to the man examining the rings, and he said he couldn't decide on anything so he left, police said.

The other man made an excuse to leave also, and then the clerk noticed that 10 rings were missing.

Board of Aldermen

Two new police lieutenants allowed

For the first time in anyone's memory, the Board of Aldermen this week overrode a mayor's veto.

The issue was not a large one — the installation of a fence along a portion of Cheesecake Brook in West Newton — and the cost was only $400.

The Board of Aldermen voted late last year to approve the payment for half the cost of the fence, requested by a homeowner whose land abuts the brook. He feels the brook is a danger to children when it become high and turbulent in the spring.

Subsequently, after apparently erroneous advice from the Conservation Commission that the fence was a "structure" and therefore not allowable on the brook's bank, Mayor Theodore Mann vetoed the measure.

City Solicitor Howard Levine later ruled that the chain-link fence could be erected legally.

In other action the Board approved, after a long closed-door session of the Finance Committee, the addition of two police lieutenants to the eight already provided for in the city ordinances.

Ald. Louis Egelson called the FinCom action "done in the at the wrong time, and for the wrong reasons." wronq way, newton...Board...2

"It is wrong," Egelson said, "for the Board to initiate a change in the organization of the police department." The amendment to the ordinances was proposed by Ald. Jason Sacks.

"It is wrong to undertake the expenditure of $40,000 or more at this time of year out of context with budget considerations," Egelson continued. The budget hearings begin in March.

"And the decision was made on the basis of personalities, instead of divorcing personalities from the issue," Egelson said.

He attempted to have the vote postponed until the matter could have been related to the budget, but was not successful.

Ald. David Cohen, speaking against the measure, said that there had been no evidence presented that the additional lieutenants are needed. In his opinion allowing the new positions would be "rewarding someone for being persistent and repetitive" in requests for the position.

The new positions were approved by a vote of 12-9.

Definitive action was taken by the Board on the resubmission of a petition by Joseph McMullin, operator of a gasoline service station on Route 9, Newton Highlands, that would allow him to continue a truck-and-trailer rental business there for which he had never sought nor obtained permissive use.

Since the city has now taken legal action against McMullin and a court appearance has been scheduled for Feb. 4 on the zoning violations of which McMullin aldermen would not accept the resubmission of is accused, the a petition.

McMullin was granted permissive use laet July with several conditions which he refused to fulfill. The permissive use was rescinded later.

cooroo S. Brown , cna man o& e oo,,c ,, c of Staff, be relieved of his command because of hiswidely reportedanti-Jewish remarks.

The Board passed the resolution unanimously, asking that a copy be sent to the President of the United States and the Secretary of Defense.

Patterns Tuesday's mid-morning snowfall prompted some creative North High School students to trace this free-form pattern in the snow on a wall outside the building. (Williams photo)

Fishman named counsel to Banking Committee

Former State Senator Irving Fishman has been named chief counsel to the legislature's Committee on Banks and Banking.

Fishman was defeated in November by State Sen. Jack Backman in a contest brought about by the redistricting of Newton and Brookline into a single senatorial district.

Fishman served several terms as state representative and state senator.

He was chairman of the Committee on Banks and Banking while serving in the senate.

The new position pays $18,900, about $2900 more than he had received as chairman of the committee.

Sheriff Buckley speaks on guns to Republicans

Recently reelected Sheriff John Buckley will speak on gun control legislation at the open meeting of the Newton Republican City Committee Thursday, Jan. 16.

Special guests at the program will be several Republican candidates of the recent election, including Alvin Mandell, William Matthews, and Joseph Weinrebe.

The event is being held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Swift. A feature of the evening will be a oelected wine tasting.

The public is invited to this event.

Backyard suspension delayed

The Backyard, a restaurant in Piccadilly Square, is being allowed to continue serving alcoholic beverages pending a hearing before the state Alcoholic Beverage Commission (ABC).

The Newton Licensing Board recently ordered a two-week suspension of the restauran t's liquor license because of alleged violations of the license.

The suspension was to have started Monday. Superior Court Judge Edward H. Bennett Jr. this week granted a preliminary injunction that allows the Backyard to continue serving drinks until a ruling is made.

A hearing date before the ABC is expected within a month to six weeks.

The Newton Licensing Board alleges that the restaurant illegally allows Le Jungle, a discotheque operating on the restaurant's third floor, to drinks.

Reservoir grounds closed

The grounds of the Chestnut Hill Reservoir have been closed to the public, effective immediately, the Metropolitan District Commission announced today.

MDC Commissioner John W. Sears said repeated acts of vandalism and the problem of individuals bringing their dogs onto the grounds were among the reasons for the closing.

The MDC will review the situation next spring and make a decision at that time as to whether to reopen the Chestnut Hill Reservoir area.

Gym ceiling OK at Newton North

The ceiling of the exhibition gym at Newton North High School is in a "safe condition," according to Buildings Commissioner Gene Larson this week.

Last week three 2-pound aluminum panels fell from the suspended ceiling, which is about 25 feet high.

No injuries were reported.

The exact cause of the dislocation of the panels has not been pinpointed, although it is thought that they were dislodged by balls kicked up to the ceiling.

The gymnasium was being used at the time by the Recreation Department.

Larson said all panels in the ceiling have been secured to prevent further falling.

Legion oratorical contest to award scholarships

Each year the American Legion sponsors an oratorical contest for high school students throughout the country. The 1975 contest will award scholarships totaling $44,000.

The four finalists in the American Legion National High School Oratorical contest will receive scholarships from national organization of the American Legion which may be used to attend any college or university in the United States—the winner $8,000; the runner-up $5,000; third place $3,000; and fourth place $2,000.

Each department (state) winner who is certified and participates in the National High School Oratorical contest will receive a $500 scholarship to pursue education beyond high school plus $300 in cash. There are five other cash prizes for the runners-up.

The subject of the prepared oration in the 1975 contest must be on some phase of the Constitution of the United States that will give emphasis to the attendant duties and obligations of e citizen of our government. Orations must not be less than eight minutes nor more than ten minutes for delivery.

This oratorical contest is an opportunity for our youth to display before live audiences their knowledge, insight, training and experience.

Applications may be obtained at all high schools and must be submitted to the American Legion, Department of Massachusetts, 546 State House, Boston, Ma 02133 by Jan. 20.

Middlesex County finals will be held on March 2, zone finals March 9, and the state finals on March 16, at Assumption College, Worcester.

For further information, interested students may contact their local American Legion post or Middlesex County Chairman John P. Kennedy, 4 Oak St., Belmont, Ma 02178, telephone 484-2324; James Guilbeult of Woburn, 935-1053; or John Fisher of Everett, 387-9249.

Last year's Middlesex County winner was Laurence T. Barton of Arlington Catholic High School, who finished second in the national contest and received a $5,000 scholarship.

State not ready for 7500 federal jobs, Backman says

"By Jan. 24, 7,500 public service positions must be established in order for Massachusetts to take full advantage of Emergency Federal Public Service Employment opportunities — and Massachusetts is absolutely not ready," said State S n. Jack Backman, chairman of the Special Commission on Employment.

"In the next five years, the state of Mas achusetts together with its cities and towns will receive over $2 billion in federal moneys which will ultimately go over 70 per cent for public service employment," Backman said. "It is absolute insanity that we have no state planning capacity to assist state agencies and our cities and towns to administer these funds."

Backman has filed legislation which would create an Office of Public Service Employment to plan, coordinate and assist the various municipalities and state agencies to utilize the massive federal appropriations.

"With six million unemployed and with the number increasing at the rate of a half-million a month nationally, our b nking, industrial and government leaders are dreaming pipe dreams that they will suddenly wake up and find that the sickness of the economy has by miracle become well," Backmen said.

"The primary role of a new state administration cannot be merely to manage the state budget. It must work to rejuvenate the Massachusetts economy," he said.

Backman has also filed legislation that will directly attack Massachusetts' economic problems by creating MASS HOPE, a ne state corporation that would plan, finance and develop industrial, residential and civic projects.

MASS HOPE could build new cities or rebuil parts of old cities with local approval, assist bankrupt corporations and utilize facilitiee of corporations that move from Massachusetts, utilize and lease surplus state lands, finance its projects by issuance of general obligation bonds, and would be self-supporting in its budget.

Most important, it would not sell, but only lease, its projects for no more than 99 years so that the state would ultimately receive the long-range benefits of improved facilities and enterprises.

A second hearing is scheduled for Jan. 20 in Gardner Auditorium of the State House, at which time testimony will be heard from unemployed persons regarding their employment problems, the best use of federal funds and the reduction of unemployment.

Victory Field

The question of whether or not low income housing should be built in the shadow of Post 440 is again before the Board of Aldermen.

Originally, approval of four units of low income housing on this California Street site was tied in with approval of two other sites in Newton, Beaconwood Road and Thurston Road.

Low income units, hampered by site problems, are under construction on Beaconwood Road. The Thurston Road site is for elderly housing.

Linking low income housing and an American Legion Post can only, with hindsight, be considered ridiculous.

Once Post 440 was built, it became apparent this was nothing short of a frivolous location for families.

It immediately became necessary to ask these questions: What is the goal of low income housing? With the goal in mind, where is the best site for units?

Post 440 is not a good site.

Let's face facts.

Post 440 has been built, is functioning, and is rightfully successful.

Housing should not be built on top of it.

The last time this issue arose, we called upon Post 440 to try and find an alternate site for the four units of low income housing in the immediate area.

We still feel these four units of housing should be built on an alternate site in the area.

We would like to see Post 440 make the suggestion.

We also hope that it is not the city's purpose to downgrade low income residents by placing them in the driveway of a Legion Post.

Anyone who has been to Post 440 when it plays host to any event drawing a crowd, can readily see that it's environs are not a site for housing.

More parking is needed; and the post should have the parking space it needs.

Let Post 440 have the land it seeks. Let it build a park and increase its number of parking spaces.

But let it also find another site in the area for those much-needed four units of housing.

Speaker Albert Not In Glove Compartment

Notes from the backs of envelopes:

A magazine distributed with a Boston Sunday Newspaper contained this question, supposedly from a reader, and the magazine's answer. (Maybe it will make some sense to you.)

Q. Last October when Congressman Wilbur Mills was cruising around Washington, D.C., with Fanne Foxe; his Argentine bombshell—this was before she jumped into the tidal basin—I understand another Congressman was with them. Wasn't it Speaker Carl Albert? —T.R., Arlington, Va.

..A. The story is, Speaker Albert was hiding in the car's glove compartment, but it is, of course, untrue.

Washington newsmen are puzzled at the failure of President Ford to have Vice President Nelson Rockefeller sit in at the recent big conference on the national economy.

They had expected that Rocky might be placed in charge of straightening out the economy, the biggest problem confronting the Ford Administration. The publicity concerning Rocky's gifts and loans may have injured him in Ford's eyes. If so, that poses the question whether Ford will dump Rocky and pick another Vice Presidential running mate next year.

Dances; either public or private; are now forbidden in Rush Springs; Oklahoma; under the provision of a new town ordinance adopted by a vote of 266 to 181 by the residents. It seems that a teen-agers' dance club opened in the town, was criticized by church leaders and residents as too noisy and was closed. The ordinance was placed on the books to make sure it didn't open again.

Donald Dwight was a newspaper executive with the Holyoke Transcript-Telegram before he began a career of state service when he was appointed Associate State Public Works Commissioner by former Governor Endicott Peabody. But hs is not interested in returning to the newspaper business in Holyoke and will take a job in private industry in the Greater Boston area. He probably will return to politics in 1978.

One of the 89 bills filed by the Black Caucus in the State Legislature provides that convicts will be guaranteed jobs on their release from prison.

Bill Proposes State Run Numbers Racket

A fight will be made on Beacon Hill during the present legislative session to place the state government much more deeply in the gambling business.

As a result of the successful operation of the State Lottery, proposals have been field which would legalize off-track betting on horse and dog racing and gambling on just about all forms of professional sports.

Senator George Rogers of New Bedford would even have the state take over the numbers racket and run it legitimately.

Rogers also has joined with other senators in sponsoring a bill to permit pari-mutual betting on jai lai.

Various elderly ladies of impeccable respectability have tried without success to explain to us the intricacies involved in playing the numbers.

We are able to report that it is about a $2 Billion-a-year business in Massachusetts that is run by the underworld.

While a lot of bookmakers, who now handle bets on the numbers and just about anything else on which their clients wish to wager, would be thrown out of work if the number pool, as it used to be called, were legalized and run by the state, there is little doubt that the underworld would quickly find some other form of activity to feed upon.

This observer can see no real objection to the proposal by Senator Rogers that the state go into the business of taking bets on the numbers although we have some doubt as to how far the average person will go to make a 25-cent play on the numbers.

Many people indulge in that form of gambling because it involves no effort on their part. A bookie stops at their desk or office, picks up the dime or quarter and then returns with the payoff if the bettor makes a hit.

Senator Rogers estimates that the State might realize as much as $300 million a year as its share of the take from the various forms of gambling. That kind of money, of course, would be a big help to the cities and towns.

Rogers is almost certain to encounter sharp opposition to his suggestion that legalized betting be allowed on professional baseball, football, basketball, hockey and soccer games.

That is not because of any Bible Belt sentiment against gambling but rather because of the danger that professional gamblers and members of the underworld eventually would move into the picture and try to rig the outcome of games by bribing players to make an error or throw a fat one to a batter.

On any game on which there was heavy betting, the suspicion might exist that the pitcher wasn't doing his very best when the batter hit a home run or that the infielder wasn't really trying when a ground ball went through his legs.

A person who loses a bet he can't afford on a football or baseball game, is not disposed to give an honest player the benefit of doubt when an error is committed. Legalized gambling on professional sports could result in scandals and eventually destroy public interest in the sports involved. Those are the risks interent in the bills filed by Rogers. Numbers and Lotteries? Yes. Football, baseball, basketball, hockey? No.

Dukakis' Belligerence Surprises Sonny McD.

Sarge is no longer in charge.

Mike may learn some lessons in politics the hard way from an old master of that profession — Governor's Councillor Patrick J. McDonough.

Former Governor Francis W. Sargent walked leisurely down the State House steps and into the quiet retirement of private life.

From now on his personal life probably will revolve around a combination of roles as elder statesman, gentleman sporting goods owner and part-time lecturer at Harvard.

Governor Michael S. Dukakis hustled into the State House as if he were afraid his problems and headaches might go away if he didn't reach them quickly.

Meanwhile, Councillor Patrick J. (Sonny) McDonough, who will have served 30 consecutive years in the Executive Council under eight different Governors at the close of his present term, watched with wonderment as Governor Dukakis assumed office and started his administration at the head of the state government.

"He was involved in controversies and was fighting with people even before he raised his hand to take the oath of office at his inaugural," McDonough said, shaking his head. "I never saw a Governor start out that way before, and no Governor in my memory had any more problems than this Governor faces."

This reporter has been covering politics since James M. Curley, Chalres F. Hurley and Leverett Saltonstall were Governors. If we were elected Governor and had to cope with the problems confronting Michael Dukakis, one of the persons whose help and advice we would seek would be Councillor Sonny McDonough. We would much rather have him as an ally than an adversary.

Governor Dukakis apparently is not concerned whether the members of the Executive Council are friendly or hostile to him. He has announced that he will seek to abolish the Council although he has not proposed that the power to pass on judicial appointments be transferred to any other body.

In addition to affronting the Councillors by his efforts to wipe out the body in which they serve, Mr. Dukakis also has disclosed his intention of moving them out of their State House offices so he could add them to his own gubernatorial suite.

Some doubt exists that he can do that without the assent of the Council which is not likely to be granted. Councillor McDonough says that no one can be moved at the State House without the approval of the Council. Attorneys, who have examined the law to which McDonough refers, say he probably is right.

Governor Dukakis and Councillor McDonough met only once before Dukakis assumed his gubernatorial duties. That was during the campaigning last fall when they said "hello" at a political rally.

"Of course," declares the veteran Councillor. "I have never travelled in his circles, and to be perfectly honest, I don't care to."

Governor Dukakis will have to work with the Executive Council for at least the full four years of his present term. He must obtain Council approval of all his judicial appointments. Council McDonough asserts that such appointments will be considered strictly on their merits. "But his nominees had better be qualified, he adds.

Dukakis' Plan To Ride MBTA Was Impractical

Governor Michael S. Dukakis' idea of using the MBTA to commute between the State House and his Brookline home was impractical from the start.

It was fortunate that some kook, seeking to carve his niche in history, didn't try to shoot him as he was riding on an MBTA car even though two police officers were constantly watching over him.

As a means of emphasizing the austerity aspect of Dukakis regime, it was unrealistic and smacked of political grand-standing.

As an economy measure, it would have cost the public more for police protection than to buy an automobile and employ a chauffeur to drive Dukakis and serve as his bodyguard. To MBTA officials it must have been a headache to be forced to provide good service for the man who appoints the MBTA Board of Directors.

Other State Constitutional officers; who consider a chauffeur-driven limousine part of their compensation, regarded Dukakis' plan to use the MBTA as unfeasible and an embarrassment to them.

Dukakis unquestionably was motivated by the highest objectives. Nothing annoys the average taxpayer more than to see a public official using a publicly owned automobile for obviously personal purposes. If Dukakis can eliminate or even reduce that abuse, he will have accomplished something, and he apparently will try.

But it would not be feasible, or practical or sensible for the Governor of the Commonwealth to use the MBTA to travel to and from the State House. This is an age of violence, and eventually Dukakis would have been a victim of it.

Mike Didn't Practice What He Now Preaches

A veteran member of the State Legislature points out that when Michael S. Dukakis was a liberal member of the Massachusetts House of Representatives; he did not practice what he is now preaching as Governor.

"Mike Dukakis has told the Legislative leaders that he wants them to wind up the legislative session by next May 31," the law-maker continued.

"It would be nice if we could finish our work in five months and go home for the rest of the year. I'd love to spend a whole summer away from the State House.

"But that will not be possible, and his request is not realistic because he will not be prepared to submit his real budget recommendations to the Legislature when he is supposed to present them under the State Constitution.

Experts Think Sarge Has Had Last Hurrah

Former Governor Francis W. Sargent has had his last political hurrah, in the opinion of most Beacon Hill observers.

They believe when Sarge made the traditional walk of a departing Governor down the State House stairs, the was leaving the hurly-burly of politics for the last time.

Talk of an attempted political comeback by Francis Sargent in 1978 is not considered realistic by the experts.

If Francis Sargent couldn't retain the Governorship when he had the power and patronage of the office at his disposal, he is not likely to be able to recover it when he is out of office, they reason.

Sarge was a victim of the public reaction to the Watergate mess and to the discontent and dissatisfaction with the national economy and the timid efforts which have been made to cope with inflation and the various shortages.

But he was not an outstanding Governor in the mold of a Christian Herter or a Paul Dever.

He imported too many out-of-staters into Massachusetts and placed them in key state jobs only to have them turn out to be flops.

Sarge was honest and well-intended. When you have said that, you have just about said it all. He was slow to correct a mistake when he made one. as he did in the case of Correction Commissioner John Boone.

At this writing it seems likely that the candidate for Governor in 1978 will either be former Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson or former Lieutenant Governor Donald Dwight.

The Bay State GOP will need someone in 1978 who will be able to pull together all elements and factions of the party. It is imromprobable Francis Sargent could do that. The Conservative wing of the party was still bitter at him when he left office.

Mythical Newtowne's School Committee

(Author's note: This is an "fictional" account of behavior in the mythical city, Newtowne and of its School Committee. Any similarity between real people and events is purely coincidental because the exploits of the Newtowne School Committee are too obviously incredible to be true.)

By J. A. LIBERMAN

The Newtowne School Committee, ever diligent in its attempts to provide the city with new and innovative programs, is presently preparing three new courses for its curriculum.

Lest it be assumed that these courses are purely experimental, it must be acknowledged that all three programs have been assiduously and thouroughly practiced by the Newtowne School Committee over a long period of time and have successfully achieved the desired result.

The first course is called ""Obfuscation 101 and 102. Since this is a very involved and detailed program, it will be presented in two parts. Course Description: The specific purpose of the course is ""the statistical presentation of a budget for public and aldermanic consumption." The scope of the course runs the gamut from confusion to obscurity. There is heavy emphasis on the ""Disciple Principle" which is shown to be

The ""right time" is a predetermined and specific period ko+known in the vernacular as ""the last minute." In the Crisis Situation course it is scientifically referred to as ""Panic the Public Ploy."

A classic example of ""Panic Button" time is — after requesting, receiving and spending a set sum for the construction of a school, it is suddenly discovered there is no roof. Now, if the public and the rest of city government complains about the necessary additional funds, it becomes obvious that they don't care enough about Newtowne students to put a roof over their heads. This procedure is known in the course as ""a good offense is the best defense."

Course No. 3 is known as ""Survey No. 1312." The purpose of this course is to instruct the student in proper procedure in the event of being ""cornered."

The student is shown how to build a round room in which he can never get cornered. This round room is known as the ""survey." If pressed for action, and there is no alternative, nor legal recourse, the next logical step is to request e ""survey." This has a collaterally beneficial effect on the economy. The most recently conducted survey has shown that the survey industry is the second fastest growing business in Newtowne. (Second only to the Newtowne School Committee).

Since these courses are taught by the people who originated them, the Newtowne School Committee members themselves, it must be noted that they are not open to the general public.

Courses are restricted to potential School Committee members, who will be carefully screened and scrutinized by the present members. These courses will be conducted in ""executive" session consistent with School Committee policy. There is some talk of establishing a fourth course known as ""Policy" but that is dependent on the outcome of and executive session survey of School Committee members to determine what constitutes ""policy."

Fix the little park

(Editor's note: This letter was sent to Ward 1 Ald. Andrew Magni with a copy to the Newton Graphic):

Dear Alderman Magni: May I propose that you initiate the action that is necessary to clean up and beautify the parcel of land that lies just east of the Gateway in Newton Corner. Landscaping, some plantings and the straightening of the bell's housing would add a little beauty to the generally forlorn appearance of the section. Many visitors will pass through this area, and many will visit here as they come to Boston and environs for the Bicentennial. At least we could have one beauty spot in the southeast corner of the Newton ward you represent. We have sent copies of this letter in the hope that you will receive support for this project. Good luck!

Don't close schools

To the Editor:

As a Newton parent and taxpayer, I feel that no school should be closed at this time. Education has changed a great deal in the past 10 years. Large numbers in classrooms would make it impossible to meet the individual needs of children and maintain quality education. Space is needed also to provide for the education of children with special needs.

If, in fact, room is available, greater consideration should be given to the use of it by the elderly, Newton citizens who would enjoy having a place in the local community to meet their needs.

Has any consideration ever been given to voluntary, cross-city busing in Newton? There are some very overcrowded schools. This problem could be alleviated by placing some of these children into schools where there is space.

Population studies have shown that the school population decline is only temporary and numbers of children will increase again in the 1980's. The clos ing of a school will save a very small percentage of the city budget now, and the need for a new school in five years could cost far more.

A recent article in the Newton Graphic stated that class size has a definite effect on educational results.

Smaller classes provide the opportunity for a better education.

Myrtle Baptist Church begins renovation

The 100-year-old Myrtle Baptist Church in West Newton is embarking on a large-scale renovation.

Under the leadership of the Rev. Harold A. Pulley (now pastor of a Pittsburgh, Pa., church), the Rev. Ralph Nichols of the American Baptist Extension Corporation, and Thomas A. Turner, capital funds chairman for the church, congregants of the church accomplished a successful funding program.

There will be a new baptistry, classrooms, lounges, nursery, kitchen, utility room and heating system in the basement. Electrical and plumbing service throughout the church will be improved, and on the main floor will be new rest rooms, a choir room, and ramps for the handicapped.

Eventually there will be a library of black history, where the history of blacks in Newton will be featured by tapes, books, records and oral histories.

Exterior improvements will consist of white aluminum siding on the church and parish house and the installation of a new outside bulletin board. The bulletin board is being purchased by the Usher Board.

A new organ has been bought by the chancel choir.

A construction loan of $120,000 was arranged for the renovation through a coalition of Newton banks.

NEWW Center to cultivate mental health

NEWW Center at Pomroy House, 84 Eldredge St., Newton Corner, is a mental health center serving the Newton, Wellesley, Weston area.

Its clients are people who have or have had problems with their mental health, including both present and former patients from Medfield State Hospital.

The activities are designed to help these persons adjust to community living, develop feelings and adjustment, and practice music and art.

Such skills as writing application forms, resumes of past experience, and personality descriptions are also studied.

At the Center, clients, staff and volunteers NEWW, are making a coordinated effort to assure each others' success. There are get-togethers in general meetings at the beginning and end of the day.

A group in nutrition and cooking prepares and serves the noon meal.

The center provi0des fun and companionship for everyone. Much of the input comes from the clients themselves in and out of hospitals. who have shared experiences

NEWW Center is open every Monday and Wednesday from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. For more information, contact Shirley Snit8zer at the center, 969-5906.

Family life specialists say that giving a child an allowance before age five probably won't have much value in training the child in the value of money.

The hard head of the law

To the Editor:

I have just one question. How many children or grandchildren does Judge Garrity have in the Boston School System?

Law is a cold, isolated way of life if you make it so. Of course "the mob" is unruly and unjust. Basically what yoave in Boston is the cold, isolated condition of a hardhead versus bigotry, andor fear of a mob.

Bigotry and fear never give in willingly, nor do hardheads.

Garrity's move is at least decisive and that, in truth, stands for something.

To top this all off, Boston's School Committee is short-sighted, uncreative and believes in segregation of schools by neighborhoods.

The School Committee is white, political and socially integrated into Boston's white majority point of view. To top Boston, but this off, there are not only color differences in cultural ones.

In busing, culture values clash as well. It is not all a black and white issue.

The truth is, once "law" steps into any situation, you will find cold logic, hardcore logic, versus fear and passion. Reason is left to the fore (sic).

It is never reasonable to challenge passion and fear with logic and expect easy or suitable results.

Integration is imperative. Busing is imperative, but shoving it down a community's throat en masse with self-righteous legal fervor is not in the best interest of anyone.

Garrity perhaps has never read our Declaration of Independence. He seems to believe in divine right of judges.

Our goal is not to point our that parents are wrong, but rather to integrate our schools. Garrity is a self-righteous, legalistic hardhead.

The racial situation was delicate. Now it is impossible.

Hospital staff elects officers for 1975

Urologist Robert A. Newton has been elected president of the Newton-Wellesley medical staff for the 1975 calendar years. Dr. Newton also serves as chief of urology at Newton-Wellesley.

Elected to serve with Dr. Newton in a key position is Dr. Charles A. Thompson, who assumes the post of president-elect. By tradition, the president-elect succeeds to the presidency the following year.

President Newton is a diplomate of the American Board of Urology, a fellow of the American College of Surgeons, and a member of the American Urological Association. He is a graduate of Amherst College and Cornell University Medical College.

President-elect Thompson is a senior physician on the Newton-Wellesley medical staff. A resident of Newton, he is a graduate of Dartmouth College and Tufts University Medical School.

Elected by their peers, both men give leadership to the medical staff, comprised of 155 active members as opposed to honorary, associate, teaching, consulting or courtesy staff members.

Other physicians elected to official posts are Dr. Morris Ringer of Newton, internist, named to chairmanship of the executive committee; Dr. David Kaufman, internist, reelected secretary of the medical staff; and Dr. John H. Meeker, pathologist, who will continue as treasurer.

A Big Brother and his Little Brother share a quiet moment

Big Brother Assn. seeks recruits

Jewish Big Brother Association of Boston is recruiting 35 new volunteer Big Brothers during Big Brothers Week, Jan. 5 through 11, Stanley Gaffin, JBBA president announced this week.

"Right now, we have 35 boys eagerly waiting for their Big Brothersf. Only through the recruitment of more volunteers can each of these young boys have the Big Brother he needs and wants," he said.

The 1975 Big Brothers Week is observed in more than 200 communities in the United States to stimulate recruitment.

"The Big Brother program provides a unique service which combines the friendship of an adult male and a professional social work staff to help a boy who lacks the guidance of a father,,' Gaffin explained. "The concept of healthy friendship between a responsible man and a boy who has no adequate masculine figure with whom to identify.

The Big Brother movement complements but does not duplicate the work of other family and children service agencies," commented Gaffin. "Sixty-five years of experience has proved that the Big Brother idea, 'One Man—One Boy,' works.

"The continued success of the JBBA program depends on our recruiting a sufficient number of new volunteers" he added.

Men wishing to volunteer as Big Brothers should contact Albert J. Sinofsky, executive director of Jewish Big Brother Association, at 72 Franklin Street, Boston, Mass. 02110, telephone 542-8742 or 542-8743.

A constituent agency of the Combined Jewish Philanthropiee of Greater Boston, JBBA administered a record number of 125 Big and Little Brother6 matches during the past year. Among related activities it has organized a women's group, granted scholarships aid to Little Brothers attending institutions of higher education, conducted a program of counseling and group discussion for mothers of Little Brothers, and sponsored a variety of recreational, cultural and educational activities for Big and Little Brothers.

Investment class begins Monday

The Wellesley Continuing Education Program is offering an evening course in the Fundamentals of Securities and Investments at Wellesley High School. The course will begin Monday, Jan. 6, at 7:30 p.m.

This is a basic investment course of 10 weekly lessons designed for the general public, stressing fundamentals and practical day to day applications.

The objective is to introduce the student to the workings of the stockmarket, to the various types of securities, and to discuss the current trends in investing.

A portion of each class session will be devoted to open discussion on certain industries and on particular companies within the industries.

The instructor is David Landers, an Account Consultant with F.L. Putnam & Co., Inc., a registered Investment Advisor, a Member of the Boston Financial Research Association and a member of the New York Association of Investment Brokers.

Innovations In Sound

You've probably never thought of your car as an ideal stereo listening studio. Well, it is! The minute you sit in your stereo equipped auto, you're blanketed in thrilling sound. You'll witness an entirely new perspective in stereo listening; a richness in stereophony and realism of sound reproduction that has never before been possible. Now, with stereo tape cartridges, whether you listen in your car, home, boat, plane or trailer you enjoy an unparalleled sound sensation . . . crisp clarity and maximum fidelity, superior craftsmanship . . . and a wealth of music for every taste from Broadway to The Beatles, from current hits to classical.

Stereo cartridges are carefully engineered to afford maximum reliability and convenience of operation.

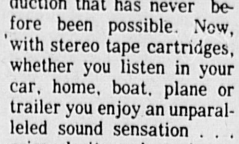
1. You never have to thread or even touch the tape.

2. You may change from one stereo program to another with the press of a button.

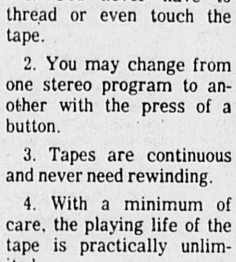
3. Tapes are continuous and never need rewinding.

4. With a minimum of care, the playing life of the tape is practically unlimited.

What is four-track and eight-track stereo tape? Within the ¼-inch tape width, music is recorded on four or eight parallel tracks which run the length of the tape. Two tracks play simultaneously and produce true stereo sound. Standard tapes provide up to 40 minutes of continuous music. Twin cartridges up to 80 minutes.



How does a tape cartridge work? Stereo cartridges contain a tape in a continuous loop, which simply means that the tape runs from the center of the spool and is returned to the outer lap of the reel. Thus, never needs rewinding. Inserting the cartridge into the tape playback unit is probably as easy as replacing your cigarette lighter in the dash.



Seeing is believing, however, and perhaps the least expensive method for you to experience the unusual convenience engineered into a stereo tape is to visit a dealer and ask for a demonstration.

Realizing that stereo tapes are here to stay, Lechmere Sales of Cambridge and Dedham is now compiling substantial stocks. This foresighted record dealer and department store devoted exclusively to providing the consumer with even a larger and more complete musical selection than previously realized with the more traditional record album departments.

Long recognized as a retailing leader and innovator, Lechmere now features perhaps the largest selection of stereo tape cartridges in New England. It's a certainty that a visit to either Lechmere in Cambridge or Dedham will prove a most rewarding musical experience.

Educator to speak at weekend meeting

Newton resident Joseph Featherstone, member of the Harvard Graduate School of Education faculty, is among the 120 guest faculty members at the 1975 Educational Arts Association Eastern Conference, to be held at the Sheraton-Boston Hotel and Hynes Auditorium Jan. 10-12.

Three days of "action" sessions highlight the conference. More than 200 workshops focusing on more effective use of the creative arts in the classroom, a variety of alternative approaches to "traditional" education, and ways to meet the needs of special education are offered.

Featherstone's session, "John Dewey and the Arts Today," will explore the role of the arts in Dewey's thoughts and how his thoughts might affect today's teaching methods.

Featherstone is currently writing a book about John Dewey.

The conference also includes an effective "Idea Mart," exhibit area, media center, teacher's book shop, and a Learning Resource Center.

The conference invites participants for one session or all three days.

Detailed information and registration forms may be obtained at the conference room, located on the third floor of the Sheraton-Boston Hotel, or from the conference committee at 90 Sherman street, Cambridge, 661-9310.

The Massachusetts Society of CPAs is an organization of over 3600 members founded in 1900 to promote and maintain the high standards of accounting.

Big Brother, Congress, and "the little guy"

By Virginia Payette

When it comes to looking out for our interests, Big Brother is right in there, growling at anything that threatens "the little guy." Sort of.

There are limits, of course. Protecting the downtrodden is fine, as long as it doesn't interfere with whatever it takes to get reelected.

The secret of the watchdog bit is not to embarrass anybody important. And on a scale of what Washington considers important, nobody needs three guesses to figure out where the little guy winds up.

The way it works out is that Congress is all for guaranteeing our right to breathe. Even passes strict laws controlling automobile pollution and such. And then keeps extending the enforcement of those laws because Detroit says antipollution gadgets cost too much.

Nobody regrets inflation more than our fearless leaders. Who then turn around and, behind our backs, sell wheat to Russia at give-away prices. Which raises the cost of bread at home.

Or knuckle under to the labor unions on employment and shipping restrictions, thereby raising prices on countless essential commodities.

Or, when money gets scarce, toss all financial restraint over the fence and simply print up a new supply. Which raises the national debt to a level our grandchildren's grandchildren will have trouble swallowing. They'll be lucky if they can swing the interest payments.

We have regulatory agencies that, by law, are charged with seeing that big business doesn't gouge us beyond a reasonable limit. That limit was passed years ago; now the alphabet watchdogs wag their tails for the very corporations they're supposed to protect us from.

And they've got things so fouled up even the corporations are in trouble.

The Federal Aviation Administration is there to keep the jet age eafe, and their books are full of regulations requirin. accident-prevention mechanisms. But those cost money, and so our protectors have granted the airlines another year to get them installed. And the fatal crashes keep on.

The Surgeon General has determined that smoking is dangerous to our health and has forced cigarette advertising off the air. But losing all those tobacco taxes is even more dangerous, and so Congress is etill paying subsidies to growers to keep the weed flourishing and the money pouring in.

The Food and Drug Administration is there to keep whet we eat from killing us. But food corporations find it inconvenient to scrub their plants too often, and so the government winks at an "acceptable level" of rat hairs, animal droppings and other delicacies in our daily diet.

The latest is official FDA approval of a food additive that some of its own scientists think may cause cancer and kill or cripple unborn babies. But manufacturers need it to make their products look appetizing, so Red Dye No. 2 just got a green light.

Now that we know the chemical is still iffy, we could boycott it on our own. Except for one thing: it's in all kinds of food, from ice cream to cheese to fish. You can't see it and the FDA doesn't want to impose on the manufacturers by making them list it on their labels.

What this all adds up to is that Big Brother has a gentle concern for Big Business, big labor and anything else big enough to keep those campaign contributions rolling in.

There ought to be some way for the little guy to buy his own Congressman. He's paying for it anyway.

Case continued

In Newton District Court Monday, the trial of Richard P. Coughlin, 22, of 24 Summer St., Upper Falls, was continued to Feb. 3.

Coughlin is charged with possession of a dangerous weapon in connection with the shooting death of Nino Apodemi at the Rt. 9 Getty gas station Nov. 29.

Coughlin's case was separated from the other defendants in the case who will be tried Jan. 31.

They are Walter Mastaj, 25, of 18 Williams St., Upper Falls, charged with two counts of assault and battery with a dangerous weapon and one count of possession of a dangerous weapon; Donald J. Maley, 29, of 40 Butts St., Upper Falls, with assault and battery; William Gallagher, 29, of 30 Reservoir Ave., Needham, with assault and battery with a dangerous weapon; and John D'Alessio, 30, of 15 Moody St., Chestnut Hill, with one count of assault and battery with a dangerous weapon.

DEAL COMPLETED

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — The New England Whalers of the World Hockey Association Thursday sent veteran defenseman Jim Dorey, a key figure in the Whalers' success, to the Toronto Toros, completing a deal for center Wayne Carleton.

The Toros will now return a second-round draft choice to New England, said Whalers General Manager Jack Kelley.

Recreation notes

Basketball for everyone

Newton residents seeking current information on skating, tobogganing and other recreation activities are asked to call a special number, 969-3173, rather than the regular Recreation Department telephone number.

This number will be in operation 24 hours a day, seven days a week, with up-to-date conditions, additions or changes in scheduled Recreation Department programs.

Winter Basketball Program

The extensive winter basketball program sponsored by the Newton Recreation Department has begun its 38th season, one of the oldest, if not the oldest, in the greater New England area.

There are three leagues, Pony for junior high age, National for high school age and American for adults.

This year there will be six teams in the Pony The teams and coaches are: Newton Boys' Club, Dave Sellers; Hawthorn A, last year's champs, and Hawthorn B, both coached by Joe Siciliano; Sacred Heart, Mike Frasier; Newton Centre, Bob Worden; and Newton Upper Falls, Bob Young and John Bibbo.

In the eight-team National League, the teams and coaches are: Newton Boys' Club, Dave Sellers; Beginnings, Fred Rosene; The Temps, Alen Indursky; Kahunas III, Pat Ball; Hawthorn, Joe Siciliano; Newton Sports Center, Steve Pozzi; 825 Club, Bob Bordan; and Sacred Heart, Bob Capstick.

The expanded American League has three divisions, A, with nine teams; B, with nine teams; and C, with ten teams. The teams and their managers are: A, Troubadours, Roger Brown; Stumblebums, Jack McCarthy; George's Cafe, Perley Bryant; Has-Beens, Warren Delaney; Yellow Cab, Roger Molloy; South High, Mark Young; O'Malley Club, Drew O'Malley; Boys' Club, Dave Sellers; and Waban Wonders, Steve Hurley.

B team — Hoops, Joe Capello; Big Blue Club, Brooks Burlingems; Derby AC, Harold Kowal; Avis Rent-A-Car, Kevin Karen; Ziphaels, Paul Gillis; Upper Falls, John Bibbo; Wilcox Cleaners, Bob Wilcox; Jaguars, Warren Houstnit; and Verts, Jethro Mills.

C team — Mass Control, Richie Deehan; Stones, Paul Champia; NCR, Mel Dembrosky; Academy of Physical Development, Ken Hoggard; Stumblebums, Joe Crudle; Oakley Spa, Chris Todis; Sunday Seniors, Fred Rosenthal; Warriors, Bob Wood; Willy's Boys, Paul Kavanaugh, and Friday Knights, Ray Locke. BC National League Games

Thursday, Jan. 9, at Warren, Hawthorn and Newton Sports Center will tap off at 6:30. Also at Warren, Beginnings will play the Temps at 7:30; at Sacred Heart it will be the Boys' Club vs 825 Beacon Club at 6:30 and the Kahunas III vs Sacred Heart at 7:30. Tuesday, Jan. 14, all games at Warren: 6:30, Gym I, Sacred Heart vs Beginnings, and Newton Sports Center vs Kahunas III at 7:30; Gym 2, Temps vs Boys' Club at 6:30 and 825 Beacon Club vs Hawthorn at 7:30.

Swim Team Victory

The Newton Swim Team recently defeated Waltham by a score of 50 to 18 in a junior high meet for swimmers 11 to 14.

Go-getters

More than 50 Go-getter chairmen from two states met recently to discuss plans for this year's Channel 2 Auction. The tenth annual action will run from May 30 to June 7. Co-chairing the event here are Mrs. J. Marc Rector (left) of Newton Highlands and Mrs. William Leitch (center) of Newton ,pictured here with Auction Manager Hamilton Osgood.

Auction planning underway

Planning is underway for the tenth annual Channel 2 Auction, which will run this year from May 30 to June 7.

To get in gear for the tenth birthday auction, the annual Go-getter area chairmen meeting was held in November. Area chairmen are responsible for organizing volunteers in their areas to solicit donations of goods and services for the auction.

The more than 50 area chairmen from two states who attended the meeting were addressed by Auction Manager Hamilton Osgood and Go-getter Chairman Barbara Larson who familiarized new attendees with the acoomplishments of last year's auction and outlined organizational policies and volunteer training. Connie LeMaitre, community relations chairman, Diane Davis, publicity director and Elspeth Pruitt, volunteer personnel director, also addressed the area chairmen.

Last year's auction raised close to $600,000 which helped to defray the daily expenses of running the station. The Channel 2 Auction is almost exclueively a volunteer effort. In 1974, over 4,000 volunteers helped, 6,000 donors gave items to sell and 200 additional people contributed everything from paper and printing to food for the volunteers. The use of a generator was even donated when the power lines suddenly failed.

Anyone interested in joining the Channel 2 Auction effort this year can call 868-3800 and ask for the Auction Office.

HONOARY TITLE

NEW YORK (UPI) — Actress Marlo Thomas, star of Broadway's "Thieves" comedy, has been named national honorary chairwoman of the Educational Foundation of American Women in Radio and Television, which sponsors an unusual in-hospital television program for sick children.

Jacalyn P. Pollingher weds Frank Lupo, Jr.

Jacalyn Phyllis Pollingher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Pollingher of Newton Centre, was wed to Frank Lupo, Jr., son of Dr. and Mrs. Frank Lupo of Fairlawn, New Jersey. The couple were married on Dec. 28 at the Sidney Hill Country Club by Cantor Alex Zimmer.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Miss Ellyn Modell of Dedham was maid of honor. Brian Hoffman of New York was best man for Mr. Lupo.

Mrs. Lupo graduated from New York University. Her husband graduated from New York University and is a graduate student at Columbia University.

The couple will live in New York city City.

Deborah Lubarsky becomes bride of Lawrence Wexler

Deborah Lubarsky, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Lubarsky of Quincy, was married recently to Lawrence Bruce Wexler of Medford. Mr. Wexler is the son of Mrs. Jack Wexler of Newton Highlands and the late Dr. Jack Wexler.

The couple were married at the Bell House, Sharon by Rabbi Jacob Mann and Rev. Tevelle Ring. Mrs. Wexler was given in marriage by her parents and at the reception, her father sang some vocal selections.

Marilyn Lubarsky was maid of honor for her sister. The other attendants were Mrs. Stanley Wexler of Newton Highlands; Mrs. Michael Gordon of West Roxbury and Mary Pitts of Weymouth. The junior bridesmaids were Cindy Wexler and Michelle Wexler of Newton Highlands, the groom's niecee.

Chuck Wexler, the groom's brother, was best man. The ushers were Stanley Wexler and David Wexler, both brothers of the groom; Michael Gordon of West Roxbury; Mark Wizansky of Newton and Frnie Olivera of Medford.

Mrs. Wexler graduated from North Quincy High School and Salem State College with a B.S. in Education. Her husband graduated from Newton High School and Boston University with a B.S. in Business Administration. The bride is employed by Harvey Foods, Inc. of Woburn. Mr. Wexler is the owner of Murphy's Beer and Wine Store, Somerville.

After a honeymoon trip to San Juan, Puerto Rico, the couple will live in Medford.

Rubenstein-Levin

Mr. and Mrs. Irving Rubenstein of Syracuse, New York announce the engagement of their daughter, Nancy, to Donald L. Levin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert J. Levin of Newton Upper Falls.

Miss Rubenstein was a 1970 honor graduate of the Nottingham High School, Syracuse. She graduated cum laude from Northwestern University, Illinois with a degree in Speech Communication. She was a member of Sigma Delta Tau sorority. She is currently a teaching fellow at the University of Michegan working towards her master's degree.

Mr. Levin graduated from Newton South High School in 1970 with honors and was awarded the Horace W. Orr Award at graduation. He was also editor-in-chief of the year book. He graduated from Northwestern University in 1970 where he was accepted in the honors medical education program. He is presently in his junior year in medical school in Chicago.

Fresh start for women

"When I enrolled in the Open College in Jan. 1973, I was searching for a missing identity—that part of me which had gotten lost while I was somebody's wife and mother for twenty years," reflects Anita Cohen, a current student at the Open College, a continuing education program at Pine Manor, Chestnut Hill. "When I'm sitting in my classroom on Wednesdays studying Interpersonal Understanding, there's no place I'd rather be, she continues.

Anita Cohen's feelings are shared by many women participating in the seminars and workshops offered at the Open College, which admits women with all levels of college experience, from "none", to "some," to "much, but long ago." The program is designed to give women the opportunity to attend day college on a part time basis, for credit. Open College participants may also enroll in courses 6 offered by Pine Manor, and Pine Manor undergraduates are eligible to take Open College courses.

Seminars planned for the second semester at the Open College include 8 Medical Care in Other Cultures (an introduction to non-Western medical practices and beliefs), Portrait in Black and White: The Experience of Black Women in America (an examination of literature and history by and about American black women), ..BFInterpersonal Understanding (an analysis of two-person relationships in order to encourage better understanding of oneself and others0, Great Russian Novels of the Nineteenth Century (a study of these works in both literary and historical contexts), Literature About Children (an exploration of "adult" fiction dealing with childhood and adolescence, especially as a twentieth century phenomenon), and First Person Singular: Explorations in Three-Dimensional Written Communication (an opportunity for students to write in the first person about their own experiences).

Seminars begin Jan. 20 and continue through the we of April 21; most meet once a week in the morning, although some alternative hours are scheduled. Open CollegeB students with pre-school age children may enroll them in Pine Manor's Child Study Center. for six and

In addition, two morning workshops, meeting eight weeks respectively, are being offered: De-Mystifying Math LF(a review of mathematical principles needed for some science, economics and history courses) and 'Getting Clear' for Decision Makinq . (a chance to explore and clarify some factors affecting decisions women make. For further information, write or call the Open College, 400 Heath St., Chestnut Hill, Mass. 02167, (617) 731-7088.

1768 tavern is topic of next DAR meeting

The Lucy Jackson Chapter, D.A.R., will meet at St. Mary's Episcopal Church, Newton Lower Falls on Jan. 13 at 1 p.m. Howard Gambrill, Jr. will speak about "Liberating the Golden Ball Tavern of Weston."

Mr. Gambrill will tell members about the restoration of the 207 year old tavern which he and his wife purchased in 1964 for the purpose of preserving its artifacts, furniture and architectural detail.

The tavern was built in 1768 by Captain Isaac Jones and afterwards became a Tory haunt, a rendezvous for spies and the scene of the only "tea party" in Massachusetts outside Boston. It continued to be occupied by his descendents until 1963 and the significant changes in their living styles are the core of the educational story of the restoration and the illustrated talk.

Mrs. Chester T. Scott and Mrs. Ralph Thompson will hostess the petite luncheon. Mrs. Rene Macou is the chapter regent.

Dressing on the slopes

By RUTH LENSON

Ask any veteran skier what's new in modern skiing, as compared to the sport when he first learned it, and he's bound to say, "Very little, except that the slopes today look like some kind of fashion show!"

That's right, of course. A rainbow of colors and an unending variety of ski togs cover the mountainside, highlight the liftlines, and flash in the apres-ski lounges.

Everyone—experts, intermediates, novices, snow bunnies and even the little 4-year-old tots are dressing with great style and lots of bright color. And what's more, they're keeping warm without bundling up, wearing ski-wear that flexes and moves and "gives"—then springs back to smooth-fitting smartness. Celanese Fortrell PolarGuard fiber boasts a new flexibility and durability that's hard to beat.

Colors so vivid even if you're dumped in a snowbank you'll be easy to find. From top to bottom (as well as inside out) brightly colored flowered prints, patchwork quilt patterns, loud plaids as well as crashing stripes defy the rainbow!

There are approximately four main trends in ski fashions —the western look, the racing silhouette, the hotdog and the matched suit look. It's the hotdog look that attracts the younger set to replace the soaking wet jeans seen last year.

The western look boasts red and white gingham checked quilted vest and pants with blue chambray wind shirt as well as denim, gingham and madras in bib overalls, warmly quilted vests, top-stitched jean jackets, cowboy studded shirts as well as pants.

Coordinates rule the suit look . . . such as the multicolored sweater with jacket, coveralls or pants that pick up one or more colors in the sweater. The trend today is towards waist-length parkas as well as the hip length in bold red, yellow, orange, green, and navy.

Men seem to prefer solid color ski pants with wide stripings, insulated linings are almost a must. Though ski clothes appear bulkier and heavier, their looks are quite deceiving. . . generally ski gear is getting lighter in weight and warmer.

Parkas now tend to be made of fabrics which are sometimes interlined with materials such as Mylar, an aluminum film that is layered between polyester. In fact, designers are experimenting with electric blanket ski suits heated by transistor batteries. . . gloves could also be warmed by the same system.

Racing styles have body hugging styling with stripes and Olympic markings. Most of these styles have pants that fit over the boot. The four-way stretch of these sleek models have a way of turning a size 14 into a trim 12 in a matter of minutes.

Even those who don't ski love wearing the colorful ski caps. For example, the wool ski cap by Wigwam is a cozy head-warmer for any cold weather exposure. Knitted of rich all-American wool, it fits the head snugly and never stretches out of shape. Available in Duchess blue, white, bright yellow and powder blue, priced about $6.75, it's one of the least expensive of all skiing accessories.

Speaking of accessories, good sunglasses are a must. Impact resistant, prescription quality lenses in green or dark gray, in gradient density, or Kalichrome, these lenses keep out overhead glare as well as reflected glare. All Bausch & Lomb "Outdoorsman" glasses come with adjustable, toggle-jointed plastic nose pads —adjustable plastic-covered browbar and cable temples that hook over the ears.

Whether you choose to go skiing wearing an expensive outfit or sturdy jeans and a heavy turtleneck, there's one MUST for everyone, and that is the special care that should be given to your face.

Though the thermometer reads subzero, you can get a sunburn to rival one from the Caribbean because the air on mountains is thinner and filters out less of the burning rays and snow reflects up to 85 per cent of ultra-violet radiation. Not only painful sunburns but also excessive dryness and chafing can be caused by whistling breezes and invigorating air.

Seek out cream lotions which contain moisturizer as well as sunscreening agents—these are made for either dry or oily skin.

WIGWAM'S WOOL SKI CAP . . . THE SNUG ONE THAT NEVER STRETCHES OUT OF SHAPE.

Men as well as women should use lip balms—lipstick for women is not sufficient, apply this over the lip balm. And while you're at it, don't forget rich hand creams to protect your exposed hands.

Just one last reminder . . . as you pack for your skiing trip, tuck into a pocket or boldly pin onto a sleeve one of the new colorful rabbit's foot good luck tokens, and come back safely!

Leftover beef, according to Mrs. E. D., West Roxbury, was no problem; she merely put it together with sliced broiled mushrooms, chopped onion and a gravy and served it all over hot buttered noodles. Here's her recipe:

BEEF WITH MUSHROOMS AND ONIONS

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 cup chopped onion
1 can (6 oz.) sliced broiled mushrooms, drained and reserve liquid
1 chicken bouillon cube
2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
1-½ cups rare-cooked roast beef cut in strips ¼ to ½ inch thick
1 teaspoon flour
½ cup commercial sour cream

In a 10-inch skillet melt the butter; add onion and mushrooms and cook slowly, stirring often until liquid has evaporated and onion is wilted; push to one side of skillet. To free side of skillet add ½ cup of the reserved mushroom liquid, the bouillon due.cube and Worcestershire sauce; stir over very low heat to dissolve cube. Add mushrooms and beef; remove from heat. In a small bowl, gradually stir the sour cream into the flour; add to skillet and mix all ingredients well. Over low heat stir constantly until thickened and very hot but do not allow to boil. Serve over hot buttered medium noodles. Serves 3-4.

Question: Last weekend I attempted to make barbecued lamb spareribs and the results were not that good. I don't know what I did wrong, but I would like to try them again because the lamb is less expensive than beef or pork ribs. Can you help me? Thanks.

Ms. A., Norwood

Answer: Simmering the spareribs before covering them with the barbecue sauce is what I would suggest, and though these ribs are not quite as meaty as the others, I think you'll enjoy them. Try them and see!

SPICY BARBECUED LAMB SPARERIBS

4 to 6 quarts water
2 pound lamb spareribs
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
¼ cup molasses
¼ cup firmly packed dark brown sugar
one-third cup tomato paste
1 tablespoon soy sauce
2 tablespoons prepared mustard
one-third cup cider vinegar
1 tablespoon Worcestershire Sauce
1 clove garlic, minced

Bring water to boil in large kettle. Add spareribs, salt and pepper. Simmer, covered, for 1 hour or until tender. In saucepan, stir remaining ingredients over low heat until blended. Trim as much fat from spareribs as possible. Brush liberally with barbecue sauce. Broil 6-8 inches from source of heat, about 10 minutes on each side; brush occasionally with sauce. Serves 4.

Question: I'm planning a brunch for 8 and will be serving sausages, bacon and eggs. A pancake that's just a little different would round out my menu nicely. Do you have any suggestions?

Mrs. D. W., W. Newton

Answer: I think you'll like these Welsh Pancakes which are served with a maple flavored orange sauce. Though this recipe serves 4 to 6 it will double and even triple with no problems. Enjoy!

WELSH PANCAKES

¾ cup milk
1 teaspoon grated orange rind
1 tablespoon melted shortening
1 egg, well beaten
1 cup pancake mix
one-third cup dried currants or raisins
2 tablespoons sugar
Maple-Flavored Orange Sauce

Add milk, orange rind and shortening to the egg. Mix together pancake mix, currants and sugar; add egg mixture and beat until smooth. Bake on hot lightly greased griddle, using ½ cup batter for each pancake and turning to brown both sides. Stack pancakes on warm serving plate; spooning 2 tablespoons hot orange sauce over each. Cut in wedges. Serve warm with remaining sauce. Makes 5 large pancakes or 4 to 6 servings.

MAPLE-FLAVORED ORANGE SAUCE

1 cup pancake and waffle syrup
one-third cup butter or margarine
½ teaspoon grated orange rind

Combine all ingredients in saucepan. Bring to a boil, and boil 2 or 3 minutes, stirring occasionally. Serve hot on pancakes. Makes 1 and one-third cups.

Question: I would love to have a recipe for rice that is cooked in the oven instead of on top of the stove. Many thanks.

Mrs. B. E., Dedham

Answer: This rice dish is so delicious and may be served with meat or poultry and be prepared to serve seconds.

OVEN BAKED RICE

1 cup uncooked long grain rice
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 can (10-¾ oz.) condensed consomme, heated
½ cup hot water
4 green onions, thinly sliced including the tops (scallions)
2 tablespoons soy sauce

Toast rice by spreading the grains in a heavy pan and heating in a 350 degree oven until grains are lightly browned. Melt butter or margarine over medium heat in a 1-½ quart heavy pan or flameproof casserole with a tight-fitting cover; add rice and cook it slightly, stirring constantly. Pour in hot consomme and water, stir once and cover. Place casserole in a 350 degree oven for 30 minutes. Add onions and soy sauce and return to oven for 5 minutes to heat again. Serves 4.

Food and fashion

Across the kitchen counter

By RUTH LENSON

It's quite possible that the first thing to hit you after the holidays (besides the bills) is a cold. You're exhausted from all that shopping and partying and you become the perfect foil for those lurking germs and viruses.

To help keep you and the family in good health, take advantage of a record crop of oranges and grapefruit expected this year. Recent studies on children of school age, showed vitamin C is the vitamin most often consumed in less than the recommended amount. Since the body does not store any appreciable amount, vitamin C each day is advised. And when using oranges, it is best to eat the whole fresh orange because the peeled fruit has 4 times as much calcium as the same amount of strained juice.

The following are citrus tips: A tangelo is the cross between a grapefruit and a tangerine. Its flavor is more tart than that of an orange, owing to its grapefruit heritage and it peels and sections more easily than an orange. They are in season now until March and are excellent in salads, fruit cups and eating out of hand.

On a diet? Canned grapefruit juice boasts only about 75 calories in 6 ounces of unsweetened juice and can be used instead of white wine when cooking meat to get the same flavor effect, but more economically.

Room temperature fruit yields the most juice, especially when it's rolled on the counter before squeezing. To make your own lemon juice container, poke a toothpick in one end after rolling on counter. Remove and squirt desired amount of juice. Replace toothpick and refrigerate until it's time for another fresh squeeze. Save citrus shells from morning juice, freeze and use later as serving dish for sauces, salads, desserts.

The temple orange (generally regarded as the finest eating orange grown in Florida, is one of the most beautiful and highly flavored fruits of the citrus group. Small in size, with deep orange color and oval shape, it usually has a few seeds and sometimes a pebbly skin. Rich in vitamin C their season is brief, now through February; sometimes into March. So sprinkle your winter menus with a bit of sunshine by serving juicy, sweet oranges and tart grapefruit often.

ORANGE FLOATING ISLAND.

ORANGE SALAD CUPS

3 large oranges, halved (cut with zigzag edges, if desired)
1 large red apple, cored and diced one-third cup diced celery
3 tablespoons mayonnaise
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon sugar
6 walnut or pecan halves

Using a grapefruit knife, cut out the pulp of the orange halves. Cut pulp in small pieces and place in small bowl. Combine diced apple with celery and add to orange pieces. Mix together the mayonnaise, salt and sugar. Mix with fruit and celery mixture and spoon into hollowed orange halves; top with a walnut or pecan half and refrigerate until chilled, about 2 hours. Serves 6.

GREEK LEMON SOUP

4 cans (10-½ oz. ea.) condensed chicken broth, undiluted
¼ cup raw long grain white rice
½ teaspoon grated lemon peel
3 tablespoons freshly squeezed lemon juice
1 lemon, thinly sliced
Snipped fresh parsley

Combine undiluted broth and rice in saucepan; stir once. Cover and simmer until rice is tender, 20 to 25 minutes. Grate lemon peel before squeezing juice; set aside. Thoroughly combine lemon juice and beaten eggs; from saucepan pour off 2 cups hot broth and gradually beat into egg mixture. Return egg broth to rice broth mixture in saucepan; add lemon peel. Heat, BUT DO NOT BOIL. Serve immediately in individual soup bowls topped with a slice of lemon; garnish with fresh parsley. Serves 6.

POLYNESIAN CHICKEN

2 broiler-fryers (3 lbs. ea.) cut into serving pieces
2½ teaspoons salt
1 tablespoon paprika
¼ teaspoon pepper
Salad oil
1 can (13-½ oz.) pineapple chunks
½ cup freshly squeezed orange juice
2 tablespoons freshly squeezed lemon juice
2 eggs, beaten
¼ cup dark corn syrup
¼ teaspoon mace
⅛ teaspoon ground ginger
1 tablespoon flour
2 tablespoons water
2 oranges peeled, sliced into cartwheels

Sprinkle chicken with mixture of salt, paprika and pepper. Saute in hot oil until well browned on all sides. Drain off excess fat. Drain pineapple, reserving ½ cup juice. Combine ½ cup pineapple juice, orange and lemon juice, corn syrup, mace and ginger. Pour over chicken; cover and simmer for 30 minutes, or until tender. Remove chicken to warm serving platter. Mix flour and water together until smooth; stir into pan drippings; boil 2 to 3 minutes. Add drained pineapple and fresh orange cartwheels; heat until warm. Pour over chicken and serve at once. Very good served with hot rice. Serves 6.

ORANGE FLOATING ISLAND

½ cup sugar, divided
2 tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon salt, divided
2 whole eggs
2 egg yolks
1 cup evaporated milk
1 cup orange juice
1 teaspoon grated orange rind
2 egg whites
1 orange, sectioned

Combine ¼ cup of the sugar, flour and ¼ teaspoon of the salt in saucepan. Combine eggs and egg yolks, beat slightly with fork, then add to dry ingredients. Add milk and mix until well blended. Stir in orange juice and rind. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens. Cool. Pour into serving dish and chill.

Meanwhile, add remaining ¼ teaspoon salt to egg whites and beat until foamy. Gradually add ¼ cup sugar and beat until stiff. Drop meringue by spoonfuls into shallow baking pan with bottom just covered with hot water. Bake in moderate oven, 350 degrees, about 10 minutes. Serve on chilled pudding, garnishing each meringue with orange sections. Serves 5-6.

Ronnie Sue Heymann married to Dr. Alan G. Wasserman

Temple Shalom of Newton was the setting on Sunday, Dec. 22, for the marriage of Ronnie Sue Heymann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Heymann of Newton to Dr. Alan G. Wasserman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Wasserman of Las Vegas, Nevada.

The ceremony was performed by Rabbi Murray Rothman. Mrs. Nancy Davis of Alexandria, Virginia was the matron of honor, and Dr. Elliot Wasserman of Miami, Florida was best man for his brother.

The bride attended C.W. Post College and graduated from the Tufts-Northeastern University dental assistant program. She is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold A. Finn of Miami Beach, Florida and Mr. and Mrs. Berthold Heymann of Chestnut Hill.

Dr. Wasserman graduated from Rutgers University and Tufts University School of Dental Medicine.

The couple are presently residing in Maryland.

Ford Hall Forum to host NBC-TV "Year End Review" on Jan. 15th

Ford Hall Forum has been slected by the NBC-TV Network to serve as host to its annual "Year End Review'. on Wednesday, Jan. 15, at 8 p.m. in Alumni Auditorium of Northeastern University, Huntington avenue, Boston, according to Emanuel M. Gilbert, Forum president.

The renowned NBC-TV commentators who will make their first Hub appearance are coming to the Ford Hall Forum under the sponsorship of WBZ-TV and radio station WCOP, both NBC affiliates. The widely-known news correspondents will review the highlights of 1974 and project the big news potentials for the coming year, 1975.

Serving as moderator will be Ray Sch erer; NBC's top Washington correspondent and one of the most respected newsmen in the nation.

Among them will be David Burrington, form erly NBC correspondent in Tel Aviv now stationed in Rome, Italy; John Dancy of NBC's Berlin B ureau who covers Central and Eastern Europe, including Bonn an d Moscow; Bob Jamieson, who is headquartered in Chicago from which he covers 14-mid-western states for the NBC network; Catherine Mackin, NBC national news correspondent who covers the domestic political and economic scene for the network, and Rich ard Valeriani, NBC's State Department corresQondent who reports from virtually any corner of the world and who recentlyh covered President Ford's and Secretary Kissin ger's visits to Tokyo, Seoul, Vladivostok and Martinique.

President Gilbert noted that "this is undoubtedly the most talented group of correspondents to appear on a single platform at the same time and Ford Hall Forum is indeed proud to serve as the host to such a galaxy of journalists."

Information about the "Year End Review" Ford HaIl Forum program may be obtained by writing to the Forum, 80 Boylston Street, Boston 02116 or by calling 426-0725 on week-days.

He has been named honorary chairman for the observance sponsored by the National Interagency Council on Smoking and Health.

Deadline for Young People's Radio Festival

Father Time's clock is counting off more than the current calendar year. Also fast approaching is the Jan. 15, 1975 deadline for the Young People's Radio Festival, a nationwide contest sponsored by National Public Radio (NPR) and participating stations, according to Bonnie Cronin, program director of WBUR-FM.

Young people between the ages of six and 18 who aspire to becoming future producers of radio broadcasts may enter. According to Ms. Cronin, tapes may be reel-to-reel, cassette, or cartridge, and contest entrants can submit as many tapes as they wish. However, only tapes produced after Jan. 1, 1973, are eligible.

Official entry blanks are available by writing to WBUR, 630 Commonwealth Avenue, Boston, Mass., 02215. Interested individuals may also call the station at (617) 353-2790.

WBUR, a community service of Boston University, will award three cash prizes in each of three age categories: primary 6-10; junior 11-14; senior 15-18. Prizes are: 1st-$40, 2nd-j20, 3rd-$10. In addition, all prize-winning tapes will be aired on WBUR and will automatically be entered in the national contest, where additional cash prizes (1st-$500; 2nd-$300; 3rd-$200) will be awarded. The national prize-winning tapes will be aired on a nationwide NPR special broadcast.

WBUR will also award several additional honorary prizes of tapes and other supplies.

New Needham traffic signs

New signs are working

NEEDHAM — The new "no parking signs along Great Plain Avenue at the Chapel Street intersection seem to be doing their job.

"Don't even THINK of parking here," the pint-sized signs say, and Public Works Director Robert A. MacEwen said they had been put up for a purpose.

"That's a very important place not to park," he explained. "People leave their car there to run in and get a pack of cigarettes or a paper, and it really holds up traffic at the lights on Great Plain."

Acting police chief Louis Roman said the signs, which have been up for about a month now, "work fantastic — nobody seems to even pull in there anymore."

The idea for the emphatic signs came from a public works department employee who saw the same idea used in Vermont, MacEwen said.

Suggestion saves money

A Newton Highlands resident, James W. Sarkisian, 987 Boylston St., was recently presented with a commendation and cash award for a suggestion adopted by the U.S. Army Communications Command.

Sarkisian, a communication officer, is assigned to the Federal Regional Center, Region One headquarters of the Defense Civil Preparedness Agency in Maynard.

His suggestion dealt with elimination of a National Weather Service teletype service since the same information is obtained from another source. The action resulted in considerable savings to the government, since other centers throughout the country followed suit.

The underground center in Maynard oversees community preparation for natural and nuclear disasters and assists states in the Northeast during times of emergencies.

Sarkisian has been a federal employee since 1963, and has been assigned to Maynard since 1969. He is married and the father of three daughters.

Children's Theatre presents 'Dragon'

Youngsters of the Boston Children's Theatre Touring Company will begin travelling once more this weekend, after a brief holiday, with their production of "The Reluctant Dragon."

The play is dramatized from Kenneth Grahame's tale about Horace, the dragon, who really prefers writing poetry, but is forced by community opinion to fight St. George, the noted slayer of dragons and protector of fair damsels!

The cast, chosen from the theatre's creative drama classes, includes Sara Conley of Newton in the title role.

David Lerman of Newton Centre and Emily Phillips of Newton are also members of the cast.

The Touring Company has only two available dates remaining, and interested sponsors should contact the theatre immediately.

"Pinocchio," the next production of the Boston Children's Theatre to be performed at New England Life Hall, will open Feb. 15, with performances during school vacation week, Feb. 18-22, and a final performance on March 1.

For information and reservations write or call the Boston Children's Theatre, 263 Commonwealth Ave., Boston, Ma. 02116, tel. 536-3324.

Cooking around the world

Faith Rubin, kindergarten teacher at Dexter school in Dedham, has been very busy teaching her pupils about other children in the world.

Faith Rubin is a young, energetic teacher at the Dexter School in Dedham who feels her young kindergarteners should realize there is more to this world than just a few surrounding towns.

For that reason she created "Cooking around the world", a combination lesson plan which culminated from two months of talking and studying about other children in our world. "I had this program last year for my kids, but never to such a great extent", Faith said recently.

"We studied eight different countries, looking at the globe, and learning about what other children the same age do."

Then she added: "We are still talking about the rest of the world, but now we are reflecting on the seasons. I ask the children how they might think other children are surviving during the cold, winter months...what kind of clothing they might wear, etc."

After Faith had talked about all the different foods that children eat elsewhere, she asked her kindergarteners to go home and choose a recipe from another country with the help of their mothers.

Each mother was also asked to cook the chosen recipe. On one day, both the morning and afternoon kindergarten sessions relished in tasting and talking about a total of eighteen foreign dishes.

"The kids were estatic", Faith laughed. "By nine o'clock in the morning, the kids started to eat. They just couldn't wait".

"Some of the children came dressed in costume, and others got dressed up in their best clothes. It was all very exciting."

Faith is also busy tying her theme together by teaching the youngsters a few foreign words, particularly Spanish.

And when one of Faith's little students came in to explain that her father was leaving for Europe on an airplane, "with full comprehension that there are many other worlds out there", Faith felt reassured that her program was successful

CHRISTBAUMGEBACH

An old German cookie recipe that should be made several days before baking time to allow for proper aging.

1 cup butter
2 cups sugar
4 eggs, lightly beaten
3-4 cups sifted flour
one-quarter teaspoon nutmeg
one-half teaspoon cinnamon

Cream butter and sugar together. Add the 4 eggs, one at a time, beating after each addition. Add flour, sifted with nutmeg and cinnamon, to make a stiff dough. Wrap dough in wax paper and refrigerate at least one day. It is better if it stands longer.

Then, roll out paper-thin, using a cookie cloth on board and a cloth-covered rolling pin for best results. Cut dough into shapes with cookie cutter and bake in a moderate oven (375) for about 6 minutes. Decorate, if desired, with sugar frosting.

Makes 100 cookies. (Recipe from Sue Hurley).

SWEDISH MEATBALLS

1 lb. hamburger
three-quarters cup bread crumbs one-half cup milk
one-eighth teaspoon cloves one-eighth teaspoon nutmeg one onion
one tablespoon molasses

Fry chopped onion until tender. Add onion to mixture of bread crumbs, milk, eggs, salt, pepper, spices and molasses.

Let this mixture stand for one-half hour. Add hamburger and mix well. Shape into small balls (30 to a pound).

Fry over medium heat until brown all over. Then, if desired simmer in pan with a prepared beef gravy. (Recipe from Mrs. Dwyer).

DINNER GUEST

KINGSTON, Jamaica (UPI) — World heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali was the dinner guest Sunday of Prime Minister Michael Manley following a rally in his honor at the National Stadium.

Ali, his wife Belinda, and children Maryum and Muhammad, arrived Saturday from Chicago aboard an Air Jamaica flight. Despite a 2½-hour late arrival, Ali fans jammed Norman Manley International Airport and lined the streets to the Pegasus Hotel to see their hero.

Ali was invited to Jamaica as a guest of the local Muslim organization and the Jamaican government.

WHERE ECONOMY ORIGINATES

OPERATION AWARE, 1975:

A&P CUTS FOOD PRICES

1. PRICE CUTS ON STAPLES.

A&P starts the New Year by cutting the price on A&P Brands of staples such as Dry Milk, Beans, Peanut Butter, Mayonnaise, Luncheon Meat, Fish Sticks, Spaghetti, Macaroni, Spaghetti Sauce, Cheese Slices, Frozen Shoestring Potatoes and other items that are important to a family's diet. So now you can get meaningful savings on many frequently purchased items.

2. WEEKLY SPECIALS TOO... IN ALL DEPARTMENTS.

Outstanding weekly specials to include meat, fresh fruits and vegetables and grocery items. And when A&P saves you money on meat, that really means something. Because at A&P, you know you're always getting fully matured meat that's cut, trimmed and priced for value. Take our beef, for instance. We sell only one quality of beef at A&P. And it's backed by our unconditional money-back guarantee and our Butcher's Pledge. That's the A&P Butcher's promise to always pack the better side of every cut down. So if you like what you see in the store, you'll love what you see at home.

3. AWARE LIST CONTINUES.

We're continuing our Early Warning System against price increases: The Aware List. Every week we will voluntarily post a list of price increases, such as those received from manufacturers, a full seven days before we actually change our price. That gives you one week to purchase at the old price, subject, of course, to product availability. You'll also find "Be Aware" shelf tags on many frequently purchased items with the day of the price increase right on the tag. Of course, the Aware List won't include perishables like meat, eggs or fresh fruit and vegetables, where markets fluctuate daily; items controlled by law; or advertised specials.

4. CONSUMER PROTECTION POLICY.

We're of course continuing our committment to making you an Aware Shopper by reminding you of what every A&P store owes you and by informing you of ways to get the most for your money. Look for the signs in A&P stores spelling out all the protection A&P gives you: 1. Guaranteed Satisfaction. 2. Exceptional Value. 3. Low Price with Absolutely No Compromise in Quality. 4. Rain Check Product Availability. 5. Product Freshness Through Open Dating. 6. Consumer Information. 7. Courteous Service. 8. Cleanliness. 9. Safe and Healthy Products. 10. Shopping Convenience. 11. The Butcher's Pledge. 12. Variety of Choice and 13. People to People Communication.

Lions whip Weston, bow to Acton-Boxboro

By MARK COOPER
Sports Correspondent

NEWTON — The Newton South hockey team split a pair of Duel County League encounters last week losing to Acton-Boxboro 9-2, and whipping Weston 3-1.

Continuing their horrendous and uninspiring play from the week before, the Lions dropped their fourth decision in a row and saw their overalll+overall record tumble to one win and four defeats.

Jumping on Newton South early the defending state champion Colonials proceeded to skate the Lions right out of the arena. South goalies Dave Satler and Bob Driscoll were pummeled with 42 Acton shots, while an impotent South attack could muster just 9 shots on Acton netminder Ken Mor+Moore.

Opening the scoring at 4:42 of the first period Jim Litchfield burst into the Newton South end on a three-on-one break and fired a shot to the right of the South goalie, Dave Satler.

Following this goal the Lions, displaying their best hockey in a long time, began to take the play away from Acton.

Yet at 10:52 the Lions suffered a defensive lapse and an opportunistic David Casey upped Acton's lead to 2-0. Thirty seconds later the score was 3-0, and the Colonial's bulge had soared to 4-0 by the end of the first period.

Individual defensive mistakes and a complete lack of cohesiveness and coordination led to the demise of the Lions in the first period and contributed to the undoing of the Newton team throughout the game.

The second period saw the Lions "scratch the scoreboard" as junior Don Ferreri on a nice setup from Joe Donlon and Brian Cain, tallied from 10 feet out to close the gap to 4-1. This was as close as the Lions were to come though, as Acton salted the game away by rattling off five unanswered goals before Ferreri again responded for South. The assist went to Cain and center Jimmy Hart.

The final score of 9-2 was indicative of how the Colonials dominated the action with a team that was not supposed to rival last year's championship squad in quality or depth.

WESTON FALLS

In South's second game of the week against Weston the Lions were out to prove that they still knew what the word "win" meant. Knowing they would be facing one of the few teams in the league with a worse record then their own the Lions should have been "sky high" to really wallop the winless Weston squad.

The game started out on a strange note as Newton South scored the opening goal of the contest for the first time all season. Junior Don Ferreri scoring his third goal in two games tipped home a Mark Cooper slapshot from the point at 6:55. South's lead remained 1-0 through the rest of an uneventful first period that was filled with sloppy play by both teams.

As the middle stanza opzned sloppiness was again the rule as Weston began to dominate the action and South goalie David Setter was called upon to make numerous saves. Seldom playinq at full strength due to a rash of penalties South mireculously held off the Wildcats until disaster struck at 14:58, when with only two seconds remaining in the period and action deep in the Lions end, Jim Theall beat Satter cleanly to the far side of the net.

Coach Neil McPhee blasted his team between periods for playing as individuals and not as a team and for being constantly out of position. Whatever else McPhee said stuck in the heads of his squad as the entire team came out flying for the final fifteen minutes.

Playing and skating as they hadn't all season long, it was obvious that Newton South "wanted" this game more than Weston. Hungrier and more determined, the Lions took the lead for good when sophomore Jimmy Hendricks blasted a Donny Moore rebound past a fallen Weston goalie. Howie Cooper who helped set up the play also drew an assist.

South continued to apply the pressure and Senior Jimmy Hart scored a crucial insurance goal at 8:43 of the period when he took a Donny Ferreri pass from behind the Weston cage and rifled a hard wrist shot into the net.

From this point on, South never looked back and combining excellent defensive play with strong goaltending Weston never got another chance to get back into the game. Not to be overlooked was the Lion's offense, which outshot Weston 14-6 in the decisive third period.

The victory over Weston raised the Lions record to two wins, four losses and no ties. South hopes to even its record this week when the Lions entertain Westwood on Tuesday at Assabet Valley Rink, and Wayland High School Friday night at Natick's West Suburban Arena

Mites win tournament

MERRIMACK, N.H.—The Mite AA team of Newton Youth Hockey won the Second Annual Souhegan Holiday Hockey Tournament held at Merrimack, N.H. The Newton Mites defeated the previously undefeated Nashua, N.H. Mites by a score of 11-3 to clinch the championship. The Newton Mites defeated the Fitchburg Mites 6-1 and Reading Mites 5-1 to qualify for the championship game.

High scorer for the Newton Mites was John Butterworth with 6 goals and 6 assists followed by Tom Ryan with 5 goals and 2 assists, David Buckley and Spike Frechette with 3 goals and 2 assists each, Mike Mullowney with 2 goals and 5 assists and John Foley with 3 goals and 2 assists. The defense was backboned by excellent goal tending by Mark Buckley and Doug Stocklan.

The Newton Mites coached by Gerry Butterworth and Paul Buckley are currently leading the Middlesex League with a record of 14 wins and 1 loss, and an overall record of 25-2.

Brookline tops North 5-3; N. Quincy bows

By RON MACLEAN
Sports Correspondent

NEEDHAM — Brookline winger Charlie Hientz scored a hat trick to lead the Wealthy Towners to a 5-3 victory over Newton North last Tuesday. The Tigers opened the scoring on a Rick Cavanaugh shot at 9:28 of the first period. Cavanaugh slipped in a shot from the point that baffled Brookline goalie Bill Simmons. Assists on the play went to winger Chris Terranova and center Bob Karem.

Only half a minute later Heintz tied the game on a hard wrist shot that beat goalie Ken Hagerstrom, in for an injured Joe Steele, to the right side at the ten minute mark of the first period.

Heintz gave Brookline the lead with 2:43 left in the period on an ice length rush after stealing the puck in his end. Heintz moved in on Hagerstrom and rocketed a shot glove side to make the score 2-1 after one period.

The second period went scoreless as Hagerstrom did a good job keeping the score down. Brookline was on the power play a lot as many Newton penalties were to prove costly later in the game. This is not to say that the Tigers did not have their chances, but they were lucky to come out at a one goal deficit.

Brookline moved to a 4-1 lead on goals by Bill Fitzpatrick and Matt Watts. Fitzpatrick scored at 5:11 on mid range shot to the right after a pass from Watts. Watts scored less than two minutes later at 6:32 on a wrist shot that slid through the pads of Hagerstrom. Fitzpatrick was credited with an assist.

Doug Jessup got one back for the Tigers when he slipped a rebound of a Steve Marchessault shot past Simmons at 9:42 of the final period to move the Tigers within two goals.

Heintz scored his final goal at 12:42, a crisp pass play that put the game out of reach, 5-2 with just over two minutes left.

Jessup scored again with a minute remaining when he knocked in a rebound after shots by Cavanaugh and Bill Fgan.

QUINCY FALLS

It seemed like Ray Valente night on Saturday as the tough Newton defenseman scored two goals in the second period to lead the Tigers over North Quincy, 2 to 0.

After a scoreless first period, Valente lit the lamp with four and one half minutes gone in the middle frame, beating Quincy netminder Dick Wilson. He put the icing on the cake five minutes later as he scored again to give North a 2-0 lead which held up for the remainder of the game.

Newton goaltender Joe Steele had a strong game as he turned aside some sixteen North Quincy shots.

The Tigers will face Rindge Tech on Saturday at Boston College.

North 5 start slowly

By TOM HIGHTOWER
Sports Correspondent

NEWTON — The Newton North basketball team has got off to a slow start, losing seven of the eight games they have played so far. Newton's big problem is the lack of height. Their six foot three center, John Williams, is the tallest man on the team, while most teams have centers over six feet five. This means the team must rely on quickness rather than height. Newton was also hurt by the graduation of four of last year's five starters. Only Jack Ryan is returning, but he is nursing a football injury and is still not up to par.

The opening game on December 19 was a heartbreaking 64-62 lose to Lexington. John Williams was Newton's high scorer with 23 points. The game was close all the way.

Newton's next opponent was Catholic Memorial, one of the best teams in Division I. Newton was completely outplayed, going down 85-57. Catholic Memorial out scored Newton in every quarter but the last. Steve Grant was high scorer for Newton with 11 points.

On December 23 Newton took on Waltham and lost 74-57. John Williams was again Newton's leading scorer with 14 points. Newton had too many turnovers, which cost them the game. Through the first two periods they were in the game, trailing by only two points at the half, but lost it when Waltham built up a ten point lead in the third period.

Newton's next game was against North Quincy, the day after Christmas. Newton lost 58-49. Williams again led Newton in scoring with 23 points. Newton kept the game close through the first three periods, when they were only five points behind. In the final period North Quincy built their lead to nine points.

Newton's next loss came at the hands of Brookline and Mark Young, a potential all-suburban league center. Young scored an impressive 42 points. Williams was high for Newton with 29. It was a close game after the first period, with Newton down by four, but it went to eight at half time, 14 after three quarters, which remained the final margin.

BROCKTON WINS

On December 30, Newton lost a tough one to Brockton, 38-36. Steve Grant was high Newton scorer with 10 points. The first two quarters were close with Brockton ahead by one point, 17-16, at the half. Both teams played a zone defence through the first half, resulting in the low score. At the end of the third quarter Brockton had built its lead to seven points. But Newton staged a comeback at the end of the fourth period which just fell short.

With 49 seconds left in the game, and Newton down by eight, Steve Grant hit a shot. With 33 seconds left, Kim Hatten put Newton only four points behind. Then with 18 seconds left Grant hit another shot, and Newton trailed by just two. Brockton had the ball, but threw it away on a bad pass, with 15 seconds to go. Bob Kinsella was chosen to take the last shot, a jumper that missed, and the game was over.

Finally, on January 2, Newton won its first game against a listless Cambridge Latin team, 68-41. John Williams was high Newton scorer with 20 points. Jack Ryan was next with 13. Newton led after the first quarter by eight, stretched it to 14 at the half. At the end of three quarters Newton was up by 19, and just coasted through the final period.

Newton then played Weymouth North, losing 84-64. The game was not as lopsided as the score indicates. Newton lost the game rally in the first quarter. Able only to score eight points to Weymouth North's 25. After that Weymouth gained only three points on Newton. Newton tried to get Weymouth's six foot eight inch Matt McBryant in early foul trouble, and Weymouth took McBryant out of the game in the second quarter when three fouls had been called against him. But by this time the damage had been done and Newton could not catch up.

Newton's Suburban League record is one win, four losses. Over all it is one win, seven losses.

Lion grapplers demolish CM

By HOWIE APPELSTEIN
Sports Correspondent

NEWTON—In Aredis Kojoyian's coaching career, I do not think he ever witnessed such a total mismatch as the Catholic Memorial against Newton South wrestling match held last Friday afternoon.

The Lions had little trouble in winning their fifth straight match of the season as they destroyed Catholic Memorial, 60-4.

Catholic Memorial actually led in the fiasco as their man at 100 pounds scored a four point superior decision over sophomore Ronny Lombardo. A superior decision occurs when a wrestler wins by ten points or more; Lombardo was decisioned 13-0.

That was the last match of the afternoon won by CM as South won eleven straight matches and nine of those victories came by pins.

South wrestlers who pinned their opponents in the first period were Bobby Paisner at 100 lbs., Craig Sowsy at 147 lbs, co-captain Peter Maples at 187 lbs, and heavyweight Scott Groper. Lion wrestlers who recorded pins in the second round were Luis McDonald at 107 lbs., Howie Applestein at 140 lbs, and Keith Washington at 167 lbs.

Co-captain Peter Nathanson, wrestling at 134 lbs, and Aaron Moynahan at 157 lbs. pinned their opponents in the third period.

Bobby Paisner won the honors of getting the quickest pin as he pinned his man in only 36 seconds.

Two South wrestlers won by the decision route. Mike Thomas, wrestling in his first varsity match, won by a 7-5 score. Gary Fireman at 128 lbs. decisioned his man, 7-2.

BALANCE NECESSARY

To have a good wrestling team you need a balanced squad. The Lions have perfect balance so far this season as just about every wrestler is enjoying a winning season. In fact, the Lions still have several undefeated wrestlers.

Chuck Dippo at 100 lbs. is one of those people with three wins and a tie to his credit. Dippo missed the last match with a broken toe, but the injury should not keep him out of too many matches. Luis McDonald at 107 lbs. has won all of his five matches. McDonald, a junior, has been very impressive as he has pinned all but one of his opponents.

Bobby Paisner won his only match at 114 lbs. A broken thumb caused Paisner to miss the first four matches. Gary Fireman has done a very good job at 121 lbs. as he has a 3-1-1 record. With a few breaks Fireman easily could have a 5-0 record. Bruce Arafe at 128 lbs. has a record of 1-2-1.

Co-captain Peter Nathanson is undefeated at 134 lbs. as he has won five matches. His brother Mike was a great wrestler for South several years ago at 134 also. The Nathanson brothers were two of the best halfbacks ever to play on the Newton South football team, as well. Howie Appelstein has won four out of five matches at 140.

An injured ankle kept Craig Sowsy out of the lineup for three matches, but he has won the two matches that he has wrestled in. Barry Horowitz wrestled in Sowsy's place and had a 1-2 record.

Aaron Moynahan had a 6-8 record last season but he is vastly improved this season. Aaron has almost equaled his wins of last year as he is undefeated with a 5-0 record. Keith Washington has a 2-2-1 record in the 167 lb. class.

Co-captain Peter Maples has won all four matches that he has wrestled in. Maples was South's only undefeated wrestler last year as he won thirteen matches and tied one.

Heavyweight Scott Groper has also won all four matches that he has wrestled in. Mike Costa and Paul Torney wrestled in matches that Maples and Groper did not, and both won.

South goes after wins number six and seven this week against Lincoln-Sudbury on Tuesday afternoon and Newton North on Friday evening. Both matches are at Newton South.

North-South matches are always exciting and this one will be no different. Starting time is 6:30 p.m.

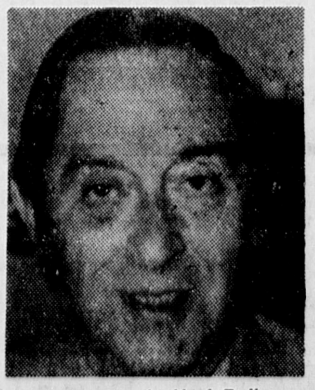
Cashman following the doc's orders



Commentary by Herb Ralby

The pain has eased for Wayne Cashman but the tension has increased.

The Bruins' seven-year veteran left winger is recovering from a disc operation on his back and the excruciating pain he experienced is lessening daily. But the tension as he watches his mates in action on TV or listens on the radio, has made him like e tiger at home.

"It's very tough just watching or listening," he says. "I feel like I'm playing. But I can't help them from where I am."

Cashman was the left winger on the high-scoring line with Phil Esposito and Ken Hodge before he crashed into the goal post in the second game this season against Toronto at the Garden.

He was a member of that line for the past several years and with them shares the NHL record for most goals—140— and most points—336—in a season.

Two years ago he injured his back in a pre-season game in New York and although the doctors found a slight crack in his vertebrae, he played the entire season—in pain—scoring 29 goals. During the off-season, a new method of treatment —injection—cured his troubles and he enjoyed his most prolific season, reaching 30-goal plateau for the first time in his career.

The rugged winger whom many consider the toughest man in the NHL in the corners, was looking forward to having his greatest year this season before the schedule got underway.

"My back," he said, "is fine. It took me a while last year to regain my confidence that it would be all right. And it was."

Then, in the Toronto game at the Garden, he crashed into the goal post.

"I remember doing it,'. he recalled, "I remember the pain when it happened."

He had played in pain before, excruciating pain, so it did not stop him in this game or for 14 more after it. In fact, the best game he played all season was his last one against Montreal, also in Boston.

But by now his back was so bad, the team doctors ordered him to stay home in bed. Rest provided no cure and so surgery was next in order and a chip off the disc was removed from where it had been pressing on a nerve in his back.

How he had ever played in such pain, the doctors marvelled. But then Cashman is an unusual guy.

Right now he's sweating out the time when the doctor will give him permission to take more strenuous exercises on the road back to the hockey rink. He was due for a doctor's visit this week.

"I've been doing stretching exercises for my shoulders and arms," he explained, to get mobility. I set up the gym myself in my home. The next step is to get permission from the doctor to start swimming and riding a bike."

When will he be able to skate?

If Cashman had his way, it would be soon. But there's no way he'll put on the skates before the doctor gives him permission and right now that isn't imminent.

Last week he started driving his car again and he's able to go outside and walk around. But he still has to take it easy and that's difficult for a competitor like him, especially when his mates are having a rugged time on the road.

Obituaries

Eleanor Miskella

A funeral mass was scheduled to be said at 10 a.m. this morning (Jan. 9) in Our Lady's Church for Eleanor E. Miskella.

Miss Miskella, 65, of 130 Bridge St., Newton, died Monday (Jan. 6) in St. Elizabeth's Hospital.

A native of Newton, Miss Miskella had lived here all her life.

She is survived by three sisters, Miss Josephine B. Miskella of Newton, Mrs. Margaret A. Payonzeck of Belmont and Mrs. Bertha F. Drennan of Newton Centre; a brother, James E. of Sherman Oaks, Calif.; , and several nieces and nephews.

Burial is in Calvary Cemetery, Waltham.

Francesco Vinciullo

A funeral mass was said Saturday (Jan. 4) in Our Lady 'e Church for Francesco Vinciullo.

Mr. Vinciullo, 81, of 56 Faxon St., Newton, died Wednesday (Jan. 1) in Newton-Wellesley Hospital.

He had lived in Newton for 45 years and was a World War I veteran. Mr. Vinciullo was a member of American Legion Post No. 48, Italian-American Veterans Post No. 50, and was a retired employee of the City of Newton.

Mr. Vinciullo is survived by his wife, Mrs. Mary R. Vinciullo; two daughters, Mrs. Josephine Gentile and Carmella Vinciullo, both of Newton; a son, Joseph T. of Framingham; three grandchildren and four great-grandchlildren.

Burial is in Newton Cemetery.

Christine Moore

Funeral services were held Monday (Jan. 6) in the Newton Cemetery Chapel for Mrs. Christine (Green) Moore, who was the oldest living member of Myrtle Baptist Church.

Mrs. Moore, 93, of 309 River St., West Newton, died Friday (Jan. 3) at her home after a long illness.

Believed to be the only widow of a Grand Army of the Republic veteran, Mrs. Moore was the widow of Charles A. Moore, a Civil War veteran.

A resident of Newton for most of her life, she was a past president of the Ladies of the Grand Army, a member of Newton Post No. 48 American Legion Auxiliary and the West Newton Senior Citizens.

Mrs. Moore is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Ernestine Carter of Berlin, N.J., and Mrs. Charlotte Haywood of West Newton, 21 grandchildren, great-grandchildren and great-great-grandchildren.

Burial is in Newton Cemetery.

Donata Baccari

Donata Baccari, 16, of 85 West St., Newton, died Tuesday (Dec. 31, 1974) in Massachusetts General Hospital after a long illness.

A native of San Donato, Italy, and a resident of Newton for the past five years, Miss Baccari was a student at Newton North High School.

She is survived by her parents, Mario and Maria Baccari; two brothers, Costanzo and Antonio, both of Newton; her maternal grandmother, Mrs. Loretta Antonellis of San Donato, Italy.

A funeral mass was said Saturday (Jan. 4) in Our Lady's Church. Burial is in San Donato.

OUT OF ACTION

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Cleveland Cavaliers' center Jim Chones will be out of action for up to five weeks due to a hairline fracture in his right foot, it was learned Tuesday night.

Chones, 24, injured his foot in the last minutes of Saturday night's game with the New York Knicks.

Brother Roland, CFX

A Mass of Christian Burial was to be said in Baltimore, Md., at the St. Joseph Monastery Church for Brother Roland, CFX.

Brother Roland, 74, a teacher for 32 years at the Working Boys' Home in Newton Highlands, died Sunday (Jan. 5) in a Waltham nursing home.

When the home was closed in 1961, Brother Roland was transferred to St. Joseph's School in New Milford, N.J., where he spent his last 10 active years in teaching before returning to Newton Highlands in retirement.

Brother Roland entered the Xaverian Brothers at the age of 19. He taught at several schools in a ddition to the Working Home and St. Jospeh's.

A mass was said Tuesday (Jan. 7) in Mary Immaculate of Lourdes Church also.

Brother Roland is survived by one brother, John Gossman of Baltimore.

Burial is in Cathedral Cemetery there.

Owen H. Woods

A funeral mass was said in St. Paul's Church Tuesday (Jan. 7) for Owen H. Woods.

Mr. Woods, 76, of 950 Centre St., Newton Centre, died Saturday (Jan. 4) in Framingham Union Hospital.

He retired 10 years ago after working as an investment counselor for many years. Mr. Woods was a native of Liverpool, England, and a World War I veteran.

Mr. Woods is survived by his wife, Mrs. Bertha C. Woods; two sons, Owen H. Woods Jr. of Wellesley Hills and Thomas F. of Greensboro, N.C.; a daughter, Jeanne P. of Norwood; two brothers, John L. of Milton and William of Braintree, and seven grandchildren.

Edson Smith

Services were held Monday (Jan. 6) in Union Church, Waban, for Edson B. Smith.

Mr. Smith, 87, of 31 Larch Rd., Waban, died Friday (Jan. 3) at his home.

He began his career as a journalist at the old Boston Herald after graduating from Harvard in 1909. He later was the financial editor of the paper and then financial editor of the Merald-American. He was also an investment consultant, bank director and financial columnist.

He retired from the paper in October, 1974.

Mr. Smith is survived by his wife, Mrs. Hilda Smith; and his sister, Mrs. John T. Marshall of Watertown.

Burial is in Forest Hills Cemetery, Jamaica Plain.

Newton North runners upset Brockton

By RICH RAUM
Sports Correspondent

NEWTON — The Newton North track team lined the outer edge of the track, cheering wildly as Ken Tocci crossed the finish line, thus giving Newton a victory in the relay, and, more importantly, a long awaited victory over Brockton last Friday.

It was the first time the Tigers had defeated Brockton in three years.

The Tigers, showing more enthusiasm than all the teams in the League put together, upped their record to 3-0-1 leaving them in a tie for second with Weymouth South. Rindge Tech leads the Suburban League with a 4-0 record.

Sticking to tradition, Tom Hightower put Newton into an early lead by winning the mile. Howard Pierce finished second for the Tigers.

Tony Morales came up with a super effort in the thousand but had to settle for second as he was barely edged out at the finish line. Newton's Alan Yun placed third.

Brockton took an unexpected first and third in tbe 600. Ken Tocci grabbed second for Newton.

Bob Meek and Kevin Jones took first and third, respectively, for the Tigers in the 300. It was both Meek's and Jones' best effort of the year.

The 2-mile was no contest as Newton's Duncan Scott ran away with the victory, finishing with a time of 10:48.3.

Another traditionalist, James Connoly, won the hurdles (undefeated thus far). Rich Jaffee placed third.

The Tigers' Al Chockett and Hugh Caplan took first and third in the dash.

In the field events John and Tom Cardillo grabbed second and third in the shot put and Martin placed third in the high jump.

Going into the relay, the Tigers were leading by a slim 5 points. If they lost, they'd have to settle for a tie.

In the opening leg of the relay both Bob Meek of Newton and the runner from Brockton pulled a muscle. But Meek was able to remain on his feet and finish his leg — the . Brockton runner wasn't.

At this the Tigers erupted with joy, mobbing each other after it was over.

""We displayed the mark of a great tem," commented Coach Boyle. ""We did not panic once, and by keeping our cool we came out on top."

WORCESTER WOMAN LOSES 270 POUNDS

Betty Roach of the Worcester Area has achieved a goal that most people have considered impossible—in 16 months she has been able to lose a total of 270 pounds and change not only herself but her outlook on life. She has reduced her dress size from a size 60 to a size 18, and is looking ahead to that day when her task is completed and she purchases her first size 12. Betty herself has added delightful dimension to her life in self-confidence and the rewarding pleasure of having found a way of life that is not only enjoyable but also allows her the satisfaction of achieving a life-long dream of being slim.

Betty is the mother of 3 children and finds that her new self and life-style has enabled her to become a participatory member of her family. She enjoys doing all the things that she was unable to do before with them, and best of all the energy to stay a part of the total family picture.

How Betty was able to reach this point in her life is a story of hard work and dedication not only of Betty's but also of her instructor and friend Joanna Shaw, who having achieved the happy state of slimness from obesity (Joanna has lost 190 pounds and maintained that loss for 3½ years) was able to guide Betty through. The program which enabled these two women to become participating members of society again and helped them achieve what many felt was impossible was founded 9 years ago by two women in Boston who themselves were trapped by the obesity problem which faces so many people today.

The Diet Workshop since then has dedicated itself to helping others face and control the heartbreaking condition of overweight. It has through constant research and application helped over 300,000 people to a new way of life—a way that is beautiful, fulfilling and enjoyable.

This program is taught in Newton at the Diet Workshop Center, 285 Centre Street. The week of January 16th through 19th this center will be open to any of the public who wishes to learn about their 4 For 1 approach to weight-control. Open houses will be held Monday, Jan. 13th at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, Jan. 14th at 9:30 a.m. and 7:30 p.m., Wednesday, Jan. 15th at 9:30 a.m., 5:30 and 7:30 p.m., Thursday, Jan. 16th at 9:30 a.m. and 7:30 p.m., and Saturday, Jan. 18th at 9:30 a.m. Classes for men only are held on Sundays at 10 a.m. and 12 noon. These men's classes are holding Open Houses on Sunday, Jan. 19 for any men interested in meeting other men with the same problem who have successfully controlled their weight when in many instances all else has failed.

Other Open Houses in the Newton Area are being held the same week in Newton Centre at Sacred Heart Church, Bishop McKenzie Hall, 1332 Centre St., Monday, January 13th at 7:30 p.m. and at the St. Paul's Episcopal Church, 1135 Walnut St., Newton Highlands, Tuesday, January 14th at 9:30 a.m.

NCSC to offer golf lessons

Spring is just around the corner. Now is the time to sign up for those Golf lessons you have always wanted. Once again the Newton Community Service Centers Inc., is offering golf lessons under the direction of Don Meany, on Wednesday, or Friday evenings.

Meany's course consists of seven one-hour lessons which cover stance, the drives, fairway woods, long irons, middle irons, and chipping and putting.

All teaching equipment is supplied, although pupils may use their own clubs if they wish. Sneakers, or other types of comfortable footwear should be worn.

For additional information on registration, contact the Centers at 969-5906 or visit us at 429 Cherry Street, West Newton during the week between 9 a.m.-noon, or from 1 p.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Pictures sought

NEWTON — The Newton Graphic sports staff is seeking a photographer to take pictures of sporting events that occur at Newton North High School. Pictures must be of professional quality and be developed for the next edition of the Graphic that follows the event.

Anyone interested in taking pictures on a part time basis is asked to drop a line to Sports Editor Vin Lembo at the Graphic office.

The Weeks Warriors work hard to win

By RICHARD GROSSMAN

NEWTON—There are many popular methods of spending ones vacation when one is a Junior High School student. You can sleep your days away or you can spend them watching quiz shows. However, there is a group that believes in early rising and tough workouts.

The Weeks Junior High School varsity basketball team appeared at the Weeks gym at 8:50 a.m. on Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday of vacation week. No one on the team was bothered by the time, only by the frosty temperature in the gym.

The workouts consist of: calisthenics, running, drills, instruction by the coach, more drills, more instruction, and finish with a scrimmage which lasts fifteen to thirty minutes. The practice ends around noon.

So far the team has had two exhibition games, one of which was against the Weeks faculty. No one seems to remember the score of that game. The second exhibition game took place on Thursday, January 2 when Weeks defeated Meadowbrook Junior High School by thirteen points.

"Our team lacks height but makes up for it in speed and agility," said Marc Rubin of the Weeks team.

Varsity coach Joe Bannen summed up some of the major strengths and weaknesses of the Weeks team. The coach indicated that the team was small in stature but made up of good shooters. The team's height presents a rebounding problem, both offensive and defensive but they would try to compensate by using the fast break and having a tough defence. Most important of all Coach Bannen demands constant hustle from his charges.

In the upcoming season Weeks will be facing: Warren, Bigelow, Day, Meadowbrook, Waltham, Kennedy, St. Sebastian's and South South Waltham Junior High Schools.

Westwood skaters top Newton 4-1

by CHRIS CARROLL

The red hot Westwood High School hockey team continued its winning ways as they knocked off Newton South 4-1 Tuesday afternoon at the West Concord Arena.

This was the Wolverines' fourth straight win, and they are unbeaten in the 8 past five games. Their record is now 4-2-1.

Newton goalie Dave Sutter was fantastic in net as he made 50 saves in the course of the game. But Sutter's heroics in the Newton South net were not strong enough to ward off the unrelenting pressure put upon by the Wolverine8 offense, led by Seniore Jim Riordan and Kevin Pallis, each with two goals in the game.

Riordan's goal total continues to soar as the Wolverines' offense becomes more impressive and the defense becomes more impregnable.

Westwood goalie Chris McWade was again outstanding in the net. Although he was not often tested, he still came up with some fine saves when called upon.

The first period was pretty much controlled by Westwood, as indicated by the shots on goals totals: Newton had six shots on net, and Westwood had twenty-one. The Wolverines did not, however, score during the first period, the score remaining 0-0.

In the first minute of the second period, Newton looked as though they were coming back, then Westwood suddenly snapped out of it and took command once more. The Wolverines had a great scoring bid when Jim Riordan beat the goalie to the left side, but it hit the post. Bill Rogers also had a good chance when Riordan fed it out to him and goalie Dave Satter robbed him and followed up with a great stop on a second shot after the rebound.

Not to be denied, however, the Wolverines took the lead at 7:14 when Riordan banged in a Dennis Sexton rebound. Dave Bice also drew an assist on the play. Their lead didn't last very long, as Newton got on the board at 5:52 when Don Ferrari scored, assisted by Tim Hart and Brian Cain. The excitement in the period was not over yet as the Wolverines were frustrated time and time again.

As the third period started, Westwood came out flying. At 14:03, Newton defenseman Joe Donlan went to the penalty box for interference, and at 12:57, Westwood scored a power play goal when Pete McCracken fed the puck to Scott Colwell behind the Newton net who in turn worked it out to Kevin Pallis who tucked in the eventual game winner. At 11:51, Pallis scored again when he tipped in a Bob Mucciarone slap shot, making it 3-1. At 1:54, Jim Riordan finished off the scoring when he took a nice pass from Ed Germano and put it by the goalie.

Their next game is on Saturday night at 8:30 p.m. against current Dual County League leaders Bedford at the West Concord Arena.

Winning team and score—Westwood 4. Goalie McWade; LD D. Sullivan; RD Germano; LW Sexton; C Riordan; RW Rogers; Spares: McCracken, Pallis, Colwell, Rice, Mucciarone, Lacerda, Steeger, Carvill, F. Sullivan, Smith, McGinnis.

Losing team and score—Newton South 1. Goalie D. Satter; LD M. Cooper; RD Donaln; LW Ferrari; C Hart; RW Cain; Spares: Driscoll, S.Satter, Tresca, Waalewyn, Ken Schidlien, Kevin Schidlien, Mackenzie, H. Cooper, Moore, Panella, Tedeschi, Skerry.

Scoring by 6 periods

Westwood	0	1	3	—4
Newton South	0	1	0	—1

1st period: none.

2nd period: W. Riordan (Rice, Sexton) 7:14; N.S. Ferrari (Hart, Cain) 5:52.

3rd period: W. Pallis (Colwell, McCracken) 12:57; W. Pallis (Mucciarone) 11:51; W. Riordan (Germano) 1:54.

North grapplers bow to Melrose

By STEVE SCHAEFER

NEWTON—"This game is all a matter of psyche," stated Newton wrestler Russ Gasdia shortly after a disappointing 34-22 loss to Melrose High's wrestling team.

The loss, being the first of the season, brings Newton's record to 4-1. Melrose's only previous competition was the Lowell Tournament, in which they placed fourth out of 16 teams.

In the 100 lb. weight class Newton entered John Robbins, an unexperienced sophomore wrestler. Despite his courageous efforts, an experienced Melrose wrestler quickly pinned him.

Newton's Mike Annesi then fought to a 6-6 tie in the 107 lb. class.

Paul Seeginthaler and Steve Rosen, wrestling in the next two classes, were both outscored 10-4 and 8-0, respectively.

Down 14 to 2, Newton then came back to tie it when the next two events gave them 12 points.

In the 128 lb. class John Angelucci pinned his Melrose opponent in 3 minutes and 47 seconds. This brought the total score to Melrose 14, Newton 8.

Melrose was then forced to forgeit the 134 lb. match, because their entry was overweight. This tied the score.

Steve Parker, Newton's 140 lb. entry, kept the tie alive by wrestling to a 14 point tie with his challenger.

Melrose then got the lucky hand, beating Newton in the next four classes. They easily clinched the match.

Newton wrestled John Monahan, co-captain Bruce McNulty, Dave Barronberg and Peter Hiltz, in the 147, 157, 167, and 187 pound classes, respectively.

Finally, in the Heavyweight class, junior Don Morrell scored 6 Newton points when he pinned his opponent at 5:34. This brought the score to a final 34 to 22 Melrose win.

When asked why Newton had not done better Morrell commented "they were a tough team." He then added, "if we were a little more up for them I think we would have won it."

Another wrestler felt "we were cocky, we thought we could beat anyone."

Three days earlier the Tigers also hosted No. Quincy. Newton showed their power winning 52 to 12. The J.V.'s also won, 29 to 11.

Bruins lucky to tie Capitals

LANDOVER, Md. (UPI) — The Boston Bruins aren't laughing at that joke about Washington being first in war, first in peace and last in the National Hockey League.

The Bruins were lucky to escape with a 3-3 tie Tuesday night against the lowly Washington Capitals.

Although they outshot the Caps 44-15, Boston couldn't get more than three scores against Washington's two goaltenders, Michel Belhumeur and Ron Low.

The star of the night was 19-year-old Mike Marson, who scored two goals and assisted on the final one by Pete LaFramboise which tied the game.

Marson is the second black player in the NHL since Willie O'Ree played for the Bruins 15 years ago.

The Bruins were without the services of Bobby Orr in the third period. But coach Don Cherry said Orr only had some strained ligaments in his neck.

"He had trouble moving his head and looking down so I decided not to take any chances and kept him out of the third period," Cherry said.

Boston, which wound up its five-game road trip with a 2-2-1 record, picked up one point in the standings and now trails Buffalo by five points.

The Bruins return to Boston Garden Thursday against Vancouver.

Dorsey leads in skiing

KILLINGTON, Vt. (UPI) — Becky Dorsey of Windham, Mass. continued her drive for the Can-Am skiing championship Tuesday, winning the women's giant slalom here for her third victory in her last four starts.

Alain Cousineau of Brownsburgh, Quebec, won the men's giant slalom to move into third place in the men's standings.

Miss Dorsey, finished in 75.75 seconds, in the first of two days of racing at the Killington Ski Resort. The victory raised her series point total to 75, giving her a 10-point margin over Leslie Smith of Killington, who finished second Tuesday at 75.79 seconds.

Cousineau finished with combined runs of 2:25.89, followed by Russell Goodman of Montreal, 2:26.81; John Macomber of Hanover, N.H., 2:26.87; Jerry McNeallus of Poulet, Vt., 2:26.97; and Greg Bartlette of Stowe, Vt., 2:26.98.

Goodman held on to his lead in the men's Can-Am series with 62 points, followed by Peter Doge of St. Johnsbury, Vt., who finished seventh Tuesday, with 54 points. Cousineau was in third place with 48 points.

Third place in the women's event went to Lyndall Heyer of Stowe, 75.60, followed by Jamie Kurlander of Great Gorge, N.J., 77.87, and Pam Noyes of Ipswich, Mass., 78.50.

Hondo all star starter

NEW YORK (UPI) — Four-fifths of the National Basketball Association champion Boston Celtics' starting team will be wearing All-Star uniforms when East meets West Jan. 14 at Phoenix.

John Havlicek, starting at forward for the seventh straight year and playing in his ninth straight All-Star game, will have teammates Dave Cowens, Jo Jo White and Paul Silas behind him on the East bench.

Washington Coach (and former Boston star) K. C. Jones will be the East coach and will have, in addition to Havlicek on the starting five, New York guards Walt Frazier and Earl Monroe, Washington forward Elvin Hayes and Buffalo center Bob McAdoo.

South gymnasts bow

NEWTON—The Newton South gymnastics team bowed Tuesday afternoon in a three way meet with two teams from Weymouth. Weymouth North came out on top in the event with a score of 73.45. They were followed by Weymouth South, who totalled 65.00. Newton South was third, finishing with 51.80 points.

Newton started out poorly with no one placing in the floor exercises. However, Dave Spielman came back strong in the side horse to grab first place with a mark of 4.5 in a fine effort.

In the high bar, Tad Baum finished second with a 3.0. Baum completed a fine afternoon by finishing first in the parallel bars with a 4.1 and second in the rings with a 3.05. No one was able to place in the long horse exercise.

Other Newton gymnasts who did well in the meet included Harvey Stone, Bob Clark, Bob Kelly, Jeff Baum, Stu Rothman, and Mark Comerford.

Supervise boxing in Connecticut

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — The Athletic Division of the state Consumer Protection Department will supervise the increasing field of amateur boxing in Connecticut.

The announcement followed a meeting Tuesday with Barbara B. Dunn, state consumer protection commissioner, Chico Vejar, executive director of the Athletic Division, and Ray Lord of Norwich, boxing chairman of the state AAU.

"In order to assure maximum supervision of state amateur boxing, and thereby its operations, on the highest levels of quality and intergrity, it was agreed to make it mandatory that all promoters, matchmakers, seconds, referees and judges operating in amateur circles be licensed by the Athletic Division," the consumer agency, which oversees boxing, said.

Red doesn't like three point basket

BOSTON (UPI) — If the National Basketball Association were to institute the three-point basket, Red Auerbach would have a rule change of his own.

"I think if you give a guy three points for a long shot (as the American Basketball Association does for 25-footers), then you should give just one point for a sneakaway layup," said the Boston Celtics' general manager who has been with the NBA since 1946.

"I feel a basket is two points unless you want to change its value from everywhere on the court. The only thing I like about it is it showed the ABA was thinking. When you start a new league, you've got to come up with something different."

Reserve center Jim Ard, who played with New York and Memphis of the ABA before joining the Celtics, disagreed with Auerbach. "Now that I've seen the three-pointer in the ABA, I don't see why it shouldn't be incorporated into the NBA.

Stabler WFL case to be appealed

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — The Birmingham Americans plan to appeal a court ruling that released Oakland Raiders quarterback Ken Stabler from his three-year contract with the World Football League champions, attorney S. Keith Palmer said tuesday.

"We're going to appeal that ruling to the Alabama Supreme Court Wednesday or Thursday," said Palmer.

Because the financially beleaguered Americans paid National Football League star Stabler only $70,000 of the $100,000 promised him, Circuit Court Judge William C. Barber Monday ruled the WFL team violated the pact.

Cancelling the $30,000 remaining note, Barber said Stabler could keep the money he had already collected and he was "free from any obligation under any terms of this contract."

While he played out his option with the Raiders, Stabler was to receive $100,000 in the first two years of the agreement, and in 1976, the year he was to start playing for the Americans, he was to receive $135,000, as well as incentive bonuses and other considerations.

Plagued by financial troubles through most of the last half of the WFL's initial season, the Americans paid Stabler $50,000 when he signed the contract and then used his name in promoting the franchise.

The Americans, at one point boasting one of the best attendance records in the fledgling league, were reported to be over $1 million in debt when the season finished.

Forecast '75

Our nature to be optimistic

Shepard Brown, President Greater Boston Real Estate Board 1974

It is the nature of our industry to be optimistic. I can predict that the people in the industry will use all the ingenuity and energy they can find in order that our business will continue to give home owners, apartment dwellers, plus the commercial and industrial community the real estate services it needs and expects.

We will look to ourselves for the necessary determination because any economic developments that seem encouraging, such as reversing the outflow and lowering the interest rates are matched by the deepening recession. A simple fact that the real estate professionals should keep in mind is that we are in a most essential industry and must continue to strive forward in these dire times. After all, everybody lives under some form of shelter and everybody works or shops under another shelter.

Sales and leases in 1975 will be slower to put together because of the heavy costs requirements. Banks, and other lenders, even if they have the money, will be wary of highly leveraged situations.

Brokers and Savings Banks are beginning to understand the government mortgage repurchase plans. This may be small money, but it is significant, and the fact that the banks are adjusting is an important step forward. These programs will produce a trickle of mortgage money for homes and condominiums. Also, I think the beginning of savings inflow will produce more funds. However, the banks will have a long way to go before they are in a position to offer a generous volume of mortgage financing.

I also do not think that the subsidy home mortgage funds will be available from the New Massachusetts Home Mortgage Finance Agency in the immediate future. It will take them nearly a year to crank up into operation and except for the M.H.F.A. there will be very few multi-family starts.

The outlook has never been better for the value of existing homes. Short term liquidity might depress values temporarily in 1975, but the long term value in unquestioned.

In 1975 I predict the whole condominium industry will pick up steam. There will be some shake outs.. but condominiums are such a logical outgrowth of rent control and run-away inflation. They benefit from the most direct savings imaginable....sharing of the costs of common facilities.

I will not predict whether rent control will be repealed or modified. I will predict that more and more people will understand the eroding affect of rent control. I would like to point out that the two most recent demonstrations for rent control have been by upper middle rent tenants. This shows me that selfishness and not real hardships are the nature of many of the continuing advocates of rent control.

The issue of new taxes will also have to be faced squarely in 1975. Everything I read and hear points away from dependence on real estate as the source of new tax money. So, if you can be optimistic while lying on the bottom of the barrel looking up, real estate will at last begin to get tax relief.

Housing

Some recovery by mid-1975

The housing industry in Massachusetts will begin to recover from its worst slump in recent history and the outlook for the housing consumer will begin to improve by the middle of 1975, according to indications at the beginning of the new year.

The immediate outlook, however, remains grim for the housing industry explains Sidney J. Rosenthal, president of the Builders Association of Greater Boston. "Housing starts fell to an annual rate of below one million units in November. The November rate of building permits, a precursor of future building, fell to an annual rate of 720,000, the lowest rate in the building trades - already more than twice the national average - will continue to increase in the next few months."

Single-family building permits through September of 1974 totalled 9350. For the comparable period last year the number was 15,324, for a drop to date of 5974 units, according to figures from the State Department of Community Affairs.

But according to Rosenthal, there are some positive signs on the horizon. Deposits are beginning to trickle back to thrift institutions. "If this trend continues" he explained, "more and more mortgage money will become available and interest rates will drop slightly. In the past, these pactors have stimulated production by providing both incentive for building and a means for buying. We estimate that housing production for 1975 will total about 1.45 million units, up slightly from the estimated 1.36 million built in 1974, but a far cry from the production levels of 1971-72-73, when we were building more than 2 million units a year. It also falls far short of meeting our national housing needs. Nevertheless, it does show that we are getting back on the right track."

For consumers, the Builders Association of Greater Boston predicts the 1975 market will be a mixed bag of both good and bad news. The price increases of the past several years appear to be tapering off a bit. (In the 1971-73 period, the sales price of new homes increased by more than 30 percent. The median price for a new home is now over $35,000.) Home buyers in some areas may find bargain prices early in 1975 because of a carry over of unsold new homes. But for families seeking apartments, rental units will become increasingly hard to find because few will be produced.

The Association president said that even though HUD recently lowered interest rates on government-backed mortgages and reduced fees on mortgages authorized under the Federal Home Purchase Assistance Act of 1974, there is much more than needs to be accomplished.

THANKS

For making 1974 one of our Better Years

A. L. DeWolfe Co. relocates in Walpole

A.L. DeWolfe and Company is proud to announce the relocation of its Walpole Office from West St. to 958 Main Street located in the center of town. This office provides a complete service to the housing industry specializing in residential real estate sales, apartment rentals, and real property appraising.

The staff consists of sales associates fully trained and experienced from the Walpole area. Their affiliatins include: The Greater Boston Real Estate Board, Greater Boston Multiple Listing Service, Massachusetts Association of Realtors, National Association of Realtors, and Inter Community Relocation.

The company was established 27 years ago by Ann L. DeWolfe in the Town of Milton. Her reputation and integrity afforded her to honor of being Realtor of the year for 1973 and the appointment of director to the National Association of Realtors. Today the company generates in access of Five Million in residential sales per year under the administration of Richard B. DeWolfe.

In the last two years the company has been honored by receiving awards for its advertising achievements and MLS Sales in access of two million dollars.

Fred W. Bucklin manager of the Walpole office anticipates 1975 with optimism. His justification is based upon a fine selection of houses to sell, available funds for financing, and a growing demand of buyers seeking to live in the Walpole area.

Existing homes in greater demand

BY FREDERICK BURKE
President, MLS

Existing homes will be in greater demand by the home buying public. The reasons I think center around the fact that fewer newly constructed homes will be entering the marketplace and most new construction will be in townhouses or condominiums.

Some encouraging signs have been seen in the availability of mortgage money. However, it is doubtful if much relief will be noticed in the first half of 1975. Most members of the Multiple Listing Service have reported very few sales being lost because of mortgage money not being available. They have been able to procure mortgage money for their buyers. Thus, in good and bad mortgage markets a professional Multiple Listing broker is the sellers best answer when asking "How does one sell and finance his home?"

Interest rates for mortgage loans show no lower trend at the present time. It is expected that the second half of 1975 may produce a small decline. This small decline would be based on, and only if, the banks find they have more funds to lend.

Steeler owner saved defensive back Holmes from prison term

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Dean Martin likes the song so much, he made it his theme—"Everybody needs Somebody Sometime"—and for Ernie Holmes, this was the time.

He was in trouble, deep trouble, the kind where they lock you up ordinarily and throw away the keeys.

Ernie Holmes needed somebody, not next month, next week or even tomorrow, but right now, and the fact that one man, a 72-year-old man, dropped everything he was doing to help him gives this story a happy ending.

Had Art Rooney, the Pittsburgh Steelers' owner, not done so that cold, bleak winter day two years ago, then for sure, Ernie Holmes, the Steelers' superb defensive tackle, would not be going to the Super Bowl with them this Sunday to keep a date with the Minnesota Vikings

That day Art Rooney came to his aid, Ernie Holmes was being held for shooting a policeman.

"I will always remember Mr. Rooney for what he did," says Holmes. "I'm grateful to him because in time of need, he didn't ask a whole lot of questions or waste any time. He just got me to a good psychiatric hospital to get my head together. He realized what had happened, and that I was a little nervous."

To backtrack a bit, Holmes had completed his first season with the Steelers when he started driving to Pittsburgh from his home in Newton, Tex., this day for the purpose of negotiating his 1973 contract. He was upset by a number of personal problems.

He was heading toward the city when he came to a bridge that was blocked due to a traffic accident.

There were a number of policemen on the bridge. Holmes got out of his car, approached one and screamed at him:

"Stop these guys from harrassing me."

Which guys?

"Those truck drivers who keep squeezing me in," Holmes shouted.

Preoccupied with the accident, the cop sloughed off Holmes, who got back in his car, and continued driving west. He made a complete loop around Pittsburgh for some reason and that brought him to the Ohio Turnpike.

He started shooting at the tires of passing cars there. Chased by state troopers for nearly 10 miles, Holmes drove his car into a ditch from where he took off on foot, walking six miles.

A police helicopter eventually tracked him down and while it was overhead, Ernie Holmes, an expert marksman, took a pot shot at it hitting the policeman pilot in the ankle

He was then removed to police headquarters, and that was where Art Rooney found him

The Steelers' owner spoke up for Holmes. He had to do considerable talking. It wasn't that easy.

Finally it was agreed Holmes would be released in custody of Rooney's son, Dan, a vice president with the Steelers providing he'd undergo treatment in Pittsburgh's Western Psychiatric Hospital for 30 days.

Ernie Holmes made wonderful progress in the hospital. And there wasn't a day the Rooneys or somebody else from the Steelers failed to visit him.

He was the most popular patient in the hospital, becoming the billiards' champ.

When Holmes returned to the Steelers, some of them were wary of him in practice.

Bracy Bonham, a rookie guard, kept holding him one day and the frustrated Holmes kept growing angrier and angrier. Finally, he grabbed Bonham and said to him:

"Son, you keep holding me like that, and we're gonna have another Ohio Turnpike out here."

Then he broke everybody up with a great big smile, and they knew Ernie Holmes was okay, home free.

Technically, he's still on probation and will be for another year, but the Steelers haven't a worry in the world about their 26-year-old, 6-3, 260-pound tackle. They love him, and call him "Fats."

He, in turn, works with kids off the football field and loves doing that.

"Why?"

He says, "Some of them are neglected by their fathers and mothers. They're lonely. I dunno, I guess I was once, too."

Whalers lose to San Diego

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Their sails trimmed somewhat by two consecutive losses, the injuryridden New England Whalers left San Diego today for hopedfor brighter World Hockey Association prospects in Pheonix Thursday night.

The Whalers' 5-3 loss to the Mariners Tuesday night was their first in three games this season with the San Diego team, and it followed a 9-3 beating Sunday night by the Minnesota Fighting Saints.

A fourth Mariners-Whalers bout, the opening game at the Hartford Civic Center, is sold out for Saturday night.

The Whalers were without the aid of defenseman Rick Ley, center Terry Caffery and winger Al Karlander. Ley and Karlander were out with groin injuries and Caffery with his ankle in a cast.

Mariner Andre Lacroix slapped an unassisted a goal from in front of the net with only 1:22 gone in the game and added two assists Tuesday night to lead his team to victory Tuesday night.

Lacroix's goal was followed by first-period goals by San Diego's Wayne Rivers and Norm Ferguson, giving the Mariners a commanding 3-0 lead. Lacroix assisted on Rivers' score at the 11:07 mark.

New England cut the margin to 3-2 in the first period on goals by Tom Webster and Tim Sheehy. The teams traded goals in the next period. Gene Peacosh hit one in at the 10:49 mark for San Diego, and Gary Swain made it 4-3 at the 17:05 mark.

Francis says Super Bowl will be won in trenches

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Fran Tarkenton says Super Bowl IX "will be won in the trenches."

If that be the case, then the Pittsburgh Steelers hoped today to go one up on the Minnesota Vikings as both teams continued their preparations for Sunday's game

The Steelers were looking to regain the services of defensive end Dwight White, hospitalized since Sunday night with a viral infection, while the Vikings planned to do without offensive tackle Charles Goodrum who would have played opposite White.

Goodrum pulled a leg muscle Tuesday during a workout held in a downpour and was listed as doubtful for Sunday's game. He will be replaced by 15-year veteran Grady Alderman who has been with the Vikings since their inception in 1961.

There was no change reported in White's condition and a spokesman for the Steelers said there was "no cause for concern" as long as the 6-foot-4, 255 pounder was released from the hospital in time for today's workout.

"He'll be ready by game time,' said Pittsburgh Coach Chuck Noll. "Dwight is just a little bit under the weather."

Should White be more ill than reported, he would be replaced in the Steelers' front four by Steve Furness, a three-year veteran from Rhode Island.

Tarkenton, who came out on the losing end in last year's Super Bowl when the Miami Dolphins soundly whipped the Vikings, 24-7, predicted this year's encounter would be enjoyed "by the pure football fan."

"I agree the first eight Super Bowl games weren't very good games from the fans' standpoint," Tarkenton said. "But this one will be different. It will be won in the trenches—by the guys on the offensive and defensive lines. Both teams have excellent defenses that don't give up cheap touchdowns."

NOT THE BEST

RANCHO LA COSTA, Calif. (UPI) — Johnny Miller, who won a record $353,021 in 1974, said Monday night that he doesn't consider himself the No. 1 player on the PGA tour.

"I think Jack Nicklaus has a slight edge as the best and Gary Player is right there beside him," Miller told a contingent of Western sportswriters and broadcasters.

Miller, 27, was honored as the Pro Golfer of the Year at a dinner at La Costa country club.

NBA roundup

The Cleveland Cavaliers led most of the way before losing their NBA game to the Atlanta Hawks Tuesday night, but the Cavaliers' biggest loss occurred before the game even began.

Cleveland, which never has qualified for the playoffs but is in position to do so this season, learned on Tuesday that center Jim Chones had suffered a hairline fracture in his right foot and would be out of action for up to five weeks.

The Cavaliers already are playing without Austin Carr, who has a broken foot and may not be back before the end of the season.

Tom Henderson scored a career high, 30 points, including four key ones in the last 1:30, to help the Hawks beat the Cavs, 113-112, in overtime Tuesday night.

Tom Van Arsdale had 29 points for Atlanta while Jim Cleamons led Cleveland with 20.

In other NBA games, Buffalo defeated Los Angeles, 115-107, Kansas City-Omaha upset Milwaukee, 108-99, Chicago beat Houston, 106-97, Portland stopped New York, 106-92, and Golden State slaughtered New Orleans, 136-94.

Braves 115, Lakers 107:

Bob McAdoo scored 44 points and grabbed 18 rebounds as Buffalo rebounded to win after blowing a 17-point first-quarter lead. Elmore Smith added 24 points, 10 rebounds and 9 assists and Jack Marin had 20 points for Buffalo. Lucius Allen had 19 points, Gail Goodrich and Brian Winters 16 each for Los Angeles.

Kings 108, Bucks 99:

Nate Archibald had 32 points including 23 in the second half for the Kings, who broke away from a tie at halftime. Ron Behagen and Jimmy Walker had 19 points each for the Kings, while Bob Dandridge had 20 and Jim Price 19 for Milwaukee.

Bulls 106, Rockets 97:

Bob Love scored 27 points to pace Chicago, which led all the way. Rudy Tomjanovich of Houston captured game scoring honors with 34.

Blazers 106, Knicks 92:

A 15-point fourth quarter by reserve forward Lloyd Neal helped the Blazers beat the Knicks. Neal finished with 22 points while Geoff Petrie had 21 and Sidney Wicks 20. Walt Frazier led New York with 23.

Warriors 136, Jazz 94:

Golden State hit 62 per cent of its shots in the first three quarters and led, 110-68, going into the final period to win its fifth game in the last six while New Orleans dropped to 3-34. Rick Barry had 29 points, 9 assists and 7 steals for the winners.

AWARD FOR FORD

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford, a three-time letter winner in football, accepted the National Collegiate Athletic Association's highest award Tuesday and said the times demand physical and mental fitness.

More than 800 collegiate athletic directors and others at NCAA's annual meeting watched Ford receive the Theodore Roosevelt Award.

The award is presented each year to a distinguished nationally known citizen who has played in collegiate sports and who has gone on to set an example for other competitors by his interest and concern in physical fitness.

"It will always occupy an honored position in my office, in my life and in my memories," Ford said.

NEW PREXY

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — The Portland Trail Blazers said Tuesday night that the National Basketball Association club's treasurer, Lawrence Weinberg, would become president.

The way was cleared when Weinberg purchased stock belonging to former President Herman Sarkowsky who assumed the position of managing partner in the Seattle National Football League franchise.

Formal approval of the change was expected at the NBA meeting next week in Phoenix.

NHL roundup

J. P. Parise, a 33-year-old journeyman, wasted no time making the New York Islanders happy they acquired him from the Minnesota North Stars.

Playing his first game for his new team, Parise contributed two assists Tuesday night when the Islanders scored a 5-3 victory over the Toronto Maple Leafs. Denis Potvin shared scoring honors by knocking in the insurance goal after setting up Garry Howatt for the decisive tally

"He played well," said Coach Al Arbour. "He will be a real asset when he gets to know our system."

"It feels great to be with a team that is not out of the game after the first period," commented Parise.

The win moved the Islanders to within two points of Atlanta in the battle for the final playoff berth in the National Hockey League's Division 1.

The Washington Capitals played a 3-3 tie with the Boston Bruins and the California Seals beat the St. Louis Blues, 3-2, in the other NHL games Tuesday night.

In the World Hockey Association, the Quebec Nordiques nipped the Michigan Stars, 3-2; the Indianapolis Racers defeated the Vancouver Blazers, 4-2; the Phoenix Roadrunners beat the Toronto Toros, 3-2; the Winnipeg Jets tied the Cleveland Crusaders, 4-4; the Fighting Saints topped the Chicago Cougars, 4-2, and the San Diego Mariners topped the New England Whalers, 5-3.

Capitals 3 Bruins 3:

Pete Laframboise scored at 3:50 of the third period to give the Capitals their tie with the visiting Bruins. The Capitals, who had lost two previous games to the Bruins by a total of 22 goals to 5, battled back from goal deficits in each period.

Seals 3 Blues 2:

Fred Ahern scored with 4:51 left in the game to give the Seals their triumph over the Blues, firing from directly in front of the net and tallying despite the fact that the Blues' John Davidson got his stick on the puck. The Seals had tied the game with goals by Joey Johnston and Al MacAdam in the second period.

WHA:

Christian Bordelau's goal gave the Nordiques their win over the Stags; Bob Sicinski and Kerry Bond scored in the second period to provide the Racers with their triumph; John Mingeault's breakaway goal at 11:16 of the third period enabled the Roadrunners to top the Toros; Anders Hedberg scored two third-period goals to lead the Jets to their tie with the Crusaders; four different players scored for Minnesota in their win over the Cougars, and Andre Lacroix scored one goal and assisted on two others for San Diego.

The demonstration is free to men, women, and childrenof any age.

Palette knife painter speaking

The Newton Art Association will hold its next meeting at 7:30 p.m. Jan. 16, at the Newton Highlands Workshop, 72 Columbus St., Newton Highlands.

Ken Gore, the speaker for the evening, was born in Illinois in 1911, studied at the Meinzinger Art School, Detroit, where he later became an instructor.

He spent tha summer of 1948 painting on Cape Ann, Massachusetts, and moved there in January, 1949.

A confirmed on-the-spot painter, Ken goes directly to nature for his subject. He paints in oil using palette knife, achieving vivid color and vibrant contrasts.

Gore says, "I strive for variety in my painting — in shapes, textures, design, color, composition. A painting should be exciting whether it be a quiet statement about a serene day or the roaring surf after a northeast storm. Variety is what gives it excitement."

Gore has appeared on radio and TV and before many art associations and business groups as lecturer-demonstrator of his palette knife technique.

All interested in Art are invited to attend the meeting. Refreshments will be served.

Country Players choose director

The Newton Country Players have chosen Doug Harper, an English teacher at Newton North High School, as the director of the winter production, "The House of Bernarda Alba."

Harper is a graduate of Middlebury College in Vermont. He has appeared in plays and his directorial credits include, "Anna Christie," "Death Watch," and "Riders to the Sea."

While a student at Breadloaf School of English in Vermont, Harper worked with Daniel Seltzer of Princeton, Steve Book of Julliard, Peter Sanders of Brandeis and Bill Loper of the University of Washington.

Performances of "The House of Bernarda Alba" will be given in February at Rebecca Pomroy House, 84 Eldredge St., Newton Corner.

Academy offers new class for pre-schoolers

The Academy of Physical and Social Development in Newton will celebrate the new year with a special January session of creative movement classes for pre-school children.

The program is designed to aid very young children in discovering themselves and the world around them through the creative medium of movement and dance.

Children between the ages of 3 and 6 will explore the besic body movements (stretching, bending, jumping, skipping, etc.) and will be encouraged to extend these movements into the development of coordination and natural rhythm.

Sensory awareness will be stimulated by moving with a variety of tectile and visual naterials includinW. elastic, cloth, balloons and mylar tape.

Language and concept development will be particularly emphasized through a series of activities focused on communicating ideas and feelings through movement. Children will experiment with self-expression through spontaneous story-telling, dramatic movement, and simple mime

The weekly morning classes will be led by Barbara Shaw, a movement specialist experienced in teaching creative movement and dance to children of all ages. Ms. Shaw has a bachelors degree in psychology and has studied dance with Barbara Mettler at the Creative Dance Center in Tucson, Ariz. She has taught movement as well as speech and language, to language impaired children at the Little People's School in West Newton and has led creative movement classes for the Canton Public Schools' summer learning disabilities program. She has conducted numerous movement workshops in the area including a series of workshops for teachers of special needs children.

Phyllis Moss of West Newton, well-known pianist, will be playing at the first concert of the A-l Newton Music School concert neriee on Friday, Jan. 10, with Ayrton Pinto, Bernard Kadinoff, and Ronald Feldman.

Macchi to chair BU department

Dr. I. Alden Macchi, of 52 Roundwood Road, is the new acting chairman of the Department of Biology at Boston University. A professor of biology in the university's College of Liberal Arts, Dr. Macchi has also held the positions of assistant and associate professor since his initial appointment in the department in 1956.

An internationally respected researcher and expert in the field of endocrinology, Dr. Macchi has spent much of his professional career studying the causes of diabetes and searching for the clues with which the disease may be controlled.

In addition to the teaching positions he has held at Boston University, Dr. Macchi served as executive assistant for research in the university's Biological Science Center from 1956 to 1967. He has also been an instructor in bacteriology and physiology, as well as assistant professor of physiology at Clark University in Worcester.

Dr. Macchi is married to the former Joan Mary Shiminski. He and his wife have one daughter, Deborah Joan.

Energy demonstration to be at Weeks school

A demonstration lecture on atomic energy and its uses, conducted by Wentworth College of Technology, will be presented at Weeks Junior High School, Tuesday, Jan. 14.

The program, titled "This Atomic World," is designed to acquaint students with the basic principles of nuclear energy, its sources, and its role in agriculture, industry, medicine and research.

The grant for conducting this lecture was awarded to Wentworth College by Boston Edison Company.

Robert J. Phillipo will present the assembly program, which explains in student terms the structure of atoms and the operation of nuclear reactors as well as such concepts as radiation, fission, and fusion.

He holds an associate degree in Electronic Engineering and a B.S. degree in Engineering Technology from Wentworth College.

Specially designed electronic equipment is used during the 40-minute program to demonstrate the sources of radiation, how nuclear energy is harnessed to furnish electric power for cities, and the use of radioisotopes to aid in diagnosis and treatment of diseases.

Community Club meets Jan. 9

The first meeting of the New Year of the Newton Community Club will be held Jan. 9 in the parlor of the Eliot Church of Newton, beginning with a social hour and dessert at 1:15 p.m.

Following the business meeting at 2 p.m., Theodore L. Scafidi, treasurer and collector, City of Newton, for seven and one-half years will speak on taxes.

Appearing

Bruce MacDonald of 245 Woodward St., will star in "Jibe and Joke," an evening of song and satire from some of Gilbert and Sullivan's wittiest operettas. Performances are being given by the Brattle Square Players Jan. 17, 18, 24 and 25' at the Center for Performing Arts in Concord. Curtain is at 8:30 p.m. Tickets will be available at the door.

MS Chapter plans dinner

The Massachusetts Chapter for Multiple Sclerosis (MS) will hold its first annual "Dinner of Champions" Thursday, Feb. 27, at the Sheraton-Boston Hotel.

Expanding the tradition of the National Society for MS of honoring sports personalities at the dinner, the champter will also honor cultural and financial personalities from the Boston community.

Reservations for the $50-a-place dinner are now being accepted and can be made by calling the MS offices in Newton Upper Falls, 964-7600.

Coordinating the "Dinner of Champions" for MS is Frank R. Bronstein, senior vice president of Kennedy's Inc. and Samuel P. Sirkis, associate director , E.F. Hutton & Co.

The "Dinner of Champions" should be one of the outstanding philanthropic events of the year. We genuinely need the public's support to make it successful," commented Bronstein.

The concept of the "Dinner of Champions" began in 1972 when the New York Chapter honored retiring Notre Dame Coach, Ara Parseghian, raising $100,000 for MS.

Multiple Sclerosis, a disabling affliction of the central nervous system, strikes young adults indiscriminatly. The funds raised from the dinner will aide the Mass. Chapter research and patient service programs.

The Massachusetts Chapter services over 3,000 patients residing in the chapter area.

Tournament winners

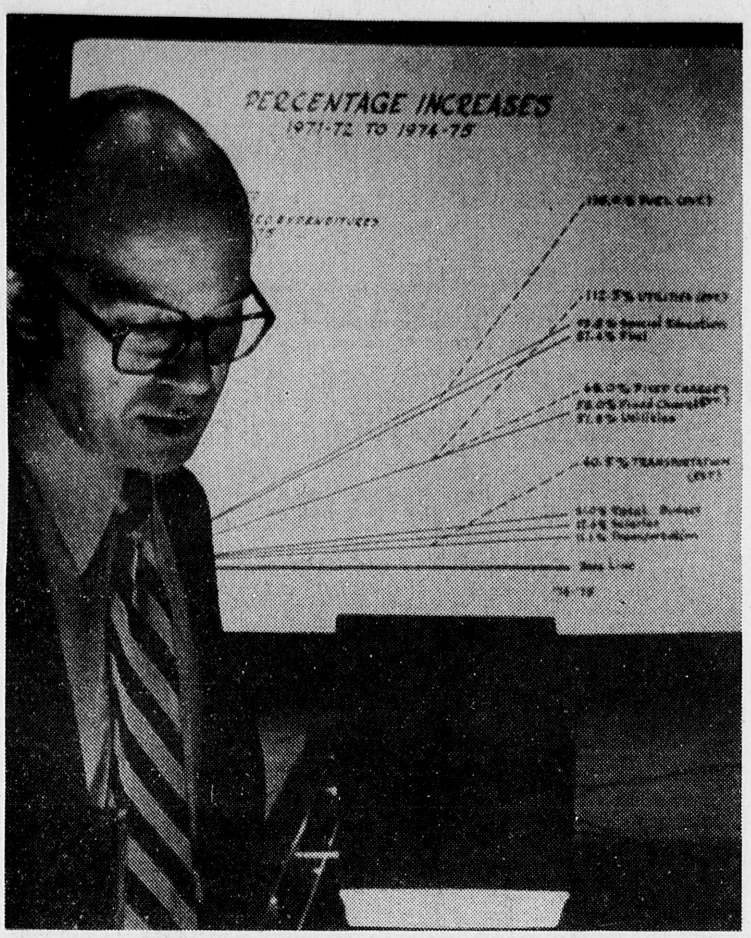
$31 million school budget unveiled



Supt. of Schools Aaron Fink delivers his budget report

Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink introduced his recommendation for next year's school budget of $31,004,731 at Monday night's School Committee meeting, noting his austerity efforts that kept the budget increase to 5.7 per cent over last year.

The second paragraph in his introductory analysis noted that the inflation rate since last year's budget was . approved was 12 per cent

The budget for the present school year, 1974-75, was $ 29,333,106, or j1,671,625 less than Fink's recommendation for 75-76..

The major item not included in the total budget is any salary increases resulting from negotiations with the Newton Teachers Association which begin Feb. 3, according to Committee oman Dorothy Reichard.

Mrs. Reichard said the negotiations present contract took 37 meetings with the help for the of a mediator and a factfinder in August 1973.

Fink said there were six areas of spending that were respd budget. onsible for the increase

They are the increase d costs of fuel and utilities, which he said increased by 54 per cent since last year's budget hearings. The total increase. in this area is $590,734, which will cover this year's anticipated deficit of $325,000.

Salary step increases on the present schedules are expected to be $520,513, including the effect of a net reduction of profeseional staff by 17.8 positions.

To hire an additional 5.6 professional and 3 nonprofessional employees for meeting state requirements and for Chapter 766 that mandates nondiscriminatory special education will cost $207,468, which includes extension of the present program as well. ,.PD Increased costs of student transportation are estimated to be $181,105, which includes an estimated 10 per cent increase in a new contract not yet negotiated and busing for private school transportation.

The costs of instructional materials are expected to increase by $107,136, and increa s ed cost of Blue Cross and Blue Shield is $78,580.

Fink noted these increases, over which he claims in the report that he "could exercise little or no control," total $1,685,536,'which he then notes is more than the total recommended i ncrease of $1,671,625.

An overview of staff changes shows a decrease of six elementary professionals, five from junior high schools, four from senior highs, nine from the 1unior college, .4 from the ivision of Program , and 1.8 teacher aides. Requests for staff increases were 5.6 professionals, two aides, and one clerk for meeting Chapter 766, and one professional and two aides for bilinqual education.

John Cullinane, director of Pupil Personnel Services and Special Education, issued a caution in a special report in the budget summary on Chapter 766 needs.

After justifying a $21,000 emergency fund for Chapter 766) to cover "unforseen needs in equipment, materials, and program," he begins "a caution" which warns that "many other needs appear o n the horizon.

"Based on only a half-year of experience, it is difficult to define these needs and to predict the level of demand we will face in September, 1975. Our budget recommendations, like those of last year, are based on demonstrated need, and, on the whole, are conservative," he said.

"Last July, because of our caution, we had to return to the School Committee with a supplementary budget request of $68,600," Cullinane said.

Fink noted that capital expenditures were not included in the budget, and the city recieves reimbursements for the schools, which is estimated to be $6,285,815 for the present school year 1974-75.

Capital outlay

In other action before the budget presentation Monday night, the School Committee approved by a vote of 7-1 a capital outlay request to the Board of Aldermen totaling $428,350.

This includes the previous $260,000 approved by the School Committee in July, 1974 for the work on the schools in the Nine School Study, $100,000 to finish the work on the asbestos problem in Newton North, an estimated $45,000 for deluge shower s required by state law in all chemistry classrooms, and $23,350 for 15 projects in schools other than those included in the Nine School Study.

Murder at Holiday Inn

Newton and state police are investigating the murder of Robert Peter McGettigan, 19, of 20 Riverside Rd., Watertown, whose body was found early Wednesday at the Holiday Inn in Newton Lower Falls.

Richard Allan Johnston, 18, of 5 Hallron Rd., Lower Falls, has been arrested in connecHe was to havetion with the death. been arraigned at Newton District Court Thursday morning.

According to Newton police, a member of Johnston's family called police to say there was something wrong at the Holday Inn parking lot that they should investigate.

When police arrived they found McGettigan's body propped up against a wall in the lower level of the parking lot. McGettigan was pronounced dead on arrival at Newton-Wellesley Hospital at about 2:45 a.m. Wednesday ,a police spokesman said.

McGettigan was a former Newton resident, according to police, and was a driver for the Yellow Cab Co.

The investigation is being conducted by Newton Police Lt. Richard Duffy, Sgt. James Cox, and Sgt. Joseph Rousseau ans State Police Det. Lts. Peter Agnes and William Nally.

IRS charges alderman with failure to file income tax

Ward 8 Alderman Alan S. Barkin was charged this week with two counts of failure to file federal income tax returns.

U.S. Attorney Wayne Hollingsworth filed a criminal information against Barkin Jan. 13 in federal court in Boston, charging that Barkin had not filed federal returns for the years 1971 and 1972.

He allegedly had a gross income of $66,000.

Barkin has been Ward 8 alderman since 1966 and served as Land Use Committee chairman from 1970 to 1974.

He is also director of the Massachusetts Milk Control Commission, a state agency.

Barkin, 50, lives at 540 Parker St.. Newton Centre.

Barkin declined comment on the matter Tuesdav.

Housing to get most of federal development funds

More than half of the $2.1 million coming to Newton from the federal government during the next three years will be spent on housing under a plan prepared by the Planning Department.

Of the $1.1 million to be spent on housing, $590,000 will go toward rehabilitation and code enforcement of existing housing.

The proposed community development plan will be presented at a public hearing Jan. 23.

A series of hearings, of which this will be the third, has been held to comply with strong citizen-participation requirements of the 1974 Housing and Community Development Act, the funding mechanism of the revised form of revenue sharing.

Other programs proposed are beautification of neighborhoods in Newton Corner, Nonantum, and West Newton and areas in which much new construction and rehabilitation will be done.

Priority for housing rehabilitation is to be given to Newton Corner, Nonantum and West Newton.

A rehabilitation revolving fund is planned either from the community development funding or municipal bonds. Loans would be available at less than market interest rates. Repayment of principal and interest would form the basis of a continuously available revolving fund.

The three-year goal for rehabilitation is 550 units, just 10 per cent of the number judged suitable for rehabilitation in the city.

New h0using is hoped for on two acres of the Auburndale Staniford Street land, which is now being appraised for acquisition by the city. Here 20 units of family housing are planned for the Newton Housing Authority.

On Paul Street, Newton Centre, 50 units of housing for the elderly are planned.

Chairman quits Youth Commission

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
of the Graphic staff

Rev. Charles G. Coyle, chairman of the Newton Youth Commission, and Faye Snider, another member, both publicly resigned at a commission meeting Monday night.

A misunderstanding of the powers of the director of the Department of Human Resources and the relationship of the Youth Commission to that department was the stated reason in a letter addressed to Mayor Theodore Mann and read to the meeting by Rev. Coyle.

The underlying reason, however, appears to be a basic conflict of wills and personalities of Coyle and Jane Pitt, director of the Department of Human Resources.

Mrs. Pitt became director in January, 1974. Coyle had been chairman since March, 1972.

Trouble had been coming on in the relations between the commission and the Human Resources Department for some time, and a meeting recently with the mayor helped clarify the position of each.

The clarification was not to Coyle's satisfaction. He felt that too many of the decisions were being made by Mrs. Pitt.

In an interview after the meeting, Mrs. Pitt replied that in her opinion it was necessary to make decisions because the Youth Commission did not.

Some of the lack of understanding of the role of the Youth Commission arose from the fact, Coyle said, that he and commission members were operating under an early version of the ordinance establishing the Youth Commission, and were

Disposal vote due Monday

Very little new can be said about the proposed method of handlinq Newton and Waltham's solid waste disposal, but one . final public hearing was held last week before the Public Works Committee.

The full Board of Aldermen will vote Jan. 20 on the $100,000 appropriation request to implement a contract between Newton and SCA Disposal Services.The Finance Committee has approved $50,000.

Newton will act as the prime contractor and will have a separate contract with Waltham to dispose of Waltham's rubbish at a transfer-haul station to be built into the Newton incinerator.

The agreements have been worked out by the Newton-Waltham Regional Refuse Disposal District planning committee, working with a federal grant.

The concerns expressed by the public at the last hearing were the same as those expressed all along during the past year since the decision was made to close the Newton incinerator rather than try to upgrade it to meet air-quality standards.

Two consulting firms have advised against upgrading because of the several-million-dollar cost.

Traffic was uppermost as a potential problem.

The Newton Planning Department's traffic planner, David Tannozzini, estimated that the increase in heavy- truck traffic around the incinerator will be very little, compared to the 14,000-vehicle load on Lexington Street now.

He has calculated that the additional truck traffic, consisting of the Walthan trash trucks and the large trailer trucks to be used by SCA to haul the compacted rubbish away, will be about 57 truck-trips per day.

Ald. Richard McGrath, a vociferous opponent not necessarily of transfer-haul itself but of transfer-haul as presented to the Board of Aldermen, questioned what would happen in case of a strike by SCA.

Robert Hand, vice-president of the Street Department union, Local 800, said his union would honor the picket line and would not deposit rubbish at the station.

There would be a financial to the contractor, SCA, the mayor's representative, James Salter, added.

The question of holidays caused some concern to at least one resident of the area , who wondered how two days' rubbish could be compacted and hauled away in one day within the 7 a.m.-4 p.m. normal operating hours of the station.

The answer is apparently that under unusual circumstances the station will be in operation until 10 p.m., although Salter suggested that a good deal of work needs to be done on scheduling to avoid frequent maximum operation.

The aldermanic Finance Committee ultimately voted 5-2 in favor of $50,0000 to get the transfer-haul system under way after they explored again the costs of having Newton go alone in rubbish disposal ($2-3 per ton higher than combined with Waltham, an extra cost that could amount to more than $200,000 per year) .

In both the public hearing and the Finance Committee, discussion of routing Waltham trucks entirely through Waltham streets was unsuccessful.

The contractor, SCA, has extended its bid price several times while the Newton Board of Aldermen continues its deliberations. The final deadline for action would seem to be Feb. 1, by which the Board will have had time to vote on Jan. 20, go through the exercise of 'charter objection," reconsideration, and a special meeting.

Food chemicals OK, doctor says

Beef, pasteurized processed American cheeses, textured vegetable protein (soy flour, caramel coloring, dicalcium phosphate, ferrous sulfate, niacin, calcium pantothenete . . .).

What is this?

It's what your children have for lunch at school, and we would call it a beef patty with cheese.

Recently the Food Services department of the school system has had inquiries about just what the food is made of.

In response, Food Services issued lists of ingredients of a typical week's food.

We in turn sent the list to Frederick J. Stare, M.D., professor of nutrition and chairman of the Department of Nutrition at Harvard University for his comments.

We still wonder about the mustard on the turkey and the piece of margarine that is served atop a peanut butter and marshmallow whip sandwich, but nutritionally, Newton lunches are all right, Dr. Stare says.

Following are his comments on the menus and lists of ingredients submitted to him.

"In response to your lettem of Jan. 6 concerning the quality of the menus and foodstuffs served in the Newton public schools, several people here in the department have looked over the menus and the list of ingredients. Our findings are as follows.

"The menus are nutritionally balanced. They meet government requirements for a Type A lunch, and in doing so provide approximately one-third of the recommended dietary allowances for children.

"The ingredients listed for the foods are the same as those found in like products on our grocery shelves. In both cases. the additives used play major roles in maintaining the quality of the foods. Chemicals used in food processing serve one or more functions in improving or maintaining the nutritional value of food, enhancing its quality, reducing wastage, enhancing acceptebility, im-

Recreation notes

Ice skating lessons begin at Daly rink

Ice Skating Lessons

The Newton Recreation Department announces that a third series of ice skating lessons will be held at the MDC Daly Rink beginning on Tuesday, Jan. 28 and continuing through March 11.

The classes for Newton children in grades 1 through 6 will be each Tuesday for seven consecutive weeks from 1:30 to 2:30 p.m.

Registration for these classes will be Tuesday, Jan. 21, at two locations. The first will be at the Daly Rink between 1:30 and 2:30 p.m. and the second in the evening from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. at the Newton North High School. Those wishing to register are asked to use the Hull St. entrance.

The fee for the series will be $10 and checks should be made payable to the Newton Women's Twilight League.

Senior Adult News

A needlepoint and crewel craft class was held at the Newtonville Drop-In Center on Jan. 8 under the direction of Recreation Leaders Esther B. Toher and Diane Dragoff.

The next city-wide bus trip for the senior adults will be to the Museum of Science and Planetarium on Wednesday, Feb. 12.

The price for the package including transportation and an 11 a.m. planetarium show is $1.50. It will be collected on the bus.

A snack bar and luncheon will be available.

Reservations are limited to 40. Newton senior adults should send a card containing name, address and telephone number to the senior adult bus trip, c-o Newton Recreation Department, 70 Crescent Street, Auburndale 02166. Notification of pickup station and time will be sent out four days before the event.

Evening Gym Programs Resume

The open gym programs at the Franklin and Emerson Schools have resumed. Bob Hathaway directs the Franklin School program and Steve Chapman is in charge at Hamilton.

Tuesday night is for junior high boys; Wednesday nights for junior high and high school girls; and Thursday night for high school boys. All these programs run from 7 to 9 p.m.

Chub Ryan directs the program for junior high and high school boys at the Burr School from 6 to 9 p.m. on Tuesday nights.

Adult Badminton

The Newton Adult Badminton classes have started again at the Warren Junior High School, Thursday nights, between 8 and 10:30 p.m. The program is directed by Mrs. Jennie Rogan and Leo Passero.

Youth Drop-In Center

A Newton Youth Drop-In Center is open at the Emerson School on Saturday nights. Nick Siciliano and John Colantonio direct basketball and floor hockey, and other activities between 7 and 11 p.m.

Warren Junior High Gym Program

A co-ed open house gym program for junior and senior high age youngsters is held from 7 to 11 p.m. Saturday nights at the Warren Junior High School in conjunction with the West Newton Community Center.

Women's Basketball

The Women's Basketball league sponsored by the recreation department continues at the Day Junior High School, Wednesday nights from 7 to 9 p.m. Women 16 years old and over interested in playing in the league should call Fran Towle at 969-3171.

Toneastics Class

There are still some openings in the Toneastics Classes for women at Newton North High School, Tuesdays from 7:15 to 8:15 p.m.

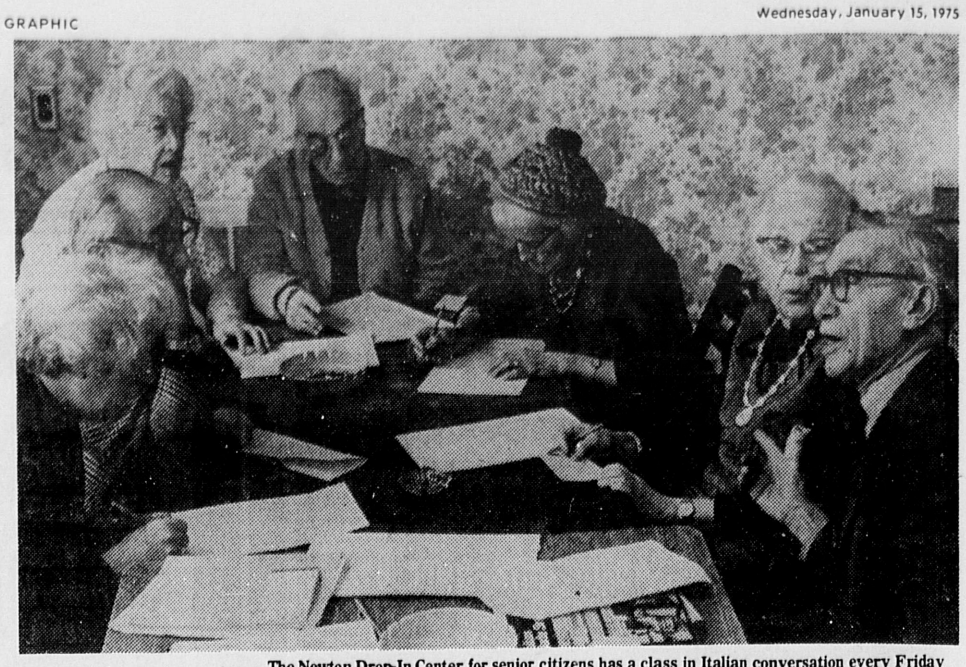
Gymnastics Clinic

Instructor Austin Moore conducts a co-ed gymnastics clinic for boys and girls 14 years of age and over at Newton North High School, Thursday nights, between 7:30 and 9:30 p.m.

Special Class Skating

The Special Class PTA is continuing its ice hockey program at the Fessenden School Rink, Saturdays between 1 and 2 p.m. Some 20 children are participating in the program held in cooperation with the Newton Recreation Department.

Volunteers from the Special Class PTA and the Fessenden School student body work with the youngsters.



Italian class

The Newton Drop-In Center for senior citizens has a class in Italian conversation every Friday from 1 to 3 p.m. on Austin Street next to the Star Market in Newtonville. Francis Argento, a professor at Newton Junior College, teaches the class, and all senior citizens are invited to join the group and fulfill another phase in education. From left are Tilly and Jacob Jaslow, Mary Devlin, Arthur Leonardi, Frances Luizzo, and teacher Argento.

Auto center site approved Sidney Hill still in trouble

The site plan for the Newton South automotive teaching center was approved 5-0 by the Public Buildings Committee last week after a public hearing at which there was only one halfheartedly dissenting opinion.

Justin Frankel of 131 Brandeis Rd., about 500 feet from the proposed site of the garage on Brandeis Road, opposite the high school, questioned whether the city would consider the metal building "aesthetically appropriate" if he were to use similar construction for a house.

Buildings Commissioner Gene Larson explained that Newton has no standards for aesthetics. A building has only to meet building codes.

The planned building is to be constructed of ribbed steel siding. The color has not been selected.

Frankel would rather have the new facility blend better with the existing brick buildinge of the high school.

To face the metal with a brick veneer would cost $4000-5000 for covering three sides of the building, Larson said.

The total cost of the building has been estimated at about 0100,000.

The Planning Board, sitting with the Public Buildings Committee as required by a new ordinance, displayed no knowledge of the proposed building and finally had to be requested by PB Chairman Edward Richmond not to ask about the need for the building, only to consider the site plan.

The Public Buildings Committee attached several conditions to their vote of approval. They said there shall be no storage of cars outside overnight, no students working on cars without faculty supervision, no work on motorcycles outside the building, no outside work after sundown, no cars other than those associated with the class.

Also stipulated was that an island be retained or reconstructed to separate the site from the school parking lot and prevent speeding through the area.

Larson has previously estimated that work can begin on erecting the building within about two months after the contract is signed.

If the Board of Aldermen approves the appropriation at its next meeting Jan. 20, bids may be sought immediately, and there appears a good chance that the building may be done by the beginning of the next school year.

Teachers to discuss math, Chapter 766

Chapter 766 of the state's general laws that requires integrated education for special-needs students will be a main topic at the winter meeting of the Assocition of Teachers of Low Acheivers in Mathematics (ATLAM).

ATLAM will meet at Newton North High School on Saturday, Jan. 18, according to Richard Mackler, Newton North teacher and member of the steering committee.

Shortly after 9:30 a.m. Katherine I. Best, director of personnel services for the Natick School Department, will discuss Chapter 766, a topic of great concern to all educators, and describe of Natick's program.

Special interest sections of the day will include string art, computer lab, a simulated society in a general math class, and Quincy's student-centered learning system for mathematics K-12.

The purpose of ATLAM is to bring together teachers of low achievers so ideas may be shared and common problems discussed.

All teachers interested in providing more effective teaching for low achievers are invited to attend.

Medex I enrollment reopens for elderly

Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Massachusetts have announced that enrollment into Medex I will be reopened from now until March 31 for the benefit of those who did not enroll upon reaching age 65.

Medex (Medicare Extension) is a health benefit package offered by Blue Cross and Blue Shield which supplements Medicare coverage by filling in deductible and coinsurance payments required under the government program. Medex I, at $21.90 per quarter, is the lowest-priced of three Medex plans.

A coupon, inserted in a Medex advertisement which will run in major Massachusetts newspapers beginning Jan. 8, should be filled out by those interested and mailed as directed. The coupon itself is not an application, but an individual who returns the coupon will receive information and an application form. The form must be filled out and returned in the self-addressed envelope to Blue Cross and Blue Shield by March 31 for the individual to be enrolled.

Those interested also may apply for Medex I at any one of nine Blue Cross and Blue Shield customer service locations throughout the Commonwealth.

Effective date for coverage will be April 1 for applications received by Jan. 31; May 1 for application received by Feb. 28; and June 1 for those received by March 31.

Applications must be enrolled in Medicare to be eligible for Medex coverage.

Mayor Mann heads county advisory board

Mayor Theodore Mann has been elected chairman of the newly constituted Middlesex County Advisory Board.

A state law effective last July established an advisory board for each of the state's 14 counties (the two smallest counties have a combined board), primarily for the purpose of reviewing the county budget.

Mann pulled together the group, consisting of a representative from each of the county's 54 cities and towns, last month, when it appeared that no one else would.

Mann was elected chairman at a meeting last week and has appointed Joseph G. Bradley, a former state representative from Newton, budget coordinator for the board.

The Middlesex County budget, approximately $27 million last year, will be completed by the Middlesex County commissioners and will be ready for review by the advisory board by Jan 31.

The advisory board has power only to recommend changes or cuts in the budget when the budget is reviewed by the legislature's Committee on Counties. The advisory board report must be submitted along with the budget to the legislature.

The board has a total of 135 votes, weighted according to the amount each city or town is assessed for the operation of the county.

A two-thirds vote is required to make recommendations.

One problem encountered by the advisory board, Mayor Mann said this week, is that when the legislature passed the bill requiring the advisory boards, it did not specify how the boards were to be funded for postage, secretarial services, and office space.

The office space has been provided by County Commissioner Paul Tsongas until Jan. 31. Tsongas will then resign to take a seat in the U.S. House of Representatives to which he was elected last November.

Mann also feels that a major flaw in the legislation is the requirement that mayors of cities must serve as the city's representative on the board, whereas boards of selectmen may appoint a designee.

The review of the city budget and the School Committee budget comes at about the same time as the county budget, Mann said, and no one person can comprehend all three at the same time.

At a meeting last week at City Hall, the advisory board resolved to support a bill proposed by State Sen. Chester Atkins that would allow two members of the advisory board to serve on a selection committee to choose a replacement for County Commissioner Tsongas.

The board also resolved to request an opinion from the attorney general on the possibility of conflict of interest when a mayor of a city serves as a county commissioner as well.

Many members feel, Mann said, that a conflict may arise when one member has to vote on both a city budget and the county budget, since the county budget will affect the city budget.

Pines faults house speaker for failure to appoint women

Rep. Lois G. Pines (D—Newton) co-chairwoman with Rep. Marie Howe (D—Somerville) of the newly formed Women's Caucus in the state legislature, has challenged House Speaker David H. Bartley to meet his responsibilities in recognizing equal opportunity for women representatives.

Not one of the 14 women representatives, the largest number ever to serve in the House (three Republicans and 11 Democrats) was named to a committee chairmanship when committee assignments were announced Jan. 6, Rep. Pines pointed out, while 53 per cent of the voters.

Rep. Pines stated, "It is most unfortunate that Speaker Bartley did not choose to follow the leadership of his Democratic governor, Michael Dukakis, who set a precedent by appointing four women to his 10-member cabinet. Mr. Bartley is jeopardizing the strength of the Democratic party by personally blocking the paths of competent elected women to the leadership of the party. None of the outstanding women in the legislature were given committee chairmanships, even though eight outstanding, dedicated representatives were reelected this year and two returned after 10 years of effective service in the legislature."

Noting the governor's proclamation last week declatring the start of International Women's Year in Massachusetts, Rep. Pines cited several important goals the Women's Caucus will pursue: "we will serve as a focal point, to continually strive for improving the status of women in state government. We will consult with each other and with women's groups throughout the Commonwealth on a regular basis to formulate legislation and policy geared toward improving the quality of life of women and children; the single woran as head of the family; divorce law reform; the safety and health of our children; and discriminatory practices in the employment of women.

Regal files bill for suburban busing

Newton School Committeeman Herbert F. Regal has filed a bill in the state legislature that would make busing of minority children school children mandatory the from major cities to schools in outlying towns.

Regal said that "for too long the suburbs . . . have ignored their responsibility to the same inner city" from which theybenefit.

"The cooperation and participation of the suburbs will reduce the excessive responsibility now placed solely on the city, . . . and reduce the resentment and opposition of some Boston citizens to measures imposed ou upon them ," Regal said.

An outline of the "Act to Equalize Educational Opportunity" states that any municipality with a non-white school enrollment of less than 8.4 per cent must accept students from a nearby municpality that has more than 16.8 per cent non-white school population.

Students would have to volunteer for the busing, and would have to accepted by the municipality if the students are non-white or if English is their second language.

The bill calls for the state to coordianate and fund all transportation, and the city or town from which a student transfers from will pay the receiving town or to cover educational costs. nunicipality $400 per student o

Regal said, "I chose 8.4 percent as the 'break point' since it represents the overall percentage of non-white students in the school population of the entire Standard Metropolitan Statistical Area (SMSA) which includes Boston."

There are 10 SMSA's that include municipalities in Massachusetts, which include 85.9 per cent of the state's 1970 population.

These districts are set up by the U.S. Office of Management and Budget to standardize reoporting of trade, manufacturing, and transportation in the country.

The SMSA that includes Boston and Newton contains includeds 92 cities and towns. In the state, 193 of the total 351 cities and towns are included in SMSA's.

The bill is co-sponsored by Newton representatives Peter F. Harrington, Lois G. Pines, David J. Mofenson, and Richard J. McGrath. .

Regal noted the that the bill is also co-sponsored by Lowell Senator B. Joseph Tully, member of the state weighs and means committee, and with such support it has a good chance of passing.

LWV sponsors talk on sex education

Sex education in the schools will be the topic for discussion at a meeting open to the community sponsored by the League of Women Voters of Newton.

A talk will be given by Lyn Weiner who has been a counselor for the Planned Parenthood League of Massachusetts and is now a member of its speakers bureau.

The meeting will be held Friday, Jan. 24, at 9:30 a.m. at the Auburndale Congregational Church, 64 Hancock St.

Sex education in the schools encompasees not only the basic subject matter taught, but also values conveyed and responsibilities and decision-making processes involved. These and other aspects such as sex education goals and parents' roles will be discussed.

For further information on the League of Women Voters of Newton call Nancy Edmond, 969-1269.

Silluzio and Korten debate finer points

Newton resident Frances Korten still feels Vincent Silluzio's school enrollment projections for 1985 are underestimated, but Silluzio, director of research and planning for the School Department, said the differences are insignificant .

Mrs. Korten, employed professionall y in the population field, predicts there will be 7,458 women of ages 25 to 34 in Newton in 1980 , using Silluzio's data.

Silluzio said in a telephone interview that the difference between this figure and the "less that 7000" women he said in an earlier response means only "about 15 births," based on the current birth rate of 34.5 per 1000 women aged 15-44.

Mrs. Korten questioned whether there is n, a migration cycle of older familie s moving out of Newton being replaced by younger families.

Silluzio said he has never seen such a cycle published by school systems, and noted that over the last 10 years, the migration of school-age children balanced out each year at about 1200 students moving out of the schools system being replaced by another 1200.

Silluzio said he and Mrs. Korten are in agreement that more precise birth and migration statistics are needed, and he has had pians to begin collecting this data from this year's census.

Mrs. Korten, who said at a declining nrollment public hearing in November she did not challenge Silluzio's five-year projections, does not plan to continue this debate because she does not have the time or the data.

Party Jan. 19 to aid amnesty lobbying

An "amnesty party" to be held Jan. 19 will feature live music by the folk group, Clearing, and others.

The party will be at 65 Gray Cliff Rd. at 8 p.m.

The proceeds of the party will be used to send New England families of draft resisters to a convocation in Washington Feb. 2 and 3 to lobby for unconditional amnesty

Sponsors are the Massachusetts Coalition for Amnesty, Gold Star Parents for Amnesty, American Friends Service Committee, Clergy and Laity Concerned, CPPAX, and LISP.

Former prisoner of war Col. Ed Miller (USMC Ret.) will speak.

There will be a cash bar, and a $5 donation per person is expected.

Sidney Hill still in trouble

Petitions from the Sidney Hill Country Club for permissive use for a barber shop and a beauty shop and additions to facilities were again held by the aldermanic Land Use Committee this week until a meeting scheduled for Jan. 27.

Insufficient parking was the main reason. Sidney Hill's lawyer, Robert Freeto, presented a plan providing 423 parking spaces instead of the 360 that now exist, but Planning Director Charles Thomas said they were too small for today's big cars. Freeto will work on a new plan.

Sidney Hill is under a cease-and-desist order against four zoning violations, which a representative said he thought were not in effect while the petitions were pending before the Board.

Freeto said the club would stop charging for parking, one of the violations. Previously a spokesman had said that illegal tenants in the building would be leaving.

In other business, the Land Use Committee voted 4-2 to grant a temporarv occupancy permit for the last building of the three-building apartment complex at 2300 Commonwealth , subject to the removal of three utility poles Ave., Auburndale on the property, which Land Use Committee members feel violate the intent of the Board that utilities be put underground.

The problem is semantical. Technically, electrical "service" means wires from the utility pole into the building. In the permissive use granted for the construction of the building the Board used the word "service" to mean cables from the street.

Inasmuch as this requirement has been challenged by the developer and is now being decided by the court, the occupancy permit will be moot until after a court decision.

The committee approved the upzoning of a 7-acre parcel of land in Newton Upper Falls on Sweet Street. Presently in Manufacturing District, the land will be rezoned partially to Private Residence and partially to Business AA.

Development of the area, much is which is either owned or leased by radio station WHDH, may wait for more than four years until the radio station's "freeze" on the land, brought about by previously filed intentions, expires.

According to the new zoning, proposed by Ald. Susan Schur and Terry Morris, 36 residential units could be built on a portion of the land.

Other items that can be voted on at the Jan. 20 meeting of the full Board are the request by American Legion Post 440 to place two dumpsters next to its building and an extension of permissive use to the Housing Authority to build on Thurston Road and Victory Field, both of which were approved by the committee 7-0.

Girl Scout cookie sale starts

The annual cookie sale of the Bay Path Colonial Girl Scout Council will open on Jan. 25. Girls in 29 towns of Norfolk and Middlesex counties served by the council will take orders from Saturday, Jan. 25, through Sunday, Feb. 2. The cookies will be delivered by the same order-takers between March 3 and 15. The price is $1.25 per box.

There is incentive for increased sales because troops are doing more exciting projects related to ecology, camping and investigating local heritage and American culture in anticipation of the Bicentennial. The troop treasuries need money to make these programs possible.

Cookies are supplied by Southern Biscuit Company at a cost price of 60 cents per box. Junior troops will earn 10 cents on each box sold; Cadette and Senior troops will earn 20 cents per box. The balance of profit is allotted to the council budget for general operating expenses and maintenance of camp properties.

"The cookie sale offers everyone in the council - board members, troop leaders, girls and parents - an opportunity to support Girl Scouting," said Mrs. Joseph Schmidt of Holliston, Cookie chairman. "Our slogan is: 'Buy, Sell, Eat cookies - they're good!' "

Law-Makers Give Cool Welcome to Dukakis

In looking back at the changing of the gubernatorial administrations at the State House, an impression which stands out was that the farewell given a departing Republican Governor by an overwhelmingly Democratic Legislature seemed warmer and more sincere than the welcome extended to the new incoming Democratic Governor.

It was as if the law-makers were saying goodbye to an old friend they were sorry to see leave and were regarding with wariness the man who was taking his place.

This appeared to be true even though a substantial number of the members of the two branches of the Legislature were new to their jobs and did not know either Governor Michael S. Dukakis or former Governor Francis W. Sargent.

There was a much more relaxed attitude when Sarge administered the oath of office to the law-makers than on the following day when Dukakis delivered his inaugural address.

The legislators sat on their hands most of the time Dukakis was speaking. They interrupted his remarks only three times with applause. Two of thlose occasions came when Dukakis was praising the Legislature.

Governor Dukakis' inaugural address was conciliatory to the Legislature in tone and text.

He reminded his listeners that he himself had served a political apprenticeship in the Legislature. He seemed to be trying to tell the legislators that he once had been one of the boys.

But the legislators were not buying that approach. Mike Dukakis had not been one of the boys. They knew it. Governor Dukakis was a maverick when he served in the Massachusetts House of Representatives. He stood apart and aloof from the rank and file members of the House.

In his canpaigns for election as Governor and before that for Lieutenant Governor it appeared that Michael Dukakis was almost disdainful of the Legislature as a body.

A few of the liberal legislators supported Dukakis in the Democratic primary last September, but most of the party regulars lined up against him. And the legislators were not welcoming him with open arms at his inaugural.

The silence hung heavily when Governor Dukakis declared: "We cannot afford the continuation of a patronage system that has plagued this state for decades."

The legislators assumed that he was telling them he was keeping the patronage for himself and that they could not expect jobs for their constituents in return for their votes on key bills.

What may have been most significant were the comments, remarks and jokes about Dukakis after his inaugural address.

Some of the most liberal legislators—those closest to Dukakis who went all out for him in both the primary and election campaigns—said privately they will line up against him if he tries to cut appropriations for human services or higher education.

Several indicated they would much prefer new taxes to "cleaver-type economies." They expressed concern that Dukakis was placing too much stress upon the importance of not increasing state taxes and that he had shifted from liberal to middle-of-the-roader after winning the nomination for Governor in the September primary.

A Republican legislator asked everyone who would listen if they had heard about the big change in the Dukakis program.

The change, the GOP law-maker explained, was that for economy reasons Dukakis planned to walk between his Brookline home and the State House instead of using the MBTA to make that journey.

However, this would cost more instead of less, he continued, because of the number of police officers guarding Dukakis would have to be doubled and would ride in two automobiles, one in front of Dukakis and the other behind him. (This was supposed to be a joke.)

This was typical of the comments about Dukakis, and they weren't all good-natured. Some were tinged with bitterness.

A feeling seemed to exist that Dukakis would try to run rough-shod over the legislators. They were not impressed that Dukakis appeared to be trying to sake peace.

"That's today," one veteran law-maker observed. "Tomorrow it will be different."

T e 1975 session of the Massachusetts Legislature promises to be interesting. Some of the more independent–minded law-makers may be a little balky in the style of former Representative Michael Dukakis when the new Governor tries to crack the whip

Mary Newman May Be New GOP State Head

Governor Michael S. Dukakis obviously believes there is enough talent within Massachusetts to make it unnecessary for him to go outside the state to recruit the members of his Cabinet.

News releases from the office of the new Governor have pointed out that all the persons named to his Cabinet are Massachusetts residents.

One of the factors which contributed to former Governor Francis W. Sargent's political downfall was that he went talent-hunting across the United States and imported some supposed experts from out of state who proved to be disasters in their jobs. Dukakis has not made that mistake.

When Sarge headed back into private life after a long period of public service, all his cabinet members except two went with him.

Former State Representatives Mary Newman of Cambridge, who served in the House with Dukakis, continued temporarily as Secretary of Manpower Affairs until the Governor named her successor.

Mrs. Newman, who is close politically to Senator Edward W. Brooke, probably will be chosen the new chairman of the Republican State Committee to replace William Barnstead.

She was appointed to ex-Governor Sargent's Cabinet as a reward for having filled a place on the GOP State Ticket in 1970 as the Republican candidate for Secretary of State.

Back through the years Mrs. Newman has been closer to Brooke than to Sargent even though she served in Sarge's Cabinet.

The only other Sargent Cabinet member who remained at the State House when Sarge departed was David Marchand who became Secretary of Administration and Finance and "Deputy Governor" after William I. Cowin resigned from that position to seek election as Attorney General.

Marchand cleared out his desk, took a 25 per cent pay cut and moved over to the State Treasurer's office to become assistant to Treasurer Robert Q. Crane.

Crane is a Democrat and Marchand a Republican, but Crane obviously respects Marchand's ability and took advantage of the opportunity to obtain his services.

Former Public Safety Secretary Richard McLaughlin appeared to be the most surprised of all the Sargent Cabinet members that he received the axe from Dukakis.

McLaughlin, a Democrat, had hoped and apparently had expected that Dukakis would retain him in his Cabinet. "I had no idea there would be a complete rub-out of cabinet secretaries," the disappointed McLaughlin declared after Governor Dukakis had publicly announced the choice of McLaughlin's successor.

Mr. McLaughlin apparently hadn't listened carefully because Dukakis indicated clearly he intended to sweep out the entire Sargent Cabinet. McLaughlin reports that he has several offers but that most of them are for jobs outside Massachusetts. He said he wants to remain in the Bay State.

Among the more philosophical of the Sargent Cabinet secretaries who went over the side with their former boss was Thomas I. Atkins, head of the Boston Chapter of the NAACP who had been Secretary of Communities and Development in Sarge's Cabinet.

Atkins, like McLaughlin, is a Democrat, but, unlike McLaughlin, he did not build up any false hope that he would be given a position in the Dukakis administration. Atkins may practice law, teach or take a job in business.

Some of Sarge's former top aides may not get the precise posts they want, but guessing here is that none of them will go hungry and that all of them will be able to support their families. They had it better under Sargent than their successors will under Dukakis.

The Needle's Eye

The Citizens of Rome

(Editor's note: Don Levitan, former Newton director of intergovernmental relations, has agreed to analyze Newton's school budget as deliberations progress as a public service to Graphic readers. Levitan is now director of the Center for State Management at Suffolk University.)

By DON LEVITAN

When Brutus took knife in hand, he did so before a group of Roman onlookers, good citizens of the city. However, they did little. They were a true audience.

And by being so, by not doing, by allowing, by just being spectators, they shared the guilt of the act.

On the other hand, by first allowing Caesar to acquire omnipotence, they were also guilty.

The moral is clear. Citizens who remain "members of the audience" are mere spectators, onlookers, and rightfully deserve what follows!

Monday, our School Committee, with Mayor Mann and Committeeman Herbert Regal in absentia, received the superintendent's pristine recommendations for the 1976 fiscal year school budget.

A sparse crowd, heavily sprinkled with school employees, heard the request for $31,004,731 to operate our schools between July 1, 1975, and June 30, 1976.

We the assembled were privy to a budget documentary complete with arithmetical mistakes and slides aimed at impressing us that with the fact that while the Consumer Price Index went up approximately 12 per cent, the budget request was up only 5.7 per cent.

I may be naive, but dollars are dollars, and a mere $1.5 million impresses me anyway you look at it, especially when it represents a potential increase of approximately $4 per thousand on the tax rate.

But I was always one to be impressed with money.

Open budget hearings, we were first told that all hearings were to be held in open session and later told that those who had seen the budget were impressed with its modest increase, will commence tonight. All meetings will be held on at Bigelow Junior High School starting at 7:45 p.m.

It is planned that there will be eight meetings, two per week on Mondays and Wednesdays, with the final vote scheduled for Feb. 10.

Eight sessions of about four hours each totals 32 hours of deliberation on $31 million; or, if you have this natural bent for trivia, about $1 million per hour or about $166,000 per minute.

With all due regard to the intellectual acumen of the committee, the amount boggles the mind. The time constraint allows for only a cursory view. And to further exacerbate the situation, the committee chairwoman said the committee will allow "a few minutes of comment" from the "audience" at the end of each session.

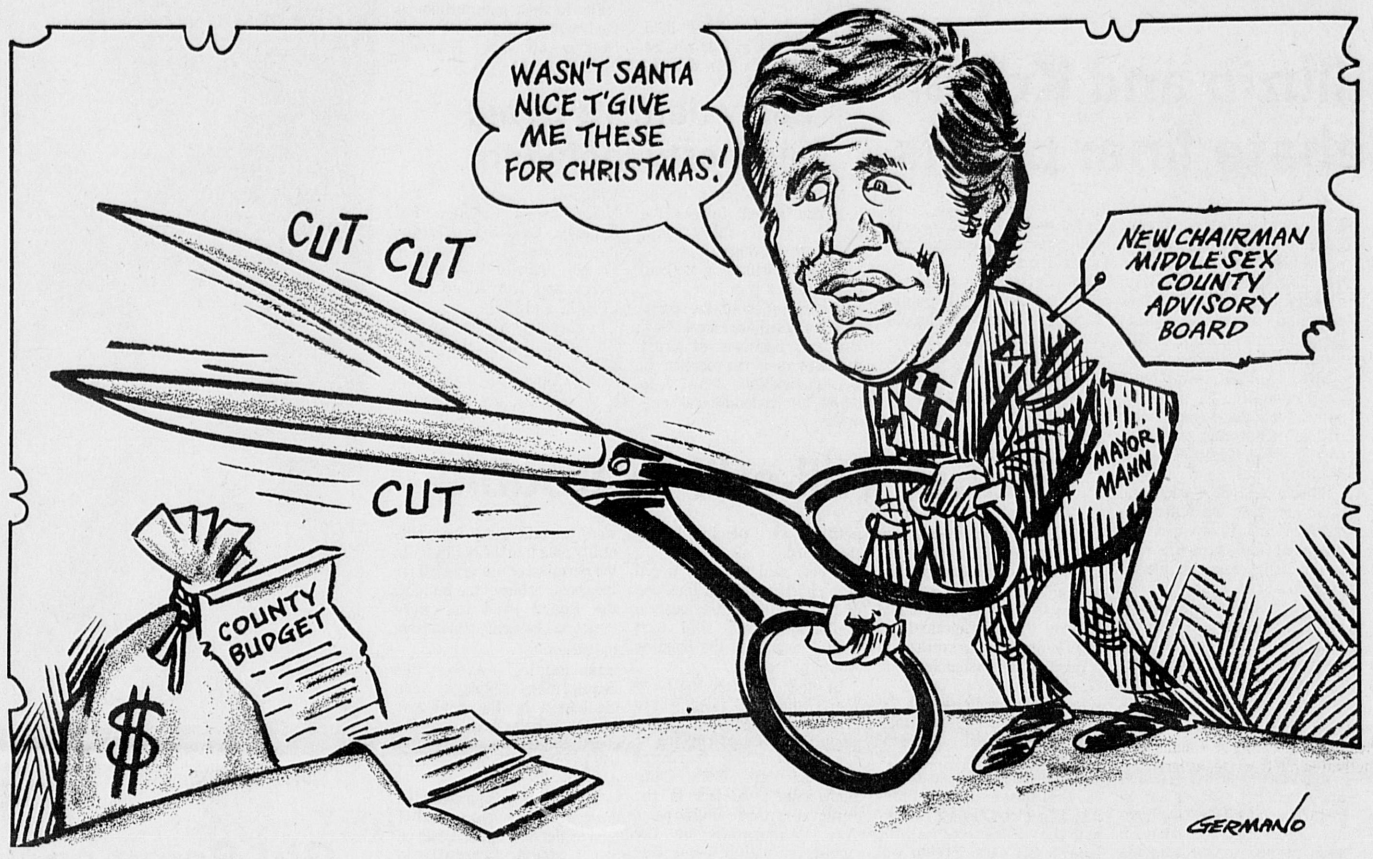
We, the citizens of Newton, are not the spectators of Rome. We are not the "audience" for the School Committee or any other municipal body. We are not mere spectators; we are the ultimate board of directors, the electorate. "audience" appellation offends and may be

The indicative of the lack of our participation on our parts in the past.

The fact remains that regardless of appellations or slick slide shows, Massachusetts law dictates that the School Committee will determine the annual operating budget.

The message is clear. Either each of us participates in these deliber atio..ns b y listening, by asking questions, by demanding creditable responses, or we suffer the results in the future. Et tu, Brute.

TRIMMING TIME?



Last Watergate Trial Posed Many Questions

If President Ford is still in the White House when John Mitchell, John Ehrlichman, H. R. Haldeman and Robert Mardian run out of appeals, he will be confronted with a choice of pardoning all four of them or conceding that he believes in two standards of justice.

Former President Nixon, on the basis of the statement by the prosecutor who retired after directing the handling of the most recent Watergate case, did not know in advance of the Watergate breek-in and expressed surprise when he was told about it. But Nixon certainly could have been prosecuted and convicted on numerous counts of obstructing justice in the Watergate cover-up.

We are not in favor of sending a former President of the United States to prison. We are disposed to agree with those who believe President Ford acted reasonably and properly when he pardoned Nixon in an effort to end the Watergate mess and pull the country together.

However, when Nixon was pardoned, the Watergate case should have been dropped. How Mitchell, Haldeman, Ehrlichman and Mardian could be prosecuted, convicted and probably eventually sentenced to prison after Nixon had been pardoned for all the law—louting of which he may have been guilty, is beyond understanding.

A highly capable newspaper reporter, w+who covered the most recent Watergate trial, pointed out that Nixon's voice was heard on every tape played in the courtroom, but that Mitchell's voice was heard on only one. Newsmen said that Judge John Sirica, who is not considered a really competent jurist, made a number of injudicious statements but that none of them was serious enough to cause a reversal of the verdict against any of the four defendants.

They said that Sirica allowed himself to be baited by attorneys for the defendents who expected him to make statements which would be grounds for appeals for reversals of the decisions.

Newsmen anticipate that Sirica will impose sentences so stiff that they will create sympathy for the four former Nixon aides. Ironically, newsmen are convinced that the tapes, on which Richard Nixon!'s voice was the dominant one, sealed the fate of Mitchell, Haldeman, Ehrlichman and Mardian.

One reporter, in predicting that Judge Sirica will hand out stiff sentences, observed that Sirica is called "maximum John" as a result of the harsh punishment he usually imposes on defendants who come before him.

Sirica, who is not considered either a compassionate judge or a good one, is not expected to make allowances for the fact that President Nixon has been pardoned. Most people, who will be glad to hear the last of the Watergate mess, are not interested in seeing men go to prison for things former President Nixon told them to do, especially after Nixon has been pardoned and now sits free from prosecution out in his San Clemente retreat.

Judge Sirica, who is over 70, would have be&n forced to retire on reaching his 70th birthday, if he had been sitting in a state court in Massachusetts. But "maximum John" is a federal judge.

Salty At Inaugural But His Portrait Out

Notes from backs of envelopes:

Leverett Saltonstall showed up for the inaugural to see Michael S. Dukakis assume office as Governor even though Dukakis had announced he would remove Salty's picture from the gallery of portraits of former Governors and replace it with one of Samuel Adams, a political hero of Dukakis.

In this time of recession Boston is better off economically than almost any other big city in the United States. Detroit and Cleveland, for example, are on the brink of bankruptcy. Boston is not an industrial city. It is essentially a service city and a great educational and medical center. Mayor Kevin White's austerity program of the past two years is helping the Hub. The industrial cities have been hit hardest.

During a panel discussion of what to expect in 1975, shown on Channel 4, an NBC commentator referred to President Ford as "limited."

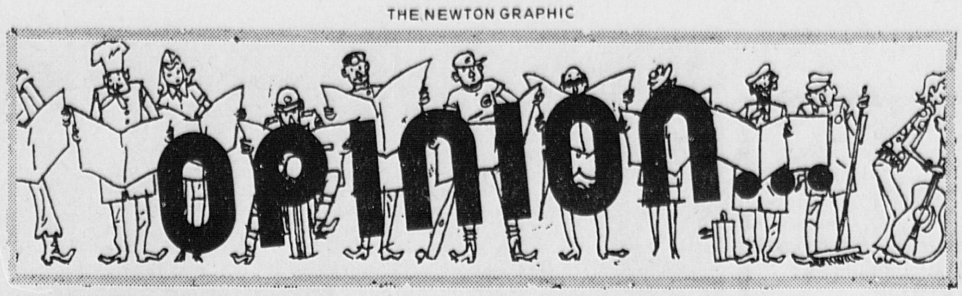
Serious-minded members of Congress say that we cannot efford to allow the Arabs either to cut off oil again or to charge an exorbitant price for the oil they supply. They add that the Arabs are becoming enormously wealthy while we're getting poor as a result of the sale and purchase of oil. That's why it is considered possible we may go to war in the Middle East this y88 year.

Well-informed Congressmen report that a federal tax cut this year is virtually certain in an effort to increase employment. They add that President Ford may not be able to limit the amount of the tax cut. They say that members of Congress are talking seriously about the possibility of creating another WPA such as was set up in the depression to provide jobs.

Word from our man on Capitol Hill is that Wilbur Mille' problem is much more serious than alcoholism. He reports that Mills never has been seen drinking on the job, as have some Conqresomen. Mills would like to regain the chairmanship of the House Ways and Means Committee in two years, but that is not considered likely.

President Ford ie expected to announce some kind of oil conservation program in his State of the Union address later this month. Some Congressmen say it is possible but improbable that he will propose gasoline rationing. An engineer in Baltimore recently admitted he had paid kickbacks to Spiro Agnew and was sent to prison. At about the same time Agnew was hired at a reported salary of $100,000 a year to drum up foreign capital to finance the operation of a number of coal mines.

New York now has the toughest anti-smoking ordinance in the United States. You can be sent to jail for a year .f you light up a cigaret in an elevator, a super-market, a college library and many other places where people gather. Arizona has banned smokin9 in museums, buses, theatres, and all places of eccomModation except in reserved areas.



You want them, you pay for them

To the Editor:

I want to voice strong opposition to the views from Roberta Seifer in your issue of Jan. 7.

She opposes closing any Newton schools. It is a fact that school enrollment is declining in Newton and certain groups are adamantly opposed to any school closing.

The mayor and the School Committee seem only tuned in to the subjective views of parents in this city. It is time to consider those who are also taxpayers BUT are single, widowed, retired, etc., and have no children utilizing school facilities.

Many of these groups have never had children in the Newton school system and may not in the future. It is grossly discriminetory and unfair to ask them to pay higher and higher property taxes for facilities they never call upon.

If those who have, or will have, children in the Newton schools want to pay a surcharge per child based on ability to pay, on their property taxes, then and only then can others subscribe to air conditioned and carpeted high schools. newton—school closing letter...2

Many citizens of Newton, long-time residents, may have to move out due to burdensome taxes which escalate each year.

To ask them to subsidize unnecessary schools and foolish additions is not only unfair, it is immoral.

If Mrs. Seifer had to pay a surcharge, she might be less enthusiastic for unneeded expenditures.

Take Sonny with you

To the Editor:

Four years ago, when I moved to Newton, I subscribed to the Newton Graphic. Frankly, I didn't think very much of the paper and decided not to renew my subscription. Despite this, a copy of the Graphic arrived weekly, and every month or so, I would receive a notice that said something like:

"Postal laws prevent us from continuing your Graphic unless you renew yor subscription. If we do not get your renewal in a short time, we will have to discontinue the Graphic in order to avoid being in violation of the postal laws."

This little game went on for about a year and a half until my wife called up and demanded that you stop sending us the paper and those notices that told us you were violating the law. I meant to write to you at the time, but I never did get around to it.

Now, sometime later, I ran into a current copy of the paper (under new ownership, I understand) and looked it over. Reading Mr. Colbert's column motivated me to write, at last, about the subscription problem so that I could also have a word at him.

Mr. Colbert, you've been saying the same tired things for years. We know Sonny McDonough is your friend, and I'm not surprised that you want Governor Dukakis to be nicer to him.

Things have changed, however, and you and your friends no longer wield the power you once did. The players are different, and the game is (hopefully) changing for the better

I know you will continue to gripe about Dukakis because almost everything he does and every method of operation he uses runs counter to the old order, of which you have been a part for so long.$

But I think you should sit back and take a long, hard look at things. You might conclude that it's time for you to take that long, lonely walk down the State House steps to a pleasant retirement. And take Sonny with you when you go, would you please?

The elderly cannot wait

To the Editor:

Conscientious and sensitive middle aged people, who have the responsibility of looking after an elderly, widowed parent, know only too well the urgent need and importance of a facility such as the proposed Life Care Center!

If our Aldermen and women were to search in the greater Boston area for such a facility, and face the futility and frustrations which we have encountered, they would stop hindering and rather hasten the approval of the proposed facility on Stanton Ave.

There is no housing for middle class elderly in good health in our progressive, health-care oriented city. We desperately need such a facility, where the elderly can retire with dignity, privacy and a measure of security. Nursing homes are a totally unacceptable alternative in these cases, and yet, that is the only avenue open as of now.

Limited supervision, eating facilities and recreation rooms are of vital importance to these retired people, even more so in a climate such as ours, where long winter months keep many of these housebound and isolated.

Density, buffer zones, and added traffic are lame excuses for holding up this all-important project! Certainly if Newton North High School with it's enormous building and 2800 students, many of whom drive, can be tolerated by the private families on Lowell Ave., Elm and Hull Sts., then a much smaller building (perhaps even more attractive) with quiet inhabitants should be acceptable on Stanton Ave.

The proposed site on Stanton Ave. is located next to the Woodland MTA station. It is not a particularily attractive site, but would certainly be extremely convenient for any person dependent on public transportation, an extremely important factor to consider.

I doubt that it can be put to a more useful and vital project. Let's get going and help our elderly.

The wisdom of decision-making

Many visits to City Hall to defend my neighborhood from a proposed "Life Care Center" raise questions in my mind about the wisdom of the decision-making procedures that seriously affect Newton's future.

The Land Use Committee of the Board of Aldermen appears to be guided by no long-range vision of what Newton should be in its steady-state condition (that condition of stability where the various measures of land-use have ceased changing with time).

I am particularly concerned with two related measures: the amount of "open space," by which I nean the acres and strategic locations of woodlands, parklands, and recreational lands accessible to people having a need for them; and the balance between acres devoted to differently zoned functions of human activity.

This quantitative measurement must be matched by an intelligent, planned, informed and sympathetic set of rules guiding the placement of interfaces between these zones. These rules should be written into a master plan so everyone can see them.

The plan should not only be public. It ehould emerge publically, with input from informed and-or interested citizens. It should not be changed for private gain or for the tantalizing prospect of taxes paid to the City.

In my opinion, too little open space remains in Newton. There should be no more destruction of what remains.- LF Some areas now built up should be planned for open space when the present occupants leave. These planned (and existing) areas should be public knowledge. Speculation on their land values should be discouraged by all legal means available to government bodies.

I strongly suspect, in this matter, that our city fathers care less for open space than do the people who live in Newton. It has never been much of an election issue because people find more urgent things to fight about. But perhaps that, too, is a function of the closed-in-ness Newton is beginning to feel.

On the subject of balance, Newton should ask itself if it WANTS more people, more industry, more big business, more little business, more giant shopping centers, more neighborhood corner drug and grocery stores, more traffic on wider, straighter, smoother streets barricaded to the people who live there (fergoshsakes!) so that commuters can run through the city at will . . . more parking lots, more gas stations, and even more city employees!

While I salute the Land Use Committee on its physical stamina, I must object to the conduct and apparent philosophy of its deliberations. The Committee sessions have left my eyes, nose, throat, clothes and very pores clogged with foul deposits of cigar and cigarette smoke. After sitting from 8 p.m. until after midnight in this polluted atmosphere, I find myself not performing well at work the next day.

My impression, after observing Land Use over the last few months, is that the City's business is by default (if not deliberately) conducted in such a way as to exclude most citizens from participating. The smoke, the endless digressions and disorder, the long nighttime hours when most of us need to be resting in order to earn our living the next day, all defeat the desire to participate in government. The lack of definite provision for citizen input, and continuous input by "petitioners', (mainly developers) only serves to alienate us and raise suspicions about how and where the government's business is really transacted.

Although the committee members may be superhuman, or not have to rise at 6 or 7 a.m., or may "peak" at night, it does not seem right to expect the same prowess from all citizens of Newton whose businesses, homes and livelihoods are affected by committee action. A citizen should not have to interrupt the committee proceedings if he or she wants to speak. Many would say something, if given a chance. They should be encouraged to do so, expecially when it is clear that significantly different views exist on a subject.

The committee should ban smoking, follow more parliamentary procedure, and not tolerate digressions from business at hand. If it did so, I think it could hear its visitors and still finish around 11 p.m.

It is worth considering that the complexity of human social organization rises as some power of the population size, and that uncontrolled growth, which is exactly what Newton has, leads to rampant bureaucracy and rising taxes. If Newton wants to be a "Garden City" with a decent quality of life, it must have conscious, stated and effective plan for the future.

It cannot judge each gas station, each land speculation scheme, and each petition for a variance on its own merits. Unless it wants to drift down the easy path to becoming just like Boston, unless it wants its wage-earning population to move away, unless it wants to decay like parts of Boston, it must develop long-range plans to control the daily pressures toward such disorganization. The changes may be imperceptible to our city officials, caught up in day-to-day paperwork, but they are there, and many of us sense them.

It may be that the platform of some national Environmental Party of the future will include planks on preservation of open space and renewal of neighborhoods and cities, with plans for eventually making it possible to walk to work and to parks.

People who must now depend on autos to escape from their mal-planned neighborhoods to enjoy some open space should benefit. Such planning is truly BFconservative, in the long-run, and it is to be hoped that this kind of enlightened self-interest and social awareness will soon increase.

Pass Life Care

To the Editor:

In rebuttal to the cartoons and articles expressing opposition to the Life Care Center, I would like to refute the unjustified and inaccurate statements.

Having attended meetings and educated myself to all lhe considerations of this type building, I am dismayed that it might be turned down because of minor criticisms considering its enormous contributions.

Why focus on the structure's mass, which is controlled by its function and site, when one should concern oneself with its medical-social benefits.

The citizens of Newton cannot expect to drive the advantages of having a Life Care Center in their community without being supportive of its construction on the most pragmatic location. The proposed site cannot be duplicated anywhere in Newton since its value is strengthened by the proximity of the Newton-Wellesley Hospital, the MBTA, major roads, and an uncrowded environment.

Please do not lose sight of the exceptional advantages this new "concept in living" provides—be proud that our city will sponsor the first "Life Care Center" in Massachusetts.

Policewoman demonstrates defense

Newton Policewoman Marilyn Connell recently gave a demonstration of personal protection during a seminar on the new Massachusetts rape law.

She was the guest of the Chief, William Blake and Youth Officer Ted Meyer of the Wayland Police Department for the seminar for high school and post-high school women.

Miss Connell is a member of the Newton Police Rape Unit, and, along with Officer Patricia MacMaster, has been an integral part of all rape investigations since early 1973.

Both policewomen are assigned to a team to investiAgate and lessen the trauma of rape cases. Both are available around the clock to investigate such cases and to offer additional advice and assistance to any victims.

Newton Police Chief William F. Quinn instituted the program when Miss Macmaster first joined the Newton Police Department, feeling that a victim could discuss the crime better and with more ease with a member of her own sex.

Miss Connell, the first Policewoman to graduate from the Massachusetts State Police Academy, discussed rape prevention and personal protection and explained the new law that states all rape case information is strictly confidential.

Section 97D of Chapter 41 states, "All reports of rape and sexual asnault or attempts to commit such offenzes and all conversations between police officers and victims of said offenses shall not be public reports and shall be maintained by the police departments in a manner which will assure their confidentiality. Whoever violatee any provision of this section shall be punished by imprisonment for not more than one year or by a fine of not more than one thousand dollars, or both."

Quinn stated that both Miss Connell and Miss MacMaster, along with officers of the Rape Unit, have been sensitive to the feelings of rape victime. He said care and dignity that must be maintained in any investigation to minimize emotional and phychological shock.

Aborn appointed

Joseph Aborn, of 65 Jane Rd., Newton Centre, was recently appointed public administrator for Middlesex County.

Aborn was nominated for the position by Governor Sargent and was confirmed by the Executive Council Dec. 31, 1974.

Aborn, a life-long resident of Newton, is a lawyer with offices in Government Center, Boston.

Free child health care is available

A preventive health care program is now available to Medicade eligible children six years of age and under in Newton. The local sponsor is Communities United, a parent-run agency which also operates the Head Start class in Newton. Under federal law, children have the right to receive total health care from the Early and Periodic Screening, Diagnosis and Treatment program, a part of Medicade. Detecting any health problems early, when they are most easily treated, will help ensure the child's continuing good health. All services are free, including complete physical examination and immunizations; screenings for vision, hearing, speech and dental problems; and tests for anemia, lead poisining, sickle cell anemi6a and tuberculosis. Most of these services will be provided by the child's own doctor or clini8c; some by specially trained staff from other agencies. Results of all screenings will be thoroughly discussed with parents, along with any recomnendations for referral or treatments. Transportation end babysitting will be provided if necessary. Families with low incomes and-or high medical bills may be eligible for Medicade. The city welfare department can provide information about eligibility. Any families who already have Medicade cards can call 964-1830 for more information about the Early and Periodic Screening, Diagnosis and Treatment program. For more information about the program, ca-l 964-1830 or 969-4615.

Elks to honor John F. Lovely

The Newton Elks will hold an appreciation dinner for Past Exalted Ruler John F. Lovely Jan. 18 at the Elks home on Centre Street, Newton Corner.

Lovely, a 34-year member, has served the Elks in every capacity and committee during this time, including nine years as a trustee. He had just retired from the Newton Police Department after 39 years of service, and his police experience has paralleled his Elks experience. He has worked in every capacity: foot patrol, desk officer, traffic inspector, ambulance driver, motor patrol officer, detective and firearms instructor. The latter position he still holds as an instructor at the Newton Police Academy.

Lovely's entrance to the Elks was sponsored by the late Edwin O. Childs, who had worked with him from his childhood as a member of the Nonantum Boys Club. Frank Lovely also served the club in every capacity; junior member, senior member, member of the "Good Citizens Association," President of the Boys Club and member of the Executive Board. It was Lovely who was the moving force behind the transfer of the Boys Club property on Dalby Street, to the present Newton Boys Corporation, at which time he was also a member of the Board of Trustees of the Newton Boys Club.

He is married to the former Dorothy Gallant and they have two married daughters: Mrs. Shirley Masha and Mrs. Judith Coulter; two sons, Russell and Robert, and six grandchildren.

Head table guests at the dinner included: Chief and Mrs. William F. Quinn, Judge and Mrs. Monte Basbas, Secretary of State and Mrs. Paul Guzzi, and Mayor and Mrs. Theodore D. Mann. Charles Feeley will be toastmaster.

Arrangements have been made by Richard Toli, Frederick Fraini, William Dargon, Carl Mosher, Paul Cavicchi, Nicholas Pecorari, Robert Daly.

Tickets may be obtained at the Newton Lodge of Elks.

Chairman quits

given the 1973 ordinance, in which supervisory powers were given to the , only recently. Department of Human Resources

There appears also to be a clash of personalities between Mrs. Pitt and Rev. Coyle.

Mrs. Pitt, she says herself, is not diplomatic when she might be and wants to go ahead and get things done. She heads a department that implements the Youth Commission, the Community Relations Commission, and the Council on the Aging, and acts as the executive agency for these commissions with a tiny staff and relatively little money for the services the department provides and funds.

The Youth Commission, on the other hand, is a volunteer group that in recent months has had trouble getting together a quorum for its meetings because of several resignations from the seven-member group.

The vacancies have gone unfilled by the mayor for some time.

It meets once a month, as do most of the city's voluntary commissions and committees, and decision-making cannot be quick under these conditions.

Coyle's letter to the mayor outlined some of his problems in being chairman of the Youth Commission working with the Department.

Communications received from the Department of Human Resources, Coyle eaid, make it "clear and unmistakable that the deliberations and decisions of the Youth Commiseion are subject to the judgment of the director of the department in terms of implementation and budgeting."

"This was not my understanding when I served on the selection committee for the director . . . Rather it was then my understanding that the relationship would be horizontal and not vertical in terms of administrative responsibility.". . .

"It is no longer questionable that in reality one person — the director of the Department of Human Resources — has virtual autonomy over the commissions."

Mrs. Pitt said later that the Youth Commission has the prerogative to withdraw from the department if it wishes, and had apparently so informed Coyle.

Coyle responded to this information by telling the mayor that he does not believe that such a step would "facilitate the work of the Youth Commission," nor would Mrs. Pitt's alternative — to go to the mayor directly.

Mrs. Pitt said Tuesday that "daily decisions have to be made."

"The Department of !luman Resources has a responsibility not only to the city but also to the federal government," Mrs. Pitt explained.

She talked about the bureaucracy in the various youth agencies serving the city and how she had tried to cut through it to find out what wan really going on, while she felt there was little participation from the Youth Commission in evaluating services rendered.

This feeling came to the surface at Monday night's meeting, when Mrs. Pitt announced that she had requested certain sums of money in her budget for certain youth agencies and Coyle asked to see the written budget request, showing that neither he nor the commission had had any input into the budget.

Mrs. Pitt said later that she had asked much earlier in the year for evaluations of the agencies by the Youth Commission in preparation for budget requests and had not received the information.

The situation at this point seems irreversible.

Coyle said Tuesday that he did not intend to remove himself from actinq for youth in the city. He felt the commission had made progress in improving the commission since he has been chairman, especially in acquiring members dedicated and interested in youth instead of political appointments.

Under his chairmanship, Coyle feels, the Youth Commission began acting as an ombudsman for youth before the Board of Aldermen and the mayor's office — and it began to be listened to.

Faye Snider, who resigned with Coyle, did so, she said in an open letter "to the mayor and the citizens of Newton," because she learned that under strict interpretation of the revised Youth Commission ordinance, the role of the commission is purely advisory and under the supervisison of the Human Resources Department.

"I had every reason to believe," Ms. Snider's statement said, "that my appointment was based on the mayor's willingness to allow commissioners to exercise responsibility that went far beyond the advisory capacity."

The new ordinance did not prevent her, Ms. Snider said, from being asked to exercise responsibility in the implementation, development and eupervision of the pilot street worker program and as chairman of the present program.

At the end of the meeting, the remaining members of the commission, Alfred Smith and Judy Alpert, and advisory board members agreed to keep the commission going.

Mayor Mann said Tuesday that he is "personally distressed at the resignation of two capable persons," but the Youth Commission will continue as called for by the charter.

All chemicals in sufficiently large amounts have toxic or harmful effects. There really are no 'safe substances', only safe levels of usage. Our various regulatory agencies and the food industry itself work to ensure that safe levels of usage of food additives are established and applied in the food processing industry.

as a community building, has had $5000 allocated for a study of the possibility of converting the building to housing for the elderly.

The old school is now used as School Department headquarters. The School Department will move to the old F. A. Day Junior High School when renovation is completed.

Other programs in the overall plan are urban-design assistance to the business areas of Nonantum and Newton Highlands, both of which are scheduled for $5000 worth of Planning Department staff time in the first year, and the same amount in the second two years for the business areas of West Newton, Newton Centre, Newtonville, and Upper Falls.

The Planning Department will advise businesses on how to improve or rehabilitate their buildings with small loans andor subsidies.

In the third year of the plan, Newton Corner will get $100,000 for acquisition of sites for redevelopment and rehabilitation and $50,000 for helping a nonprofit developer in Newton Corner.

Social services would be represented by a total of $30,000 for a multiservice center in Nonantum at the Stearns site and by assistance, through the city's Department of Human Resources, to agencies serving the three target areas, West Newton, Nonantum, and Newton Corner.

About $100,000 per year will go toward comprehensive planning, which besides actual "comprehensive planning" will include Planning Department aid to all the activities in the community development plan, completion of a citywide land-use and rezoning plan, and the provision of staff and a "modest subsidy" to neighborhood service areas (sub-units of city government allowed by the charter). Newton Highlands has just established the first service area in the city.

The Jan. 23 hearing is Phase 3 of the Citizen Participation Plan undertaken by the city and is probably the last formal hearing. Originally Phase 3 was to consist of hearings held either citywide or in the neighborhoods affected by major programs.

All information already issued by the Planning Department on the Housing and Community Development Act and its application to Newton is available at the Planning Department office at City Hall.

School budget

The main action Monday night was on the 15 projects on schools other than ones included in the Nine School Study. The committee followed the School Buildings Advisory Committee (SBAC) recommendation that those 15 projects be included in the fiscal year 1976 budget, and nine projects at an estimated cost of $9,550 be taken from the reserve funds for this year in the Public Buildings Fund.

The School Committee also accepted the SBAC's recommenda tion to delete 11 projects estimat ed at a for next school year cost of $44,800.

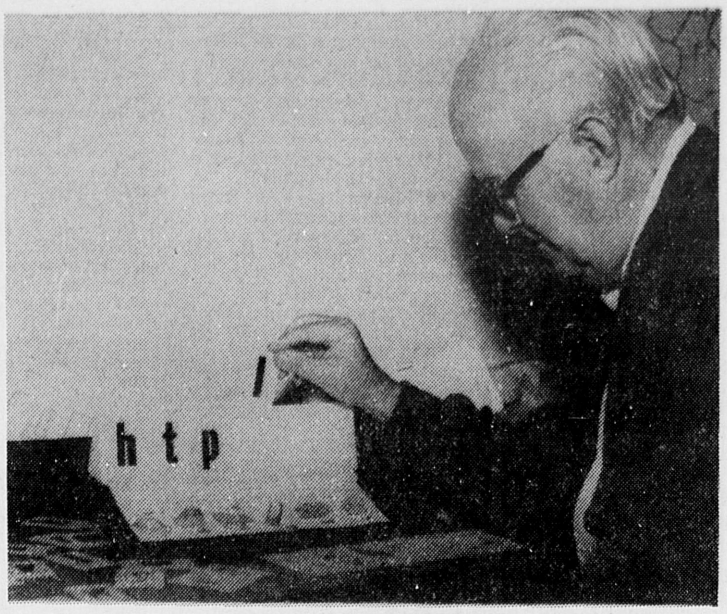
Mrs. Reichard reported to the public that she had copies of the contract summary with the learning disability staff which amounts to a 7.5 per cent salary step increase retroactive to Sept. 1, 1974. This contract was approved by the committee after the executive session of the last meeting.

The next meeting of the School Committee is tonight (Thursday), Jan. 16, at 7:4 5 p.m. in B igelow Junior High School Auditorium at which Fink will present a review of administrative accounts and personnel recommendations for the budget next year.

On Monday, Jan. 20, the committee will act tenatively on these sections and review recommendations for program accounts.

On Wednesday, Jan. 22, at the same time and place, ;; the members will act tenatively on program accounts.

All School Committee meetings are open to the public, and copies of the section of the budget discussed at each meeting are available to the public.



Spellbinder Former Transcript Newspapers employee, Arthur Allinqham of 66 Arlington St., Newton, has embarked on a new career at the age of 80. Allingham took part in the invention of a teaching device called "Spellbinder." The teaching tool is sold to parents and schools and is used by some Newton teachers. Allingham coordinates its distribution and production across the country. "Spellbinder" was invented by electronic engineer Roy Nelson of Acton.

Police arrest 2 men for break, car theft

Last Thursday night Newton Police arrested two men in connection with two housebreaks reported at about 5:40 p.m.

Charged with one count of breaking and entering were John D. Gallant, 20, of 97 Hooker St., Brighton, and Peter F. Lynch, 17, of 93 Eliot Ave., West Newton.

They were both also charged with theft of a motor vehicle.

The breaks were at the homes of Edward Rooney, 15 Cotton St., and Francis Chao, 21 Jameson Rd., both in Newton Corner.

Both homes were entered by kicking in bulkhead doors to the basements of the homes, then forcing the inner doors. Taken from the Rooney home was a Minolta camera.

Mrs. Chao woke up when ehe heard people upstairs, and when two men heard her, they left the house, saying they were looking for someone who wasn't there.

Mrs. Chao phoned the police and gave a description of the two men. At 6:30 p.m., Officer Allan L. Ciccone observed a car on Washington Street with the ignition punched out so the wires could be crossed.

Ciccone phoned in the license plate of the car, and it was found to belong to Janis R. Gormican of Watertown.

When police called her, she did not know her car was missing, but she checked and found her garage door open and the car, which was there at 4:30 p.m., was gone.

Ciccone also saw four cans of beer on the seat of the car, and two men walking down the street, each with a can of beer .

The two men fit Mrs. Chao's description of the suspects, and Ciccone called for assistance and the men were placed under arrest.

Vermont five wins

BURLINGTON, VT. (UPI) — Pairs of last-minute freethrows from senior Bernie Palmer and sophomore Warren Prehmus led the University of Vermont to a 69-65 come-from-behind upset over the University of Massachusetts Tuesday night at Patrick Gym.

With eight minutes left, UMass led 61-46, but in those eight minutes Vermont outscored the visitors 23-4.

Vermont senior Terry Green tied the game with shots from the floor with 1:31 and 1:24 showing on the clock, and Palmer and Prehmus added the winning difference from the foul line.

High scorers for UMass were freshman forward Mike Pyatt with 14 and sophomore center Jim Town with 12. Vermont freshman forward Mike Richbow accounted for 10 points in the win.

The decision pushed Vermont to a 7-5 record, 3-1 in Yankee Conference play, and dropped UMass to 5-4 for the year.

hearing to be held Jan. 20

A Special Legislative Commission on Employment which is exploring the unemployment crisis in Massachusetts will hold its second hearing in Gardner Auditorium of the State Houze on Monday, Jan. 20, at 10:30 a.m.

State Senator Jack H. Backman, chairman of the commission, and State Rep. Richard Demers, co-chairman, have announced that this hearing will focus on the experiences both of unemployed persons in seeking employment and of representatives of municipalities and unions which are trying to deal with emergency job-creation programs.

"More people filed unemployment insurance claims in the final week of 1974 both nationally and in Massachusetts than in any previous week since the unemployment compensation program began in 1937," said Senator Backman. "I feel our commission can provide an opportunity for unemployed persons to be heard. The statistics we are bombarded with each day highlight the seriousness of the problem but do not tell the complete story. These are real people with families and debts. They deserve to have a forum to air their experiences and give suggestions of what they feel should be done.

"I expect the hearing to provide our commission with valuable information not only about implementation of past programs, but recommendations for administration procedures under the Emergency Jobs and Unemployment Assistance Act signed on the last day of 1974 by President Gerald Ford."

"This legislation will mean $41 million for Massachusetts immediately. It's both an opportunity and a challenge to see that this money is used meaningfully. This is an area that Rep. Demers and I want fully explored on Jan. 20," – Concluded Sen. Backman.

Rev. Murphy guest homilist at Our Lady's

In observance of the Week of Prayer for Christian Unity, which begins Saturday, Jan. 18, Rev. William Murphy, S.A., director of Community Development for the Graymoor Friars, Garrison, N.Y., will be the guest homilist at all masses Saturday evening and Sunday in Our Lady, Help of Christians, Church, Newton.

This special week, which is now observed throughout the world, was begun by the Franciscan Friars of the Atonement at Graymoor in 1908.

Father Murphy is a native of West Newton and was educated in the Newton public schools and Our Lady's High School. He was awarded both a Bachelor of Arts and Master of Arts degrees by Catholic University, Washington, D.C. Following his ordination at the Immaculate Conception Shrine in Washington in December, 1940, he concelebrated his first mass in Our Lady Church, Newton. He has since held a wide variety of posts for the order including vocation director, Mission Band director, rector of St. John Atonement Seminary, Montour Falls, N.Y.; rector of St. Pius Seminary, Graymoor; and director of a Retreat House in Nova Scotia. He has held his present position since 1968.

Rev. William Murphy S.A

Members of all Christian denominations in the area are especially invited to attend the services at Our Lady's this weekend. Masses Saturday evening are at 5 and 7:30 p.m. and on Sunday at 7:30, 9, 10:15, and 11:30 a.m.

Baha'i faith celebrates Work World Religion Day

The Baha'i communities of Greater Boston are preparing to observe the 26th anniversary of World Religion Day, Sunday, Jan. 19.

World Religion Day is sponsored by the United States Baha'i community, and proclaims the oneness of all the great religions, emphasizing that religion is the motivating force that will eventually prompty the establishment of peace upon the planet.

The event is now celebrated in the more than 5,000 communities throughout the country where Baha'is currently reside.

More than a century ago, Baha'u'llah, the Prophet-Founder osf the Baha'i Faith established the central principle of His religion - the oneness of mankind. He taught that religious truth has been revealed progressively since the beginning of time, and that His was the most recent in the series of never-ending divine revelations.

The Baha'i Faith originated in Persia in 1844. It now has followers in more than 300 nations and territories of the world. The World Center of the Baha'i Faith is located on Mount Carmel, in Haifa, Israel.

New mothers can COPE

Coping with the Overall Pregnancy Experiencebefore and after childbirth, is the name of an organization in Newton and other communities in the greater Boston area which provides support groups for pregnant women or women who recently had babies.

COPE, a non-profit, non-political organization, provides women with the opportunity to share experiences with others and discuss subjects of mutual interest and concern. Frequently discussed topics are physical and emotional aspects of pregnancy, post-partum adjustment and techniques of baby care. Meetings also provide the opportunity to meet others and work out solutions to common problems. COPE is not only for first time mothers since every pregnancy is different and each baby means new adjustments for the family. This service responds to the needs of many suburban women transplanted to a new area, far from family and friends. new mothers...2

Groups include up to eight women and a trained coordinator. Meetings are held weekly in the coordinators home and nominal fees are charged. COPE was founded by Maureen Turner, a registered nurse and group psychotherapist. In Boston, COPE support groups are available for women who have had abortions. For further information, contact Debby Beck, 965-0020 (n (Newton) or Maureen Turner, 357-5588 (Boston-main office).

The Hyde School Outgrown Shop, 68 Lincoln St., Newton Highlands, will hold a half-price sale of winter goods on Tuesday, Jan. 21 and a rummage sale on Tuesday, Jan. 28. The shop is open Tuesday mornings from 9 to 12 and handles children's clothes, adult clothes, skates ski boots and books.

Manned by volunteer workers, the shop helps raise funds for the PTA to be used for creative arts projects, educational equipment and school library expenses.

This year's coordinator is Mrs. Marianne Talis. Mrs. Kate Bowman and Mrs. Mary English are both cashiers. Ihe room mothers at Hyde School are responsible for scheduling mothers to help each week. The co-chairwomen are Mrs. Joyce McLaurin and Mrs. Jean Royster

Reception to be held

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Goldfarb of Newtonville will hold a reception at their home on Sunday, Jan. 19 at 8 p.m. in honor of the new members of Temple Sinai. Mr. Goldfarb is currently serving his third year as president of the Brookline temple.

FRANKLIN SIGNS

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — William Franklin, a 6-8 forward from Virginia, Tuesday signed an American Basketball Association contract to become the 11th man on the San Antonio Spurs roster.

He averaged 7.5 points and four rebounds for the Virginia Squires during 1972-73.

During the 1973 fall camp, Franklin tried out with the NBA Milwaukee Bucks and this past September he was the last player cut by the Denver Nuggets.

SMITH SENT BACK

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) — The Indianapolis Racers of the World Hockey Association Tuesday sent left wing Ross Smith back to Mohawk Valley of the North American League to give him more playing time.

Smith, 21, was called up to the Racers last November, but has seen limited action.

Jr. Scouts Investiture

Troop 607 of West Newton held a candle light investiture ceremony for five new girls who have been admitted into the troop after four weeks of scouting. The girls, who received their pins from their mothers, are Elizabeth Annese, Rina Bonadio, Deborah DeNucci, Laura LaCroix and Lisa MacInnis.

New patrol leaders were welcomed by Leader, Mrs. Lynne Baldi and given their Patrol Cords. They are Andrea Fialkosly, Michelle Lyttle, Evelyn Tsamtsouris and Lori Medaglia.

A skit on manners was presented by Allison Ross and Kate Cunning. Instead of dues, the girls purchased canned goods which they assembled into a basket and presented to Miss Henrietta Brebbia, Davis School principal. The basket was given to the needy as a holiday gift.

YMCA offers new program

The Newton YMCA announces that plans have been made to begin an "Indian Princess" program for fathers and their daughters in kindergarten through third grade.

Following on the heels of the highly successful Indian Guides program begun this fall for fathers and sons, the Indian Princess program will kick off with five rallies in late January. During February "tribes" of 12 to 16 fathers and daughters will be formed with their slogan "Friends Always." At twice-monthly meetings the participants tell stories, play games, work on crafts projects, and enjoy refreshments. Special activities such as a camping weekend at the "Y's" Camp Day on Lake Quacumquasett are also planned.

Currently, 70 boys are involved in the Indian Guides program, which involves some 11 tribes in Newton, Weston, Wayland and Waltham. An induction ceremony at the "Y" property in Wayland, Camp Chickami, took place in December at which the boys received their membership feather.

"Chiefs", the lay leaders heading each tribe, in the Indian Guides program are: Fred Bell (West Newton), Tom Keaveny (Newton), Chuck Minichello (Newton Centre), Max Berman (Newton), Norm Kaufman (West Newton), Don Quinn (West Newton), Bill Hughes (Newton), John Nahigian (Weston), Bob Mosher (Weston), John Gregorian (Wayland), and Joe DeMarco (Waltham).

Dates and locations of Indian Princess rallies are Jan. 21, Franklin School; Jan. 22, Beethoven School; Jan. 23, Ward School; Jan. 24, Horace Mann School; and Jan. 27, Woodland School (Weston). All rallies begin at 7:30 p.m.

For further information about Indian Princesses or Indian Guides call Jack Haston at 244-6050.

OUR SPECIALS ARE REALLY SPECIAL
. . . BECAUSE YOU CAN FIND THEM

A recent survey by the City of Boston Consumer Council found that only CAPITOL and Purity Supreme had 100% of their advertised specials available and priced correctly. Other stores surveyed (A&P, Star, Liberty Markets, Stop & Shop and First National) had from 9% to 30% of their specials either unavailable or mispriced. At CAPITOL our Famous Name Brand sale items are always well displayed. We will continue to do our very best to assure an adaquate supply of all sale items. Sometimes we goof or the sale exceeds our expectations. If we are sold out of an advertised sale item, ask for a rain check.

N-W Hospital camera scans full skeleton

A camera which can scan the entire skeleton and produce one image on a single film has recently been installed in the radiology department of Newton-Wellesley Hospital.

The nuclear medicine camera is called an Anger camera, a device which enables the study of body organs by utilizing small quantities of radioactive material.

The total area scan component has a specially constructed table on which the patient lies during the procedure. Positioned above the patient is the Anger camera which moves back and forth along the entire length of the body, producing one image.

The image is recorded on either a Polaroid opaque or a 5x7 transparency.

This complete image allows the doctor to better interpret skeletal abnormalities. The total area scan will be used for bone scans of malignant and benign conditions.

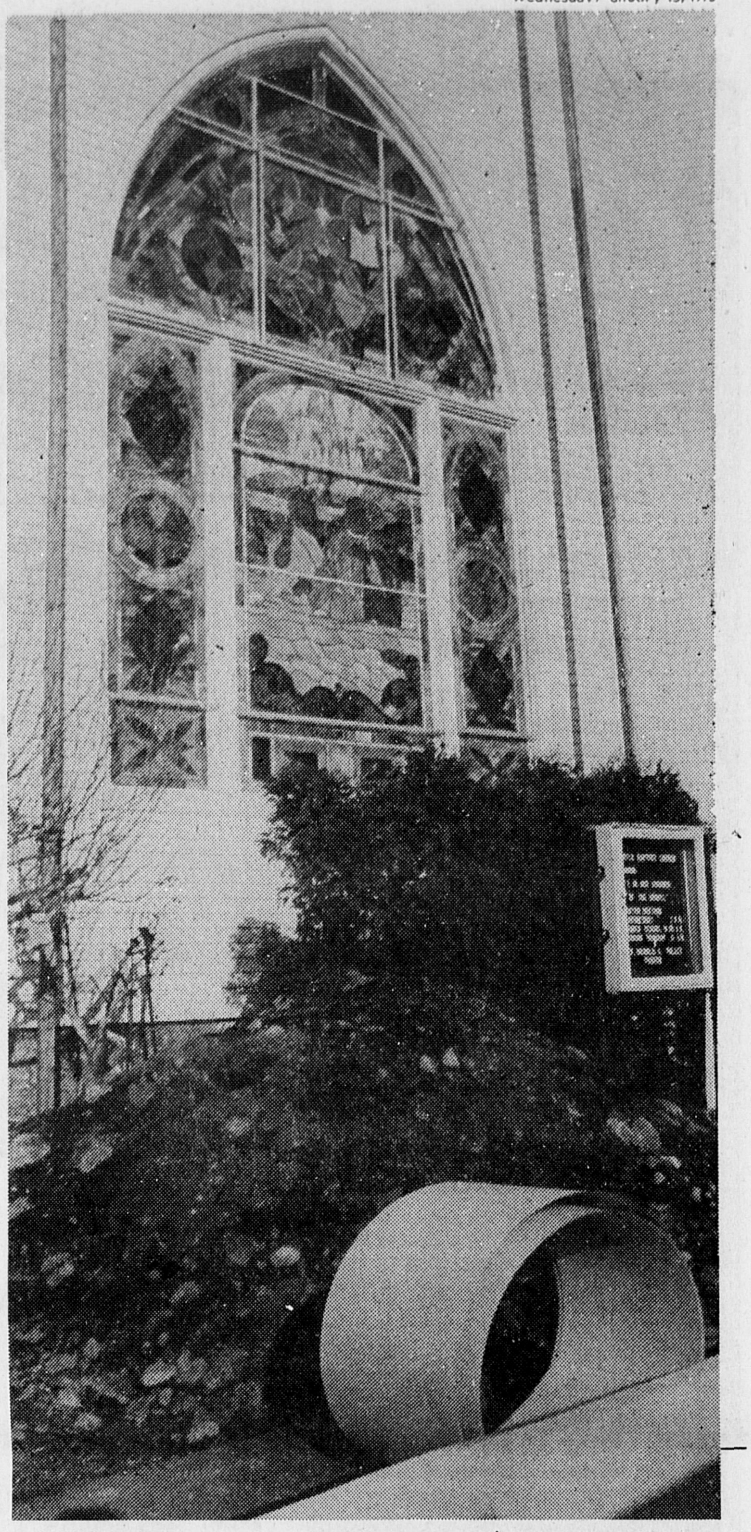
The camera's data handling system permits images of organs to be recorded, stored, retrieved, and manipulated to produce a more meaningful image.

The data handling system consists of a computer with magnetic tape and memory, and television monitors provide a means of displaying the particular organ being studied.

This is the second Anger camera purchased by the hospital. Since the first one was acquired in 1967, the volume of nuclear medicine scans performed by the radiology department has grown so rapidly that a second Anger camera was necessary.

More sophisticated than the first Anger camera, the new device offers increased resolution and efficiency as well as greater overall capability.

The new camera will permit both an expansion in the volume of work as well as the performance of studies not possible before.



Myrtle Baptist Church in West Newton has embarked on a large-scale renovation program. Improvements to the 100-year-old building will include new classrooms, an overhaul of the plumbing and heating systems, and new white aluminum siding for the exterior. Myrtle Baptist Church celebrated its centennial last year.

Registration begins at college

Registration for evening classes at Newton Junior College will be Wednesday, Jan. 22, from 5 to 8 p.m., at College Hall, Washington Park, Newtonville. Late registrations will be accepted Jan. 28-30.

These evening courses are planned for residents of the community of all ages who desire to study specific subjects at the college, for those who wish to pursue the associate degree programs, and for individuals or groups who require special programs of courses to meet educational needs.

Admission is open to men and women, young and older adults (with a minimum of previous educational experience) on a full- or part-time basis - who wish to begin or resume the college experience at any time during the day or evening hours.

For those who wish to pursue a degree, credit by examination for appropriate life experience may be granted to qualified applicants.

The evening courses are from 6:30 to 9:20 p.m., and each course meets once a week. Those offered this semester are: Business Law, Marketing I, English Composition II, English Literature, Art History and Appreciation, Art of Film, Statistics, Psychology of Personality, Psychology of Abnormal Behavior, Physical Science, Foundations of Health, General Biology, American Government, and Social Problems.

Courses offered in the late afternoon, from 3:30 to 4:20 p.m., are English Composition II, General Chemistry, and General Chemistry Laboratory (2:30 to 5:20 p.m.). The General Biology Laboratory will be offered from 4:30 to 6:20 p.m.

The faculty for the evening session consists of members of the regular College faculty, lecturers from neighboring colleges and universities, and consultants in various fields.

The application fee is $10, and tuition is $25 per semester hour. All courses carry three semester hours credit; laboratory courses carry an additional hour.

For more information, call the college at 969-9570.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

The growth of City Bank during the 18 years since its inception has been a source of pride to all of us. Our aggregate loans during this entire period amounted to approximately $1,750,000,000 and our loss ratio has been one of the lowest in the banking business. Our capital accounts including reserves have grown from $1,000,000 to $14,326,590 and our total assets have grown from $7,218,573 (our first year in business) to $102,988,600 for the year ended December 31, 1974. Our capital growth during this entire period has been attributable to retained earnings, with the exception of $240,000 realized in 1961 from the sale of 10,000 shares of capital stock.

Our record of dividend payments is also exceptional. In 1961 there was a 10 for 1 stock split plus a 10% stock dividend. In 1962 and 1963 there were cash dividends. In 1964 there was a 5% stock dividend. In 1965 there was a 100% stock dividend. In 1966 there was a 5% stock dividend. In 1968 there was a 5% stock dividend. In 1969 there was a 100% stock dividend. In 1970 there was a 5% stock dividend. In 1971 there was a 5% stock dividend. In 1972 there was a total cash dividend of 70c per share. In 1973 there was a total cash dividend of 73c per share. In 1974 there was a total cash dividend of 94c per share. And the first cash dividend of 50c per share has already been declared for payment in January 1975.

Our profit margin led the the field of New England's 50 largest banks (New England Bank Stock Annual Report published by John J. Ryan & Company, Investment Bankers, Newark, New Jersey).

Our depositors and customers did not lose interest or confidence in their bank because City Bank is one of the highest capitalized banks in the country, with stockholders' equity in excess of 15% of deposits.

Our officers and employees have done a remarkable job, and to show our appreciation we awarded two cost-of-living salary bonuses to all employees in 1974.

Despite the generally gloomy economic predictions for 1975, we look forward to meeting future challenges with great faith and enthusiasm, and despite the uncertainties which may lie ahead, we are confident that the City Bank team will produce outstanding results for its customers, its shareholders, and the community as a whole.

Sasahara chosen medical service chief

Dr. Arthur A. Sasahara, of West Newton, has been appointed professor of medicine at the West Roxbury Veterens Administration Hospital (WRVAH) where he will serve simultaneouely as chief of the medical service.

His appointments were announced by Dr. Robert H. Ebert, dean of the faculty of medicine at Harvard, and John V. Sheehan, acting director of WRVAH.

The WRVAH is a Harvard teaching hospital specializing in cardiology, open heart surgery, and acute spinal cord injury treatment.

Dr. Sasahara, a world authority on pulmonnary embolic disease, has been affiliated with the Harvard Medical School since 1956 and with the WRVAH since 1960.

He was named chief of the hospital's cardio-pulmonary section and associate chief of staff for research and education in 1971.

Dr. Sasahara was a pioneer in studies of the use of Urokinase, a non-toxic urine enzyme with the ability to dissolve blood clots in the lung.

He was aslo instrumental in demonstrationg the superiority of direct current of over alternating current in the control of life-threatening irregularities in heart rhythms.

A native of Del Rey, Calif., Dr. Sasahara received an A.B. degree from Oberlin College and an M.D. degree from the Case Western Reserve School of Medicine.

He interned on the Tufts Medical Service at Boston City Hospital and served as assistant resident in medicine at Massachusetts General Hospital.

In 1959-60 he was a senior resident in medicine at the Yale Medical Center.

From 1971 to 1973,Dr. Dr. Sasahara served as president of the Greater Boston Chapter of the Massachsusetts Heart Association.

Dr. Sasahara is a member of many medical societies and has served numerous medical publications in various editorial, reviewing, and writing positions.

College seeks sponsors for law, medical interns

The secretarial science department of Middlesex Community College in Bedford announces that its internship program for legal and medical degree programs will begin in February and run through the end of May.

The internship consists of a work experience program in which the students spend a minimum of seven hours each week in an office environment related to their major field of study.

This internship is a vital part of each student's program conducted during the last semester of the sophomore year.

It provides students with one-the-job training and an opportunity to relate classroom learning with actual practice in a supervised situation before graduation.

Constructive critical evaluation by the employer, as well as the coordinator, provides the students with an important performance analysis and serves as a base for their grade.

The college is seeking the cooperation of professionals in the medical and legal fields as employers. Anyone interested in participating in this internship program can contact Anne T. Kostorizos for the medical internship and Margaret M. Cormier for the legal internship They may be reached at 617-275-8910, Extension 274, after Jan. 22, 1975.

Hospital picks new librarian

OPERATION AWARE, 1975:

A&P CUTS FOOD PRICES

1. PRICE CUTS ON STAPLES.

A&P starts the New Year by cutting the price on A&P Brands of staples such as Dry Milk, Beans, Peanut Butter, Mayonnaise, Luncheon Meat, Fish Sticks, Spaghetti, Macaroni, Spaghetti Sauce, Cheese Slices, Frozen Shoestring Potatoes and other items that are important to a family's diet. So now you can get meaningful savings on many frequently purchased items.

2. WEEKLY SPECIALS TOO... IN ALL DEPARTMENTS.

Outstanding weekly specials to include meat, fresh fruits and vegetables and grocery items. And when A&P saves you money on meat, that really means something. Because at A&P, you know you're always getting fully matured meat that's cut, trimmed and priced for value. Take our beef, for instance. We sell only one quality of beef at A&P. And it's backed by our unconditional money-back guarantee and our Butcher's Pledge. That's the A&P Butcher's promise to always pack the better side of every cut down. So if you like what you see in the store, you'll love what you see at home.

3. AWARE LIST CONTINUES.

We're continuing our Early Warning System against price increases: The Aware List. Every week we will voluntarily post a list of price increases, such as those received from manufacturers, a full seven days before we actually change our price. That gives you one week to purchase at the old price, subject, of course, to product availability. You'll also find "Be Aware" shelf tags on many frequently purchased items with the day of the price increase right on the tag. Of course, the Aware List won't include perishables like meat, eggs or fresh fruit and vegetables, where markets fluctuate daily; items controlled by law; or advertised specials.

4. CONSUMER PROTECTION POLICY.

We're of course continuing our committment to making you an Aware Shopper by reminding you of what every A&P store owes you and by informing you of ways to get the most for your money. Look for the signs in A&P stores spelling out all the protection A&P gives you: 1. Guaranteed Satisfaction. 2. Exceptional Value. 3. Low Price with Absolutely No Compromise in Quality. 4. Rain Check Product Availability. 5. Product Freshness Through Open Dating. 6. Consumer Information. 7. Courteous Service. 8. Cleanliness. 9. Safe and Healthy Products. 10. Shopping Convenience. 11. The Butcher's Pledge. 12. Variety of Choice and 13. People to People Communication.

A&P WE OWE YOU MORE THAN JUST FOOD.

Tiger sextet bombs Rindge

Karem scores hat trick in 10-0 win

By RON MACLEAN
Sports Correspondent

NEWTON—Tiger center Bob Karem scored three goals and two assists to lead the Tigers over winless Rindge Tech, 10-0 on Saturday.

The game was never in doubt as winger Dave Solomon opened the scoring with only seven seconds gone on the first shot of the game. Solomon's backhander from five feet out beat goalie Bob Kinneally.

John Carey banged one home at 1:58 and one knew that the romp was on. Other first period goals went to Gus Quaranto, Bob Karem, Solomon and Doug Jessup, as the Tigers 8 scored on 6 of 16 first period shots, while Newton goalie Ken Hagerstrom was only tested six times.

The trend continued in the second period as Bob Karem scored at 7:14 from Ray Valente, and then scored again six minutes later. The final goal of the period was scored by Gus Quaranto at 13:30 with an assist to Mike Tocci. Tim Dunn added a third period goal to make the final score 10-0.

A good indication of the game's momentum is shown in the fact that Newton had more goals than Rindge had shots in the first two periods, 9-8. The Tigers slammed 53 shots at Tech while Rindge could only manage 15 at Hagerstrom and third period goalie Joe Steele.

Aside from Karem's scoring, Dave Solomon and Gus Quaranto each added three points on two goals and one assist, and 9 out of the ten Tiger forwards had at least one point.

All in all, a very pleasing gam: for the Tigers.

BROCKTON WINS

A barrage of shots by Brockton High paid off in a 5 goal second period as the Boxers waltzed to a 7-1 victory over the not-too-pleased Tigers last Wednes day.
The only goal in a closely played first period came at 9:22 when defenseman Paul Devin gave Brock ton the lead on a drive from the point. Tiger goalie Joe Steele played well in the first period, as the Boxers outshot Newton 17-5.
Brockton wasted no time in the middle period, as senior defenseman Jay Goldstein scored from Bill McGaffigan at 1:12. Center Jim Tuite and winger
Brian Moynigan added goals to make it 4-0 and then right wing Al Mazeiko took over with the first of his three goals at 12:05 and hit again to make it 6-0 less than one minute later.
Newton winger Gus Quaranto scored the Tiger's only goal at 3:43 of the third period, from Mike Tocci and Rick Cavanaugh. Mazieko ended the scoring for Brockton at 5:52.

Brockton fired 45 shots at Steele, while the Tigers managed 27 at Boxer goalie Brian Puliafico.

The two games brought Newton's record to 2-4-1. The Tigers were to play Quincy at Boston College on Tuesday and travel to New York for a Jan. 18 date at West Point.

Patriots drop South

By BRUCE BOYNICK
'Sports Correspondent

NEWTON — The Newton South Lions lost their fourth game in a row by bowing to the league leading Concord-Carlisle Patriots, 58-47, on Friday. The Lions, dismal inhabitants of the Dual County League doldrums, now have a 1-7 record.

For a while it appeared that hte Lions might upset the touted Patriots. Concord, noticeably weakened by the absence of injured star center, Stan Smith, fell behind early, and South led 9-6 with 3:34 left in the first quarter. But the Patriots came back on the strength of some strong shooting and the Lions trailed 18-15 after a quarter of play.

The torrid Concord shooting continued and South trailed 25-17 with 3:18 remaining in the half and 31-21 at intermission.

South's lack of penetration, combined with a tenacious Patriot defense, enabled Concord to put the game out of reach at 47-31 with 5:25 remaining. The Newton South "garbage time" offense helped make the final score respectable.

The Lions' next opponent will be Wayland, this Friday at Wayland

Weymouth over North

NEWTON—The Newton North basketba-l team stood tied with Weymouth South at 45 apiece through the third period last week but a big fourth quarter surge by the Wildcats of South gave them a 66-54 win over the Tigers.

South piled up 21 points in the final frame and held Newton to just 9 enroute to the victory. The game had been even up until that point, with Newton holding a one point lead at halftime 30-29, after trailing by two at the end of the first quarter.

The Newton scoring came from Williams with 13, Ryan with 14 and Grant with 12, while Weymouth had big nights from Nadded with 18, d+Dorrell with 18, and Whitham with 13.

Newton South six drops two games

By MARK COOPER
Sports Correspondent

It was a bad 8 week for the Newton South hockey team as the Lions dropped two more games, to Westwood High n.-1 and Wayland High 5-2, and saw their Dual County League record tumble to 2-6-0.

These defeats were especially costly to South because neither one of these squads appeared to be as strong "on paper" as the Lions are. Yet while South has continued to lose both the Wayland and Westwood sextets have inproved tremendously throughout the season.

Anticipating victory, the Lions were in for a rude shock as they were outshot, outhustled, and outplayed by an inspired Westwood squad. Westwood, the surprise team of the league this year with a 4-2-1 record scored the opening goal of the game at 7:56 of the first period. Westwood continued to apply pressure on goalie Dave 8 Satter throughout the remainder of the first period and into the second stanza, yet they could not break the game open.

Newton South finally capitilized on one of their few real good opportunities of the game when junior Don Ferrari rapped home a pass from center Jim Hart. South managed to hold Westwood off the scoreboard for the rest of the second period.

As the third period opened the Lions needed to mount some kind of an offense in order to pull ahead. Yet early in the period, costly penalties destroyed any chance South had when Westwood put two quick power play goals by Dave Satter. "All was over but the shouting" when Westwood still maintaining a wide territorial edge poked a fourth insurance goal into the South net. South was finished and the final shot total revealed that Westwood could have, and probably should have, won the game by a much larger margin.

WAYLAND WINS

As a lack of offense continued to plague Newton South the Lions prepared to do battle versus their opening game foe, Wayland High School. The Lions won that contest 3-1 and the victory was attributed by Coach McPhee to "hustle and determination". This game, however, lacked those winning qualities as the Lions "came out snoring" and quickly fell behind to a fired up Wayland squad. Andy Falvey, a fine right winger for the Warriors, notched the opening goal of the game on a shot from 25 feet out. Later in the first period Wayland tallied on the power play and upped their lead to 2-0. Not that scoring two goals is unsurmountable but this years Lions squad has found it to be nothing less than a monumental task. Faced with the possibility of falling three goals behind South was determined to get back into the game.

As the second period commenced both teams had numerous scoring opportunities that were continuously thwarted by the opposing goalies. Jeff Menelly, the Wayland netminder especially came up with some superb saves. Yet for the second game in a row, penalties led to the downfall of Newton South. Two foolish penalties and a misconduct put South down two men and Wayland cashed in on this tremendous scoring opportunity. Jeff Melaneon, a pint-sized sophomore, beat Satter from in close and Wayland now had a very comfortable 3-0 lead. Although the second period ended without anymore scoring Wayland began to dominate the Lions, just as South had dominated the Warriors in the opening contest.

In between periods McPhee blasted his team with the hopes that his tongue lashing would "wake the squad up." It did just that, as Newton South came out flying and took the play right away from Wayland. A goal by Donny Ferrari, assisted by Brian Cain, put South on the scoreboard and got the Lions back into the game with 11:52 remaining.

Though South continued its constant offensive pressure, defensive lapse at 7.20 led to the Warriors' fourth goal. Andy Falvey scored as he stole the puck from a South defenseman, skated in front of the net, and jammed the puck underneath the left pad of goalie Dave Satter. This goal all but ruined South although Brian Cain tipped home a Joe Donlon shot with only 3:50 left to play. Yet the Warriors were not to be denied as they iced the game with their fifth goal of the contest, only seconds later.

Newton South's upcoming games include tilts with Concord-Carlisle and Bedford Saturday night at the Assabet Valley Rink. All are invited to attend.

South grapplers win two; top North 32-16

By HOWIE APPELSTEIN
Sports Correspondent

NEWTON — The Newton South wrestling team remained unbeaten this past week with a very easy win over Lincoln-Sudbury and a very difficult triumph over arch-rival Newton North.

Last Wednesday evening the Lions had little trouble in destroying Lincold as they won by an overwhelming score of 44 to 3.

Chuck Dippo got South into the lead as he decisioned his opponent 12-2, also earning a point for a superior decision. Undefeated Louis MacDonald added to South's advantage when he outpointed his foe at 107 lbs. by a 10-4 score.

Bobby Paisner made it three in a row when he whipped his counterpart at 114 lbs. by an 11-5 score. Gary Fireman continued the pattern of Newton South decisions by outclassing his man 9-6. Frank Tarantino at 128 lbs. had a tough time but he just managed to squeak out a 7-6 decision.

Co-captain Peter Nathanson registered the first pin as he pressed his man in only one minute and nine seconds. Howie Appelstein at 140 earned a superior decision as he trampled his foe by a 15-2 count. Craig Sowsy at 147 lbs. looked very good in beating his man by a 6-1 score.

Aaron Moynahan pinned his foe in the second round, making the score Newton South 35, Lincoln-Sudbury 0. The hapless Lincoln team averted a shutout when their man at 167 lbs. won in a close match over Keith Washington, 6-4.

Peter Maples ran into his toughest opponent of the year at 187 lbs. but he remained undefeated, edging his man by a 4-2 score.

Heavyweight Scott Groper needed only 58 seconds to pin his foe and end tne very one-sided match.

Newton North defeated

On Friday evening the Newton South gymnasium was packed for the great rivalry between Newton South and Newton North.

In an extremely exciting match, the Lions prevailed as they defeated North for the third straight year, 32-16.

North's Mark Coakly fought back from a 3-0 deficit to decision Chuck Dippo at 100 lbs., 6-3. South evened the match at 107 lbs. as Louis MacDonald won over North's Mike Annesi by a 5-2 score

Bobby Paisner gave his North opponent, Paul Siegenthaler, a physical beating and easily won his match, 15-0. Paisner had Siegenthaler on his back for most of the match but he just could not pin him.

North got the lead right back when Steve Rosen pinned Mike Thomas midway through the second period. The Tigers lead increased to six points as Doug Pepper got a superior decision by whipping Bruce Arafe by eleven points.

At 134 it was the battle of the undefeated captains. Both Peter Nathanson from South and Tony Pellegrini of North came into the match with no losees. At the end of two periods there was no score. Nathanson broke the ice when he scored a two point reversal early in the third period. That is the way the match ended with Nathanson winning by a 2-0 margin. Nathanson said after the match that Pellegrini, who played middle guard on North's football team, was the strongest man he had ever wrestled.

Howie Appelstein pulled the Lions into a tie at 13-13 when he decisioned Steve Parker by a 7-0 score. South's Craig Sousy put the Lions back into the lead when he defeated John Monahan at 147 lbs., 2-1.

North's Austin Lampert deadlocked the match again when he decisioned Barry Horowitz at 157 lbs., 5-2. Aaron Moynahan usually wrestles at 157 but Coach Aredis Kojoyian used his judgment and put Moynahan up to 167. The strategy paid off as Moynahan gave South the lead for good when he won on a superior decision over Dave Barenberg, 19-4.

Lion co-captain Peter Maples iced the match for the Lions when he pinned David Keefe in the second period. Scott Groper pinned North heavyweight Don Morrell making the final score South 32, North 16.

The Tigers received an awful lot of tough breaks two days prior to the match. Co-captain Bruce McNulty, who wrestles at 157 lbs., injured his leg and was unable to participate. Fortunately, McNulty will be able to wrestle by next week.

For Newton South, Coach Aredis Kojoyian had a very

Commentary

Pepper takes a look at last year

Looking back, it seems 1974 wasn't much of a year, sports-wise or any-wise. Certainly good things happened, we got rid of Agnew and Nixon, but Bowie Kuhn, Clarence Cempbell and Gerald Ford are still here. Not to mention Gary Davidson who seems to be continually reappearing to lose the money of others, and in the process bore everyone.

The most publicized sports event of '74 was Henry Aaron's 715th home run, a momentous occasion to be sure, but nonetheless lacking in the glamour one would normally attach to the breaking of what some considered the most invulnerable of all sports records. The simple facts are that Hank Aaron is not a colorful man, neither the Babe's peer on or off the diamond. Until quite recently I considered Aaron to be, at best, semi-literate, however, whether under tutelege or by increasing public exposure, there's no question that his speaking demeanor has vastly improved end Aaron has emerged as a highly personable, extremely likeable man; but electrifying he is not and if I ever buy a Magnavox it will have nothing to do with "Bad Henry," as Sandy Koufax fearfully called him.

To me it is unfortunate that a man who has striven for dignity all his life, would let himself end his magnificent career in the most undignified of all positions, the designated hitter.

Other top baseball stories in '74 include the obvious, such as the A's winning the series, Lou Brock, and Catfish Hunter unfettering his shackles and breaking away from the most despicable of all owners, Charlie Zero Finley; but almost as noteworthy are the things that didn't transpifre. Some squabbling over the insignificant "Mini Hammer" John Milner caused one of the biggest trades in years, Don Sutton for Tom Seaver to fall through at the last moment.

The Dodgers also turned down the A's offer of Reggie Jeckson for either Sutton or Steve Garvey. If Jackson has overestimated himself at least the smart baseball people haven't. For a team that looked as flat and inept as the Red Sox did at the end of the season, not making a trade would seem to be dangerous thinking, particularly when one heard the name of Cincinatti's "Big Bopper" Tony Perez bandied about. Possibly, Johnny Bench people around here don't know just how good Perez is, but without question he is one of the best hitters in baseball.

So much for the national pasttime. Professional tennis emerged as an increasingly visable and entertaining sport, with Americans Jimmy Connors and Chris Evert being justifiably ranked No. 1 in the world. True, the "Queen of the Hop" Chris Evert has something to learn about fast surfaces, grass in particular, but as the saying goes, 'she has time.' Dollar for dollar I -ind watching Connors probably the most entertaining spectacle in sport today. His triumph, along with then-fiance Evert, at Wimbledon, which was for some people the most nauseating sports moment of '7n., was for me probably the most enjoyable. With the emergence of great young players like Vilas, Borg, Connors, Stockton and Tanner the brand of tennis is continually improving, and unlike other sports the game of8tennis has nowhere to go but up. If only World Team Tennis would go away.

Of course I would be remiss in recounting '74 if I didn't mention the heavyweight fiasco in Zaire. I've been to Las Vegas twice and Lewiston, Maine, once for a total of about three minutes of fighting action and never have I regretted these trips. I was going to be damned, though, if I was about to waste my time and trek down to Boston Garden to watch the most inflated sports event in memory. It seems to me that there has to be a limit to the number of "fights of the century" that occur within a couple of years. Ali may well be the greatest but we should not forget that this is the same man who tried to quit in his first Liston fight, having to be forcdibly shoved back into the ring, the same man who won a decision over Doug Jones in Madison Square Garden when almost every impartial observer had Jones winning; and, the same man who suddenly had his opponent, Billy Daniels, "retire" in the middle of a fight where Ali, then Clay, was getting soundly thrashed. One also should not forget that in order to get action on the fight, bookies let bettors pick either the first seven or the last seven rounds for the fight to end with the eighth round being a "push" in which case the bookies claimed the vigorish or 10 per cent. The fight went eight. Just because there are no cigar smoking "Blinkie B8illermo" types in evidence does not meen that the extensive tenacles of organized crime are still not prevalent in the fight game. I like to think boxing is clean but sometimes there seems to be just a few too many miracles. Since no figures have been released I suspect that the promoters took a bath, which would seem justified in face of the absurdity of having the fight in Zaire; a country Foreman erroneously called the cradle of freedom considering Mobuto runs things like a virtual dictatorship.

Some of the other unexpected and expected highlights of '74 included Miami's ho hum Super Bowl victory, Fats Esposito's continued pathetic play off play, and the Celtics' victory over the Bucks in seven games. Chuck Fairbanks and the Patriots provided an exciting injury-riddled season, which should be good cause for optimism in the very near future.

What with the prospect of no Snake Canyon jump, no WFL, no WHA, and, keeping my fingers crossed, no Charlie Finley, 1975 can only be better. If only Gerald Ford would jump leagues, he clearly doesn't belong in the Biggies.

North swimmers top Northeast

By RICK GORDON
Sports Correspondent

NEWTON — Showing no after-effects of a solid defeat by Brockton nor a season's opening two point loss to Medford, the Newton North swim team captured its first win, a 94-77 victory over Northeast Regional Tech.

A sweep of the first three places in the 100 yard freestyle turned the tide and helped carry the Tigers to an impressive 17 point triumph.

The team started slow, trailing 8-6 after the 200 yard medley relay. Dave Rosenthal, Alex Schipira, Robert Hershfield and John Volante captured a second for Newton in that event.

First, third and fifth place finishes in the 200 yard freestyle gave Newton a short-lived two point edge, as Steve Schaefer won the race by seven-tenths of a second.

Jeff McGaw, in fourth, topped Newton's individual medley swimmers as Charlie Wu was disqualified. Scott Pohlman and Ed Devine wound up second and third in the 50 yard freestyle leaving Newton eleven points down at 36-25.

Bob Bontempo and Ken Freedberg dove Newton two points closer with a first and third respectively. In the butterfly, John Wish and Hershfield cut the gap two more points, also with a first and a third.

The clean sweep of the 100 freestyle by Pohlman, Devine and Volante regained the lead for Newton and they coasted from there.

Dave Bagley and Schaefer finished one-two in the 500 yard freestyle. Steve Breithkruez earned a second in the backstroke, and Bill Zanj and Schipira swam to first and third place finishes in the breaststroke.

In the final event Volante, Paul Syphers, Wish and Pohlman trimmed the field for a first in the freestyle relay.

Last year the Tigers lost to the same school by eleven. This meet continued to show the gradual improvement of the second year Newton North swimmers.

In the season's second contest the Tigers were overwhelmed by a superior Brockton team which hasn't lost a home meet in five years.

Newton's best finishers were firsts by Pohlman in the 50 and 100 yard freestyles and by Breithkruez in the backstroke. Zanj, Wish and Devine had individual second place showings in the 103-68 defeat.

Newton lost their first meet of the season, in late December, by a tight two points to Medford.

The Tigers swim next at home against Brookline, that meet will be on Tuesday.

South gymnasts beat Wakefield

By DAVID GORDONSTEIN
Sports Correspondent

NEWTON — Newton South's gymnastic team won their second meet of the season by whipping Wakefield with a final score of South 52.9, Wakefield 39.75.

The first event was the floor exercises. Newton South started off well by placing first thanks to Bob Clark, who scored 2.7. Second and third were both taken by Wakefield. At the end of the first event, the score was Newton 4.4, Wakefield 6.0.

The next event was the side horse, with David Spielman grabbing first place with a 4.25. Second was taken by Wakefield and third was grabbed by South's Stu Rothman with a 1.55. In the second event, Newton South scored a total of 7.3 while Wakefield only received 4.8. At the end of the event, Newton had 11.7 points to Wakefield's 10.8.

In the last event of the first half, Wakefield took first in the high bar. Second was taken by South's Tad Baum with 2.2. Third was taken by Newton's Chris Cataldo. In this event, Newton gained 5.45 and Wakefield gained 5.6, bringing the halftime score to Newton South 17.15, Wakefield 16.4.

The second half started off with a bang. The first event of the half was the parallel bars. Newton took all three places: Ted Baum was first with 4.1; Dave Spielman, second with 3.25; and Bob Clark third. This put South into a five point lead. At the end of four events the score stood Newton 26.8, Wakefield 21.1.

Next was the long horse, with Bob Clark taking first with a 7.15. Mark Comerford came in second with a 6.75 and Wakefield took third. This pushed Newton's lead to nine points. Now the score was South 45.6, Wakefield 34.75.

The last event of the evening was the still rings. First place was taken by Tad Baum with a 3.05, second was taken by Dave Spielman with a 2.2, and third was taken by Wakefield. In this event, South gained 6.8 points and Wakefield gained 4.6 points, bringing Newton the win.

Bow to Natick

The gymnasts bowed to Natick on Tuesday by the score of 73.3 to 54.95. Harvey Stone of Newton took a third in the floor exercises, while Dave Spielman and Stone grabbed second and third, respectively in the side horse.

Newton could get no points in the high bar but Tad Baum managed a third in the parallel bars. In the long horse, Bob Clark took third place, but South was blanked in the still rings.

South is now 1-2-0 and meet North Quincy in a big match tomorrow.

North trackmen look for Suburban title

By RICH RAUM
Sports Correspondent

NEWTON — With the prospects of winning a Suburban League championship, many thought that the Newton North track team would take their next opponent, Quincy, too lightly. After all, they had defeated Brockton and tied Weymouth South, what could a weak team like Quincy possibly do?

The Tigers answered that question with an astounding 72-14 victory, upping their record to 4-0-1.

Sophomore Howard Pierce won his first mile of the year, and Rich Schilder came in a strong second to start things off for Newton.

Allan Yun also won his first race of the year, winning the 1000 in 2:37. Tony Morales placed second for the Tigers.

Remaining true to form Ken Tocci and Rich Raum finished 1-2 in the 600.

But Quincy finally broke that 1-2 pattern by winning the 300. Kevin Jones and Scott Scarpato grabbed second and third for Newton.

Quincy made it two victories in a row as they won the 2-mile. Duncan Scott, and Klukock placed second and third for the Tigers.

James Connoly and Joe Delorenzo put Newton back on the 1-2 track by taking first and second in the hurdles.

Newton prevailed in the dash, as Al Shocket, Hugh Caplan and Jeff Capla finished 1-2-3.

The Tigers picked up every possible point alloted in the field events.

John Cardillo, Pete Saravis, and Rich Salll swept the shot put, as Ricker, Randall and Martin swept the high jump.

The Tigers ended the tourney by winning the relay.

Relays

Next the Tigers travelled to Northeastern for the fourth annual Eastern Mass. coaches relays.

Unlike regular season competition the results of this meet do not affect the standings. The efforts are individual in which medals are awarded to the five top places in each event. There were four records broken (meet records) to exemplify the high level of competition.

"Even though we didn't place in any event we still gained valuable experience running against the best in the State," commented Coach Yaitaunes. James Connoly running in the hurdles took second in his first heat but was eliminated in the semi-finals.

Newton entered John Ricker in the high jump. He went out at 5'8".

Duncan Scott, ran the 2-mile for the Tigers. Surprisingly he was put into the seeded heat which was very unfair as the winner of that race ran a 9:37.

Ken Tocci won his heat in the 600. Trailing most of the race, Tocci made one last bid to pass the Brookline opponent and succeeded, just beating him to the tape.

Tony Morales ran second in his heat in the thousand.

Al Shocket, like Connoly, made it to the semi-finals only to be eliminated.

Newton's entry in the mile was Tom Hightower who finished second in his heat.

Newton's relay team Kwek Randall, Rich Raum, Tony Morales, and Ken Tocci ran to an exciting second in their heat.

Tom Cardillo was Newton's shot putter, and threw 46'6".

Records broken were in the 50 yard dash (5.4) the 600 (1:15:8), the mile (4:23:3) and the shot put (60 feet).

The Tigers get back to regular season competition Saturday against Cambridge Latin.

HARMON MAY LEAVE

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI) — Harmon Killebrew may leave Minnesota so that he can remain a player instead of being a player-coach, Twins President Calvin Griffith said Tuesday.

"I talked with Harmon on the phone and he said he may not be with us this next season," Griffith said. "I expect Harmon to call again saying yes or no."

Killebrew, who has been offered a player-coach contract by Minnesota, is negotiating with another American League club, apparently Texas, a Twins official said. The Twins have offered to release him if he can negotiate a better contract with another club.

Hunting safety to be featured at N.E. Sportsmen's show

Hunting has long been one of New England's most popular outdoor sports, and this year a special hunting safety exhibit will be featured at the annual New England Sportsmen's and Camping Show, Jan. 25-Feb. 2, at the Hynes Veterans Auditorium, Prudential Center in Boston.

The demonstration, a first of its kind for the winter sports spectacular, will be run under the auspices of the New Fngland Outdoor Writers Assn.

"For years we've been covering the Sportsmen's Show, but this is the first time we've had the opportunity to tually run an active display at the Show," said Harry Kenerson, a member of N.E.O.W.A.'s Board of Directors. "It ehould be interesting, since so many people in New England enjoy hunting."

According to Kenerson, states will pass out literature dealing with hunting safety. The large feature area will te manned by members o- the Massachusetts Division of Law Enforcement.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service will also furnish a special "Know Your Duck" board as part of the huntinc. safety feature area. The colorful display is a rotating drum with some 30 ducks mounted in a flying position. The hunter can then test his skill at identifying the varous kinds of ducks.

Other experts will be on hand in the area to answer questions that may arise pertaining to hunting safety.

There will also be a pictorial demonstration in the area depicting how the hunter's dollar has been spent to buy lands thet are used by the non hunting public.

"We're looking forward to this challenge," added Kenerson, "and hope to expand on this theme in future Sportsmen's and Camping Shows."

In addition to the innovative hunting safety exhibit, there will be daily "How, When, and Where To" fishing clincics conducted by some of the best known fishermen in New England.

Show hours for the Sportsmen's Show are 1 to 11 p.m. daily and 1 to 8 p.m., Sunday Feb. 2.

AMERICAN REVOLUTION BICENTENNIAL 1776-1976

Dressing for the great escape

Resort and cruise wear carry special significance for fashion-minded women because they are tip-offs of fabric and design trends sure to appear in the months ahead.

Anything new? Seventh Avenue would have you believe there is a whole new way to look in Spring 1975. Perhaps it's all due to the economy, but designers have agreed that clothes must do more and perform more than one role.

According to Pat Sandler, the look of the year for daytime starts with sensible separates that really know how to get along together. Fabrics and color combinations must be in total harmony such as washable pigskin textured leather in shades of parchment and alabaster. There is also easy care kidskin in wonderful combinations of butterscotch and black.

Shapes of the season include easy dresses that play best in two parts, comfortable chemises, and great pantsuits, still very much on the busy American scene.

For the most part, colors are subdued; you'll be seeing more wedgewood blue teamed with off-white, beige and cocoa. Peach is a new soft shade especially flattering when it combines with toast.

There will be more cotton coordinates this year: for example cotton poplin shirts and dresses that will match up with any number of cotton twill jackets, trousers — the entire ensemble requiring nothing more than a hat or colorful scarf . . . or the fun of wearing a gay chintz hooded poncho or overall cover-up.

Ronald Kolodzie of Concept VII has put together a collection of clothes for today . . . for people who know the functional needs of today and yet desire beautiful clothes. His designs are meant to fulfill many roles. Calling them "multiples" he offers the following:

SKIRTS: flared, straight and dirndl, in lengths covering the knee, dinner, ankle and floor length.

SHIRTS: with tucking, roll-up sleeves, shirts which double as jackets and blouses with cowled necks.

SWEATERS: in boucle knit and gentle angora wrap cardigans.

JACKETS: double-faced in two colors; kimono wraps, fisherman smocks, reversible quilted jackets and oversized kabuki evening coats.

DRESSES: pared down and flared chemises; tiered flounce dresses with or without a wide wrap belt. Colors of his collection include: peach, carrot, celery, wood-rose and lilac.

Handsome Bill Kaiserman, winner of the coveted Coty Award, says it's all quite simple.

"The concept of my spring collection for women is one of line — of the woman, of the clothing, to flow as one dissolving the barriers between body and clothing . . . like wind-blown hair that always falls back into place. It's comfort and natural ease — nothing contrived."

Kaiserman says forget the past and look at the new jumpsuit for '75 — the essence of comfort and lean line for almost everyone. Another of his loves, safari-inspired sportswear styled with casual versatility and his special touch in shirtsuits, incomparable cashmere-soft leathers suedes and the ultimate in rainwear. A joy to the hand as well as the eye are his featherweight coated cotton "slicker' cloth, Kenya safari cloth, cotton gabardine in a dazzling array of colors from jade, coral and amber to ivory and bone with earthy brick, khaki, sienna and umber.

Resort wear for men generally means clothes to really live in — an easy look that is casual and less restrictive. Clothes don't cling, they drape the shape. Colors this year are subdued with blues and browns in a strong runner-up position to white — the cool, clean, crisp whites.

There is also a revival of plaids and the new madras look. Geometrics, paisleys, prints and florals abound in men's shirts and slacks, however, the big trend has been towards texture and texture has to do with fabrics. Undeniably, today's mainstays are knits — because of their excellent performance. Since so much of resort wear has to do with travel, increased importance is given to easy care.

Designer Calvin Klein sees resort and spring as a time for women to take a step toward brighter colors and softer fabrics. Ever faithful to natural fibers, Calvin's "Kabuki" group is filled with bold colored cottons softened with the new calendered finish to give added shine. For example, Bougainvillea, inspired by the brilliant, intensely colored flower and coordinated with malachite green and accented with ebony, is used in the bandeau swimsuit covered with a striped cotton plissee wrap skirt.

In a group called "Sun and Sea," vivid turquoise, yellow and white combine to bring Calvin's love of clothes that are right for boating, tennis, the beach as well as spectator sports. He offers lots of terrycloth, cotton gabardine, and cotton knits.

After all the exhausting sunning, swimming and boating, flower scented evenings are surely meant for dancing. Printed chiffons in a melange of delectable colors such as carnation pink, wisteria and mimosa look as fresh and appealing as their flowering namesakes.

Calvin Klein's chalk slicker steamer coat worn over an ebony gingham long sleeve shirt tied low on hip, chalk knit camisole and ebony cotton jean pant.

Question: I enjoyed the lentil soup recipe you had in the paper recently, and I would like to offer a lentil soup I make quite often during the winter months. If you have a recipe for Eggplant Parmigiana I would appreciate it very much.

Mrs. C. A., Roslindale

Answer: Thank you for your recipe which follows and then your Eggplant Parmigiana!

SPANISH LENTIL SOUP

1 pound (2 and one-third cups) lentils
2 quarts (8 cups) water
1 pound Spanish or Italian sausage
2 cups chopped onion
Two-thirds cup sliced stuffed olives
2 cloves garlic, minced
2 teaspoons curry powder
1 teaspoon turmeric
1 teaspoon grated lemon peel

Add lentils and water to Dutch oven. Bring to boiling; reduce heat. Cover and simmer for 1 hour. Meanwhile, fry sausage until browned; drain on paper towels; cut sausage in bite-size pieces and add to lentils. Add remaining ingredients. Cover and simmer for 1 hour or until meat and lentils are done. Add salt and pepper to taste. If you desire a thinner soup, add hot water. Serves 8.

EGGPLANT PARMIGIANA

1 (1 lb) can tomatoes
1 cup olive oil
2 tablespoons tomato paste
1 teaspoon salt
One half teaspoon basil
1 eggplant
Salt
2 cups bread crumbs
Dash of pepper
One half cup grated Parmesan cheese
1 sprig parsley, minced
2 cloves garlic, minced
One half pound Mozzarella cheese

Mix tomatoes, 2 tablespoons of oil, tomato paste, 1 teaspoon of salt and basil in a saucepan. Simmer uncovered for 20 minutes. Stir. Cut eggplant in one half inch slices, sprinkle with salt. Place a plate over the eggplant, press down with weight. Let stand for 30 minutes; pat eggplant dry and cook in remaining oil. Combine bread crumbs, pepper, Parmesan cheese, parsley, and garlic. Mix thoroughly. Put a layer of eggplant in a baking dish, sprinkle with part of bread crumb mixture and top with a layer of tomato sauce. Repeat, ending with eggplant on top. Slice Mozzarella; arrange slices on eggplant. Bake in oven preheated to 375 degrees for 15 minutes until cheese is lightly brown and casserole heated through. Serves 6.

Question: I've never cooked with those funny looking Jerusalem artichokes. Can you offer a recipe and suggest how to serve it? I'm very curious.

Mrs. Y.T., Dedham

Answer: This is a recipe easily prepared and may be served cold as an appetizer or salad with chilled tomato juice or white wine.

JERUSALEM ARTICHOKES

1 pound Jerusalem artichokes
2 medium onions, cut in half lengthwise then finely sliced.
4 tablespoons salad or olive oil
1 medium carrot, sliced thin
1 tablespoon rice
Salt to taste
One half teaspoon sugar
2 cups water
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon crushed dried mint leaves (optional)

Peel artichokes and cut each into 2 or 3 chunks, depending on the size of the artichokes, and place in cold water. In a saucepan, saute onion in oil over medium heat for 5 minutes. Add carrots and saute the mixture another 3 minutes. Drain artichokes and add to the onion mixture. Add rice, salt, sugar and 2 cups hot water. Cover and cook over medium heat for about 40 minutes or until artichokes are tender. Remove from heat, cool in saucepan. Transfer to a serving platter, pour lemon juice over all and decorate with crushed mint leaves. Serve 4.

Question: I've just recently learned how to bake with yeast and I must say I've enjoyed the process, let alone the end result! My family now insists on homemade bread and I bake it every week. What I'd like to try now is a recipe for dinner rolls. Thank you very much.

H.N., Dedham

Answer: Have fun experimenting with the many shapes that dinner rolls take. For Parkerhouse rolls, divide dough in half. Roll each half into a one-fourth-inch thick circle. Cut into rounds with a biscuit cutter (2 and one half inch round); crease each round with a dull edge of knife to one side of center. Brush each round to within one fourth inch of the edges with melted margarine; fold larger side over smaller so edges just meet. Pinch well with fingers to seal and place on greased baking sheets so rolls are almost touching.

ONE BOWL DINNER ROLLS

Two and three-fourths cups unsifted flour
One-fourth cup sugar
One half teaspoon salt
1 pkg. active dry yeast
5 tablespoons softened margarine
Two-thirds cup very hot tap water
1 egg
Melted margarine

In a large bowl thoroughly mix three-fourths cup flour, sugar, salt and undissolved yeast. Add softened margarine. Gradually add very hot tap water to dry ingredients and beat for 2 minutes at medium speed of electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally. Add egg and one half cup flour or enough flour to make a thick batter. Beat at high speed for 2 minutes scraping bowl occasionally. Stir in enough additional flour to make a soft dough.

Turn out onto lightly floured board; knead until smooth and elastic, about 8 to 10 minutes. Place in greased bowl, turning to grease top. Cover; let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour. Punch dough down; turn out onto lightly floured board. Divide dough into 3 equal pieces. Roll out each piece to 9x12 inches. Brush with melted margarine.

Cut into 12 strips about 1 inch wide and hold one end of each strip firmly and wind dough loosely to form a coil; tuck end firmly underneath and place on greased cookie sheet; cover; let rise in warm place for 1 hour. Carefully brush rolls with melted margarine and bake in hot 375 degree oven 15-20 minutes or until done. Remove to cool on wire racks. Yield: 2 or 3 dozen rolls.

Food and fashion

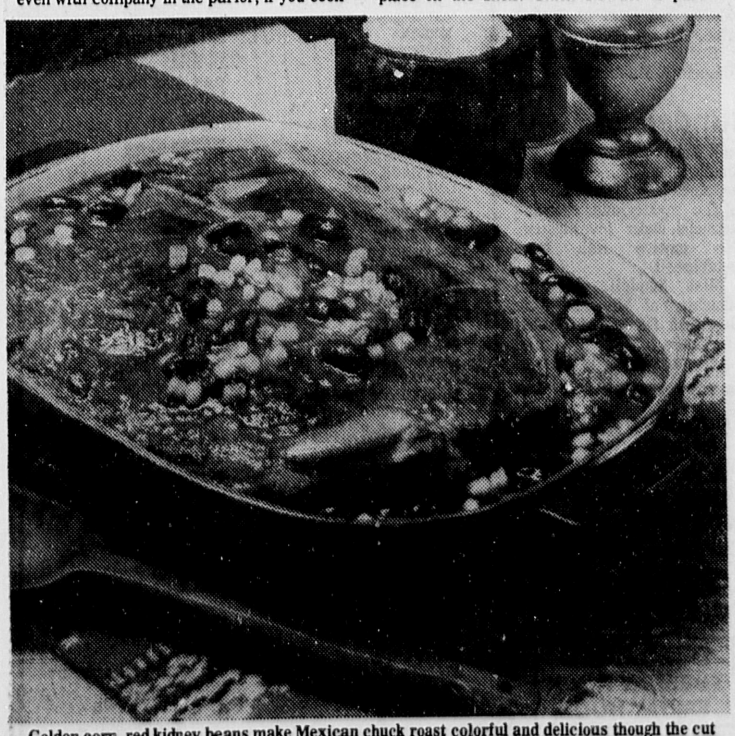
Across the kitchen counter

Aha, so you thought you knew your onions! Well, did you know that: To keep eyes from watering while cutting onions, slice or cut onions under cold, running water. Slice onion from top rather than root end. Also, that it was shown not long ago by some American researchers that a raw onion chewed in the mouth for five minutes, or so, renders the lining of both mouth and throat completely sterile, destroying all harmful bacteria present. Therefore, there is considerable justification (previously thought only an old wives' tale) for chewing an onion during colds and throat infections.

Also, did you know that onions will behave, even with company in the parlor, if you cook them uncovered in a large amount of boiling salted water . . . and that onions are a valuable source of the important minerals, calcium, phosphorus and iron. Here's surprising news — did you know that your windshield won't frost in winter weather if you rub the cut side of a raw onion over it?

The French believe the onion promotes restful sleep, and to dream of an onion is said to mean good luck, just as to cook with them promises good eating. If you like skillet-fried onions to be limp, cook them in butter or margarine until they're golden brown, then cook them in a covered skillet until they are soft.

Dehydrated (or dried) onions deserve a place on the shelf: Onion Powder is pure onion in granular form. It's particularly suited in smooth, uncooked mixtures, requiring no onion texture. Use 1 teaspoon onion powder in place of 1 mid-size fresh onion. Instant Minced Onion is fine cut, especially suited to gravies, sauces, ground meat. Use 1 tablespoon instant minced onion in place of 1 medium-size fresh onion. Soak in a little warm water a few minutes before adding to uncooked foods. Minced or Shredded Green Onion — use 1 teaspoon in place of 1 tablespoon minced chives. Onion Flakes: Use 1 tablespoon in place of 1 medium-size onion and soak a few minutes in warm water before using in uncooked dishes. Onion Salt is a mixture of salt and onion powder. Be sure you decrease salt in recipe when using. Use 1 teaspoon onion salt in place of table salt and 2 teaspoons fresh minced onion.



Golden corn, red kidney beans make Mexican chuck roast colorful and delicious though the cut of meat is lower-cost.

FRENCH FRIED ONION RINGS

Using about 1 onion per serving, slice the peeled onions about one-third inch thick. Separate into rings and soak at least 10 minutes in salted milk (2 tsps. salt to 1 cup milk). Shake rings gently in flour in paper bag and fry a few at a time, in an inch or two of hot fat about 5 minutes. When lightly browned, drain on paper towels. Sprinkle with salt and serve piping hot. .

FRANKFURTER, ONION AND POTATO SOUP

2 cups diced potatoes
1 small onion, sliced
1½ cups boiling water
4 frankfurters
1 teaspoon salt
Pepper
2 cups milk
2 tablespoons finely chopped parsley

Cook potatoes and onion in boiling water until soft. Put through a ricer or mash slightly. Cut frankfurters into ¼-inch slices and add frankfurters, seasonings and milk to potato mixture. Heat thoroughly, add parsley and serve. Serves 4.

MEXICAN CHUCK ROAST

1 3 pound chuck roast
1½ teaspoons Ac'cent
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
3 tablespoons salad oil
¾ cup chopped onion
1 can red kidney beans
1 can tomato sauce (1 lb.)
1 can (1 lb.) tomatoes
2 tablespoons vinegar
1 pkg. (10 oz.) frozen whole kernel corn
1 cup (4 oz.) shredded Monterey Jack or Cheddar cheese

Sprinkle chuck roast on both sides with Ac'cent, salt and pepper. Heat oil in Dutch oven; add roast and brown on both sides. Add onion, kidney beans, tomato sauce, tomatoes, and vinegar. Cover and simmer for 2½ hours. Add corn, cover and simmer 1 hour longer, until meat is tender. Serve sprinkled with cheese. Serves 6.

SWISS ONION PIE

4 strips bacon, diced
5 cups thinly sliced onions
1 cup grated Swiss cheese
3 teaspoons sugar
1 tablespoon flour
1 teaspoon salt
Dash cayenne
¼ teaspoon black pepper
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
3 eggs
1 cup milk
1 9-inch unbaked pie shell

Fry bacon until crisp; saute onions in bacon fat until soft and light yellow in color. Add grated cheese. Combine sugar and flour with seasonings, and add to slightly beaten eggs. Add milk to egg mixture. Put sauteed onions and bacon in pie shell; pour milk and egg mixture over onions. Bake in pre-heated oven, 425 degrees about 35 minutes or until custard is set and golden brown. Note: ½ cup diced, cooked ham may be substituted for bacon. Serve warm.

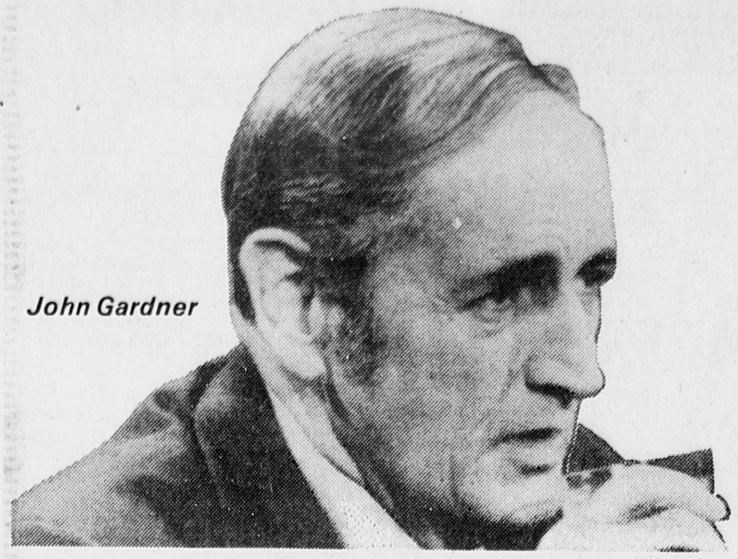
BEACHCOMBER CASSEROLE

2 pounds ground beef
1 medium onion, chopped
1 small green pepper, chopped
1 can (28 oz.) tomatoes
1 can (6 oz.) tomato paste
1 tablespoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 pkg. (8 oz.) shell macaroni, cooked

Break meat into one inch pieces. Brown over medium heat in a large skillet. Add onion and green pepper and saute lightly. Add tomatoes and mix. Combine tomato paste, salt and pepper and add to meat mixture. Mix well. Add macaroni. Spoon into a 2½ qt. casserole and bake in preheated 350 degree oven for 45 minutes. Stir occasionally. Serves 8.

John Gardner's uncommon cause

Commentary by John D. Lofton, Jr.



John Gardner

WASHINGTON — Common Cause Guru John Gardner is the quintessential do-gooder, a hot-headed reformer hell-bent on doing his good regardless of how much harm it causes.

Over the years, the principle fetish of Gardner and his organization has been a taxpayer-supported campaign finance law, the passage of which Mr. G and his groupies have lobbied for with a single-mindedness and fervor matched only by Captain Ahab's relentless pursuit of Moby Dick.

To Gardner and his fellow Common Causers, private campaign money is the root of all evil. There appears to be no end to which they won't go to stop it. Whenever Gardner denounces private campaign contributions, it is in the most categorical terms, reminding one of Lewis Carroll's Snark in his "Hunting of the Snark, The Barrister's Dream," who is described as summing things up "so well it came out to far more than the witnesses ever had said!"

So now, Gardner's wishes have become a reality. The Federal Election Campaign Act Amendments of 1974 and certain related statutes enacted earlier, are law. These measures provide for government bankrolling of presidential elections, primaries and natioial conventions. They set up tight limits on private campaign donations and also impose a ceiling on candidate spending.

Fortunately, however, Mr. Gardner's laws will be challenged in the courts by those who care about campaign reform but care more about our Constitution. The laws are being challenged by perhaps the most disparate group in American political history, people and organizations ranging from Sen. James Buckley and the conservative weekly "Human Events" on the right, to former Sen. Eugene McCarthy and the New York Civil Liberties Union, on the left.

The thrust of the complaint filed by these plaintiffs earlier this month in U.S. District Court in Washington, D. C., is that the public finance laws deprive them of freedom of speech and association, of the right of privacy, of due process of law and that they all discriminate invidiously in violation of the First, Fourth, Fifth, Sixth and Ninth Amendments to the Constitution.

The group further challenges that the method of appointment and confirmation of the members of the Federal Election Commission and its purported powers, are in violation of the constitutional separation of powers.

In a statement, Buckley, McCarthy and Ira Glasser of the NYCLU, say,

"We believe that many of the provisions of the new law violate the First Amendment of the Constitution. They restrict the political freedom of individual citizens by limiting political activity, circumscribing speech, institutionalizing advantages for incumbents, authorizing unprecedented government surveillance over political association and establishing broad investigative powers of doubtful constitutionality. The end result, we fear, will not be fairer elections but rather a restriction of dissenting points of view that will make it harder for independent candidates and small political parties to make themselves heard in the marketplace of ideas."

John Gardner is a brave man, though. He is not frightened by unconstitutional laws. Asked recently on "Face the Nation" about the complaints of Sen. Buckley, et al, he replied rather nonchalantly, "You never get a perfect piece of legislation."

He noted, "no law is without provisions that you would have chosen in a perfect world," one that he was quick to point out "we're not operating in." Gardner observed, "We're doing what we can."

Well, in doing what they could, in muscling through the public finance laws, John Gardner, Common Cause and their supporters have participated in an atrocity against our Constitution. They are accessories to what amounts to a legislative My Lai.

Mr. Gardner and his crew are an example of what Samuel Taylor Coleridge was warning us about when he delcared, "Every reform, however necessary, will by weak minds be carried to an excess which will itself need reforming."

Hospital gets funds for clinical clerkships

Newton-Wellesley Hospital's pharmacy department has been awarded funds in the amount of $1,500 by the Massachusetts College of Pharmacy.

The funds were given in recognition of the clinical clerkship program established at the hospital to provide training for students of the Massachusetts College of Pharmacy.

Initiated in September, 1974, the program serves as a pharmaceutical education tool by orienting future pharmacists to clinical applications. Fifth-year students of the college participate in the program, and they receive 12 hours of credit required for graduation for time spent at Newton-Wellesley.

The students intern at the hospital for 10 weeks, five hours each day. Their time is divided between work rounds with doctors and research for case histories. They are required to complete case histories on six patients during their internship.

The funds awarded by the Massachusetts College of Pharmacy will be applied to the hospital pharmacy's budget for new equipment. To date, two groups of students have affiliated with the hospital via the clinical training program, with four students in each group.

Sternburg honored at Revere Life Ins.

Frederic L. Sternburg, of 76 Garland Rd., Newton Centre, has been named Man of the Year for 1974 by the Boston operations of the Paul Revere Life Insurance Co.

Sternburg was cited for his outstanding overall sales and service record in the local area during the past 12 months.

According to Earl D. Leake, general manager of the Boston Operations, Sternburg has been presented with a recognition certificate by the company officials.

Sternburg joined the Worcester insurance company in 1968 and is active in fraternal affairs.

Lerbinger warns business of controls

Otto Lerbinger, of Newton Highlands, was featured in the annual front page commentary in "Public Relations News."

"Business faces a revival of interest in economic controls. The spectre of a managed economy may become as real in 1975 as it was 40 years ago," said Lerbinger, director of the public relations graduate program at Boston University's School of Public Communication.

"Unless business can convince the government and the American public that its price increases are justified and its profit levels reasonable, current jawboning by government will escalate to selective price-wage controls."

Lerbinger predicted, "We can expect an upsurge in company-sponsored economic education programs and in public affairs advertising." Therefore large corporations will be intensifying their surveillance and lobbying activities in Washington.

"Consumer confidence has been declining for two years with no letup yet in sight," Lerginger noted.

"Some public relations programs will be of the 'WIN' variety, but aimed at restoring a psychology of optimism. High value per dollar will likely be the popular marketing theme. In the environmental area the theme will be that temporarily slower progress should be expected in the face of economic and energy priorities. But long-term gains will ensue as a new public relations approach is recognized: bringing business, government, and environmental groups together for public participation."

According to Lerbinger, management must therefore put more emphasis on group dynamics, conference techniques and various methods of obtaining citizen feedback.

Public Relations News, published in New York City, reports public relations techniques and trends and actual case studies of successful public relations programs.

Obituaries

Cesidio Paglia

A funeral mass was said in Our Lady's Church Friday (Jan. 10) for Cesidio Paglia.

Mr. Paglia, 80, of 194 Church St., Newton, died Tuesday (Jan. 7) in Newton-Wellesley Hospital after a long illness.

A resident of Newton for more than 60 years, Mr. Paglia is survived by his wife, Mrs. Amelia Paglia; three sons, Tony, Daniel and Francis, all of Newton; two brothers, Guiseppi of Canada and Daniel of Waltham; three grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Burial is in Newton Cemetery.

Melvin Gross

Services were held Wednesday (Jan. 8) in Brookline for Melvin Gross.

Mr. Gross, 45, of 73 Wendell Rd., Newton Centre, died Monday (Jan. 6) at his home.

He was a graduate of Northeastern University and was a well-known real estate executive.

Mr. Gross was a former president of the Rental Housing Association of the Greater Boston Real Estate Board and a member of the Eastern Massachusetts Society of Real Estate Appraisers.

He was also vice president of the New England Chapter of Real Estate Management, a member of the Bentley College faculty and a former instructor at Northeastern and Burdett College.

Mr. Gross was a past patron of the Order of the Golden Chain, of Germania Lodge A.F. & A.M., the Lions Club of Brighton and Temple Emanuel in Newton.

Mr. Gross is survived by his wife, Mrs. Lila Gross; two daughters, Adene and Geri, both of Newton Centre; a brother, William of Medford; and his sister, Mrs. Barbara Glick of Miami, Fla.

Burial is in Sharon Memorial Park.

Dr. Earle Campbell

A funeral mass was said in Corpus Christi Church Tuesday (Jan. 14) for Dr. Earle F. Campbell.

Dr. Campbell, 70, of 464 Wolcott St., Auburndale, died Saturday (Jan. 11) at his home. He was a dentist in Waltham for 47 years.

Dr. Campbell was a graduate of Boston College High School and Tufts Dental School. He was a member of the Massachusetts Dental Association, past president of the Waltham Rotary Club, and a former member of the Knights of Columbus and Holy Name Society of St. Charles Church. He belonged to the Guild of St. Appolonia and was resident dentist for the Jesuits at West College.

Dr. Campbell is survived by his wife, Mrs. Alice Campbell; a son, E. Thomas of Hudson; a daughter, Patricia C. of Auburndale; a sister, Mrs. Marie Ann Ellis of Tampa, Fla., and a nephew.

Burial is in Calvary Cemetery, Waltham.

Karen Sundell

Rabbi Israel Kazis of Temple Mishkan Tefila spoke Sunday at funeral services for Karen Sundell.

Miss Sundell, 24, of Brookline died Friday morning (Jan. 10) of gunshot wounds she suffered last Monday.

Miss Sundell was shot last Monday morning while driving along the Arborway. She was rushed to Faulkner Hospital and underwent seven hours of brain surgery. She never regained consciousness.

The mysterious shooting remains under investigation. No motive has been established.

Miss Sundell was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah Sundell of Newton Highlands.

Memorial week is private.

Smokers Anonymous offers 10-week course

A course designed to help people stop smoking will be held at Newton-Wellesley Hospital for 10 weeks sponsored by Smokers Anonymous.

Registration for the course will be Thursday, Jan. 23, from 7:30 to 9 p.m. in the hospital's basement conference room.

The 10 weekly meetings will be held Thursday evenings from Jan. 30 to April 3 from 7:30 to 9 p.m.

For further information, contact Smokers Anonymous at 731-6700.

Single-bull herds should be restricted to 25 or 30 cows for best breeding, farm experts say, while a larger herd should have one bull for each 20 to 25 cows.

Watch the game tonight.

Remember the golden days of radio? Suppose businesses made so little on radios that there was just enough money to take care of operating costs.

Where would we be today?

Listening instead of watching.

One of the major reasons the public gets so many benefits from the broadcast industry is profit.

Profit creates money to research new products. New products can produce more business. More business usually means more jobs.

And if the new products are a success they create competition. Competition leads to improved products and lower prices.

So you see, there's nothing wrong with making a profit. It's necessary for economic progress. Only when profits are good do we have prosperity.

In a nationwide public opinion poll, a majority of people interviewed said they believe that business profits average 28% of sales after taxes. They are wrong. The fact is that over the past 20 years profits have averaged about 5% on sales—or only 5 cents on a dollar.

The cycle of progress is spurred by profits. And we all profit from that.

We all profit from profits.

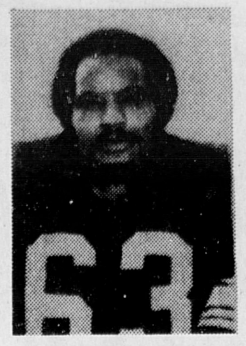
Pittsburgh's front four made game a one hour bore

L. C. Greenwood

Joe Greene



Ernie Holmes

Dwight White

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Artistically, the Super Bowl game was a big one-hour bore again, and if you're looking for somebody to blame that on, Pittsburgh's front four is as good a group to start with as any. The Steelers' L. C. Greenwood, Joe Greene, Ernie Holmes and Dwight White, the hardest-hitting hospital patient you ever saw, all did their work so well, with such mechanical precision, that it became almost monotonous.

They really did a number on the Vikings, the same as they did on the Raiders, and when one of the Vikes, wide receiver John Gilliam, was asked if he felt the Steelers really were the better team, he said, "They won, didn't they? It's not how good you look doing it that matters, it's only the final score that counts."....

Minnesota quarterback Fran Tarkenton was anything but frustrated over his second straight Super Bowl loss. That's what he said, anyway...."I don't feel a bit frustrated," he insisted. "I feel happy. About what? A number of things—like enjoying a great year, looking forward to the off-season and about getting a chance to be with my family. I'm not frustrated at all. You know you don't always have to be the best team to win. We had our chances to win, and we didn't. That's the story of the ball game."....

Mercury Morris is telling some of his friends he doesn't think he'll be with Miami next season and that makes two people thinking along the same lines because Dolphins' Coach Don Shula leans the same way... The two have completely different ideas about what a professional football employeremploye relationship should be, and after their last episode, Morris is a prime candidate to go.... Now if Larry Csonka, Jim Kiick and Paul Warfield also move on, Miami owner Joe Robbie is going to be a little lonesome next season. Right now I'd say there's a good chance at least two of those three will be back with the Dolphins again next year.... In fact the word's around the Dolphins are talking contract with Csonka already for next year....

Marv Hubbard was all set to announce his retirement had Oakland gone all the way. Now he'll probably come back... "You know how it is," he says. "It's like saying you're gonna s o nething, and then you find yourself keeping on doing it until you get it right."

Frank Robinson, now managing Santurce in Puerto Rico's Winter League, got his first taste of what it's like to be a big-league manager during the recent baseball meetings in New Orleans. He and Cleveland General Manager Phil Seghi put in a lot of time trying to swing deals and after the whole thing was over, Robinson shook his head and said, "I'd rather be out there playing. It's much easier."

Dave "The Hammer" Schultz, the Philadelphia Flyers' firecracker, says he has never seen a hockey player to compare with teammmate Bobby Clarke.... "I just don't know how it's humanly possible for a man to keep bearing down all the time the way he does," Schultz says. "He just works, works, works, without letup. Absolutely unbelievable. He plays his guts out. On the bench, he continually keeps talking to us. 'C'mon, now, don't let down. Let's keep going after 'em.' I can tell he's tired sometimes, but he never gives in. He just simply refuses to quit."...

Newton players on Rivers hockey team

WESTON—The Rivers Country Day School at long last can strap on the skates and play hockey. It has been over nine years since boys at Rivers were involved in interschool hockey competition. Two years ago an informal hockey club was started and it met Saturdays at different local rinks. The following year the club's numbers grew and an appeal to the school resulted in three hours of ice time a week for the duration of the hockey season. Finally this year with a program offering two hour practices four days a week the hockey "club" is officially a school sponsored team.

The thirty man squad is equally divided between a varsity and junior varsity. Coaching the more experienced players is Philip Kyle, who also coaches cross country in the fall. Mark Licht, a RCDS alumnus, teacher and a one time player for the Rivers hockey team, will be coaching the J.V. team.

The 1975 hockey schedule starts tomorrow against Roxbury Latin. There also will be a home and home series with Providence Country Day School and Pingree School, with hopes of scheduling more games later in the season.

Local members of the team are Karl Smith-Petersen, class of 1975, a forward, who lives at 36 Westfield Road, West Newton, and Ed Tompkins, class of 1976, a forward, who lives at 355 Upland Avenue, Newton Highlands.

NO. 1 SIGNED

BALTIMORE (UPI) — The Baltimore Orioles have signed Mark Steven Gesquiere, their No. 1 choice in last week's free agent draft, General Manager Frank Cashen said Tuesday.

Gesquiere, a 6-2, 185-pound right-handed pitcher from El Camino Junior College in Southern California, agreed to contract terms Saturday.

The Orioles, choosing 16th among the 24 major league teams in the second phase of the draft, selected five players, all from California. Their choices besides Gesquiere included three right-handed pitchers and a third baseman.

Weeks five beat Central, bow to Warren

By Richard S. Grossman
Sports Correspondent

NEWTON — On Wednesday of last week; at the Weeks gym, Weeks Junior High defeated Central Waltham Junior High 45-26.

Weeks used a press throughout the game, the results of which were evident immediately. At :30 into the game Halph Berry of Weeks deflected a Central inbounds pass to teammate Matthews Fitzgibbon who put it in for two. Seconds later Fitzgibbon made it 4-0 with two foul shots. Central Waltham came back with three points but that was as close as they came. By the end of the first quarter Weeks held a 15-4 lead.

The second quarter passed in the same fashion es the one preceeding it with Weeks applying pressure and keeping the play around the Central basket. Again CW made may turnovers due to sloppy play and the Weeks press. At the close of the half Weeks led 25-10.

Twenty-four of the thirty-seven fouls called in the game were called in the first half. Needless to say the half, and the game were rough. The only victim of his own fouls was Central center Langly who fouled out relatively early in the game.

In the third quarter Weeks came out tough on offense and even tougher on defense holding Central to only one basket which came at 5:57 of the quarter. By the time Weeks was finished with Central the Weeks lead had been upped to 38-12.

The fourth quarter started with Weeks coach Bannen substituting more freely. Every player on the Weeks team was in the game. It was in this quarter that Central made their best showing, outplaying and outscoring the Weeks varsity 14-7. This last quarter burst, however, was not strong enough to overcome the Weeks advantage.

Central Waltham coach Hammond said of his team'o performance, "The main reason we played so badly wasn't so much the press. The team knows how to handle a press. We were playing poor defense and on offense we weren't working or looking for the good shots."

Weeks coach Bannen felt differently, "Everyone was nervous at first but as the game went on we settled down . . . The press did exactly what it was designed to do: disorganize the opponent and force him to make turnovers. With this game under our belts we can look forward to a successful season."

High scorers were, for Weeks: Center Joel Dennis-9, Peter Balcanoff and Jim Glasser-8, Frank Duffy-7 and Matt Fitzgibbon-6. The high scorers were for Central Waltham: Sommerlas-8, O'Neil-7, and Langly-6.

Loses to Warren

Two days after their victory over Central Waltham, Weeks faced a tall and very agile Warren Junior High team. The pace of the game was quick, perhaps too quick. One would have needed an adding machine to keep track of the turnovers caused by players racing down the floor and forgetting the basketball.

Warren took the opening tap and was off and running to a 5-0 lead at 2:56 and 10-5 at 5:12 of the first quarter.

In the second stanza there were two technical fouls called. One was called against coach Bannen for making a remark to the referee about a call and the other was called against Brian Kinsella of Warren. At 4:45 of this period Weeks closed the gap to 9 points (21-30) but finished the quarter behind by fourteen points (25-39).

Weeks took the tap at the opening of the third quarter, it didn't help much though as by 3:28 Warren extended their lead to 50-27. The pace had somewhat slowed since the start of the game but Warren's lead held and at the quarter's end the score was 56-35. It was in this quarter that Kelly of Warren fouled out.

Starting in the fourth frame both coaches started going to the bench more. At 1:54 Weeks center Joel Dennis fouled out with the score 56-40.

The substitutes played well, but near the end of the quarter and the game both coaches switched to their starting lineups. The final score was 69-54.

After the game Warren coach Peddington said, "We outhustled them in the first half and their comeback in the second half came to late."

Coach Bannen said, "They had a good, quick team. We didn't play as well as we could or should. We'll just have to be better the next time we play them."

Howard Speizer of Weeks said, "If we were more aggressive, like Warren was, we would have won." Andy Kaufman, also of Weeks, said, "The bench gave us good support and they carried the workload well in the fourth quarter." Jim Glasser put it in the simplest terms possible, "We were outplayed, that's all there is to it." Weeks high scorer, Peter Balcanoff commented, "It was a team effort, it took us a while to get started but when then we were too far behind."

Weeks high scorers were: Peter Balcanoff-25, Jim Glasser-10, Ralph Berry-8. Warren high scorers were: Brian Kinsella-26, Center Stanley Bratton-11.

satisfying victory. Kojoyian had told his team earlier that this was the most important match of the year and he wanted to win it very badly.

For the Newton North team it was a disappointing defeat but also very encouraging. Out of their twelve starters against South, nine will return next year.

South has now won seven straight matches and they face two tough challenges this week, Tuesday they met Weston and this Friday night they are at home against Milford. Match time is 6:30.

By HANS SCHAEFER

BONN (UPI) — Apparently taking to heart doctors' warnings that obesity will cut their life expectancy, more and more West Germans have been taking to cinder tracks, soccer fields or swimming pools in recent years to chop off excess fat.

The trim fad began to blossom in early 1971 in the wake of a report published by the Baden-Wuerttemberg state medical association asserting that more than 70 per cent of the 62 million West Germans are overweight and all are likely to die before their time.

The campaign against "Suicide With Fork And Knife" apparently prompted numerous Germans to break with the tradition of watching but not participating in sports events. Many have turned to running, swimming, gymnastics and other sports to reduce the health hazards caused by heavy eating and drinking.

Willy Weyer, the president of the West German Sports Federation, the republic's supreme sports organization, recently gave the institution's membership as 12,836,302 persons.

"This means," the burly Weyer told newsmen, "that every fifth West German is a member of a sports or gymnastic club."

The cigar-smoking Weyer said that between the end of October, 1973, and the same month of this year alone, 683,957 persons joined the organization to perform active sports. This was an increase of 5.6 per cent over the comparable 1972-73 period.

"This encouraging increase in membership shows Germans' growing interest in keeping healthy and fit," Weyer said, brimful of energy and fitness himself at age 57.

Weyer, who is also minister of the interior of the state of North Rhineland-Westphalia, West Germany's industrial heartland, predicted that by the end of this decade the sports federation's membership will have surpassed the 15 million mark.

A federation spokesman said growth in membership has not been confined to the young.

"The encouraging thing is that more and more adults are joining the various sports clubs to keep thsemselves in physical trim," he said.

He said volleyball, which registered a 39 per cent jump in membership, is becoming a favorite sport among West Germans.

Another popular pastime among West Germans, young and old, is taking long runs through forest and field. Often whole families participate.

Weyer, who was elected president of the sports federation last May, has never left any doubt that he would use his political and governmental contacts to get sufficient money for his pet project—a "People's Sport Plan" designed to lure still more Germans away from their television sets, smoky taverns and automobiles and into the sports arenas.

Weyer, an enthusiastic water polo goalkeeper in his youth, has said repeatedly, "There must be a new relationship between sport, the political parties and the state. The sports organizations must no longer be regarded as an annoying petitioner for money."

BE CAREFUL

NEW YORK (UPI) — The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission estimates that each year more than 5,000 persons receive hospital emergency-room treatment for injuries associated with oil, gas, kerosene and electric space heaters and with wood and coal-burning heating stoves.

SAVING

NEW YORK (UPI) — A total of $100,000 was raised by recycling between six and seven thousand empty CARE cooking oil tins and flour bags at five and 10 cents each, respectively.

The money is being used to help support CARE food and nutrition education projects in India, where the agency feeds almost 11 million persons daily.

"Getting athlete of the year award a big honor", Greenberg

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Muhammad Ali was posing with the new jewel-studded $15,000 Hickok belt he had just been handed for being named "Professional Athlete of the Year," and among those standing around watching, smiling and enjoying the whole thing, was a man whose name still is synonymous with home run.

Hank Greenberg hit 331 homers during the 13 years he put in with Detroit and Pittsburgh and in his playing days they called him the same thing they call Hank Aaron now, "Hammerin' Hank." By one of those little ironies, all three men, Muhammad Ali, Hank Aaron and Hank Greenberg, all were involved to varying degrees in Tuesday's awards luncheon at a local hotel.

Ali was there to pick up his belt and try to build up, the best he could, anyway, his next opponent, Chuck Wepner, said to be the No. 1 "white hope" in the entire city of Bayonne, N.J. At times Ali had all he could do to keep a straight face talking about Wepner, whom he's supposed to meet in Cleveland in March.

Hank Aaron wasn't at Tuesday's function, but his name was mentioned a number of times because the sports writers and sportscasters doing the balloting had voted him runnerup to Ali as the top professional athlete of 1974. Ali, with 49 first-place votes, wound up with 249 points, and Aaron, with 47 first-place votes, was second with 224½.

The reason Hank Greenberg was on hand had to do with the "Golden Link" Award, a promotional gimmick tied in with the annual presentation of the belt.

Along with the big winner, a "link to the past" also is named each year, some topnotcher who never had a chance to win because the first belt was awarded only 25 years ago. Jack Kramer, the tennis player, was named winner of this secondary award Tuesday. Others who won it before him were Jack Dempsey, Bronco Nagurski, Carl Hubbell, Joe Louis, Buddy Young, Johnny Vandermeer, Sid Luckman—and Hank Greenberg.

That's why the former Detroit long-baller was at the luncheon. He was one of the special invitees, and when some of the people present began wondering out loud whether Hank Aaron rated the belt over Muhammad Ali, Hank Greenberg said he wouldn't have voted for either of them. Not for first place, anyway.

"Please get me right," Hank Greenberg said. "I think what Hank Aaron did is the greatest accomplishment over a 20-year period in all sports, and certainly Ali is entitled to the belt for what he did this past year, but all I'm saying is if I had a vote, if I were a sports writer, I'd have voted for Lou Brock. For a single season athletic achievement, I don't think anybody surpassed him. Just think of it, the man stole 118 bases in a single season!"

Brock's performance had to be especially impressive to a fellow like Greenberg, who used to run very slowly, in the same place too long. He stole only 58 bases in 13 years and never more than nine in any one season.

"I was disappointed he didn't get the MVP," Greenberg went on, still talking about Brock, who finished fourth in the Hickok voting. "I think he's the most exciting ballplayer around today, and how can you ever forget those two World Series he had, one against Boston and the other against Detroit. He's a helluva ballplayer. I think," Greenberg laughed, "he's faster than Ali. With his feet, anyway."

Before accepting the award, Ali talked about this "master plan" he has calling for him to meet both Joe Frazier and George Foreman the same night in some place like Russia, China, Egypt or Iran. Ali said he's working on the deal and called it a "$25 million package." His manager, Herbert Muhammad, merely laughed when he heard about it.

"If it ever got serious," he said, "if the other two (Frazier and Foreman) took it serious and the financiers took it serious, then I'd take it serious. Until then, I'm not going to even bother looking at it."

Later, Muhammad Ali got up before the microphone and said how much the award meant to him. Earlier he had said he wasn't that enthused, explaining that all the other honors heaped upon him since knocking out George Foremen have combined to make him jaded.

Now, though, he seemed genuinely grateful, even humble.

He would've voted for Hank Aaron, he said.

Ali receives Athlete of the Year award

NEW YORK (UPI) — Muhammad Ali, climaxing a super comeback that saw him beat Joe Frazier on Jan. 28, 1974 and take the heavyweight title from George Foreman in Kinshasa, Zaire, last October, was awarded the $15,000 S. Rae Hickok diamond-studded belt as the Professsional Athlete of the Year Tuesday.

He said his first challenger would be Chuck Wepner, the Bayonne (N.J.) Bayonet.

"Some people will criticize me for fighting Wepner," Ali says. "But he's ranked No. 8 and you've got to consider him as being among the best heavyweights in the world. He a good family man. He's got children and deserves a break."

What about Ron Lyle, Frazier, Foreman and maybe Joe Bugner?

Ali has 1975 plans for three of the aforementioned. Herbert Muhammad, Ali's manager, reveals he's negotiating with Madison Square Garden for a June bout with Lyle, who is ranked No. 3 among contenders.

"If that falls through," says Herbert Muhammad, "we'll fight Bugner in London. The Briton, the reigning European champion, is rated fifth among heavyweights.

Ali maintains Wepner's one claim to fame is the New Jerseyan's North American championship. Then, in his pixieish fashion, Ali chuckles, "We can't have two heavyweight champions in this country."

In winning the Hickok belt, Ali became the first boxer in 14 years and only the fourth fighter to earn the award since it was instituted in 1950. As he accepted the gold buckled belt with its red, white and blue diamonds, Ali quipped, "I could have used this when I didn't have no job. This happens once in a lifetime and has great meaning to me."

Ali was a study in sheer humbleness when he accepted the award. The champion said he couldn't believe that in all sports he was chosen as the best athlete. "If I had a vote, it would have gone to Henry Aaron," Ali said. "It's tough to hit a tiny baseball for a home run."

Ali collected 49 first-place votes and 249 points in the balloting by sports writers and broadcasters to 47 firsts and 224½ points for runnerup Hank Aaron, who broke Babe Ruth's legendary record of 714 home runs in 1974.

Women causes stir in pro men's tennis

WESTPORT, Conn. (UPI) — The entry of a Wesleyan College coed in the $30,000 professional men's tennis tournament next month in Ridgefield has apparently sparked internal conflict in the Independent Players Association of Tennis.

William Reardon, executive director of the fledgling pro tennis tour said Tuesday the entry of Abagail Maynard, 19, of Wilton, was "a cheap shot designed to publicize a women's movement."

But John Nogrady of Westport, the man in charge of the Connecticut portion of the tournament, said Miss Maynard will compete in the event, billed as the Fairfield County International Tennis Tournament, to be held Feb. 24 to March 2 at the Sugar Hollow Racquet Club in Ridgefield.

Miss Maynard, when told of Reardon's comments by United Press International, said "I just felt that this is the time for a woman to enter." After all, she said, "Connecticut has its first woman governor."

Reardon's comments were issued by a Boston publicist for the IPAT who said the executive director was in the Bahamas were the first of 12 planned tournaments was to open.

Reardon added, "tennis comes to a sorry state when it serves as a vehicle for circus antics by insensitive individuals.

"I would be most appreciative if they would take their Roman fesitval to another venue, perhaps to the kitchen."

Members of the tour include Jimmy Conners of Belleville, Ill., Ilie Nastase of Rumania and Roger Taylor of Great Britain.

Nogrady said Maynard and another local entry, Tom Mott, 17, of Wilton, were deserving players from the area who have been tennis stars in their own right.

Miss Maynard, who plans to go on the women's professional tennis tour in the spring, was a top tennis star at Wilton High School before going to Wesleyan where she is a member of the women's tennis team.

"I realize I'm won't go too far in the tournament," she said but she looks on the tournament as a chance to improve her caliber.

Mott also stars in tennis at Wilton High.

Noting the tennis teams at Wesleyan are segregated, Miss Maynard says she has practiced with the men and if qualified in tryouts, women should be accepted as members of the team.

Nogrady says as far as he is concerned, Miss Maynard will play in the tournament and her competition will not be known until a draw the night before the tournament starts.

He added that if there is any effort to block Miss Maynard's participation "we will go further if we have too" to insure her appearance.

Miss Maynard said she plans "to stick it out" with Nogrady's support and become the tournament's first woman player.

UConn moving up in hoop

STORRS, Conn. (UPI) — Connecticut, 7-2, was ranked behind Holy Cross, 9-2, Tuesday as the second best in New England in Division I of the Eastern College Athletic Conference.

The Huskies were followed by Providence, 9-3, and Boston College, 7-3, in the first weekly ECAC basketball standins.

UConn center John Thomas, chosen the most valuable player in last week's Connecticut Classic, was ranked third best in New England in rebounds, with a 10.4 game average. Bob Warner of Maine was the leader with a 13.8 rebound average, followed by Bill Colins of Boston College with a 12.8 average.

The Huskies are aiming for one of the four at-large slots in the ECAC geographical area for the opening round of the NCAA national title.

The four top New England teams will compete for the region's berth in the Springfield, Mass., civic center March 7-8.

FUTURE

BURLINGTON, Vt. (UPI) — The University of Vermont has announced plans to host its first basketball tournament Dec. 29 and 30, 1976 (cq). Yale, Army and Florida State will participate in the tournament, to be called the Vermont Classic.

John L. Sullivan predicts win Sat.

John L. Sullivan, Spirit Lake, Idaho, predicts he will score a kayo victory at the Boston Garden, Saturday night, January 18th, against undefeated New Bedford schoolboy Paul Poirier, when they clash in the 9-round featured bout.

The fight is 9 rounds, you see, because Poirier is a student yet, and Sam Silverman is running the fight on Saturday because he does not want Paul Poirier to have to play hooky school to weigh in at the boxing commission the day of the fight.

John L. Sullivan, a southpaw, said "I will handle this big kid Poirier like I knocked out Dino Del Cid in my New York debut at the Felt Forum on Jan. 21, 1974."

Sullivan creamed Dino Del Cid in 5-rounds then went on to lose a close 10round decision to middleweight contender Vito Antuofermo at N.Y.'s Madison Square Garden before a $51,000 house. Sullivan defeated Denny Moyer and knocked out Vicente Medina in 9-rounds.

On Sam Silverman's new talent boxing show at the Boston Garden Saturday night, there will be 47 rounds of boxing. Three 8-rounders, a six-rounder, and two four-rounds. The first fight will go on at 8 p.m.

In the 8-round semi-final, the 1974 New England AAU heavyweight champion Ricky Wynn of Norton will seek his 9th straight win as a pro fighting John McGrath of Lowell.

In another 8-rounder, Brockton's Dornell Wigfall - wights Tracy Morrison of Kansas City, Kansas, in a light heavyweight bout.

In a special 8-rounder, BC student Jackie Smith, the New England junior middleweight champion, in a non-title fight, will meet the young protege of Paul Pender from Marshfield, Chris Pine, who is a "lifer" at Norfolk Prison Colony.

In a 6-rounder, Peter Fuller, will show off his new heavyweight giant, 220-pound Scott LeDoux, who has a 10-0 record, scoring 9 knockouts, from Minneapolis, boxing undefeated New York Golden Gloves champion, Jay Bar Brown.

Scott Le Doux beat both of the Bobick Brothers, Duane and Rodney in the AAU's.

In a special 4-rounder, the 1974 New England AAU featherweight, Tony Girginoff of Burlington, Mass., making his professional as a lightweight, will fight L.C. Marks of New York.

In the opening 4-rounder, Joe Huston of Lowell will fight Robert Medina of North Easton. .

Harvard BC win in hoop Beanpot

BOSTON (UPI) — Harvard and Boston Colege both blazed through big second half scoring sesions Tuesday night to win their respective matches in the semi-final rounds of the Beanpot Tourney and advance to Thursday's tournament finals.

With five players hitting in the double figures, Harvard broke open the second half to defeat Northeastern 80-67.

Northeastern, 6-6 for the year, led at the half 29-27, but Harvard, with exceptional team play led by junior forward Bill Carry, hit for 21 of 32 shots from the floor in the second half.

The game remained close until the last 12 minutes when Harvard, now 4-8 for the season, hit for three quick baskets and moved ahead to stay 48-42.

Boston College, with junior forward Bobby Carrington hitting a game high of 28, streaked ahead in the last three minutes of its game against Boston University to win 86-78.

BC took a quick 18-4 lead in the first three minutes of the game on its Roberts Center home court, and were leading 44-41 at halftime. The Terriers fought back, taking command at 15:24 of the second half, but BC rallied in the final minutes of the game.

Northeastern and Boston University will meet Thursday in tourney consolation play.

(BH-BRUINS) Montreal — The Boston Bruins, those free wheeling hockey spirits, left the fun at home on their current Canadian visit. Coach Don Cherry told his troops Tuesday before heading north that there would be no wild family gatherings, at least for the present. 346 Words. Will Stand.

Spacious living at Windsor Gardens

Windsor Gardens, modern living

Windsor Gardens in Norwood is a complex of about 65 acres with 232 two and three bedroom townhouses and 682 garden apartments. The rural atmosphere abounds at Windsor Gardens: trees, plants, flowers a plenty.

Windsor Gardens is a community within itself and is served by the Penn Central Railroad with its own railroad station right on the property, with train service to Boston. In addition to the train, bus service - local and to Boston - is available at the main gate.

Windsor is within shopping distance of a complete shopping center and Norwood is the second largest shopping area in Norfolk County.

Living and Learning Schools operate a preschool nursery program right on the site. Bus service for the local elementary and high schools is excellent.

Among our many recreational facilities are lighted tennis courts, swimming pools, ball fields, playgrounds, picnic area, shuttle board and clubhouse etc.

The apartments and townhouses at Windsor Gardens are individually heated and air-conditioned throughout. Your private balcony or terrace serves as a natural extention of your living room. Perfect for sunning by day, or relaxing in the cool delight of a summer evening. The spacious living room, from its beautiful parquet oak floors to its richly panelled accent wall will assist your decorating plans. Your family and guests will dine graciously and comfortable in your charming dining area. A buffet bar combines the practicality of a serving bar with its own individual attractiveness. The bathroom is tinted ceramic tile, modern in every detail. All kitchen appliances are Hot Point. All living rooms are equipped with Master TV UHF and VHF outlets. Living at Windsor, maintenance problems will be a thing of the past.

Come visit at Windsor Gardens. Office hours are from 9-6 Monday through Friday; 11-6 Saturday and Sunday. Our telephone number is 762-8282. From Route 1 or Route 95 take the Norwood exit to Norwood Center then south on Route 1A to Windsor Gardens at the Walpole line.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING
CITY OF NEWTON PLANNING BOARD

On Thursday, January 23, 1975, at 7:30 p.m., in the War Memorial Auditorium at City Hall, 1000 Commonwealth Avenue, the Planning Board will conduct the third in a series of public hearings, open to all City of Newton residents, relative to the preparation of a Community Development Plan for inclusion in the City's application for federal funding under Title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974. Designated as Phase 3 of the Citizen Participation Plan promulgated by the Mayor to enable all Newton residents to participate in the formulation of the Community Development Plan, this hearing will be devoted primarily to the discussion of programs to be included in the final Community Development Plan.

The Citizen Participation Plan, Summary of Title I — Housing and Community Development Act of 1974, a survey of community needs entitled Identification of Needs, with supplementary material entitled Identification of Needs, 1972 Citywide Survey: An Analysis of Citizen Opinion, Survey of Citizen Recommendations for the Community Development Plan, Preliminary Community Development Plan, and Proposed Community Development Plan have been distributed throughout the City and are available at the Planning Department upon request.

Due to the importance of this matter, it is requested that presentations be limited to ten minutes duration, and that written statements be prepared for submission to the Planning Board.

Please note that any completed Survey of Citizen Recommendations for the Community Development Plan forms not yet returned to the Planning Department should be submitted prior to this hearing.

MORTGAGEE'S SALE OF REAL ESTATE
AT 45 TUDOR ROAD,
NEWTON

By virtue and in execution of the Power of Sale contained in a certain mortgage deed given by Barnett Feldstein and Edith M. Feldstein, husband and wife, to the Cambridge Savings Bank, dated June 8, 1964, and recorded with Middlesex South Deeds, Book 10548, Page 501, and registered as Document No. 406344, noted on Certificate of Title No. 114683, issued from the Middlesex South Registry District of the Land Court, of which mortgage the undersigned is the present holder, for breach of the conditions of said mortgage and for the purpose of foreclosing the same will be sold at public auction on the premises hereinafter described on Thursday, February 13, 1975, at Eleven O'clock A.M., all and singular, the premises described in said mortgage, to wit:

"A certain parcel of land with the buildings thereon situated in Newton, being bounded and described as follows:

SOUTHEASTERLY by Tudor Road one hundred forty (140) feet;

NORTHEASTERLY by Lot 32B as shown on a plan hereinafter mentioned, one hundred twenty-one and 34-100 (121.34) feet;

NORTHWESTERLY by Lots 17 and 18 on said hereinafter mentioned plan, one hundred forty and 56-100 (140.56) feet;

SOUTHWESTERLY by other land of said mortgagors, being the parcel next hereinafter described, one hundred eight and 80-100 (108.80) feet.

Said parcel is shown as Lots 32A and 33 on said hereinafter mentioned plan.

All of said boundaries are determined by the Court to be located as shown on a sub division plan, as approved by the Court, filed in the Land Registration Office, a copy of a portion of which is filed in the Registry of Deeds for the South Registry District of Middlesex County in Registration Book 167, Page 385, with Certificate of Title No. 25038.

Also another certain parcel of land with the buildings thereon situated in said Newton, being shown as the lot containing 1091. Sq. Ft. on a plan entitled "Plan of Land in Newton, Mass.", dated September 12, 1932, by E.L. Moulton, Civil Engineer, recorded with said District Deeds in Record Book 5688, Page 571, being bounded and described as follows:

SOUTHEASTERLY by said Tudor Road, four and 69-100 (4.69) feet;

NORTHEASTERLY by the parcel hereinafter described, one hundred eight and 80-100 (108.80) feet;

NORTHWESTERLY by land of owners unknown, twelve and 60-100 (12.60) feet;

SOUTHWESTERLY by Tudor Lane by two lines measuring fifty-one and 40-100 (51.40) feet and fifty-six and 15-100 (56.15) feet, respectively.

Both of said parcels being the same premises conveyed to said mortgagors by Foster Furcolo by deed dated June 1, 1964, duly registered with said Land Registration Office and duly recorded with said Deeds.

Both of said parcels are subject to restrictions and easements as appear of record so far as the same are now in force and applicable.

Both of said parcels are subject to and have the benefit of the right of way as set forth in an instrument duly recorded with said Deeds, Book 5688, Page 572."

Sale will be made subject to unpaid real estate taxes, tax titles and municipal liens, if any there are.

A deposit of One Thousand Dollars ($1,000.00) will be required to be paid in cash or certified check by the purchaser at the time and place of sale; other terms made known at sale.

Furber Lane one-way

The Traffic Commission will begin a 60-day trial period of making Furber Lane one way from Homer Street to Commonwealth Avenue. The trial period will begin Jan. 19 and continue until March 19.

The purpose of the trial is to determine whether Furber Lane can be one-way permanently to discourage its use as a bypass of traffic signals at the intersection of Centre Street and Commonwealth Avenue.

During the trial the Police and Planning Departments will observe and evaluate traffic conditions in the area. Toward the end of the period the Traffic Commission will recommend to the Board of Aldermen whether the change should be permanent.

Library evaluates Italian resources

An informal discussion in English of the Newton Free Library's resources in the Italian language will be the subject for the Newtou Free Library's fourth in a series of Programs for Reading Enrichment scheduled for Monday, Jan. 20, at 10:30 a.m., at the Nonantum Branch Library, 144 Bridge st.

The discussion, led by Beryl Beatley, supervisor of children's services for the Newton Free Library, will focus on the library's holdings of books including popular fiction, magazines such as ,'Oggi'' and ''Epoca,'' newspapers, and recordings in Italian that are available for borrowing and in-library use.

Mrs. Beatley, who was born in Paris, speaks fluent Italian and French and has a special interest in Italian literature. She has traveled extensively throughout Italy and recently returned from a trip to Sicily.

The series of programs for reading enrichment utilizes the expertise of different librar.Y staff members who are specialists in certain subject areas. The final program, planned for Feb. 26, will be led by John G. Daley, assistant librarian, who will discuss ''Books on Film and the Hollywood Scene.'' The programs are free, and the publi8c is cordially invited to attend.

Woodworking courses

The Newton Community Service Centers, Inc., will offer s woodworki9ng program which will be beginning this month for young children.

The director of this program, Alvin Caplan, who has run the Splinter Club for 21 years, explained that the courses will be conducted at the Red Cross Annex, 12 Page Rd., Newtonville.

The course for children will offer basic use of hand tools and opportunities to make all types of wooden objects. Also due to increased interest from adults Caplan will start morning and evening classes for adults which will include minor home repair techniques.

In commenting on the program, Anthony J. Bibbo, executive director of the Newton Community Service Centers, Inc., stated ''This is an excellent opportunity for children to learn to use their hands creatively. Also with boys and girls in the classes sex role stereotypes are broken down.''

Classes for pre-kindergarten to kindergarten will be Monday, Wednesday, and Friday 2-3 p.m., First grade only on Tuesdays and Thursdays 2-3 p.m., and second grade on Monday and Friday 4-5 p.m.

To register or for further information contact Caplan at 332-2344, or 332-7327.

Ballet

The Boston Ballet is presenting the children's program, ''Raggedy Ann and Raggedy Andy,'' in Kresge Auditorium at MIT Sunday, Jan. 26, at 2 p.m. All seats are reserved. Three-quarters of the benefit ticket price is a tax-deductible contribution to the program sponsor, Cambridge Nursery School, the oldest cooperative nursery school in the United States. Reservations number is 547-7500.

Kupfershmid photos at library

A one-man show of ''Photographs of North America, Europe, and Latin America'' by Bernard Kupferschmid of Newton are on exhibit now through Feb. 2 at the Newton Free Library, 414 Centre St., Newton Corner.

Kupferschmid's interest in people as well as places is evidenced by such photographs as ''Time Eternal,'' a 1972 Nikon prize winner depicting an old woman walking by windmills, taken on one of the Greek Islands, ''Snake Charmers,'' and ''Three Out of Four Prefer Blondes.''

The slow motion photographs of ''The Bullfight,'' and ''Dawn,'' a morning landscape with the sharp focus of trees in the foreground an unexpected but pleasing contrast to the muted round softness of the mountains in the background, are highlights of the exhibit.

Kupferschmid describes his enthusiasm for photography as ''an interest that heightens my perceptions. For me, an unexpected pleasure is the opportunity to share my observations with friends at home with slide-tape programs.''

Kupferschmid, the director of operations, Latin American Projects, for Harbridge House in Boston, exhibited in the De Cordova Museum Show ''The New England Experience'' and is a member of the American Photographic Society.

The exhibit, which remains on view through Feb. 2, can be seen Monday through Friday 9 to 9, Saturdays 9 to 5:30, and Sundays 1 to 4. A group of books on photography complement the exhibit and are available for borrowing.

Humanities class starts in art and music

Humanities, a course which deals with the interrelation of the function and aesthetics in art and music, will be of special interest in second semester programs at Newton Junior College.

This course, which meets 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. on Tuesdays and 1:30 to 2:30 p.m. on Thursdays, includes class lectures with demonstrations on records and slides, starting with the elements in art and music.

As the course progresses, form in music and organization in art will be discussed as well as stylistic comparisons in art and music.

Field trips are conducted to further illustrate the concepts of the course.

No prior knowledge of art or music is required for admission to this course.

Registration will be Jan. 22 at College Hall, Washington Park, Newtonville, from 8:30 a.m. to 12 noon, and from 2 to 4 p.m. Late registration will be held during the week of Jan. 27. Tuition for the course is $75.00. For further information, call the college at 969-9570.

Talk on children's literature

The second program in a workshop series planned by the staff and parents of the Bowen Nursery School Inc. will be held Monday, Jan. 20.

The public is invited to the workshop. Parents are should bring a favorite book.

Oberlin choir performs tonight

Newton resident Alice Goodwin will be one of 65 choristers performing this coming week with the Oberlin College Choir. Alice, daughter of George and Ellen Goodwin of Balcarres Road, is in her eenior year.

The Choir will present a program of great sacred and secular choral music. at 8:30 p.m. in Emmanuel Church, 15 pewbury St., Boston.

Over 1200 Oberlin alumni live in the Boston area. Four Newton residents are planning the choir visit; James Thornblade, coordinator of the event; Helen Taylor, housing for the students; Frances Seasholes, tickets; and Bradbury Seasholes, Boston area Alumni Club president.

Lunchtime films shown

Vary your noontime experiences by viewing free films each Wednesday noon at the Newton Free Library, 414 Centre Street, Newton Corner, where ''H!ollywood, The Dream Factory'' will be screened Jan. 22.

The film includes clips of many of Hollywood's best names, and documentary footage of the stars is also included, to create an entertaining history of America's film industry.

On Jan. 29, at noon, the free film to be screened is ''The Photographers.'' Five of America's top professional still photographers—Larry Burrows, Alfred Eisenstaedt, John Domins, Norman Parkinson and Mary Ellen Mark—are shown on assignment around the world.

''The Last Viking'' depicting the descendants of the ancient Vikings, who are still masters of the sea will be shown Wednesday, Feb. 5.

Through technology has mechanized the ancient art of fishing, the culture and way of life of these Scandinavians have changed very little.

Wednesday noon movies at the Main Library are screened in the Trustee's Room on the first floor. Annotated film schedules are available at all Newton libraries

Preschool program still has openings

Newton area families have the opportunity to obtain a full pre-school experience for their three- and four-year-olds, as a result of a program by the Newton Community Service Centers Inc.

The Child Center in West Newton, located at the First Unitarian Society on Washington Street, offers preschoolers experiences and activities which, enable each child to develop and grow - ''intellectually, physically, and socially - at their own rates,'' according to Director Susan Werbe.

Parents can send their children from 7:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. or from 9 a.m. to 12 noon, Monday through Friday.

In working towards its goal, the Child Center staff will build on experiences in art, physical activities, improvization, reading, group play, and field trips. For further information or registration forms, call the centers at 969-5906.

Ms. Werbe, who has a master's degree in Early Childhood Education from the University of Massachusetts and has directed a Headstart program for pre-schoolers of low income families in western Massachusetts, stresses that an individual approach will be used in determining each child's starting point and help each child develop during the year.

The Child Center will feature the kind of social and learing experiences ''that can help children become competent, creative and more independent,'' she said.

Parents interested in learning more about the program, which still has a few openings for the greater Newton area, can contact Susan Werbe at the center, 527-9757.

Towers land foreclosed

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
of the Newton Graphic staff

The mortgage holder for the land on which the Towers at Chestnut Hill were to have been built has filed a foreclosure suit against the trustees of the Towers, apparently bringing to an end the plans to build in the near future.

Nothing has been done at the Towers site since late 1973, when the permissive use was found to have expired, and many months of discussion were needed in the Board of Aldermen before a new permissive use could be granted.

In the intervening time, the trustees of the Towers, Mario DiCarlo of Newton and Albert Goodman of Detroit, lost their commitment on construction financing and have been trying unsuccessfully to regain financing.

The foreclosure has been described as a "friendly" one by a knowledgeable source, designed to force a sale of the property by the two trustees.

There have rumors for about a year that the Towers land was up for sale. The rumors were denied by the trustees, although DiCarlo said once that if a good offer were made, they would sell.

Now the Towers land will be sold without a doubt.

The new owners of the land will be able to build what has already been approved, but any deviation from what has been approved would require another permissive use.

The Board of Aldermen might then have a different opinion as to what use should be made of the land.

A complication of any sale of the land is the agree ment between the Towers and the Newton Community Development Foundation (NCDF), in which the Towers promised to help NCDF build low- and moderate-income housing on a site ad-

Life Care passes 16-8

The Life Care Center was finally approved Monday night with the minimum number of votes necessary from the Board of Aldermen, but not without last-minute efforts to tighten up the restrictions and safeguards in the permissive use.

New information brought out by Ald. Joseph McDonnell, chairman of the Land Use Committee, caused a rescission of the favorable vote and an amendment to the permissive use order before the final reaffirmation of the 16-8 vote.

The Life Care Center, a 179-unit residence for the elderly, will be built on Stanton Avenue, Auburndale, by developers Arthur Ullian and Dr. Robert Guiney, then turned over to a community group, Interfaith Life Care Center, to manage and operate.

McDonnell and several other aldermen have been opposed to the Life Care Center because of the size of the building to be erected and the change in zone allowing high-density use of the land.

McDonnell told the aldermen Monday night that the all-important certificate of need, which is required for the 20-bed nursing unit that will be an integral part of the Life Care Center, has been issued to a corporation called "Retirement Center Nursing Home, Inc.," not to Interfaith Life Care Center.

There was a question in McDonnell's mind that the state will actually issue a certificate of need when reapplication is made with the correct name of the group.

McDonnell was successful in having the permissive use amended so that there can be no building permit issued until the certificate of need has been obtained.

McDonnell also objected to the hazy wording of an agreement between the developers and the Interfaith group, which by Monday night had not been signed by both parties.

Aldermen opposed to the Life Care Center were Ald. Wendell Bauckman, Louis Egelson, David Jackson, McDonnell, Edward Richmond, Joan Saklad, Susan Schur, and Sidney Small.

No cuts yet in school budget

By RICHARD WILLIAMS
of the Graphic staff

The School Committee accepted an open-ended school busing contract that will go out to bid soon, and made no cuts at all in the superintendent's proposed $31 million budget for the school year 1975 to '76.

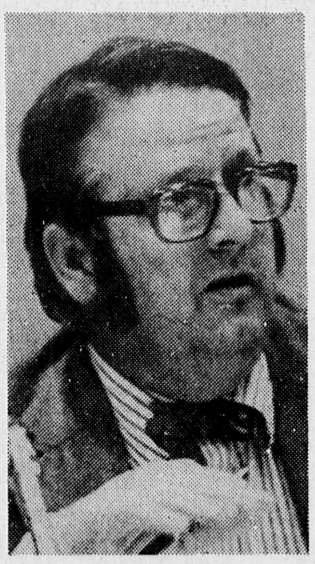
In the two meetings last Thursday and Monday, the nine members of the committee discussed the administrative, personnel, and part of the program accounts, without taking any tenative action that was scheduled in the agenda.

At Monday night's meeting, several School Department personnel reported on questions raised by the committee members.

Director of Personnel James Laurits satisfied Committeeman Alvin Mandell's curiosity about the effect of increasing the pupil-weighted staff ratio in the junior and pupil senior high schools.

Laurits said Mandell's idea to increase the ratio by 5 in the schools would have an adverse effect on class size, individualized attention, supplemental library and media services, and, in some cases, part of a school's program would be lost or greatly reduced.

Mandell agreed that this would be a severely devasting result, and presented another page of information to the committee showing a raise in the system pupil-weighted staff ratio from the proposed 13.87 to 14 would be a drop in less than 11 hired professionals, and result in a savings of $137,410.



Henry Atkins

Mandell noted that these cuts could be from the 25 percent of the professional personnel that were not classrooom teachers.

Fink added that the supportive services are most of the 25 percent nonclassroom personnel, which includes library, physical education, speech, guidance, and music teachers.

Fink also commented that the pupil-staff ratio in the elementary schools could not be reduced unless the School Committee forced principals and teachers to combine grades in their respective schools.

About 12 elementary schools have chosen to combine some grades, and a few of these have elimated the grade system entirely.

It is the present policy of the School Committee to allow the principal and teachers of each school to choose how they want to organize the students, even though this sometimes results in a wide range of the pupil-teacher ratio in the schools.

Laurits came to Monday's meeting with information Mayor Theodore Mann requested on the cost of running the Murray Road annex of Newton North High School.

The personnel costs per student at Murray Road were $1299 last year, compared to the acutual costs of $1390 per student at Newton North.

Superintendent Fink noted that since the school has only one custodian, it certainly is less expensive to operate than the Peabody School of a similar physical size with two custodians.

In response to Committeeman Henry Delicata, Director of the Budget Harry Vienneau corrected the listing in School Committee expenditures for books, subscriptions, and magazines.

This $2125 allotment that stayed the same since last year also includes supplies for the committee, such as tapes for recording the meetings.

The committee chose not to act on personnel until hearing recommendations for program, since the two are so closely intertwined.

Henry Atkins, assistant superintendent for program, explained 10 pages of the 110-page section Monday night, and the committee was to have voted on tentative action for the program at their meeting Wednesday (last night).

Sabbatical leaves will cost the taxpayers $68,150 next year, the same amount as budgete d for this year. This will probably allow for one person to leave for the whole year and 10 for half a year.

The sabbatical leave request for from teachers next year's budget was $208,500, and, according to the budget report, teachers apply a second or third time when their requests are not granted.

The committee also reviewed $13,900 for extra assignments in the two senior high

Stalling tactics postpone crucial disposal vote

With a May 31 deadline for discontinuing burning in the Newton incinerator and a deadline of Feb. 1 to accept the bid price for construction of a transfer-haul station facing the city, Ald. Richard Bullwinkle led five aldermen in a "charter" delay of the vote on the financial appropriation Monday night.

A five-man charter postpones any action until the next regularly scheduled meeting of the Board of Aldermen.

The mayor's chief administrative officer, James Salter, said Tuesday that he had been able to convince the contractor with the low bid, SCA Disposal Services, that all final action will have taken place no later than Feb. 5, and said that SCA had tentatively agreed to extend the bid price to that date.

The item up for a vote was only $50,000 to get transfer-haul under way, but in effect it is a commitment to depart from incineration as a method of refuse disposal.

Ald. Richard McGrath, who has often said he feels that the opportunity to participate in the decision to close the incinerator rather than upgrade it was denied the Board of Aldermen, spoke at length against the transfer-haul proposal.

After proposing that the transfer-haul station be built into the old incinerator at Elliot Street, he called transfer-haul a conversion of the problem of burning and flyash to a problem of trucks and traffic.

The decision of the Newton-Waltham Regional Refuse Disposal Committee, which has been working for about two years to try to find a feasible solution to rubbish disposal for the two cities together, that transfer-haul is the short-term solution shows that the district has failed, McGrath said.

McGrath also inveighed against what he feels is the loss of control by the Board of Aldermen over the method of rubbish disposal.

Ald. Sidney Small said to McGrath, "This Board does have control. It is totally economically unfeasible to use the Elliot Street incinerator."

The risks of upgrading the incinerator and continuing with incineration were pointed out by Ald. David B. Cohen. First, he said, if the city spends the $4-5 million needed to upgrade the incinerator it may still not meet air-quality standards.

Even if the incinerator could meet air-quality standards, Cohen continued, having spent so much money on upgrading (probably by bonding), the city would be reluctant to abandon the incinerator in favor of resource recovery.

The goal of the Newton-Waltham committee has now been extended to the eventual formation of a resource-recovery region that would encompass several neighboring towns.

The state has encouraged the district in this effort.

Bullwinkle said the city had "listened to the siren song of federal money " in accepting the grant under which the Newton-Waltham district has been operating for the two years of its existence.

He also complained about the inability of the Board to have the decision on rubbish disposal. "The decision-making process

Enrollment committee completes more work

The Citizens Advisory Committeee on Declining Enrollment has wound up discussions on the fourth of six study proposals. The talks focused on measures to ease the impact on the community in the event one or more schools were closed and possibly consolidated.

The discussion sprang from separate memos from Mrs. Jane Weingarten and Dr. Ronald Nuttall. They were general and did not mention any specific school in the city.

Nuttall's memo covered the following five points: changing the name of the consolidated school, selection of staff, consolidating the PTA's, blending the educational programs of the schools and developing a plan to deal with the transition. In addition, Nuttall suggested a plan would be needed to determine the use of the empty building or buildings.

With an eye towards future declining enrollment, committee member, Jane Weingarten asserted "I would not endorse any plan which says more than one change for a child would be necessary." Mrs. Weingarten's memo on neighborhood school attachment suggested "it would be valuable to combine community schools by village."

Mrs. Weingarten felt that a neighborhood school attachment could be transferred to a different building provided "carefully planned steps are taken by the School Committee and school administration to preserve what is familiar and comfortable."

Committeeman, Edward Shapire Shapiro, expressed concern about which schools would be selected for this consolidation plan, if it were adopted He based his concern on alleged difficulties at Meadowbrook Junior High School arising from a blending of students.

Shapiro's other concern was that parents entering a consolidated school might be reluctant to participate as fully as they had before.

However, other committee members felt the "same factors which motivated parents before to become active would still be present." Mrs. Weingarten stated that "parents should be made to feel their involvement will affect the climate... we will build together."

As far as Shapiro's concern about mixing students from various areas, some members felt consolidation could "encourage a sense of the city through integration."

The members felt action by the school

Seeing the sights in Nicaragua

Cookie and Malcolm Kates

by ELEANOR SIEGEL
of the Graphic staff

Dr. Malcolm Kates is an inspired, tennis playing optometrist, whose idea of a vacation is two weeks in Puerto Cabazes, Nicaragua treating impoverished villagers.

Dr. Kates got the idea from an ad in a journal saying that physicians were needed by an organization known as Direct Relief Doctor. When he approached his wife with the idea, she jokingly suggested he take along one of their two sons, aged 22 and 26. However, Cookie Kates is a warm, lovely woman with a taste for adventure and not only went along, but also helped keep records on patients , some with exotic names such as Cinderella Wilson whose address is "near old graveyard."

Negotiations for the trip took five months. The call for a doctor came from the 30 bed Gray Memorial Hospital, an hour and a half outside of Managua, by plane. The hospital was looking for an optometrist. Dr. Kates communicated with the director of the hospital, an American, via a short wave radio "patch." Because the country is so poor, telephone communications from a villege like Puerto Cabazes are non-existent.

Connections on the short wave were made after Dr. Kates contacted a short wave association in Connecticut which referred him to a club in Natick. From this, came word of an operator inWayland who made the connections to Nicaragua. Result: the phone "call" cost only the toll cost from Newton to Wayland.

Within two weeks after contact, Dr. Kates packed up as much equipment "as I could carry" and he and his wife were winging their way to the primitive village inhabited by members of the Misquita tribe to provide optometry services for the villagers whose average income is $30 a year.

"I took twice as much equipment as I could carry, because I feared the loss of equipment which would make the trip useless." The Kates had also been warned that customs inspectors could not be trusted and the safest way to send things was carry them or send them with someone.

Although they both claim, they didn't "rough it", their accomodations were not the same as when they visited Managua, Nicaragua as tourists some years back.

"We were put up in trailers divided into four apartments...they were clean, we had

Confidentiality of records topic of NHMA meeting

Confidentiality of records will be the subject of an open meeting of the Newton Mental Health Association Thursday, Jan. 30.

Benjamin Lipson, member of the NMHA board of directors and in the insurance business with special interest in the area of mental health insurance, will speak.

The meeting is at the Newton Guidance Clinic, 64 Eldredge St., Newton Corner, at 8 p.m.

The Newton Guidance Clinic is particularly concerned with the question of confidentiality for many reasons. Seventy per cent of its clientele are recipients of Medicaid assistance, which involves the solicitation and recording of much personal information. The clinic treats children of school age, whose best interests must be protected as to what appears in their records and who sees them, as this could have a significant bearing on the rest of their lives.

The Newton Guidance Clinic will soon be a part of a computer-data collection system for storage of information for all of Mental Health Region V of the state.

The advent of increased insurance coverage for treatment of mentally ill and emotionally troubled people under a proposed national health insurance plan, the mandatory coverage of outpatient treatment by Massachusetts insurance companies beginning next year, and a law giving judges the authority to summon private records, raise the question about maintaining the confidential relationship between patient and therapist.

The professional and lay public is invited to share these concerns of the Newton Mental Health Association at the Jan. 30 meeting.

Move to save Richardson house encouraged

by ELEANOR SIEGEL
of the Graphic staff

The struggle to save a Newton Centre home, designed by America's first famous architect, H.H. Richardson, has received a shot in the arm from architect, Robert Neiley, chairman of historic resources for the Boston Society of Architects.

Neiley, after inspecting the home adjacent to the Peabody School, assured Polly Egelson, chairwoman of the Newton Cultural Arts Commission, that the house is indeed a major work designed by H.H. Richardson.

There had been some doubt about this because the home had been designed in the last year of Richardson's life. The home had been built by a Dr. Bigelow of Newton, a man who had been Isabel Stuart Gardener's personal physician.

Neiley, who communicated with Mrs. Egelson by letter, stated that the home "represents the colorful, control and confident work of a mature artist such as Richardson and as such the community should value, protect and use it."

He expressed the hope that the Newton community could generate the financial support necessary to restore the house to life. So far, the Newton Cultural Affairs Commission had been instrumental in obtaining $4,000 from the city to board up the house until its fate can be determined.

Now that its authenticity has been proven, Mrs. Egelson and other commissioners will meet with the planning department to work on getting the house listed on the national register.

The national register was formed by the National Historic Preservation Act of 1966 and publishes a list of property significant in American history, architecture, archeology and culture.

An official statement of which property merits preservation, the register also provides limited government protection so that landmarks may be saved from destruction. Once listed, the landmark may not be razed without a public hearing. more

If the commission succeeds in getting the house listed, it will try to raise funds to save the house. Mrs. Egelson explained that there are public and private funds available, however, the commission will have to investigate which funds they are eligible for.

In matching fund programs, the one prerequisite is that there be some money available to begin with. However, Mrs. Egelson is optomistic about raising the money.

The third step would be to establish a volunteer group, to act as Friends of the Richardson house and work on programs that will "maintain the house."

Mrs. Egelson noted that the project "seems to have hit an emotional response." She says she has already received calls from a volunteer carpenter, caretaker and from artists who wish to rent space.

In Waltham, the city has paid Radcliffe fellow, Dr. M. Floyd, to evaluate a Richardson house the city is considering preserving. Much of Richardson's works have been torn down, including the old Marshall Field warehouse in Chicago.

WHITE RELEASED

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Pittsburgh Steeler defensive end Dwight White, who played in Super Bowl IX despite a viral infection, was released Tuesday from Divine Providence Hospital after a seven-day stay.

White spent five days in a New Orleans hospital before the Steelers' 16-6 Super Bowl victory over the Minnesota Vikings and was hospitalized again after his return here following the game.

Recreation notes

Skating safety emphasized

Now that winter weather has arrived, the skating facilities under the superivsion of the Newton Recreation Department are beginning to function.

Crystal Lake opened Thursday and Ware's Cove in Auburndale on Friday. Bullough's Pond in Newtonville takes a little longer to assure safe ice because of runoff waters emptying into it.

Skating in flooded tennis court areas has been delayed because the ice is broken by children or littered with debris. These skating areas are at the Hamilton School, Franklin School, Upper Falls Playground, Emerson School, Newton Highlands Playground, Memorial School and Ward School.

Safety considerations require a minimum of four inches for skating and six inches of ice to handle equipment. Skating is allowed within the post areas only. Parents and children are warned that it is dangerous to skate outside the posted boundaries.

The Recreation Department also points out that Crystal Lake is a "great pond," and as such is open to ice fishermen during the winter. These licensed fishermen must not make any holes in the ice within 500 feet of the posted skating area boundaries.

The Toboggan slide is operating and already this year has been open longer than all of last year, when the mild winter allowed only five days of operation.

Information on conditions at the city's skating areas and the toboggan slide in Newton Centre may be obtained by calling 969-3173 nights and weekends.

Basketball League

All three divisions of the American Basketball League are now in the third week of play. Results to date indicate no one team will be able to run away this year. An example of the good balance in the 1975 league is the fact that last year's champs, the Waban Wonders, have already suffered their first defeat.

Women's Basketball

Women 16 years of age and older are eligible to play in the Recreation Department's Women's Basketball League. Games are played at the Day Junior High School. Three games are played each night between 6:30 and 9:30 p.m.

In the first round of play, the Tigers defeated the Hut 17-3' the Day Knights prevailed over Sacred Heart 23-8, and Tony's Villa won over the Watermelons 41-8. Corpus Christi drew a bye.

A unique feature of the League is that all awards are based on sportsmanship. The success of the league is due to the organizational efforts of Diane Reddy and Cathy England.

Weight-Lifting Class

Instructional weight-lifting classes for men and women are being held at the North High School under the direction of Austin Moore.

Men's classes are held Sundays and Wednesdays and women's classes on Tuesdays and Fridays. The hours for all classes are between 7:30 and 9:30 p.m.

Interested Newton citizens may register at the North High School.

Skating Session Completed

Last Tuesday, the first of theee ten-week skating programs was completed. The classes for children in the first through sixth grades were held at the MDC Daly Rink.

Recreation Commissioner Russell J. Halloran, at the final session, presented awards of participation to those who completed the program.

The instructors were Carol Butterworth and Rosemary Cloran.

The skating program has proved so popular that a third series is now in progress.

ID Cards

The photographer will be at the Hull Street entrance to Newton North High School pool on Saturday, Jan. 25, from 2 to 4 p.m. for those wishing to purchase the recreation identification card. The cost is $2 per individual.

Benefit Basketball Game

On Sunday, Feb. 2, at the Newton North High School, Halloran's Heroes will take on the Midnight Five in a benefit game for the Reggie Smith Memorial Scholarship Fund. Donations will be accepted at the door.

Hearing scheduled for Johnston

Richard Allan Johnston, 18, of 5 Hallron Rd., Lower Falls, will have a probable cause hearing Tuesday, Feb. 4, after 20 days of psychiatric examination at Bridgewater State Hospital.

John6ton pleaded innocent to the charge of first degree murder in Newton District Court last Thursday, in connection with the shooting of Robert Peter McGettigan, 19, of 20 Riverside Rd., Watertown, Wednesday, Jan. 15, at Holiday Inn, Lower Falls.

Police found McGettigan propped up against a wall at Holiday Inn, at about 2:45 a.m., Wednesday, and was pronounced dead on arrival at Newton-Wellesley Hospital with multiple shots in his body from a ".22 caliber rifle," according to the court complaint against Johnston.

Neither County Medical Examiner Nathaniel P. Brackett, Jr., nor Newton Police would say exactly how many shots were fired at McGettigan.

Police said McGettigan was a driver for Yellow Cab of Newton, and was a former Newton resident who graduated from Newton North High School in 1973.

Johnston has been a student in the same school this year.

Hearing on water rates

An anticipated "substantial increase" in water rates will be the topic of a public hearing Wednesday, Jan. 29, at 10:30 a.m., at the Metropolitan District Commission headquarters, 20 Somerset St., Boston.

A press release from the MDC headquarters indirectly quoted Commissioner John W. Sears as saying "it appears a substantial increse in the water rate will be necessary."

Sears also noted that costs of fuel, electricity, chemicals, and other basic necessities have escalated.

He said that the cost-of-living increases to MDC employees has also substantially incresed costs.

Parking changes on Bowers St.

The Traffic Commission at its December meeting voted to begin a 60-day trail of one-hour parking on the northwesterly side of Bowers Street from Newtonville Avenue to a point opposite meter no. 298. The purpose of the trial is to determine whether on-street parking will detrimentally affect traffic movements and safety in the area and whether it is the type of parking control required to adequately serve the area businessles.

The trial will begin Sunday, Jan. 19, 1975. During the trial, members of the Police and Planning Department will observe and evaluate traffic conditons in the area. Toward the end of the trial, scheduled to terminate on March 19, 1975, the Traffic Commission will recommend to the Board of Aldermen whether . permanent parking controls should be implemented.

Enrollment discussed informally

by ELEANOR SIEGEL
of the Graphic Staff

In an effort to exert pressure on the School Committee to keep all schools open despite declining enrollment, an informal coffee klatch was held recently by a group of women at the home of Florence Mann. The spokeswoman for the group was Marion Knapp, a member of the Countryside School PTA.

Some of the 35 women at the coffee were highly critical of the School Committee and expressed the feeling that the taxpayers had to make their wants known and "the only way to effect a impact is to make a unified effort."

The schools represented by the women were Angier, Beethoven, Bowen, Countryside, Emerson, Hyde, Spaulding, Oak Hill, Hamilton, Mason-Rice and Memorial.

Only one woman at the meeting had no children in an elementary school.

The women were asked to write members of the School Committee about the issue of closing a school. The prevailing sentiment was that the schools should remain open. more. "We don't feel a school will be closed irresponsibly," stated Mrs. Mann, "but if they want to save money, there are 150 ways they could look at (the problem)."

Mrs. Mann, whose husband is Mayor Theodore Mann, was asked if people might feel a meeting in her home meant she had access to either information or "pull", replied "my husband doesn't discuss the issue with me because he knows I am completely closed (minded) on the subject and he is completely open (minded)."

In a later interview, Mrs. Knapp said she became involved after "attending meetings of the declining enrollment committee and the School Committee."

"I felt the committee was not going to utilize information properly and decided to try to make people aware... I want to know whether there are other areas to cut out spending... perhaps the administration should reassess they way they are running their own bureau."

Mrs. Knapp stated emphatically that closing a school was a decision about "information must be found to determine if this is the way people want to save money." The information Mrs. Knapp was referring to was whether closing a school would affect real estate values, how many people are moving in and out of Newton and the effects of reevaluation.

Dr. Frances F. Korten spoke before the group about population growth. Dr. Korten, a professional in the field working for the International Committee for the management of population programs, has challenged Dr. Vincent Silluzio's recent projected enrollment study. Dr. Silluzio is the director of research and planning for the school department.

Dr. Korten contends there will be a "baby boom beginning in 1979" and in that year shrinking enrollment will begin to expand. However, she acknowledges "the expansion may not be so big, but the potential is there." Dr. Korten stresses keeping the schools open for two or three years until a study to determine this factor may be made.

One woman attending the coffee, urged the women to attend the meetings of the Citizens Advisory Committee on declining enrollment and inform themselves about the efforts of this committee. She said the committee meets once a week and "14 people have spent hours discussing this problem."

However, some of the women questioned the effectiveness of the committee and "how seriously the report will be taken."

Criminal History Systems Board issues regulations on records

The Criminal History Systoms Board has sent out its final regulations governing the security and privacy of criminal-offender records in Massachusetts.

The Board commenced its deliberations in April, 1974, after receiving recommendations from its Advisory Committee and after holding two sets of public hearings in several cities across the Commonwealth. The regulations reflect a balance between the interests of law enforcement, privacy and offender rehabilitation.

The Criminal History Systems Board is a state agency established to regulate criminal records. It consists of the commissioners of Public Safety, correction, Probation, Youth Services and the Boston Police Department, the Chairman of the Parole Board and the Massachusetts Defenders Committee, the executive director of the Committee on Criminal Justice, the Attorney General, or their representatives, and representatives of the Massachusetts Chiefs of Police Association and the Massachusetts Sheriffs Association. During the development of the regulations the board was chaired by Arnold R. Rosenfeld, executive director of the Committee on Criminal Justice. Attorney General Francis X. Bellotti was recently appointed the new chairmen. The regulations cover content of, access to, and dissemination of records of offenders which are maintained by state and local criminal-justice agencies. Massachusetts is the first state to establish regulations placing privacy safeguards on criminal-justice information systems. As a result of pressure from Massachusetts, the U.S. Justice Department is expected to promulgate regulations within the next few months requiring all states to take similar action.

Some of the principal provisions of the regulations are:

1. Only criminal justice agencies and agencies authorized by statute will be given access to criminal offender records.

2. The information to be regulated will include only factual data concerning the offender's processing through the criminal justice system.

3. The regulations will control content of, access to, and dissemination of records in all automated systems, and access to and dissemination of manual systems.

4. The system will not include data on juveniles unless they are adjudicated and sentenced as adults.

5. Notice of the fact that the system exists, that there is the right to inspect, protest, and-or correct or remove information in the system will be provided to:

(a) all defendants upon their first appearance in court;

(b) all defendents upon discharge from court, probation, parole, or incarceration; and

(c) all persons whose cases are in the system at the time it becomes operational.

In addition, each year public notice will be given on the location of the system, its purpose, the number of persons whose names are included, and the rights of individuals regarding inspection, corrections, and removal of data.

6. Individuals can inspect their own records and request that erroneous information be corrected.

7. Individuals working for private rehabilitation agencies may utilize criminal-offender record information under strict supervision and when there is a legitimate contractual relationship to perform rehabilitative services for a correctional agency.

8. Agencies and individuals violating the regulations are subject to criminal and civil penalties and will have their access too records suspended.

The following regulations relate specifically to the computerized criminal-justice information system which is expected to be operational in approximately 14 months:

9. Stringent security safeguards are provided to protect against unauthorized access to and intentional or unintentional harm to the records, including the development of a security classification system.

10. Past arrest records which resulted in non-guilty dispositions will not be converted onto the system and all new cases resulting in non-guilty dispositions will be removed completely from the automated system.

11. All cases resulting in nolle prosequi or dismissal, or for which the court has ordered the sealing of the record, shall be kept off-line.

12. Inactive felons and misdemeanants will have their records automatically removed to an off-line mode after seven and five years respectively.

13. Inquiries on records which are off-line shall be answered "no record."

14. Off-line records will only be available to law enforcement agencies when the chief executive officer of the agency certifies it is necessary for the conduct of a current criminal investigation.

15. Information kept off-line will be restored to on-line access to criminal-justice agencies if the individual has been convicted of a subsequent offense punishable by not less that six months' incarceration.

A copy of the rules and regulations filed by the Criminal History Systems Board may be obtained from Hank Shafran at 727-6958.

Gas station operators want shorter hours

At a meeting originally planned as a public hearing for extension of hours for a gasoline station, members of the aldermanic Consumer Affairs and Licenses Committee heard dealers say that hours should be cut back instead.

The Old Colony station at 1172 Beacon St., Newton Highlands, withdrew its petition for longer hours, but since more than a dozen dealers had come to oppose the petition, CAL Chairman Michael Lipof asked them to speak.

"Our views are that 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. is more realistic," Dan Salvucci, president of the Newton Retail Dealers Association, said.

Salvucci said that if it were not for the Newton ordinance establishing hours for gas stations as no longer than 7 a.m. to 10 p.m., station operators would be "coerced" into longer hours.

In other communities, Salvucci said, hours are getting longer , against the wishes of the operators.

The Board of Aldermen restricted hours of operation in 1971 in an effort to prevent late-night drug trafficking and holdups of gas stations, both of which were becoming frequent occurrences.

At the that time the gasoline dealers were in favor of earlier closing.

Salvucci thanked the Board for "things it did for us that we didn't know," such as rejecting a petition to change two stations to gas-and-food retail outlets not allowing self-service stations.

Two aldermen used the occasion to remind the dealers that henceforth when a station's license is up for renewal or there is an application for permission to renovate a station, the presence of the operator will be required not merely a lawyer sent by the firm.

Lipof added a comment about the conduct of some of the operators during last year's gasoline crisis. He asked them, if there should be another such crieis, to fly flags indicating whether they have gas and to stagger hours.

Salvucci apologized for "any indignities," explaining that the dealers had had no experience in that kind of situation.

"Most of us are just pea-picking country boys," Salvucci added.

Police stop juveniles after boutique robbery

Newton Police arrested two Waltham juvenile boys in connection with the theft of $300 worth of rings from the Peace Boutique, 811 Washington St., West Newton, last Thursday.

The manager of the store called police at 12:10 p.m. to report that a youth had stolen a blue velvet case from his store, and fled on foot with another youth who was outside the store.

The youths were soon afterwards apprehended.

Officer Frederick D. Fraini apprehended thefirst youth on Linwood Avenue, Newtonville, and Officer James F. Dangelo apprehended the second youth behind a house on Central Avenue, Newtonville, where the rings were found.

Since both boys were juveniles, their names were not released.

The Youth Commission

With the resignations last week of Rev. Charles Coyle and Fay Snider, the Youth Commission reached an all-time low of two members.

Obviously, something is wrong.

Apparently there is some misunderstanding on the part of commission members and the Dept. of Human Resources as to what the function of the Youth Commission really is.

The misunderstanding should be attended to immediately in the hope that when new members of the community are appointed to fill the five vacancies on the commission, they will take their places with a much clearer understanding of what they are to do.

According to the revised ordinances of 1973, the Youth Commission is charged with the responsibility of "carrying out programs which may be designed or established to meet the opportunities, challenges and problems of Newton youth."

It is further charged with the duty of coordinating existing programs and activities, promulgating policies to handle youth issues and creating a sense of continuity in youth programs.

The current commission, well on its way to a total eclipse, has hardly shown any signs of doing any of these things.

Community input is the underlying purpose of all of the commissions and committees in Newton.

Where is the input from the Youth Commission? It appears to be the least effective of all Newton citizen committees.

The ordinance also charges the Youth Commission with the responsibility of "coordinating with and seeking supervision from" the Dept. of Human Resources.

We don't want to see the Youth Commission abolished. We don't want to see community input silenced on any level of government.

However, we hope that when what will amount to a new Youth Commission takes over, members will approach their jobs with an eye toward finding and using the widest array of resources available to help the youth of the city. We hope they will make use of the expertise offered by the Human Resources Dept. head, and we hope they will act, not just talk.

The needle's eye

The school budget: a non sequitur

By DON LEVITAN

Budgeting, according to professionals, is considered the ultimate tool of management.

A rational process is to be followed in the setting of policy with its necessary objectives and goals. Within this format, priorities are established ; and ultimately, programs promulgated.

This entire system operates in concert with the financial policies of the sponsoring organization.

In our case it is the school system.

On the basis of the School Committee meetings so far, I am forced to conclude that with minor exception, our School Committee continues to exhibit a provincial comprehension of rational budgeting, which leads one to question how it establishes policy.

True, its largesse is quite beyond the understanding of most of us. But why is it that the smaller the item under consideration, the more intense and lengthy the discussion?

We have been told that this is a comprehensive budget with a zero base. Comprehensive, well, almost; zero base, never!

Zero base, simply stated, is when you start with zero cost and then determine the cost to provide specified services. Most who use this approach report a modest decrease.

What we have here in Newton does not resemble this approach in construction, in format or in results.

The budget is constructed along a classical incremental format with each entry segregated by dollar amount as well as by the percent increase over the previous fiscal year.

This format is the type preferred for maintaining increases, not allowing for cuts.

As for comprehension, judge for yourself. What is presented does not include, to mention a few of the more salient, police crossing guards, public health nurses, school construction or selected public works functions.

A sizeable amount.

But nowhere does it say that these items are to be included. Nor does the budget reflect, to no fault of the School Committee, the potential increase yet to be bargained with for teachers.

The conclusion is rather astounding. No matter what amount is agreed upon at these budget hearings, it will cost us more. And the way it looks now, it is going to start costing more and end up costing even more than that.

It behooves the School Committee to be cognizant of the potential extra-budgetary costs its deliberations engender.

Further, the School Committee continues to act as an advocate for the school administration as well they may in some cases; but the major thrust to also represent the citizenry seems lost.

The rush by several members to not allow the administration to respond to questions by answering for them; or what is even worse, to explain what is meant in an administration response, to each other as well as to the audience, does not do justice to our schools and surely not the committee.

I suggest that they could learn from the Board of Aldermen as to the role they should assume at budget time.

At present, you and I, as well as the School Committee, have no method of judging the quality of education nor the effectiveness of the educational process.

Without the creation of a rational budget policy re flecting administrative policy, budgetary decreases as well as increases may not be comprehended.

We cannot ask relevant questions, such as, if we were to cut the budget by 5, 10 or even 15 percent, how much would this affect programs? I would say very little.

Within the present budgetary process, I cannot prove or disprove this thesis, but neither can the School Committee.

Austerity Marks Start Of the Dukakis Regime

During his first month in office Michael S. Dukakis has functioned differently from past Governors in some respects and much the same as them in others.

He has set an austerity note for his administration. Dukakis has cut the size of the gubernatorial staff to less than half the number employed by former Governor Francis W. Sargent, has banned pay raises for high state officials and discouraged the use of chauffeur-driven, state-owned automobiles.

Dukakis is trying to carry out the program he outlined in his campaign. How well he succeeds will depend on his working relationship with the Legislature.

A maverick himself when he served in the Massachusetts House of Representatives; Dukakis made a belated effort to establish peace with the law-makers in his inaugural address. It met with a rather cool reception.

Governor Dukakis reduced the number of aides on his staff to 51 full-time employees who are paid a total of $635,500 a year.

Many persons are likely to wonder why one Governor needs the assistance of 51 persons to run his office. One answer is that ex-Governor Sargent had a staff of 120 persons who were paid $1.3 Million annually.

It would seem that many persons in one suite of gubernatorial offices would be bumping into each other and getting in each other's way. But Sargent's staff appeared to function with reasonable efficiency although Dukakis obviously considered it too big and criticized it in his campaign.

Governor Dukakis placed great emphasis in his campaign on the fact that there would be no patronage in his administration and that the patronage bureau in the Governor's office would be abolished.

Some Beacon Hill observers are beginning to wonder exactly what Dukakis meant. PD Dukakis' insistence on using the MBTA to travel between his Brookline home and the State House may have a psychological effect both on the public and other high state officials who like to be chauffered in state-owned shiny black limousines.

But it creates both communications and protection problems, and it actually costs more than it would for him to be driven by a state trooper in a state-owned automobile.

Members of Dukakis' staff understandably feel they should be able to contact him at any time; and that is possible when he is riding in an automobile equipped with a telephone. But it is much more difficult and expensive to reach him when he's on a street car between stops in the Park street subway.

Several police officers also watch over him during his trips to and from work, including the period he's on the MBTA. His use of the transit line is an expensive publicity stunt. But, as one of his aides pointed out, he's the Governor, and if he decided to go from Brookline to Beacon Hill by way of the Berkshires, no one could forbid him to do so.

Some opposition is surfacing in the Legislature to Dukakis' for abolishing the Governor's Council. Thoughtful law-makers are pointing out that Dukakis is not proposing that the functions now performed by the Council be transferred to any other elected body.

Governor Dukakis has created an 11-member Judicial Nominating Commission and has pledged that he will only appoint judges recommended by the commission. One member of the commission will be recommended by the Massachusetts Bar Association, and one will be a Massachusetts Law School dean or his designee.

The commission will recommend three persons when a judgeship or court clerkship is to be filled. If Dukakis doesn't like any of the three, he can request another three recommendations. But he must make a choice from the six nominees.

Dukakis believes that his change in the method of selecting judges will eliminate the need for maintaining a Governor's Council which confirms or rejects judicial and quasi-judicial appointments.

However, some State Senators and Representatives point out that the Governor appoints all the members of the Judicial Nominating Commission, that he can tell the Commission who to recommend and that the next Governor may want to make the selections himself and may scrap the Nominating Commission. They are waiting to see how the new system works before committing themselves on the question or wiping out the Governor's Council and the built-in judicial appointment safeguards.

One thing for which Dukakis is winning praise is that so far all his appointees have been Massachusetts residents. He has not appointed any out-of-state imports. Lucy's Privileges Irritate Colleagues

Mrs. Lucy Benson, former national president of the League of Women Voters and now the $39,000-a-year Secretary of Human Services in Governor Dukakis' Cabinet, apparently is beginning to irritate some of her fellow state officials and key mem-ers of Dukakis' staff.

"The rules don't apply to Lucy," one Dukakis aide observed in a rather sharp tone. PD Another bigwig in the Dukakis administration remarked that it seems silly for Governor Dukakis to use the MBTA to get from Brookline to the State House, ostensibly to save money and gasoline, while Mrs. Benson is chauffered from Amherst to Beacon Hill in a state-owned automobile.

Governor Dukakis went into that situation with his eyes wide open because Mrs. Benson accepted her state position on the specified condition that she would be provided with a state automobile and a driver to transport her from her western Massachusetts home to the State House whenever she was making the trip.

Dukakis has issued a stringent set of regulations covering the use of state cars.

A ban has been imposed on the overnight use of state-owned automobiles. One of the Governor's rules provides that state cars may not be used to carry cabinet members, commissioners, member of his staff or other high state officials to and from work.

But that regulation apparently does not apply to Mrs. Lucy Benson, and some of the state officials to whom it does apply evidently are a bit irritated by the distinction.

State House reporters have been commenting on Mrs. Benson's flip quips.

This one's turning over a new reef

Humor by Norton Mockridge

NEW YORK - This being the New Year, my dear friend, Jane Fones, of Scarsdale, N.Y., has made a firm reservation never again to commit a Fractured English.

"I swear it on a stash of Bibles," she told me the other day. "It's criminal to mistort the English language the way I have all these years and from now on I'm gpomg tp watch my 'ps' and 'cs' and walk the straight and narrow."

What got Jane into this frame of mind, according to her husband, John Scott Fones, the New York advertising and public relations man, was a dose of "Midgisms."

"Midgisms," John told me, "are statements uttered in all seriousness by one of Jane's closest friends — Midge Johnson, the wife of a corporation vice president. In our direct presence, Midge has come out with such things as:

" 'There I was, so busy I was standing around in circles.'

" 'I'm on the wings of a dilemma.'

" 'I don't remember what he did to me exactly, but I'll never forget it.' "

Jan was pretty shocked by Midge, but, says John, her determination to give up Fractured English was reinforced when he (John) gravely presented her with a list of some of her own examples of a malaprop mouthings.

Things like:

"It's a pretty ring, even if that is a stimulated diamond."

"I hear that if you put two stallions in a padlock together, they will fight to the death."

"They say that Secretariat could father as many as 37 fouls a year."

"I don't believe I really said those things," Jane told me. "They're just the produce of someone's ferrule imagination. I honestly think they've been manufactured out of whole soap."

One evening as they were driving home, Jane said to John: "We're out of beer. Shall we stop and get a couple six-packs of Michelangelob?" Later, after her purchases, she told John that for dinner: "I'm going to serve green beans with slithered almonds."

During the gasoline shortage she warned John to put a lock on his gas tank. "Otherwise," she said, "somebody might cypher out all your gas."

Traveling a bit, Jane once said: "I get so tired on these one-night stances." Exhausted, she said: "I'm so pooped I can hardly stand on my face." And she told friends that it was so hot on the trip that "People were fropping like fleas."

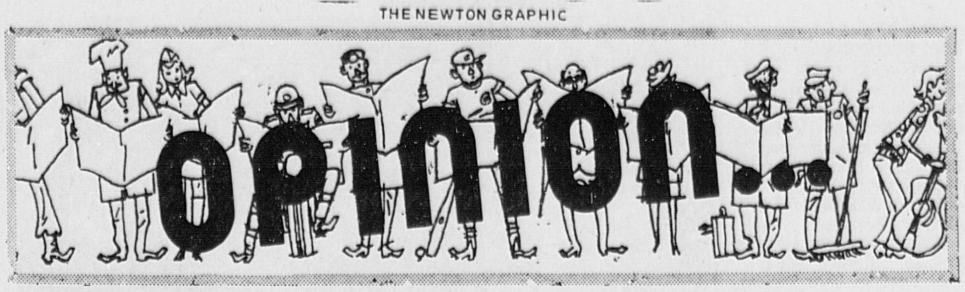
Jane always has thought that the cutest thing at the zoo is the "baby hypotenuse," and, looking at the giraffes, she said: "Those three make uite a pair."

Back from a visit to Mi-sissippi, she told friends: "How those Southerners love their harmony and grits." She wasn't able to visit all the Southern states on that trip but she said: "I really have no misgrievings about it."

Jane doesn't always interest herself in international politics, but recently she flung down the newspaper and said to John: "I really don't understand why India and Pachysandra can't see eye to eye!"

Well, all that's ended now. Jane's turning over a new reef. From now on the dictionary will be her cataclysm. And no longer will we hear her say:

"It's time for a drink. The moon's over the yardstick!"



Anti-abortion 'facts'

To The Editor:

In 1974 more and more Americans learned to puncture the slogans and emotional appeals enunciated by abortionists in favor of abortion. During the past year, Anericans gave increased attention to facts and attitudes related to the continued taking of the lives of unborn children by abortion, a practice now claiming a million and a half unborn American children per year.

In 1974, Americans in greatly increasing numbers realized that:

Biological evidence proves that human life begins at conception.

Respect for life must be applied to the very beginning of life and extend to its natural termination.

Abortions, prohibited by the proposed Human Life Amendment to the United States Constitution, necessarily involve the taking of a human life.

Suggestions that abortion only destroys a mass of cells, protoplasm or tissue are only concoted by abortionists in an attempt to cover up the violent death.

Fetus and other terms applied to the child after conception describe phases in the development of a child. They are not terms describing phases of something different from or less than human yet becoming a human child.

An abortion in destroying rather than protecting and preserving life is not the practice of medicine.

Abortionists frequently have direct financial interests in promoting abortions; aim much of their propaganda and promotional efforts at very young teenagers; end engage in appeals to religious bigotry and denounce established religion rather than discuss the life and death in abortion.

Organizations exist to provide medical, legal, financial, and other assistance to any woman needing it in connection with carrying her child to its birth whether she wishes to keep the child or give it up for adoption. No woman can have an excuse for destroying her child by abortion.

Communities do not have to tolerate abortion mills. City and town fathers can prevent the local operation of an abortion mill. Life can be protected if even a few citizens put their beliefs into action. The evil of abortion exists primarily through the inaction of good men.

The use of tax funds to extinguish the life of unborn Americans needed for our country's future does harm to our economy but ie being questioned at the local, state, and federal levels. Local, state, and federal officials receive much mail demanding that tax money not be used to pay for abortions.

The Human Life Amendment, based on the value and sanctity of every human life, draws closer to enactment in Congress every day. Its passage will stop abortions and will clearly reveal the moral bankrumptcy of a poeition which maintains life is devoid of value.

Every American has a serious responsibility in contributing in their own way to the right to life movement. State headquarters or a nearby chapter of a state right to life organization is not far from anyone in any of the fifty states. Every child saved is more than priceless. He or she is a child of God.

To do nothing or to attempt neutrality about abortion is to condone the taking of more lives per year by abortion than America lost fighting men in all the wars in its history from the Revolutionary War to and including the Vietnam War.

'Review' in review

To the Editor:

Friday night, Jan. 17, Neil McNeil didn't wink at me when he was introduced on Washington Week in Review and I'm worried. Neil McNeil always winks doesn't he? Experienced WWIR watchers would know and I want one of them to tell me. I've only been watching since last spring and haven't seen every single show, so can somebody tell me this: didn't he wink right through the summer, with Mideast crises and energy crunches to the left of us and Watergate to the right of us?

Didn't he wink the night he knew he was going to have to talk about Wilbur Mills' downfall? Didn't he wink the night Paul Dukes kidded him about his tie? Well; then, why didn't he wink Friday, the 17th?

Winkers are not my forte don't know much about them—probably somebody has done a study of winkers, got a doctorate out of it, for all I know—but my guess would be that there are conscious winkers and winkers who don't know they're winking.

Neil McNeil strikes me as being one of your friendly winkers, not like some. That's a reassuring wink. Now I have this feeling that he knew something that he couldn't bring himself to tell me and not winking was his way of getting it off his chest.

But what, for God's sake, what? Before, when he winked, he indicated, I thought, that whatever was going on in Washington wasn't so bad that we couldn't get through at least one more week. So now what? What, what, what?

Education in a pluralistic society

To the Editor:

With regard to the place of the neighborhood school in the deliberations of the Citizens Advisory Committee on Declining Enrollment, one of the guiding facts of the current situation must be the condition of economic stringency.

Any responsible educational proposal must include economic responsibility among its qualities. Some of us consider the present economic stringency as a problem; and therefore a challenge; and hence an opportunity.

How can we respond responsibly to economic shortage by using our available resources to best advantage? We see these resources as partly financial and material and partly human. It is important to note that human resources do not obey the same laws of scarcity and non-expansion that govern material resources. If you get more of our pie, I get less; if I spend my last dollar on a book I cannot also buy candy. But if you get more knowledge, love, information, wisdom, skill, or joy, it doesn't mean that I get less. The chances are that the opposite will be true; sharing human resources tends to mean more for everyone. We would like to approach the neighborhood school concept as a human challenge as well as an economic one.

One of the major problems facing Newton, as most neighborhoods in the country today, is that of human isolation, loneliness, alienation, and consequent feelings of impotence and powerlessness. In a word, the lack of effective participation in community.

We see the possibility of using the present crisis as an opportunity to ameliorate this problem by transforming neighborhoods (a geographical concept) into communities (a social and-or spiritual concept). The personal experience of many of us is that the neighborhood school has been the major focus for community building in our neighborhoods, for adults as well as for children.

We advocate the extension of this process, whereby the neighborhood school building becomes the place not only where children gather during the day for instruction but also where people of all ages gather at all hours of day and evening, all year long, for the myriad purposes of mutual education, resource sharing, knowledge pooling, community building, and fun.

The need for human connectedness is so great, and the social, criminal, and hence economic consequences of its lack so enormous, that some of us are willing to pay a great deal through taxation to support such uses of the neighborhood school. We believe that it makes not only human sense but also financial sense. We would rather pay through our school taxes for an ounce of prevention than pay through police, fire, hospital, and mental health services for pounds of cure.

It is essential that people in neighborhoods participate widely and actively in the current process of determining the uses of our school resources. We believe that such participation is itself an educational experience and that it will release power and creativity in the participants that will provide human resources far beyond what we at present can perceive to be available.

The neighborhood school is the most natural and logical — indeed the only feasible — focus for this vital process of community building to occur. This does not mean that neighborhoods must become sufficient unto themselves or separated from others.

On the contrary, we envisage a situation where the development of a strong feeling of community and identity can release people in a neighborhood to share their resources with other neighborhoods. Thus, for example, the neighborhood school concept is not incompatible with bussing if students are bussed to another neighborhood school on grounds of parental or student choice. We envisage the development of neighborhood schools with special emphases of educational philossophy or teaching style that will be attractive to certain parents and students from many parts of the city.

Available space at such schools could be filled by bussing volunteer studnets from other neighborhoods without impeding the process of community building.

Sharing human resources

To the Editor:

Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink has proposed that Newton add 100 METCO students to the current quota and continually increasing the amount until there will be approximately 440 by 1978.

METCO students are now availing themselves of Newton's educational facilities and their very presence does not in any way downgrade the educational system in any particular way.

For too long, our educational system did not reflect the needs of a pluralistic society. METCO students are in no way trying to escape from their backgrounds by being educated in Newton or any other suburban town. They are proud of their heritages.

Just liek you and every other American, minorities would like to see their children receive an equal and just education so taht they can equally compete in the adult world.

This has not been possible for many years in the Boston School System, and an equitable solution to this problem does not seem feasible in the near future. That is why METCO (state funded-totally) and other federally funded programs are in existence and need to remain in existence. ESAA is being phased out in New York.

METCO is an asset to any community because the educational system tends to provide for everyone's needs. Without METCO, suburban communities are not truly educating their youth to face the real world.

Psychologist and social workers are present to assist any child with problems. That's a plus for any school system.

Afro-American Studies would not have to be a separate course if our History Books truly reflected the History of America. The above-mentioned course would very definitely be beneficial to white Newton students; so the name of the course should not deter anyone from taking it. In fact, it should be a requried course after all, Blacks were given a "lily-white" history course for hundreds of years. We did not balk at all and accepted what was put before us.

Americans go abroad and "expect" as a matter of course that the natives of a particular country will automatically know some English. Perhaps you were never in a position whereby you were in a "foreign land" and no one spoke your tongue. If you were ever in a situation like this, perhaps you could better understand the need for Spanish in Newton schools.

A young child will feel comfortable in his native tongue and show great ability. The transition to English is made easier if a teacher is bilingual and can communicate with a child in Spanish or any other language. The presence of a Spanish speaking child in a classroom is a beautiful educational experience for all.

METCO was never designed to take the place of the integration of the Boston Public Schools. It has, however,-

Defeat Regal's bill

To the Editor:

Newton School Committeeman herbert F. Regal has filed a bill in the State Legislature titled the "Act to Equalize Educational Opportunity." I suggest that this bill should also include in its title; "and steal from the taxpayers in the suburbs."

Regal's bill would mandate that whenever a school seat is available in a city or town which is less than 8.4 per cent non-white, the system must accept students form a municipality which is greater than 16.8 per cent non-white. The city or town sending the students will then reimburse the city or town receiving them $400 per pupil.

The per-pupil cost in Newton, after including the $6,285,815 the city estimates it will receive in state aid, is approximately $1,306.22. Mr. Regal's bill would require that the Newton taxpayer pay the additional $906.22 for every child bused into this city.

Superintendent Aeron Fink stated at the Jan. 13 meeting of the Newton School Committee that he estimated the school enrollment will decrease 465 pupils in 1975-76. If these 465 available spaces were to be filled with bused-in students, it would cost Newton taxpayers $421,290 per year.

The yellow school bus is not the vehicle to equalize educational opportunity. The fact is that Massachusetts ranks 46th in the United States in state aid to education. The road to follow in improving the educational opportunities for all children should be an increase in our state aid to education.

Regal's plan constitutes an undue burden on the taxpayers of Newton. I strongly hope that this bill will be defeated in the Massachusetts Legislature.

Where's the fire?

To the Editor:

I am writing this letter to condemn, not to commend, the Fire Department.

We had a fire in our home four weeks ago and I was burned badly on my foot and leg. I have had four weeks of pain and bedrest to think about writing this letter.

We called the Fire Department when the fire occurred and a neighbor called also. My husband, myself and a neighbor, fortunately got the fire out by ourselves and it was contained to the dining room, but needless to say, the smoke and soot damage and my burns were not contained. The Fire Department sent their equipment to the wrong street, Levbert Road, and we are on Lovett Road.

The fact that it did happen is very sad, and the fact that they arrived here almost 15 minutes after the call was made is inexcusable, for we live only two minutes from the fire station. What is worse is that no one called to apologize or even acknowledge the fact that a terrible error was made.

I feel that somewhere, someone was negligent in their duties, not only in the line of duty, but also as a human being.

(Editor's note: This letter was sent to the chief of the Newton Fire Dept. and a copy was forwarded to the Newton Graphic):

To the Editor:

On Dec. 21, 1974, there was a fire in the basement of my house at 32 Wauwinet Rd., West Newton. I telephoned for assistance, and within two and a half minutes, both police and fire trucks were at our door.

A minimum of people came into the house, being instructed by the chief to enter by the bulk-head. Everyone was courteous and especially careful with our possessions. The chief even took the time to pull all the storm windows in and to close and lock all the windows before leaving.

My husband and I could not be more pleased with the service.

CHANGES ANNOUNCED

COLUMBIA, Mo. (UPI) — Coach Al Onofrio announced Tuesday two additions and two changes in the University of Missouri football coaching staff.

Anthony "Tony" Kopay, recently on the coaching staff of the University of Washington, was appointed offensive line coach.

Curtis Jones, aide last season on the staff of Southern Illinois University, was hired as Kopay's assistant.

John Kadlec, long-time offensive line coach, was moved to defensive line coach and Tony Stepanovich, scouting team coach, was named a full-time assistant in charge of the junior varsity program.

WHA DECISIONS

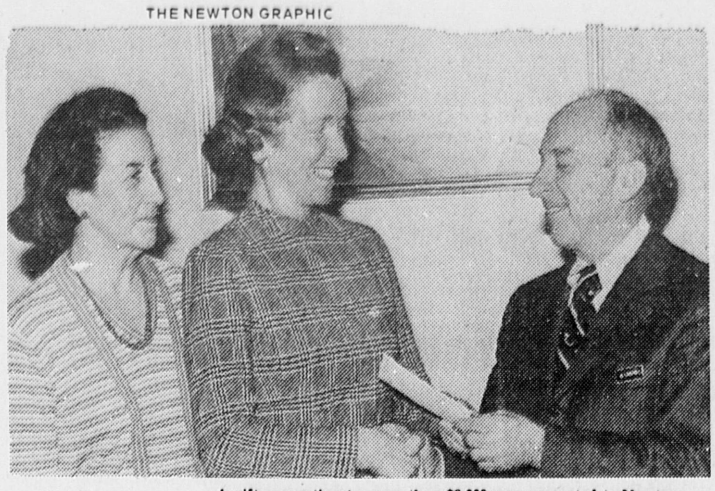
EDMONTON (UPI) — The World Hockey Association has named Ben Hatskin to a newly created position of chief executive officer, assuming some of the duties of President Dennis Murphy and in charge of finding a new president to replace Murphy by June 1.

Murphy has resigned as president, effective June 1.

At meetings here Tuesday prior to the league All-Star game, the WHA also decided to move its league office from Newport Beach, Calif., to Toronto.

No decision was made regarding the unsettled Michigan Stags.

The Stags either will move to Baltimore or disband, with the players being dispersed throughout the league.



Donation

A gift amounting to more than $8,000 was presented to Newton-Wellesley Hospital by Mrs. J. Marshall Leydon of Newtonville (left) and Mrs. Harold F. Birk of Wellesley (center). The proceeds of the Aid Association 's party were given to William S. Brines (right), hospital administrative vice presiedent.

Republicans plan Lincoln Day event

The Newton Republican clubs' Fifteenth Annual Lincoln Day Dinner-Dance is scheduled for Feb. 28, in the American Legion Post 440 ballroom' according to Mrs. Paul Swift, general chairwoman of the event.

The nationally-known political figure who will speak at the dinner has not been announced yet, but ticket distribution is going well under the direction of Charlotte R. Thornbury, ticket chairwoman.

As in the past, the planning and preparation for the event involves more than 100 Newton residents.

The Patrons Committee consists of Lina Brenner, Mrs. Kent M. Briggs, Mrs. Stephen Heiser, and Esther Hahn.

Already subscribing as patrons are Mr. and Mrs. John L. DiSabato, Mr. and Mrs. Anthony J. Medaglia, Jr., Augusta Hornblower, Mr. and Mrs. David A. Lurensky, Mrs. Swift, and Miss Thornbury.

The sponsoring clubs are the Newton Republican Club, with John L. DiSabato, president; Newton Republican City Committee, with Mrs. Maudyea Campbell, chairwoman; Newton Women's Republican Club, with Mrs. Smith, president; and the Newton Italian Republican Club, with Francis A. Tambascio, president.

Equal rights

CANBERRA (UPI) — Australian politicans must be covered if they want to share Parliament House's sauna bath.

Previously, the bath was restricted to men.

But Parliament's governing body, the Joint House Committee, has bowed to popular demand and issued a new ruling that both men and women MP's and senators may use the bath together if they are suitably dressed.

Temporary homes needed for teenagers

Families Extended, an alternative housing program in the Newton-Wellesley-Weston area, urgently needs temporary homes for teenagers 12-18 who are unable to remain in their own homes. The length of placement in a temporary home ranges from two weeks to six months.

It is important to emphasize that there is no "perfect" foster family. Single-parent families, couples with or without children, and families representing different income levels, ethnic backgrounds, and life styles are all valuable as participants in the program.

There is a variety of reasons why young people can no longer remain at home. Some may have school problems or there may be illness in the family. In most cases there is a lack of communication which makes living at home a painful and impossible experience.

While the adolescent lives away from home, he or she and the natural family receive weekly counseling sessions. Once methods of communication enabling the parents and the young person to understand each other better are established, reconciliation takes place.

All participants, both adolescents and alternative families, must be residents of Newton, Wellesley, or Weston. When teenagers remain in their own neighborhoods, continuity with school, jobs and friends is maintained.

Each alternative family receivee a $25 reimbursement weekly for an adolescent's room and board. In addition, families receive orientation, training and supportive services from Families Extended. In some instances, families will need to have a strong inclination toward providing emotional support while other families may house young people less needy of individual attention. Every effort is made to match adolescents and families according to mutual needs and interests.

Families interested in providing alternative housing may call either Geri Gomery or Peg Dickerman at 965-6200.

Bergantino heads Heart Fund drive

James Bergantino has been named Newton's 1975 Heart Fund community chairman.

Bergantino will oversee the efforts of Newton volunteers. These men and women will call on their friends and neighbors during February, distributing helpful heart literature and collecting donations to help support research, education and community programs sponsored by the Greater Boston Massachusetts Chapter of the American Heart Association.

Bergantino, who works for the Street Department in Newton, has served the Heart Fund previously as plant chairman for city employees.

Upon accepting his 1975 appointment, Bergantino noted that heart and blood vessel diseases are the number once cause of death in Massachusetts and the entire nation. In 1975, an estimated 32,000 people will die in this state alone, from heart related causes. He added that the country will lose $20 billion in wages and medical expenses because of it.

He urged all citizens of Newton to welcome the Heart Fund volunteers during February and to give generously.

The Heart Fund Campaign will continue through the month of February, culminating on Heart Sunday, February 23.

a bathroom and bunk beds which took some getting used to." The Kates paid for their transportation and the hospital supplied them with room and board.

The first day Dr. Kates set up office 25 patients were lined up outside his door. "They paid 35 cents a visit and still some people could't come because they couldn't afford it," explained Dr. Kates. His day began at 8 a.m. and "finished when I had to." At the end of two weeks, Dr. Kates had seen 120 patients.

In the beginning, the makeshift accomodations had to be altered to make conditions suitable for examining eyes. Dr. Kates, who graduated from the Massachusetts College of Optometry and has a practice in Cambridge on Central Square, took careful measurements of the patients needing glasses.

Upon his return, he began making up eyeglasses for the villagers. The glasses will be sent by Dr. Kates to a surgeon from Tennessee who will be going to Puerto Cabazes to donate his time. There they will be fitted by a maintenance man whom Dr. Kates says "I have instructed as to how to bend the frames (to fit) and I left him some spare parts." An optical company has donated the frames and the bi-focals.

In addition to fitting the patients for eye glasses, Dr. Kates also had to provide some "elementary first aid." In one instance, an elderly man "came tottering in with his wife who had an advanced stage of glaucoma because she allowed her eyedrops had run out a month before...she had been negligent."

The Kates both love to travel and have done quite a bit. As for this unusual "vacation", Dr. Kates eyes light up as he says "it was kind of an ego trip, but I really think I did a lot of good."

Dr. Kates said the village looked "like a poor Western town of 1910." He said that a typical home was one or two rooms built on stilts...they are bare with no stoves. He explained they cook over flames raised in a barrel, a very crude method and yet, despite this immense poverty, the villagers are all well dressed. Mrs. Kates said the villagers "have sewing machines and make most of their clothing."

Protein deficiency is a common ailment and many times infants have to be hospitalized and fed properly. Their education tops at the sixth grade and the one school in the village is run by the Moravians, who are members of the Protestant sect arising from a 15th century religious reform movement.

Most of the homes have no electricity, there are no newspapers and no T.V. The only recreation is two movie houses and a pool parlor. Although Dr. Kates said his observations were really "a quick anthropological study; the people seemed happy, enthusiastic and their pleasures were easily taken."

Their pace of life sharply contrasted with ours...a society in which a patient once pulled up to Dr. Kates office, double parked, with a driving instructor in the car, and requested an eye examination'.

That wasn't about to happen in peaceful Puerto Cabazes.

schools for such things as publication and musical leaders.

Atkins' request of $80,000 to pay summer salaries for curriculum development was challenged by Committeeewoman Joan Needleman.

Mrs. Needlelman asked why there is continuous research in math and reading, and Atkins said that there are always changes in teaching theories .

Atkins said that although there are many students in accelerated math classes, "there are now many students with math disabilities."

Mandell criticized the program director by for spending a lot of money to "rediscover the wheel"' referring to the switch from one type of program to another and then back again.

The busing contract the c ommittee appproved to go out for public bidding includes options for a one, two, three, or five year contract, and tells the bidders they can use buses no more than three years old.

Representative Lois Pines, who was at this part of the meeting, was responsible for the other bidding options for defrosters, two-way radios, and air brakes.

With bidding options, the School Committee can find out the cost of these safety items from each bidder without committing the city to using them if they are found to be too expensive.

Mrs. Pines told the committee that it should not accept more than a two-year contract because there will be federal legislation for the safe construction of all new buses that will go into effect March, 1976.

Director of Support Serivices John Gilleland noted that the present bus contractor is using the buses of the latest safety design, and that a two-year contract would probably be the most sensible.

The next School Committee budget meetings are set for Monday, Jan. 27, and Wednesday, Jan. 29 at 7:45 p.m. in the auditorium of Bigelow Junior High School.

Towers land to be sold jacent to the Towers site as the Towers' compliance with the "10 percent" policy of the Board of Aldermen.

This policy has required developers of apartments to lease 10 percent of the new units to the Newton Housing Authority for its subsidized housing program for low-income families.

When the Towers' extension of permissive use was under discussion, the Towers representatives hih not went tc prcvihe lcw-income hong in the coodomini and offered instead to help NCDF financially in its plan to build 50 units of housing on Hamlet Street nearby.

The Towers has paid NCDF $37,500 for test borings of the land and other preliminary site work, and agreed to pay another $125,000 when NCDF has completed construction financing through the Massachusetts Housing Finance Agency.

Alan Schlesinger, an NCDF spokesman, said Tuesday that "there is no answer" to whether the Chestnut Hill Towers would have to honor the agreement if the land is sold.

The agreement is recorded at the Registry of Deeds, Schlesinger said, which ties it into the land, but there would probably have to be a court decision on whether the agreement "runs with the land or is a personal covenant."

If the land is sold or the Towers trust is declared bankrupt, NCDF will still be able to build its housing, Schlesinger said, since it now has a preliminary commitment for financing from the MHFA.

The Towers, which was expected to cost more than $40 million to build, could have contributed more than $5 million to the city's real-estate tax revenue.

has been excised from us," he said. " Once the transfer-haul station is there it is there forever. We will need it, even if we go to resource recovery."

Bullwinkle wanted to send the etire question back to committee.

He said, "I'm not convinced that upgrading the incinerator is not best." Board President Eliot Cohen told Bullwinkle his time was up, and Bullwinkle announced that he would charter the appropriation request.

Even postponed until Feb. 3, when the Board meets next, the $50,000 appropriation may still be held up by a vote to reconsider vote, if it is favorable.

The vote could be at a special meeting of the Board, which could be called for the following day.

That the appropriation, and therefore the commitment to the interim solution of transfer-haul for the disposal of the city's rubbish, will pass the Board of Aldermen is fairly certain.

There seems to be no reason other than a purely political one for the charter objection. Bullwinkle is the ward alderman for Ward 3, where much of the traffic increase will paes through, little though the increaee may be.

McGrath is Ward 4 alderman, and Ward 4 will also have an increase of traffic along Lexington Street, one side of which is in Ward 4.

Joining Bullwinkle in the charter were objection Aldermen Robert Tennant, Andrew Magni, Robert Gaynor, and McGrath.

committee should not be taken until all factors were considered. These included items such as safety and walking distances.

Although comments on consolidation were mostly favorable, some committee members dug in their heels on a motion put forth by William Shaevel who moved that "where a community is separated by geographic barriers, it would be desirable to consolidate the school in its entirety."

The motion was termed a "bombshell" by Committeeman Sanford Cohen. Cohen felt Shaevel's motion pointed to closing perimeter schools which would logically be the only ones which could be moved in their entirety.

The motion ultimately passed in a watered-down version which said: "the neighborhood concept should be preserved by minimal disruption." At the end of the vote, Lois Alexander, committeewoman, remarked, "that says nothing."

At tonight's meeting, Robert Hayden will address the issue of studying and assessing the impact and cost of opening the school for metropolitan children up to the point where each classroom and school is raised to the student-teacher ratio it was designed for. The committee will also investigate future overcrowding at junior and senior high schools.

Other members of the committee are: Rochelle Alexander, Erna Gill, chairwoman; Dr. Lemont Kier, Joyce Picard, Robert Provencher, Marc Rector, Joan Werner.

All meetings are open to the public and the committee reserves time to hear from those attending.

NEW YORK (UPI) — With the exception of American Indians no other minority is less represented in American higher education than the 12 million Spanish-speaking members of society, reports the Ford Foundation Letter.

Although they make up 4.6 per cent of the population, Spanish-speaking persons account for only 0.5 per cent of graduate school enrollment.

For every 100 Mexican-American students who enter elementary school, only 22.5 make it to college and 5.4 graduate —compared with 49.3 whites who go to college and 23.8 who finish.

'I don't believe in reincarnation'

The strange two worlds of Mrs. Jay

"Many times man lives and dies between his two eternities" —W.B. Yeats

ELKTON, Va. (UPI) — In this world, Mrs. Delores Jay is American, 52 years old and the wife of a minister. In another world whose doorway is through hypnosis, she is "Gretchen Gottleib," who tells of her own murder in Bismarck's Germany a century ago.

Mrs. Jay speaks no German —and has taken lie detector tests to substantiate it. But under hypnosis, she speaks in German, drawing a vivid picture of 19th-century life in a tiny village named Ebeswalde, culminating in her own death at the age of about 16.

Reincarnation? Did Mrs. Jay actually live as the teen-age, illiterate Gretchen with her burgermeister father in Ebeswalde in the years when Bismarck was trying to defeat German Catholics? There may be a case for it, says Dr. Ian Stevenson, a psychology professor.

A "divine power" speaking through her? That's one of the "few possible explanations" her husband, the Rev. Carroll Jay, has considered.

Another minister, fundamentalist Rev. Johnny Hensley of Elkton, says it may indeed be a mystic force —that of Satan.

The case evoked memories of two decades ago —of a Colorado housewife using the synonym of Ruth Simmons who, under deep hypnosis, became "Bridey Murphy," an Irish girl speaking in Gaelic of life in an obscure Irish village in the 19th century.

For the Jays, it started the day in 1970 the minister hypnotized his wife —"for a backache, or something. When I finished I asked her if it still hurt. She answered something that sounded like 'nein,' but I couldn't make anything of it.

"I asked her if she felt okay and when she answered 'ja,' I got out my tape recorder and began to tape her."

Jay said the response from his wife sounded German and he took the tapes to a language teacher who said it definitely was.

Stevenson and several other professors who speak German became interested. Over the course of three years of interviews, Mrs. Jay slowly described her "life" as Gretchen. Jay said "Gretchen was about 16 years old and lived during the 1870s. She is illiterate and can't read or write."

The Reverend Jay hypnotizes his wife

According to the tapes, Gretchen was murdered while she waited in a forest to meet her uncle she said had hidden horses to help them escape. She said she was captured by a group of men and killed.

At that period in Germany, Bismarck tried to defeat German Catholics who had become a political force. Some active Catholics were thrown into jail at the time. "Gretchen" has told her questioners that her father had been imprisoned because of his part in the "church's trouble."

In all, there are 18 tapes of Mrs. Jay under hypnosis. Stevenson said he is convinced he Jays are "thoroughly honest." Jay quoted Stevenson as saying he "told us it's a strong case for reincarnation."

Mrs. Jay is skeptical. "I have always believed that you have only one chance in this life," she said. "I don't believe in reincarnation."

Jay said, "I don't really know but there are several possibilities. She could be speaking through the subconscious, some sort of genetic memory or a possibility it's a divine power speaking through her."

Dr. Martin T. Orne, a University of Pennsylvania hypnosis expert said, "She must have been exposed to German at some point. There's no way she could have learned it any other fashion." He said evidence used to support "spiritual or reincarnation interpretations is anecdoctal at best."

Stevenson, who has been studying cases of reported reincarnations for 20 years, disagrees. "Language is a learned skill. Anyone who has ever tried to learn one knows that you must practice and practice."

Stevenson said one of the next steps will be to check records to find whether a girl named Gretchen Gottleib lived in a village named Ebeswalde in the 1870s. It may not be that simple. There are several Ebeswaldes in Germany.

Its been almost a year since Mrs. Jay was last hypnotized and assumed the "Gretchen personality." Jay said there are no plans to do it again.

Ice baths help open heart surgery

MARCO ISLAND, Fla. (UPI) — The use of ice baths to stop blood circulation for up to an hour during delicate open heart operations is saving the lives of blue babies and other infants born with critical heart defects, a Boston surgeon reported Monday.

Dr. Aldo R. Castaneda said the revolutionary approach to treating critically ill babies has more than halved the number of deaths of infants undergoing surgery to correct faults in hearts as small as a walnut.

The ice bath lowers the temperature of the plastic wrapped body to 77 degrees Fahrenheit. Then the infant is connected to a heart-lung machine briefly to cool the blood to 68 degrees and the machine is removed. The heart stops beating at 73 degrees.

At normal temperatures, the body can withstand lack of blood circulation for only three minutes before the brain suffers severe damage from the lack of oxygen transported in the blood. But Castaneda said babies weighing up to 16 pounds can tolerate the lack of circulation for at least an hour when kept nearly 30 degrees cooler than normal. The operation has been performed on babies as young as 36 hours and weighing less than five pounds.

"The advantage, of course, is that these very small hearts are difficult to operate upon if they are moving, if they carry blood and if one requires cannulas (a surgical instrument) and suction apparatus inside the heart," Canstaneda said at a science writers' seminar sponsored by the American Heart Association.

"So by stopping circulation totally, we deal with a motionless, bloodless and very pliable heart. In addition, there is no hardware within the heart."

Eleven thousand babies are born each year in the United States with congenital heart defects that are life threatening. Before this body cooling procedure was started, surgeons usually performed two operations —one to ease the symptoms until the child was old enough to withstand standard open heart surgery using heart-lung machines to keep blood circulating while the heart is opened.

After the operation, the child is slowly warmed and the heart usually starts beating when the temperature reaches 81 degrees.

Castaneda, chief cardiovascular surgeon at the Children's Hospital Medical Center in Boston, said these two operations had a combined death rate ranging from 30 to 45 per cent.

Think big for spring

By RUTH LENSON

Webster's dictionary defines the chemise as "A woman's shirtlike undergarment."

If European designers, as well as Seventh Avenue and Woman's Wear Daily are correct, come spring you'll be seeing variations of the chemise as the most important dress style since pants.

Years ago the chemise was part of a woman's underwear. Today's garment, ironically enough, will enable women to do away with any and all undergarments . . . in fact, as one fashion expert remarked, "All she'll need to carry off the chemise are shoes and lipstick."

There are those who will recall the loose fitting dress as a fashion that has been around for years and refer to it as the old tent or sack . . . a fashion that did little to enhance one's figure. Those who are tall and slim can wear the style to great advantage while those who are short and inclined to be chunky will find it a most unbecoming dress.

All too aware of the limitations, designers are showing chemise styles with wide leather belts or sashes which cinch in the fullness around the waist. One variation that has wider appeal is the modified tent shape.

Bill Blass approves of the new full shape and has created the loose jacket suit with a slight dropped shoulder and short sleeve which is shown over a modified fuller skirt. His bigger smock jacket is worn over a pleated skirt or bias flared sun dress.

Designer Belle Saunders hails the return of the dress . . . especially the tailored dress with a matching coat and has turned out a series of "controlled" chemises. Her dresses have soft, feminine touches, such as white pique or linen collars and cuffs, white crepe or eyelit shirts. Navy is important. A whole group of ribbed knits with lots of added white touches is done in navy alone—some are highlighted with red blazers or coats. White and navy prints, many in the chemise style barely skimming the body, show up in dots, flowers, and geometrics. Special colors are brilliant in the fibrannes—raspberry, sea green, teal, chrome yellow, even a bright brown.

Chemises are called "easy" dresses, such as a soft pale beige with long flowing sleeves; a navy with white collar and Lord Byron bow at the neck. There are shirt dresses with dropped shoulders gathered on yokes, in matte jersey. For evening, a group of printed chiffon chemises, some clingy solids combined with sheers, in full sleeved easy shapes below the knee and below the ankle.

Just who are the ladies crying and sighing for the chemise? If you think it's the size 16 you meet at the supermarket who will be jubiliant about a dress that "hides it all" uh-uh, you're wrong. In New York, Adolfo is very happy about the money people who have fallen in love with this new look. He claims that the chemise of '75 is not like the original ugly dress—that it is pretty, feminine and allows women to be more relaxed without having to hold in their stomachs.

Apparently yesterday's skinny clothes were bound to give way to the uninhibited freedom of this softly shaped dress. Designers suggest that women think big for spring.

That means a variety of styles with big, loose sleeves, deep armholes, softly shirred blousons or outright big tent-like tops and full skirts that often times end with a flounce.

Those with the tell-tale middle-age tire around the middle will like the chemise with its band of tucks on the bodice which then releases the fullness of a below the knee skirt.

This roomy silhouette is achieved through complicated dressmaking tucks that cleverly distribute the fabric in a way that narrowly avoids the dreaded maternity look.

Why the chemise at this time? One designer quite frankly said, "We've gone as far as we can go, since 1968, with pants . . . we've done the above the knee fitted dress, and we were shot down with the midi . . . where else were we to go, except with a roomy, smock-like dress that allows women the freedom of movement they obviously desire.

"Our chemises are, for the most part, for the most part, gentle dresses that are perfectly agreeable to all your plans. You can dress up these dresses with a belt or sash, some stunning jewelry and you're off to any sort of affair or simple luncheon. Nobody will take the chemise seriously . . . it's supposed to be a fun dress . . . and what's more it offers flattery and ease for every woman, whatever her age or figure."

All of the horn tooting for the chemise will not force sales . . . women today will not buy anything they don't love. Most shoppers plunk down their money for fashions that will receive lots and lots of wear. The trick will be for disigners to come up with bigger dresses as smaller prices.

The CAP SLEEVE SMOCK DRESS FOR SPRING 1975

Information please

In the Greek Lemon Soup recipe of Jan. 7th the ingredient, 2 eggs, beaten, was accidentally ommitted. We apologize for any inconvenience this may have caused you.

This is the readers' column. If you have a question or a recipe to share with other readers, please write to: In-St., Dedham, Mass. 02026.

Question: I am looking for recipes for chicken croquettes and ham croquettes that are oven baked, not fried. I mispiaced my recipe. Thank you for any help you can give me in this matter.

Mrs. J. F. H. W. Roxbury

Answer: And now I too am sorry you lost that recipe because I've never known a croquette recipe that does not call for deep frying. However, I feel that if you heat some shortening (or corn oil) in a large pan and place your breaded croquettes in the pan and bake them about 30 minutes on each side, they will turn out crispy golden and delicious. Perhaps some reader has the recipe you're searching for and will send it in—in the meantime try this method, it should be satisfactory.

Question: I enjoy your page so much. Do you have a recipe for deli-type pickled beets with onion rings in it? I have so many beets from my garden and I should like to pickle some of them.

H. Reznick, W.Roxbury

Answer: Lucky you! We planted beets three years in a row and harvested nary a beet—here's the recipe; please send your gardening instructions.

PICKLED BEETS AND ONIONS

3 pounds beets
1 teaspoon allspice
4 large onions, sliced
6 whole cloves
1 piece stick cinnamon
½ cup sugar
2 cups vinegar
½ cup water

Cook beets until tender in salted water in a large saucepan. Drain. Remove beet skins by pressing skins gently with fingers under running cold water. If beets are very small leave whole, otherwise slice. Tie spices in a piece of cheesecloth. Heat sugar, vinegar, water, and spices to boiling in a heavy kettle. Add sliced onions and sliced beets. Boil for 5 minutes. Remove spice bag. Spoon hot mixture into hot sterilized jars, and seal. Yield: about three, 16 oz. jars.

Our thanks to a new reader who writes: "We've just moved to the area and enjoy reading your newspaper very much. I have a recipe that my children say is the best chocolate cake recipe in the world. Since my husband agrees, I will say it's very, very good. Hope you and your readers enjoy it.

Mrs. C.C., Newton

APPLE CHOCOLATE WALNUT CAKE

½ cup butter or margarine
1 cup sugar
1 egg
1 and two-thirds cups sifted cake flour
1½ cups chopped walnuts
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon allspice
2 tablespoons cocoa (not instant)
1 cup applesauce, heated
1 teaspoon vanilla

Cream butter or margarine to consistency of mayonnaise; add sugar slowly; cream until fluffy. Add egg; beat well. Add a little of the flour to walnuts; mix and sift remaining flour, salt, baking soda, spices and cocoa. Add flour mixture alternately with heated applesauce to creamed mixture. Stir in vanilla. Spoon into greased and floured 9-inch tube pan. Bake at 350 degrees for about 40 minutes or until cake tester comes out clean. Cool in pan for 10 minutes. Remove to rack to finish cooling. Frost and decorate as desired.

Question: Years ago, there was a recipe making the rounds, and though it called for yeast, there was no kneading or anything like that. I think the recipe was called Sugar Crisps or Sugar Twists. I really would be grateful for the recipe. Thanks.

Mrs. K.H., Roslindale

Answer: How about Starlight Sugar Crisps? They are sugary cookie-like twists and the wonderful thing about them is you prepare the batter and can refrigerate it up to 4 days, if desired, before baking. Hope you enjoy:

STARLIGHT SUGAR CRISPS

1 pkg. active dry yeast
¼ cup warm water
3½ cups all purpose flour, sifted
1½ teaspoons salt
½ cup butter or margarine
½ cup shortening
2 eggs, beaten
½ cup dairy sour cream
3 teaspoons vanilla extract
1½ cups sugar

Soften yeast in warm water. Sift flour with salt into mixing bowl. Cut in butter and shortening until particles are fine. Blend in eggs, sour cream, 1 teaspoon vanilla extract and yeast; mix thoroughly. Cover and chill at least 2 hours. Combine sugar and 2 teaspoons vanilla extract; sprinkle ½ cup on surface for rolling.

Roll out half of dough on vanilla-sugar mixture to a 16x8-inch rectangle. Sprinkle with about 1 tablespoon vanilla-sugar mixture and fold one end of dough over center. Fold other end over to make 3 layers. Turn dough a fourth of the way around and repeat rolling and folding, sprinkling surface with additional vanilla-sugar. Roll out to a 16x8-inch rectangle. Cut into 4x1-inch strips. Twist each strip 2 or 3 times. Place on ungreased cookie sheets and repeat process with remaining dough and vanilla sugar mixture. Bake at 375 degrees for 15-20 minutes, until golden brown. Yield: approximately 60.

Question: What is the difference between bouillon and consomme?

M. B., Dedham

Answer: Bouillon is the brown stock made from lean beef and bone and is lightly seasoned. Some of the meat for bouillon is browned before adding it to water. Consomme is usually made from two or more kinds of meat—veal, chicken or beef. The liquid in consomme is strained and highly seasoned.

Food and fashion

by Ruth Lenson

Across the kitchen counter

By RUTH LENSON

There's one word for it . . . "up." That just about describes the unfunny task of food shopping today, and while some foods are less expensive than they were (certain cuts of meat, for instance) most others seem to escalate from week to week.

Planning nutritious meals calls for a bit of imagination and pre-shopping newspaper reading for your best dollar values. Supermarkets run "specials" and what are generally termed "lost leaders" to entice your food dollar. Take advantage of these and also watch for special sales of canned goods to stock up the staples shelf. Above all, try shopping alone without children and husband—statistics prove that when you are alone, armed with a list you will do less impulse buying.

Following are some ideas from the American Meat Institute to help make a little meat go a long way.

1. Supplement meat with other protein foods. A smaller portion of meat served with pasta, bread, cheese, milk, eggs, or cooked beans will provide enough nutrients to meet the daily requirements of each member of the family.

2. Cook all meat at low temperatures (300-325 degrees) because meats cooked at low temperatures shrink less, are more tender, and have more flavor than meats cooked at high temperatures.

3. Become familiar with a variety of sauces and gravies which can be served with meats. They are easy to make and inexpensive when made from the pan drippings of cooked meats.

4. Experiment with spices and seasonings which can enhance the flavor of combination foods or meats served with a sauce or gravy. Most of the great flavor makers—garlic, mustard, chili, catsup, etc., are relatively low in cost and quick to use.

5. Casseroles, meat loaves and combination vegetable and meat dishes offer the most satisfying solution for making a little meat go a long way.

Souffles are elegant dishes that look like expensive gourmet fare. What's a souffle? Just a puree, often based on a vegetable, thickened with egg yolks and with stiffly beaten egg whites, the whites gently folded into the batter. The mixture is turned into a souffle dish and baked until it is slightly golden and crusty outside and soft and creamy inside.

Fish has always been a protein food that comes to the aid of the pocketbook. One of the most select and reasonably priced choices is mackerel. The recipe here gives this dish an Oriental touch with its delightful sauce.

MACKEREL WITH CITRUS STUFFING

2 medium mackerel, cleaned, split
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 tablespoons chopped onion
½ cup chopped celery
½ teaspoon salt
2 cups cooked rice
2 oranges, sectioned

Sprinkle fish with salt. Heat butter in skillet; add onion, celery and ½ teaspoon salt. Cook, stirring occasionally, until onion and celery are tender. Remove from heat; stir in rice and orange sections. Stuff fish. Close opening with wooden picks placed vertically across opening. Place in shallow, oiled baking dish. Brush fish with salad oil. Bake in 400 degree oven, 12 minutes per pound, or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. While fish is baking, prepare Curry Sauce. Serves 4.

CURRY SAUCE

3 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 tablespoons chopped onion
2 to 3 teaspoons curry powder
3 tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon ginger
2 cups milk
½ cup flaked coconut
1 grapefruit, sectioned

Melt butter in saucepan. Add onion and curry powder and cook until onion is tender, but not brown. Blend in flour, salt and ginger. Gradually add milk and cook, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and comes to a boil. Remove from heat; stir in coconut and grapefruit sections and serve with fish.

BROCCOLI SOUFFLE

4 tablespoons butter or margarine
3 tablespoons cornstarch
1 cup beef bouillon
2 teaspoons lemon juice
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper sauce
⅛ teaspoon nutmeg
4 egg yolks
one-third cup grated Parmesan cheese
2 tablespoons chopped scallions
1 pkg. (10 oz.) frozen chopped broccoli, thawed
4 egg whites
½ teaspoon cream of tartar

Melt 3 tbls. butter in saucepan; blend in cornstarch. Gradually stir in bouillon. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and comes to a boil. Remove from heat. Stir in lemon juice, salt, pepper sauce and nutmeg. Beat egg yolks in small bowl and stir in a little of hot sauce. Stir into remaining sauce and add grated Parmesan cheese. Melt remaining one tbs. butter in skillet; add scallion and cook until tender. Add thawed broccoli; stir over moderately high heat until moisture evaporates. Add to sauce.

Beat egg whites with cream of tartar until stiff but not dry. Stir ¼ of beaten whites into broccoli sauce; mix well. Fold in remaining whites, mixing as little as possible. Turn into buttered 1-½ qt. souhle dish and sprinkle top with additional grated Parmesan cheese. Bake in 375 degree oven 35-40 minutes, until top is puffed and browned. (This is an excellent main dish for lunch.)

SWEET AND SOUR TUNA ON RICE

Blend in a skillet 1 tablespoon cornstarch and two-thirds cup vinegar. Add 1 cup firmly packed brown sugar, 1 teaspoon soy sauce and ½ cup catsup. Cook stirring constantly until thickened and translucent. Add 2 cans (6-½ or 7 oz. ea.) tuna, drained. Cover and simmer 15 min. Add 1 can (8-¼ oz.) pineapple tidbits, drained and ½ cup diced green pepper and continue cooking for 5 minutes. Serve over hot rice. Makes 5-6 servings.

OLD FASHIONED CORNMEAL MUFFINS

Sift together 1 cup all purpose flour, ¼ cup sugar, 4 teaspoons baking powder, ¾ teaspoon salt, stir in 1 cup yellow cornmeal. Add 2 eggs, 1 cup reconstituted nonfat dry milk and ¼ cup shortening; beat with rotary beater or electric mixer just till smooth. Do not overbeat. Fill greased muffin pans two-thirds full and bake at 400 degrees 20-25 minutes. Makes 12 muffins.

Mrs. Wallingford supervisor for visiting nurses

By RITA BLAKENEY

During the next few weeks we would like to acquaint the community with the various staff members and duties performed by the Newton-Wellesley Visting Nurse Association.

It is with pride that we introduce you to Mrs. Hope M. Wallingford who serves as associate director of clinical practices. She received her training at Massachusetts General Hospital and went on to acquire a B.C. Degree at Simmons College and M.S. degree at Boston University.

In the absence of the director she assumes responsibilities of the agency and also day to day supervision of the clinical program. She works not only with staff but also with allied institutions and agencies' services to individuals and groups.

There is no typical day for her since duties include patient intake, conferences regarding plans for patient care, meeting with staff, community agencies, educational institutions' liason with Newton-Wellesley Hospital Continuing Care, outpatient and emergency service.

Mrs. Wallingford is a member of the State Advisory Group on Statistics, the Massachusetts League of Nursing Boards and the Massachusetts Health Council.

In addition to being a dedicated humanitarian, her personal interests include skiing, swimming, gardening, music and reading. She is the mother of four children.

In view of the fact that hospital stays are becoming shorter, more in-depth nursing care will be sought in the near future. An introduction of the staff will give the community an insight to the capabilities of the visiting nurse and how these needs will be met.

Fashion show returns to Newton

The Goodwill Auxiliary to Morgan Memorial will present its fifth annual fashion show, "Styles through the Ages," to the Knights of Columbus, Newton Council No. 167, on Friday, Jan. 31, 8 p.m., in the Newton Council Hall, 15 Southgate Rd., West Newton.

According to Wilfred J. Picard, Grand Knight, the show will kick off Mardi Gras Week, a week of events running through Saturday, Feb. 8, planned by the Knights to encourage to participatiion of their families and the community.

The week will include a trip for senior citizens to the movies, a dinner-dance, and more.

The Goodwill fashion parade was created five years ago by Mildred Churchill of Watertown, commentator of the show which incorporate s the story of Morgan Memorial Goodwill Industries in its presentation.

Most of the styles in the fashion parade are antiques, some dating back to 1800.

A highlight of the show will be the display of undergarments from the year 1800, and will include everything else from highlaced shoes and ostrich-plumed hats to mini-dresses and midi-coats.

Over 1900 men, women, and children were served by Goodwill programs last year through work adjustment, vocational training, comprehensive evaluation, and rehabiliation services.

NAVY SEAMAN APPRENTICE Patricia L. Carlin, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Herbert S. Carlin of 212 Greenwood St., graduated from recruit training for women at the Naval Training Center in Orlando, Fla. She is scheduled to report to Dental Technician School in San Diego, Calif.

Artist Renee Rothbein has works on display

Renee Rothbein of Waban is one of 29 New England women artists represented in an exhibition of paintings, sculpture, and drawings to be shown at the DeCordova Museum in Lincoln from Jan. 26 through April 6.

Entitled "New England Women 1975", the exhibition has been organized by the Museum to demonstrate the contribution women are making to the contemporary art scene. It is the first in a series of Becentennial exhibitions to be shown by DeCordove in 1975 and it is the first major museum exhibition devoted to the work of women artists in New England.

Financial assistance for the exhibit has been provided by the Massachusetts Council on the Arts and Humanities.

The artists were selected, according to Museum Director, Frederick Walkey, because each "has produced a body of work that reveals exceptional talent, long-range commitment and a consistent, individual point of view."

Mini brunch for Guzzi

A mini reception brunch honoring newly elected Secretary of State Paul Guzzi will be sponsored by the Ward Two Democratic Committee. The brunch will be held Sunday, February 2 at 11 p.m. at the home of Jane A. Brown, 104 Atwood Ave.

A meeting will be held at the same time focusing on the roles of the executive and legislative branches of the state government and the coordination between both.

Invited guests will include Ward Two committeeman, state representative Peter F. Harrington and newly elected representative, Richard J. McGrath. The public is invited.

The last committee meeting was held at the home of Samuel Glass who is chairman.

Club to hold bingo party

Former Lieutenant Governor Donald Dwight, and Ron Burton will be among the guest callers for the Bingo Bonanza planned by the Newton Women's Republican Club for Friday, Jan. 31 at 8 p.m. at the Rebecca Pomroy House, Church and Eldredge Streets.

There will also be a bake sale and dessert and coffee will be served. The chairwoman of the event is Mrs. Marjorie Heiser.

Committee members are Mrs. Leslie Clayton, co-chairwoman; Mrs. Maudyea Campbell, publicity; Mrs. Jan Slessinger, prizes and Mrs. Barbara Schiller, hospitality.

For further information and reservations, call Mrs. Heiser at 332-2902. The public is invited.

Copley Plaza is setting for Camuso-Schwartz wedding

Mrs. Stanley J. Schwartz

The Copley Plaza, Oval Room, was the setting for the recent wedding of Carol Ann Camuso to Stanley Jason Schwartz. Mrs. Schwartz is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Camuso of Newton Centre. Mr. Schwartz is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Schwartz, also of Newton.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a chiffon velvet gown trimmed in white fox and carried a bouquet of melon roses and baby's breath. Mrs. Rita Cohen of Stoughton, the bride's aunt, was matron of honor.

Vincent Meglio of Newton was best man. The ushers were Joseph Paglia of Boston; Kenneth Green of Newton and Leonard Greene of Framingham.

After honeymooning in Hawaii, the couple have made Framingham their home.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Dow will live in Pocasset

Miss Madeline Jane Frye of Somerville, daughter of Mrs. Marshall E. Frye of Natick and the late Mr. Frye, became the bride of Richard M. Dow, son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman M. Dow of Waban, at St. Paul Episcopal church in Natick.

Mrs. Dow was given in marriage by Albert Deveaux of Weyland, a cousin. Miss Roberta Frye, the bride's sister was maid of honor. The two bridesmaids and a junior bridesmaid were Debbie and Donna Deveaux of Weyland and Kathy Dow of New York, the bridegroom's niece.

Charles B. Dow of West Yarmouth, the bridegroom's brother, was best man. The ushers were Major David Dow of New York and Dr. Bruce Dow of Washington, D.C. and William Dow of Haverhill, all brothers of the bridegroom and Leonard Hills of Pocasset.

Mrs. Dow is a graduate of Chamberlayne Junior College in Boston and attended Northeastern University where she majored in business administration and plans to complete her studiee. Mr. Dow graduated from Tufts University with a degree in engineering. He is a mechanical engineer for the Badger Company in Cambridge.

Winter special presentations at Loeb Drama Center

With diversity as the keynote, the Loeb Drama Center in Cambridge has announced its Winter Special Presentationo Series for Jan. and Feb. beginning with the Arthur Hall AfroAmerican Dance Ensemble on Jan. 16.

Following the Arthur Hall company, will be "Jazz in January"—three different concerts featuring some of America's leading jazz artists. Jan. 24, the concert will be Ray Bryant on piano; Jan. 25, The Bobby Hackett Quintet featuring Vic Dickenson on trombone; and Jan. 26, Marian McPartland on piano. All concerts will begin at 8 p.m.

The third event in the Winter Series comes to the Loeb from Broadway and London's West End—"Brief Lives." A sensational production acclaimed on both sides of the Atlantic and featuring Roy Dotrice as John Aubrey, 17th Century antiquarian, eccentric, and gossip extraordinary. The Loeb Drama Center is pleased to announce the first local presentation of this brilliant and much-lauded production which will open here January 28 and play through February 2 at 8 nightly, with two performances on Saturday, Feb. 1 at 5 and 9 p.m.

The Philobolus Dance Theatre will open at the Loeb February 3 for a three night engagement. A relatively new company, Philobolus has, in the last two years, already built an international reputation for its dazzling display of movement. Founded by two Dartmouth graduates, Philobolus has put together a collage of dance, theatre, mime and gymnastics to create a totally new experience in dance-theatre.

Making their U.S. debut this winter is Chhau, The Masked Dance of Bengal. Chhau is a form of dance-drama der1-ved from ritualistic dances of ancient India with exotic masks and vividly decorated costumes. This colorful presentation opens February 7 and runs through February 9 at 8 nightly.

The final presentation of the Winter Special Series is another first for the Loeb Drama Center—the premiere appearance of the Natioal Folk Ensemble of Nigeria under the directon+.direction of Duro Ladipo. Presenting "Oba Koso"— a major musical hit of Nigeria which has been performed almost continuously on tour in that country for the past ten years, this eensational Yoruba musical will open Feb. 11 and run through Feb. 14 with performances each evening at 8, and two performances Saturday, Feb. 15 at 5 and 9 p.m.

For a detailed brochure on these exciting Special Presentations, and other Loeb offerings, call or write the Loeb Drama Center, 64 Brattle St., Cambridge, Ma. 02138 (617) 864-2630. The Box Office is open Monday through Saturday through December 21, and will reopen at noon on December 30. Group Sales are available to all productions with special discount ticket rates.

The stickers read: "In debt to the municipality."

Children's Theatre Company on tour

Youngsters of the Boston Children's Theatre Touring Company will begin travelling once more this weekend, after a brief holiday, with their delightful production of "The Reluctant Dragon". The play is dramatized from Kenneth Grahame's tale about Horace, the dragon, who really prefers writing poetry, but is forced by community opinion to fight St. George, the noted slayer of dragons and protector of fair damsels!

"The Reluctant Dragon" ie directed by Ruth Shor, with Mark Greenglass serving as Technical Director. Settings are by Jack Werner and costumes by Vivian Dooley. The cast, chosen from the theatre's Creative Drama classes, includes Sara Conley of Newton in the title role, with Kevin Ryan of Lawrence as St. George, also Jeff Bell of Medford, Scott Bourget of West Roxbury, Jonathan Foell of Cohasset, David Lerman of Newton Centre, Peter McNeff of Winthrop, Dana Waldman of Ueedham, Caryn Corbett of Brighton, Emily Phillips of Newton, Rachael Reef of Chestnut Hill, Brian Templeton, Joseph White, Mindi Dickstein, Meri Ann Feldman, Kirsten Syverson, and Lisa Strempek, all of Brookline.

"Pinocchio", the next production of the Boston Children's Theatre to be performed at New Engoand+England Life Hall, will open Feb. 15, with performances during school vacation week Feb. 18 through 22, and a final performance on March 1.

For information and reservations write or call the Boston Children's Theatre, 263 Commonwealth Ave., Boston, Ma 02116, tel. 536-3324.

Information from VA

Q — A service-connected injury for which I received treatment at a Veterans Administration hospital about two years ago is giving me trouble again. Will VA treat me again?

A — Yes, and since you have already established service-connection, all you need do is apply for treatment again.

Q — I'm a veteran in a state which has no burial space left in its national cemetery. Does the Veterans Administration pay anything toward cost of burial plots in private cemeteries for such veterans?

A — Yes, Public Law 93-43 (June 1973) allows VA to pay up to $150 in plot and interment costs of veterans not buried in national cemeteries.

Q — I bought a car six years ago with an auto grant from the Veterans Administration, and the adaptivc equipment is wearing out. Will VA replace this equipment?

A — Yes. Since enactment of PL 91-666 in 1971, VA has been authorized to repair or replace adaptive equipment for eligible service disabled veterans. Suggest you apply to your regional VA office for this benefit.

Lecture by B.U. professor of astronomy

Michael Mendillo, assistant professor of astronomy at Boston University, will present a talk on "A Large Scale Hole Caused in the Ionosphere by the Launching of SKYLAB" at a university colloquium on Wednesday, Jan. 29. The program begins at 11:45 a.m. and will be held in Room 510 at the College of Liberal Arts, 725 Commonwealth Avenue.

Mendillo recently returned from the Soviet Union where he was one of eight Americans invited to a meeting on "Beacon Satellite Investigations of the Ionospheric Structure."

Admission to the colloquium is free, and the public is encouraged to bring lunch. For further information contact the University's astronomy department, 353-2625.

Pass that envelope

Early in January the March of Dimes started somethinq that may in some areas well enhance the time honored custom of Mothers Marching. It is the Pass the Envelope method of house to house collection. This method is one sure way of affcrding everyone a chance to contribute and at the same time, no one person has to bear the responsibility of doing a complete marching assignment. The kit is passed from neighbor to neighbor until it reaches the last person on the street, who then takes it to the local bank.

Dr. Arthur W. Trott, March of Dimes campaigm director asks people who have a Pass the Envelope Kit in their possession to pass it along quickly, so that the funds collected will be credited to this year's campaign.

"In order to defeat this tragic crippler of the young, that strikes one out of every ten children born, we will need everyone's help," said Dr. Trott.

Contributions are used to support March of Dimes Medical Service Programs and Research Studies into the cauee of birth defects. Thie network includes of 100 Birth Defects Evaluation Treatment centers across the country

PICASSO'S 'BATHER'

ROLLING MEADOWS, Ill. (UPI) — The "Bather," a major public space sculpture designed by Pablo Picasso, is now under construction at Gould Center here.

The 28-foot-high work — being executed by Norwegian artist Carl Nesjar in the unique medium of engraved concrete —was designed by Picasso in 1962 as one of his famous series of "Dejeuner sur l'herbe" outdoor figures. Nesjar has constructed all 16 outdoor sculptures designed by Picasso for public space areas.

Work on the "Bather" is scheduled for completion in mid-January 1975. Gould Center, a 40-acre commercial and recreational complex, will be completed in late 1975.

The Green Thumb

By GEORGE ABRAHAM

SCHOOL GARDENS: With a world-wide food shortage looking us in the eye, it's good to know that a few public schools are sensible enough to teach students something about growing plants. Peter J. Wotowiec, supervisor of the Horticultural Department' Cleveland O., Public Schools paoses along some interesting facts other schools should look into. Over 21,000 gardeners in the Cleveland City Schools' youth garden program, have 8d completed their reports for the 1974 season: production of vegetables alone by the students aAmounted to over $622,000. The Cleveland School Garden Program, originated in 1904, includes tracts located throughout the city where young people maintain individual garden plots. Total space devoted to tract gardens exceeds 35 acres. Those who did not wish to participate in the tract program had the option to maintain their "green thumbs" by enrolling for a home garden. Although the value of vegetables produced by the students was over $622,221, we feel that the educational value of gardening is just as important. Gardening remains a field laboratory for pupil development in the areas of environmental sciences, practical mathematics, and just about every other area taught in schools. There isn't a subject in High School (or other elementary grades) which cannot be taught, based on gardening or nature study. In good times and bad, our total environment continues to be our most cherished resource, and our whole society is committed to preserving and protecting our environment. We can do this and at the same time, learn to grow much of our own food.

NEW APPLES: If you want to try some dandy new apples, plant the following: (1) Empire, a wonderful McIntosh type, introduced by the Genevda (N. Y.) Expt. Station. A fine dessert apple that keeps longer in the refrigerator than the McIntosh. Skin is solid red and covered with a heavy waxy coating (called "bloom'). Tree ripens two weeks later than McIntosh. (2) Idared, cross between Jonathan and Wagener, has bright red skin and solid flesh. Good keeper. Tart at time of harvest, but it mellows later. Trees bear young and heavy. Griginated at Idaho Exp. Station. (3) Jonamac, a cross between Jonathan and McIntosh. Has more red color than the McIntosh, and quality is better. (4) Jonagold, a cross between Golden Delicious and Jonathan, has an attractive scarlet stripes over a yellow skin. A wonderful keeping apple with high dessert quality. Only drawback is that it will not pollinate other varieties since it is a triploid, whereas many others are diploid, referring to the number of chromosomes. A good disease resistant apple is Prima, ripening about Sept. 15, it keeps better than other summer apples,and has a good size to it. Resists scab, mildew and fireblight. NOTE: there are many other good apples available for the home orchard. Look your nursery catalog over for descriptions.

Andover Newton elects new trustees

Three new members were recently elected to the Board of Trustees at Andover Newton Theological School, Newton Centre, Mass. All three will begin their duties at the annual meeting in early February.

Emily F. Bergen, of Lincoln, experienced in community and educational activities is on the Board of Deacons of the First Parish Church in Lincoln, and has served as a board member of the Cambridge School in Weston.

She is currently active in the Boston School Volunteer Program.

Katherine B. Stuart, of Lexington, is also active in community affairs. A graduate of Smith College, she has served as president of the Board of Directors of the Cambridge YWCA.

She currently is a member of the Board of Directors of the Walker Missionary Homes, and president of the Board of Directors of Fish of Lexington.

Thomas H. Wright, LTC USA (retired), is the third new member of the Andover Newton board. A graduate of Wilberforce University, Ohio, Col. Wright is currently director of administration of the Massachusetts Commission Against Discrimination.

He has served on the boards of several community organizations, including Boston Half-Way House, Inc., and the New England Regional YMCA's.

SUPT. OF SCHOOLS Aaron Fink will be the guest of the congregation of Temple Beth Avodah Friday, Jan. 24, at a "Social Action Sabbath." Fink will discuss the history of Metco and the city's participation in the program.

Centenary Methodist peace education program starting

The second anniversary of the signing of the Vietnam Peace Agreements coincides with a Peace Education program at Centenary United Methodist Church.

The program will take place Sunday, Jan. 26, at 3 p.m. at the church, 230 Central St., Auburndale.

It will focus on three major themes and include a presentation by Bishop Ralph Dodge, executive coordinator of the Bishops' Call for Peace and the Self-Development of People.

America's War," there will be workshops on amnesty, the B-1 bomber and peace conversion and the continuing war in Indochina.

The program is open to the public and is free.

Bishop Dodge will also preach at the 10:30 a.m. worship service Sunday.

Following a showing of the film, "Indochina: Still

Preschool session start at Pine Manor

The Child Study Center sponsored by Pine Manor Junior College in Chestnut Hill offers excellent preschooling to families in the community, and applications for the 1975-76 academic year are now being accepted.

Three- to five-year-olds may be enrolled in the five-daya-week morning session (annual cost, $700); children 2 ½-5 years of age may attend the afternoon session from one to four days a week (annual cost, $125 per afternoon. It is possible for children to be enrolled in both sessions. There is financial aid available.

Because its hours are specifically coordinated with the Open College, Pine Manor's continuing education program, the center is able to meet the needs of the many adult women who want to pursue their education, as well as serving working parents.

Enrollment is expected to be completed by March 1, 1975. For -further information, contact Mrs. Elizabeth Fennel, director of the Child Study Center, Pine Manor, 400 Heath Street, Chestnut Hill, Ma 02167, telephone 731-7145.

Hospital will be part of radiology degree program

Newton-Wellesley Hospital's School of Radiologic Technology is a clinical affiliate of Northeastern University which will offer an associate in science degree beginning July.

Graduates of the 27-month program will be eligible for examination by the American Registry of Radiologic Technologists and will have two years of credit toward a bachelor's degree.

The couree will be divided into rotating semesters between hospital and university. Faculty at the hospital will include radiologists, a physicist, and senior radiologic technologists. In addition to gaining clinical experience at Newton-Wellesley, students will affiliate at Massachusetts General Hospital and Tufts New England Medical Center Hospitals for special studies.

Newton-Wellesley will pay students a modest stipend, and limited dormitory accommodations will be available for the course of training. Students must provide their own tuition, transportation and books while at the university. They are also responsible for uniforms.

Applications must be completed and sent with a high school transcript to both the university and hospital. Prospective students should have taken algebra I and II and one year of physics, chemistry or biology. They will be interviewed at both institutions and must satisfactorily complete a mathematics placement test at the university. For further information, contact the Technical Director of Education, Radiology Department, Newton-Wellesley Hospital.

Nursery school registers

Applications for the 1975-1976 season of the Temple Shalom Nursery School, 175 Temple St., West Newton, are now being accepted.

The school provides 3 to 4-year-olds with a preschool experience in an atmosphere where they may discover, explore, learn and play together under the supervision of two qualified teachers.

For further information please call 332-9550.

Three Newton students were among 226 named to the Nasson College dean's list during the first semester of the 1974-75 academic year.

Honored at the Springvale, Maine, campus were seniors Joseph J. Amendola, of 38 John St., and Margaret A. Kelliher, of 25 Chestnut Ter., both oNewton, and junior Rebecca D. Nickerson, of 150 Moffat Rd., Waban.

Jewish War Vets honor two students

Bernard S. Todrin, commander of Newton Post No. 211 of the Jewish War Veterans, has announced Newton winners of the organization's "Classmates Today-Neighbors Tomorrow" award.

Julia Slayton of 15 Blithedale St., Newtonville; and Emily Schulman of 26 Country Club Rd., Newton Centre, are the winners.

Miss Slayton is a student at Newton North High School and Miss Schulman is a student at Newton South.

They will be guests of honor at the Dept. of Massachusetts Jewish War Veterans 21st annual brotherhood breakfast Sunday, Feb. 2, in Waltham.

The Classmates program is a human relations project of the JWV for high school students. More than 100 high schools in the state participate . The Northeast Region of the National Conference of Christians and Jews selects three statewide winners and three honorable mention winners.

Reconciliation is topic Sunday at Sacred Heart

Dr. Christiane Brusselmans, visiting lecturer in religious education at Harvard Divinity School, will speak at Sacred Heart Church, Newton Centre, on Sunday evening, Jan. 26, 7:30 p.m.

Her topic will be "Reconciliation: A Broader Context For The Future." The lecture is free and open to the public.

For further information, call Art Kubick, 527-7451.

Strum leads plasy drive

James Haroules, president of Cerebral Palsy of Greater Boston, Inc., has announced that for the fifth year, Howard Strum, vice-president of the Newton-Waltham Bank, will be the campaign treasurer for the 1975 Cerebral Palsy of Greater Boston Annual Fund Raising Drive, which begins Jan. 19.

Strum said he hopes that 1975 will bring the greatest response because the need is greater than ever before to keep direct service programs going for over 700 cerebral palsied children and adults in the Greater Boston area.

Stubbs to speak on arms talks' failure

The Strategic Arms Limitation Talks SALT will be the subject of a talk by Gilbert S. Stubbs Monday, Jan. 27, 8 p.m. at the Newton Community Center, 429 Cherry St., West Newton.

Sponsored by the Eastern Massachusetts Chapter of Americans for Constitutional Action, the meeting is open to the public.

Entitled "The Seen vs. the Unseen in SALT," Stubbs will present an analysis of the public statements of the SALT negotiators and proponents, thereby exposing "a pattern of false assumptions, ignored realities, and errors in logic that lie behind our tragic failures in the SALT negotiations."

Begun in 1969 with the avowed purpose of controlling the arms race, events have proven that the SALT agreements have been only partly successful.

The widening gap between expectations and results is, Stubbs believes, "a direct consequence of certain false premises and faulty logic which have been employed by the American negotiators throughout the talks."

Mr. Stubbs has followed the course of the SALT negotiations closely since their inception.

An analysis he co-authored was used by Senator James Allen in the SALT I debate and was placed in the Congressional Record during that debate by Rep. John Ashbrook.

An electrical engineer by profession, Stubbs has been active as a speaker and writer on national and world affairs for the past 10 years.

BACK TO COLLEGE

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stage and screen star Howard Da Silva will join the Queensborough Community College's Professional Theatre in Residence for the coming season and will play the leading role in Bertold Brecht's "The Caucasian Chalk Circle," opening Jan. 31. Da Silva, who portrayed Ben Franklin in both the stage and screen versions of "1776," is celebrating his 45th year in the theater.

SYLVIA MILLER of the Creative Home, needlecraft, has announced that she is moving to the new Mall at Echo Bridge in Newton Upper Falls. In her newly enlarged shop, she will display a large selection of custom needlepoint canvasses and feature unusual accessories for the home. She will also offer free instructions.

Heart Assn. gives award to Bonner

Charles D. Bonner, M.D., of 160 Lake Ave., medical director, Youville Hospital, Cambridge, has been designated for special honors by the board of directors of the American Heart Association.

The American Heart Association's Award of Merit will be presented to Bonner Friday, Jan. 24, in New York City at the year's first meeting of the American Heart Association's board.

In particular, the award will site Bonner's years of work with the Heart Association on the local, state and national levels and his untiring efforts at involving ethnic and economic minorities not only in the programs of the American Heart Association but also as participants in the organization's policy making committees.

Bonner, a graduate of Lincoln University and Boston University Medical School, is presently a member of the American Heart Association Executive Committee, board of directors, chairman of its Minority Involvement Committee, and a member of the Stroke Council as well as the nominating and awards committee. In Massachusetts, he is vice president of the Association and chairs the minorities committee as well as being a member of the executive committee and board of directors.

His professional associations are many and include: director of rehabilitation, Youville Hospital; consultant in medicine, St. Elizabeth's Hospital; director of Division of Physical Medicine, Cambridge Hospital; assistant professor of Clinical Rehabilitation, Tufts University. Dr. Bonner is a member of: American Society of Internal Medicine; American Congress of Rehabilitation Medicine, New England Society of Physical Medicine and the Massachusetts Medical Society and a Fellow of the American College of Physicians.

In addition to the present Award of Merit, Bonner has also received: Boston University's Alumni Association's Award for Public Service; Boston University's School of Medicine 17th Distinguished Alumni Award; the Merit Award for Region I, National Rehabilitation Association and the 1970 Physician Recognition Award of The American Medical Association.

Dr. and Mrs. Bonner are the parents of two daughters, Carol and Denise.

Pinciss elected

Barry P. Pinciss of Newtonville has been a elected a fellow in the Massachusetts Society of Certified Public Accountants.

He is a senior accountant with Coopers & Lybrand in Boston.

Pinciss is a graduate of the University of Massachusetts where he received his BA degree in 1969. He got his MBA with honors from Boston University in 1973.

Green thumb enriches heart fund

Dr. Edward Kushner, a Newton dentist, has cultivated his hobby of raising plants and reaped a harvest for the Greater Boston Massachusetts Chapter of the American Heart Association.

With the help of Louis Galner of Warren Road, $500 was collected from the sale of plants and donated to the 1975 Heart Fund Campaign.

Kushner's "garden" flourishes in the basement of his Jane Road home. It contains both common and exotic plants, grown exclusively under artificial light. In order to make room for new growth, Dr. Kushner sold morethan 100 varieties.

A victim of a heart attack, Kushner is a firm believer in the Heart Fund, and the work made possible by donations. Through those donations, special gifts and events such as the sale, year-round programs of research and education are supported.

When his garden needs "weeding" again, Kushner promises another sale.

The 1975 Heart Fund Campaign will continue through the month of February, culminating on Heart Sunday, Feb. 23.

Mutual Bank elects Newton residents

Eight Newton residents have been elected to the Corporation of Mutual Bank For Savings during 1974 at the bank's annual meeting and dinner.

Elected corporators were, Anita Capless of Newton Highlands, an active member of the Newton League of Women Voters and other civic organizations; Oscar A. Wasserman of Newton Centre, partner in the law firm of Wasserman, Feinberg & Weisman; Margaret L. Smith, Newton Centre, member of the Newton Redevelopment Authority; Dr. Earle W. Wilkins, Jr., West Newton, D. Stuart Laughlin, Jr., of Waban, advertising and sales promotion manager for Bird & Son, Inc.; David B. Cooper, West Newton, president of Bennett, Goding & Cooper; Hugh D. Rogovin, West Newton, vice-president of King's Department Stores, Inc.; and Lalor Burdick of Newton Centre, a consultant with Scudder, Stevens & Clark.

Also elected was Anthony J. Bibbo, Wellesley. Bibbo is executive vice-president of the Newton Community Service Centers, Inc.

ANTHONY J. MEDAGLIA JR. of Waban, an attorney and corporator of the Mutual Bank for Savings, has been elected a trustee of the bank at its annual meeting.

Sanders elected trustee at Provident

The Provident Institution for Savings in the town of Boston announces the election of six of the bank's corporators as new trustees. They will be serving a three-year term expiring in December, 1977. Among those elected is Thomas E. Sanders, head varsity basketball coach at Harvard University, and William L. Wimberly, associate general director of the Greater Boston Young Men's Christian Association. Mr. Sanders is a resident of Newton.

Rivers school raises funds

The Rivers County Day School announced recently that its Faculty Endowment Fund has reached $75,000.

The school congratulated Stanton L. Black, Newton, and Robert N. Hurwitz, Newton Centre, for their service on the Development Committee that helped meet the goal of the Matching Challenge Gift Fund.

This fund was set up a year ago when an anonymous donor gave $25,000 to the endowment fund with the provision that, if the school r aised $25,000 on its own by December 21, 1974, the donor would then contribute another $25,000.

The first teacher to benefit from the Faculty Endowment Fund is Dudley S. Greenwood, of Wayland, who will use the grant to study in college admissions offices.

The Rivers Country Day School is a boys' school in Weston for grades seven through twelve.

Stern talks on SCORE

"SCORE Can Help Small Business" was the subject of a talk by Dave Stern of Newton Highlands at the recent luncheon meeting of the West Roxbury Kiwanis.

Stern is a retired treasurer and general manager of the Stern Can Co. He is presently associated with SCORE, which is sponsored jointly by the U.S. Small Business Administration and Action, the Federal Umbrella Organization for all volunteer activities.

The Boston Chapter of SCORE consists of 85 retired executives carefully chosen for their expertise in one or more business areas. These individuals volunteer their help in confidential meetings with prospective and current small businesses in need of assistance. They counsel people at 150 Causeway St., Boston, or by appointment at the place of business.

Shortage of new homes in East Europe

BELGRADE (UPI) — The housing shortage has been a major problem in Eastern Europe since World War II and even today few governments claim they are approaching a solution.

Broken marriages, falling birth rates and conflict between generations all are blamed in part on the cramped, inadequate living conditions.

In Prague you may have to wait up to 15 years for an apartment at current building rates. In Belgrade the frustration of many families has led them to occupy vacant apartments illegally, sometimes taking over whole blocks, to dramatize their plight. In Sofia the government began negotiations to import Arab construction workers, an exceptional step for a Communist country even with a labor shortage.

The problem stems from the urban devastation of World War II which severely depleted housing stock, and the postwar priority given to building up industry rather than constructing homes.

The siutation was made worse by the mass migration of peasants to the towns and cities as much of Easten Europe moved from the rural to the industrialized age in little more than a decade.

"It is a question of too little, too late," said Milorad Pusic, construction manager of a Belgrade firm. "Our industry simply does not have the capacity to meet the demand."

Yugoslav officials said there is no short-term solution and estimated that Belgrade, with its one million population, is short about 80,000 apartments while in the nation as a whole, with its 20 million population, the shortfall is about 800,000.

Dusan Stojic, 38, a bakery worker who broke into a new and vacant apartment and lived there for 15 months with his wife and two children, said, "There was no other way for me to obtain a flat for my family even though I was breaking the law.

"I have been with the bakery firm for six years and one of the managers told me they would be unable to provide a flat for me in the next 10 years."

Some countries, however, have made significant progress in the housing. The Soviet Union is carrying out an intensive nationwide program which in a decade has reduced the percentage of families lifing communally or sharing an apartment from 50 to 25 per cent.

The prefabricated apartment buildings are sterile in their uniformity and often shoddy in construction but they provide as much housing as quickly and cheaply as possible.

The newspaper Sotsialsticheskaya Industria estimated that a total of 100 million persons, about 40 per cent of the population, moved to new apartments or improved their housing conditions between 1960 and 1970.

Poland also has boosted its building program, stepping up production of building materials, buying factories for prefabricated housing from the Soviet Union and East Germany and importing some Western technology. The planners aim to install a house factory in each of Poland's 17 administrative areas and say the shortage of flats will be solved by 1982.

At present, however, about one million Poles are waiting for new apartments with the waiting period averaging from three to six years.

As in the rest of Eastern Europe, priority on a waiting list depends on a variety of factors—age, number of dependents, demand in the area for a particular skill.

Although not officially acknowledged, standing in or with the Communist party also can be a factor and many complain that widespread bribery and influence is used to obtain priority on the waiting list.

There are other forms of corruption and profiteering. In Hungary, for example, a room in an apartment can be sublet for about $40 a month, an extortionate sum set against the average monthly income of $100.

The quality of much consturction creates a constant demand for repair work, putting householders at the mercy of construction workers who agree to work "privately" at a "special" rate. The problem is notorious in Bulgaria where direct application to a state construction company for repair work can mean a wait of months or even years.

Today in Education

By WILLIAM HERBERG
Executive Secretary
BC Mass. Teachers Assn. PD

Economic pressures now building in every segment of society pose the threat if not the reality of teacher firings and cutbacks in education throughout the country. The Massachusetts Teachers Association (MTA) and the National Education Association (NEA) are urging a federal public service program to halt the erosion of quality education and prevent further neglect of our nation's children. Large numbers of students are already suffering from serious neglect, a condition which leads to poverty and crime, because many schools lack the staff, the materials and the facii+facilities to educate children properly. Our schools are inacapable of responding to many youngsters at present funding levels, and the situation is bound to get worse if we try to beat inflation by cutting back on important educational programs.

It should be pointed out that 23 of ell students drop out before high school graduation. This rate climbs to 60 percent for American Indians and 80 percent for children of migrant parents. A million children between the ages of 12 and 17 are illiterate.

Additional statistics reveal that school vandalism costs $200 million a year, and keeping a youngster in a juvenile home or correctional institution can easily run 10 times as much a year as it would cost to educate him effectively.

A recent NEA survey shows that a large percentage cf our nation's teachers report increases in class size. Many studies indicate that the larger the class, the less likely it is that the teacher will be able to uncover an individual child's problem, let alone solve it. Nearly half of all teachers report either a decrease in teaching materials, elimination of school programs, or a reduction in special subject teaches.+.teachers.

Every time class size is increased by even one child, we are cutting back each child's chance at personal attention. Every time we cut down on materials or specialized teachers, we leave all children's opportunity for an effective education that much smaller. We are guaranteeing e greater harvest of dropouts and illiterates.

In addition to this, the impact on teachers of inflation-related school budgets has been critical. The f,roportion of funds allocated for teachers has declined steadily since 1963.

Teachers salaries are among the first to suffer in any economic decline. A comparison between teacher nalary growth and U.S. average per capita income gains since 1967 show averac.e per capita income increased 55.2 percent by 1973, but teachers' incomes increased only 43.8 percent.

The federal government should now earmark a major part of all public serv.ce employment programs for teachers and additional educational services. There is no more fruitful direction for public employment than this because, not only would teacher unemployment be decreased, but students would gain immeasurably from the additional individual attention and special programs.

This sort of broad federal attack would also offer a particularly suitable chance to increase our efforts to prepare young people for the world of work through a serious approach to career education and vocational education. Even in these troubled financial times, there is one sure "growth stock", and that is education.

GOOD RATING

NEW YORK (UPI) — A survey of 70 top international managers from the United States shows American employees rate especially high in productivity, labor stability and general performance on the job.

The survey is published in The Conference Board Record. In assessing the relative performance of their overseas work forces, the American companies frequently give top ratings to workers in Germany, Canada, Japan and Brazil. Workers in those countreis also are cited most often for performance equal to or surpassing that of U.S. workers.

WHERE ECONOMY ORIGINATES

OPERATION AWARE, 1975:

A&P CUTS FOOD PRICES

1. PRICE CUTS ON STAPLES.

A&P starts the New Year by cutting the price on A&P Brands of staples such as Dry Milk, Beans, Peanut Butter, Mayonnaise, Luncheon Meat, Fish Sticks, Spaghetti, Macaroni, Spaghetti Sauce, Cheese Slices, Frozen Shoestring Potatoes and other items that are important to a family's diet. So now you can get meaningful savings on many frequently purchased items.

2. WEEKLY SPECIALS TOO... IN ALL DEPARTMENTS.

Outstanding weekly specials to include meat, fresh fruits and vegetables and grocery items. And when A&P saves you money on meat, that really means something. Because at A&P, you know you're always getting fully matured meat that's cut, trimmed and priced for value. Take our beef, for instance. We sell only one quality of beef at A&P. And it's backed by our unconditional money-back guarantee and our Butcher's Pledge. That's the A&P Butcher's promise to always pack the better side of every cut down. So if you like what you see in the store, you'll love what you see at home.

3. AWARE LIST CONTINUES.

We're continuing our Early Warning System against price increases: The Aware List. Every week we will voluntarily post a list of price increases, such as those received from manufacturers, a full seven days before we actually change our price. That gives you one week to purchase at the old price, subject, of course, to product availability. You'll also find "Be Aware" shelf tags on many frequently purchased items with the day of the price increase right on the tag. Of course, the Aware List won't include perishables like meat, eggs or fresh fruit and vegetables, where markets fluctuate daily; items controlled by law; or advertised specials.

4. CONSUMER PROTECTION POLICY.

We're of course continuing our committment to making you an Aware Shopper by reminding you of what every A&P store owes you and by informing you of ways to get the most for your money. Look for the signs in A&P stores spelling out all the protection A&P gives you: 1. Guaranteed Satisfaction. 2. Exceptional Value. 3. Low Price with Absolutely No Compromise in Quality. 4. Rain Check Product Availability. 5. Product Freshness Through Open Dating. 6. Consumer Information. 7. Courteous Service. 8. Cleanliness. 9. Safe and Healthy Products. 10. Shopping Convenience. 11. The Butcher's Pledge. 12. Variety of Choice and 13. People to People Communication.

A&P WE OWE YOU MORE THAN JUST FOOD.

Nature's ways

By WAYNE HANLEY
Mass. Audubon Society

An unusual outbreak of canine distemper has been passing through wildlife in eastern Massachusetts and perhaps other parts of New England in recent weeks.

Arthur Neill, a biologist with the State Division of Fisheries and Game, said that the first indications that the disease was present came through weird reports and wildlife activities. In one town a skunk was noticed following a mailman on his rounds. In several communities, raccoons not only ventured out in daylight but did such uncommon things as sit on front porches and, to the householders at least, seemed ready to enter houses.

David A. Ryan of the Manchester Junior-Senior High School in Manchester, Mass., reported the outbreak to the Smithsonian Institution's Center for Short-Lived Phenomena.

Oddly, the outbreak first occurred in March on the Massachusetts North Shore. Then it seemed to subside until May when dogs in the Beverly area began coming down with the disease.

The outbreak among wildlife seems largely to involve skunks and raccoons. Neill said there was no indication that it has swept through foxes which one might suspect would be more susceptible to the disease since they, as well as dogs, are canines. Several Massachusetts wild mammals that died under suspicious circumstances have been sent to the Wildlife Disease Center of the University of Rhode Island.

Distemper affects mammals somewhat as a virulent form of influenza might affect a human. They have runny eyes, stuffy noses, labored breathing and relatively high temperatures. The disease may last from ten days to six weeks. The extent of death among infected wild mammals is not known. There is a probability of death rates being high since wild mammals need to be alert at all times to remain alive. Among dogs, most of which have a home and someone to look out for them, the death rate often runs from 30 to 80 percent.

Canine distemper is a virus disease. However, it frequently weakens an animal's defenses and the animal may die from some bacteria that enters the system. The disease has a world-wide distribution. It usually attacks young dogs, most often between the ages of seven months and two years old.

So far no method of treating mammals in the wild has been developed. Among pets, however, the disease can be prevented by vaccinating puppies against the virus.

NEW LAW

NEW YORK (UPI) — A new law, the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act of 1974, went into effect in November. It is part of the Omnibus Education amendments of 1974 and was designed by Sen. James Buckley of New York.

It ensures parents and older students the right to inspect and challenge student records while limiting access by outside parties. It covers "any and all official records, files and data" directly related to a student. This includes grades, standardized test scores, attendance data, interest inventory results, health data, family background and teacher or counselor ratings and observations.

ART STUDENTS

NEW YORK (UPI) — Students of painting, sculpture and the graphic arts, along with the professional artists who train them, will participate in a visual arts program supported by the Ford Foundation.

Grants totaling $4,054,650 were made to 34 institutions, independent schools of art, colleges and universities with strong studio art departments, and a few atelier schools that concentrate on studio work but do not offer a degree.

The funds will be used for scholarships for art students and for fellowships for artist-teachers to enable them to concentrate on their own creative work, on or off campus.

SAFETY TIP

NEW YORK (UPI) — If you have a gas, kerosene or oil space heater have it inspected regularly to insure adjustments are proper and the equipment is clean.

Lion quintet shocks Acton

Aronson sparkles in victory

By BRUCE BOYNICK
Sports Correspondent

NEWTON — A brilliant 28-point performance by senior guard Mark Aronson and a tremendous team effort were instrumental in leading the Newton South Lions to a stunning 73-32 rout of the Acton-Boxborough Colonials at Newton South last Tuesday. The contest was one of the most impressive victories in Newton South basketball history.

From the opening tipoff, the Lions dominated the contest. A Bob Lent hoop with 5:00 remaining in the first quarter made the score 10-4. Successive jump shots by Aronson, Matt Sabetti, and Chandler Bosworth kept the Lions in front at 16-10 with 1:35 remaining. Acton closed to within two, but a nifty pass by Bosworth to Bob Harris resulted in a Lion layup and an 18-14 lead after a quarter.

At the start of the second quarter the Lions reeled off seven unanswered points to lead 25-14. Acton called time out to regroup but Aronson led a Lion assault that made the score 34-20. The flustered Colonials called another time out at 1:55. The Lions stole the ball and employed a stall offense to get the last shot of the half. Sure enough, to cap off the impressive half, Aronson hit a shot from downtown with four seconds left in the half to give the Lions a 36-20 lead at intermission.

A relentless Lion squad played even better in the second half. A 14-4 surge increased the lead to 50-24. The stingy Lion defense relinquished a mere four points in the third quarter to lead 52-24.

With the game out of reach the Lions reserves took over, and looked as good as the starters, producing 21 points in the final stanza.

Aronson was simply immense throughout the entire contest. He completely orchestrated the tempo of the game and collected 28 points. Likewise, the remaining squad was tremensous, turning in its best performance of the season. Bosworth and Harris had 10 points each while Sabetti and Lent both tallied eight. Harris and Lent loomed large underneath, pulling down nine and seven rebounds respectively.

BOW TO WAYLAND

If the Acton contest was the most impressive Lion outing of the season, which it was, then the Wayland game on Friday at Wayland was the most disappointing. The Lions, sensing a season turnaround after the Acton victory, were once again excellent. Yet their fine performance was not able to surpass a sensational Wayland effort as the Warriors defeated South in a tremendously well played, dramatic contest, 63-57. PD The team looked sharp from the beginning, and Aronson led South to a 10-point lead at intermission. Wayland came roaring back to close the margin, and only a few points separated the teams throughout the third quarter. But with the game tied in the fourth quarter, the Lions could do nothing to thwart the Warriors. In the fourth quarter Wayland shot an almost unbelievable 83 per cent (10-12) to win the contest by six points.

The Lions, even though hopes of a state tourney have long since subsided, have shown dramatic signs of improvement. The team appears to be on an upswing, and the second half of the season should help this team to a respectable record.

Tiger harriers bomb Cambridge, 71 to 15

By RICH RAUM
Sports Correspondent

NEWTON — Saturday marked the second straight time the Newton North track team trounced their opponents. A week earlier they demolished Quincy 72-14; this time they crushed Cambridge, 71-15.

Howard Pearce started things off for Newton as he ran his fastest mile of the year, winning in a time of 4:48:2. Mark Laredo finished second.

Newton then proceeded to sweep the 1000. Alan Yun, Tony Morales and Vona finished first, second, and third, respectively.

The 600 found Ken Tocci running his fastest time of the year (1:21:9) to win the race. Rich Raum took third for Newton.

The Tigers Kwek Randall and Kevin Jones finished first and third in the 300.

Rich Schilder won the 2-mile for Newton. Klubock grabbed a third.

The Tigers' Al Shocket, Jeff Caplan, and Hugh Caplan were responsible for sweeping the dash, as James Connoly, Rich Jaffe and Joe Delorenzo were responsible for sweeping the hurdles.

The field events weren't much different. John Ricker, Martin and Hinchy swept the high jump, and Pete Saravis and Rich Sall took second and third in the shotput.

The Tigers capped off the meet by winning the relay, but the "rest" for them is over. Their next opponent, Waltham proves to be tough this Saturday.

Rindge Tech follows the following Friday in what can now be termed as the biggest meet of the year.

Mousalli honored

WORCESTER — Members of the Massachusetts State Soccer All Stars were honored last Sunday with a gala banquet here. The team, selected by the Massachusetts State Soccer Coaches Association, is comprised of the best soccer players in the state.

Selected to the team from Newton North was their fine forward Joe Mousalli. Other players from nearby towns chosen were Brad Schmall of Needham and Mark Cleverdon of Wellesley.

Also honored Sunday was Al Harrington of Transcript Newspapers. Harrington was given the Writers' Award as the outstanding high school soccer writer. The award recipient covered the games of Bay State League champion Needham.

HAYWOOD STILL ILL

SEATTLE (UPI) — Ailing Spencer Haywood of the Seattle SuperSonics won't be able to return to action before Jan. 29, a club spokesman said Tuesday.

Haywood was stricken with the flu shortly before the NBA All-Star game. He played briefly in the game even though he was ill.

North 5 upset Quincy

NEWTON—The Newton North basketball team won a big one last week as they defeated Quincy by the score of 66-62. Newton's John Williams was the big scorer for the Tigers as he fired home twenty-one points in a fine effort. Steve Grant also had an outstanding game as he hit for sixteen points.

Quincy had three players in double figures, Dacey with eighteen points, Unlar with thirteen and Connors with ten.

Newton North took the early lead as they held a slim two-point edge at the end of the first period, 15-13. Quincy exploded for nineteen points in the second quarter with some sharp shooting, grabbing the lead 32-27 at halftime as a tenacious defense limited the Tigers to 12 points.

Quincy extended their lead to 50-43 at the end of three quarters before Newton exploded for twenty-three points in the last frame to win. Led by Williams and Grant, the Tigers totally dominated play in a fast and furious final quarter to win going away, 66-62.

Sports Spice

Commentary by Eddie Andelman

Eddie raps insecure jealous phonies

Often times I am critized in both the written and electronic media in Boston, but almost always by the same establishment lightweights who have never really accomplished anything positive in their careers. It's these very same insecure jealous individuals, who are afraid to live life, take up crusades or more importantly, try to improve their own niche in life, through good hard work. Some of my projects have been:

1. The Sports Huddle, the first radio telephone talk show in Boston.

2. The Sports Wrap-Up, the first nightly all sports news radio program.

3. The Sports Shuttle, a Massachusetts charitable trust dedicated to underprivileged children, which has never turned down a single request, and already has taken over 7,000 youngsters to professional sporting events, who otherwise might never have gone, operated strictly by non-paid volunteer listeners who weekly prove that Boston is truly the greatest sports town in the country.

4. Race to Riches, a new game show which is the first of a series of television projects, which will utilize sports fans instead of professional athletes.

5. TV Studio Boxing, an attempt by Channel 7 to build their local sports image by trying to reactivate interest once again in the New England boxing championships. The charities which have benefited so far are, the Jimmy Fund; Sports Shuttle; Boston Ballet; Kidney Foundation; United Way and the Elma Lewis Foundation for the Black Performing Arts.

6. The Fanny Awards, an annual TV special to give recognition to local athletes, coaches, media people and fans, for their fine accomplishments and dedication to sports.

7. The Creation of Sports Spice, a bi-weekly feature of this paper, where a gaggle of writers are allowed to express their views, unencumbered by management.

Yes, I get paid for many of my activities, for I have a living to earn and a family to feed, but I openly challenge my severest critics to match my charitable endeavors, from visits to veterans hospitals, to cash comtributions, to chairmanships of fund-raising drives, to assisting both young men and women in starting their careers.

Admittedly, blowing one's own horn is "bush", but it is the only way I know of fighting the hypocrites who fail to stand up like men, but rather shout sneaky accusations from behind the skirts of powerful corporations, knowing full well, they will be protected from any trespassers into their establishment domain.

So now I feel better, and for both of you so bitterly entrapped and totally consumed by jealousy, a giant razzzzberry . . . PHSSSSSST.

Let's give a standing ovation to the Gillette Company, all the big beer outfits like Schaefer, Budweiser, Miller and Schlitz, Ford Motor Company, Chrysler, plus so many others which do not immediately come to mind for they bring us sports on both radio and television and without their advertisements, fans would be watching old Charlie Chan films on weekends.

The top ten crybabies in the history of sports, but not necessarily in the order of their childish tantrums have to be:

Johnny Sample
Oscar Robertson
Wilt Chamberlain
Woody Hayes
Don Cherry
Harry Sinden
Tom Heinsohn
Bobby Fischer
Billy Jean King
Jack Nicklaus

The greatest feeling of accomplishment anyone can have is to be standing all alone at a Trifecta cashier's window while jealous spectators watch to see how many winning tickets you are about to cash.

Have you ever wondered how many Puerto Ricans are playing winter ball in Buffalo? If you have, then most probably you are the type of individual who would support a new world figure eight-automobile demolition derby league.

Tell the truth now, would you want your sister to go to a specialty summer camp run by any member of the San Diego Gulls?

The Globe's Larry Whiteside is the most knowledgeable boxing writer in these parts since Bill Liston turned all his interests towards the Red Sox and Bud Collins started on his crusade to make tennis interesting to those members of the great unwashed masses whose descendants did not come over on the Mayflower.

The same kind of people who understand the high diving point scoring systems, are the same types who understand exactly what Barney accomplishes electronically on Mission Impossible every night.

Make it a point the next time you visit New York City to visit the Madison Square Garden Complex which the local media tends to knock. It's well-lighted, air conditioned, contains escalators, checkrooms, closed circuit televisions, has a lost and found which can be found, and even has rest rooms complete with running water and paper.

Does any hockey fan out there know the answer to this difficult question? What is the last name of Bobby Hull's brother Dennis, who plays for the Chicago Blackhawks? The answer appears on page 127 of the 1973 Toledo Mudhens yearbook.

Can anyone whistle the Gonzaga University fight song for me? No, well how about the University of Las Vegas' victory march? One last chance then, the theme song used when the Pittsburgh Triangles take the court before the usual 350 paid customers.

People who think Howard Cosell is hip tend to eat bologna sandwiches with butter, enjoy Carol Burnett, play "fish" or "war" and understand TV weathermen.

As far as wit is concerned, Larry Clafin, Ray Fitzgerald and Ernie Roberte lead the local columnists by far, while Gil Santos, Clark Booth and our bowling guru, Bob Gamere, seem to be the only electronic media members who enjoy life.

I calculate the odds of the Celtics, Bruins, Patriots and Red Sox winning world titles simultaneously next season at around 100 to one. Can you imagine the odds on the Atlanta Braves, Flames, Hawks and Falcons doing the same.

It's just a matter of time before there is a holocaust at Boston Garden, for it is a joint condusive to rioting and civil commotion, an antiquated fire trap and above all, almost inaccessable fire fighting equipment due to the illegal parkers who have almost no other alternative.

Weeks' quintet defeated by Kennedy and Day hoop teams

By RICHARD S. GROSSMAN
Sports Correspondent

NEWTON — The fans that attended the Weeks v. Kennedy basketball game last Monday were not the rooters one might expect. Rather it was composed of adults whose disposition was several decibles softer than a crowd attending the Benedict Arnold Open Golf Classic, clapping politely after each Kennedy basket.

"It was a strange feeling, such a huge gym and such a soft crowd. It really makes you appreciate the fans that turn out for our home games," said one Weeks player.

It would have been easy to prejudge the Kennedy Varsity basketball squad, which seemed just slightly taller than the Weeks Junior Varsity team, but they were good shooters and quick, when quickness was needed.

The pace started slow, the only time it speeded up was on Kennedy fast breaks which were plentiful. At 3:08 into the game the score was 2-2. By 4:00 Kennedy held a 6-4 lead which was to grow to 20-8 by the quarter's end. This lead by Kennedy was mainly due to Weeks turnovers and the low shooting percentage of the Weeks team. Jim Glasser was out at 2:08 of the game with a leg injury but was able to play against Day on Thursday.

In the second stanza both teams started out as they had in the previous quarter, cautious. At 2:33 of the quarter Weeks center and high scorer Joel Dennis received a technical foul. At 5:38 of the quarter Weeks put six straight points on the board, but it was not enough to overtake the commanding Kennedy team. At the end of the half the Kennedy lead had been cut to 31-22.

The third quarter started auspiciously for the Weeks team. Kennedy started off by winning the tap and then they proceeded to turn the ball over to Weeks. A Peter Balcanoff basket then a Joel Dennis basket made the score 31-26. It looked as if Weeks had some serious chance for survival but Kennedy's John Norcea came back with a bucket to make it 45-30, and at the end of the quarter 51-33.

At :46 of the final frame the Kennedy lead, which had been growing since early in the third quarter, hit the 20 point mark (53-33), then the 24 point level (59-35) at 3:16 of the fourth quarter. The game ended with the score 64-44.

After the game Kennedy coach McClosky said, "Before this our record was one and one, this was our first team effort. We are a small team, and because of this we need a lot of discipline. I feel this was our team's maturing point, I think we could give anyone a battle now. Outstanding performances were turned in by Dave Hill, John Norcea, and Wayne Grumney."

Weeks coach Bannen said, "We played badly, our shooting was cold. There were two times when we had five shots in a row and missed all of them."

Matt Fitzgibbon of Weeks said, "We made too many mistakes, then we couldn't get going."

Andy Kaufman siad, "We became a little to overconfident when we saw how short they were."

High scorers were, for Weeks: Center Joel Dennis-14, Frank Duffy-8, Peter Balcanoff-6, For Kennedy: John Nocera-18, Dave Hill-17, Wayne Grumney-12, Jeff Norcea-6.

DEFEATED BY DAY

Things were noisier at F.A. Day Junior High School on Thursday of last week. The Weeks Junior High School two game losing streak was extended to three to the tune of 57-37.

Weeks took an early 2-0 lead at :59 of the game. That was the best Weeks could do though as they didn't score untill the last minute of the quarter, when they picked up four points. The score at the end of the quarter was 15-6.

The second quarter was fairly even with Day keeping a consistant nine point lead. At 2:17 the score was 19-10, at 3:15 it was 21-12, at 3:42 it was 23-14. The half ended with the score 32-18.

In the first half most of the Day points came on drives to the basket and outside shots. The Day defense stalled the Weeks team and forced turnovers. When they didn't turn it over the Weeks offense took too much time to set up shots. Day outshot Weeks 30-18 in the first half.

At :40 of the third quarter a technical foul was called on Jim Glasser of Weeks. By 3:04 of the quarter the Day lead was 39-22 and at 4:39 the margin was 20 points (42-22). With 1:57 left in the quarter Weeks started a comeback. First a basket by Joel Dennis then two by Peter Balcanoff, after those six points Balcanoff made one foul shot and then Dennis put two more on the board for Weeks. By the end of the quarter the Day lead was 44-31.

The fourth quarter was played mostly by the substitutes. Day outscored Weeks 13-6 making the final score Day 57, Weeks 37.

Andy Kaufman of Weeks said, "We took too much time taking shots and we didn't take enough shots. We weren't thinking on offense, that's how we've been the past couple games."

Coach Bannen of Weeks could only say, "We played badly. We're going to have to work on our shooting. Day has a good shooting team."

Day coach Elder had no comment on the game but he said this regarding the overall athletic situation, "It would be good if we could get more money into the athletic program. The more money they give us, the more kids we can get involved, and that's the main idea."

The high scorers were, for Weeks: Peter Balcanoff-17, Joel Dennis-10. Fod Day: Mike Pupleck-14, Rich Prioa-14, Russell-11, Jordan-9.

SOCCER TALK

by PAUL ELDRIDGE

True to their word, the Boston Minutemenpicked local talent in Wednesdays Collegiate Draft. They took two from Massachusetts and one from New York. When the Minutemen's turn on the second round came, Gen. Mgr., Casey Frankiewicz said that Boston picks Jon Ross, goalkeeper from Cornell. Ross is a three-year varsity starter and 1974 co-captain from Stamford, Connecticut. He was a second-team All-American in 1974 and All-New York State and All-Ivy in 1973 and 1974.

Ross has 21 career shutouts in 35 games, a 0.70 golas against average and holds virtually every Cornell goalkeeping record. He has had only one penalty-kick scored against him, and this past season he stopped back-to-back penalty-kicks to preserve a 0-0 tie with Hartwick.

Boston's 2nd pick was forward-midfielder, Dave Pizarro of Springfield College. Their 3rd and last pick was Mark Woodbrey, a forward from Amherst College.

The first player to be taken in the draft was the Maxwell Trophy winner, Farrakh Quraishi, a back from Oneonta State who went to Tampa. Other New England players picked were Tim Hunter, a defender from U. of Conn. to Miami; Kevin Welsh, a forward from U. of Bridgeport to Hartford; and everyone's All-American, Frantz Innocent, a forward out of U. of Conn. who was picked by Dallas.

Minutemen coach, Hubert Vogelsinger, was pleased with their selections. He said that "This is the first step in Americanizinf the team." He also said that he would like an American as a back-up goalie, but he still would have to earn a place on the team. One reason why Vogelsingger likes Ross, is that he shut-out two of his Yale teams.

SOCCER SHORTS — Toronto and Vancouver did not take part in the draft as they both want to build up Canadian talent.

The Rhode Island Oceaneers of the American Soccer League playing out of Hartford, Connecticut. They will be fighting the Connecticut Wildcats for the fans. They are also the third ASL team to come over to the NASL, the others being the Rochester Lancers and Washington Darts (now the Miami Toros).

The first player from the Notre Dame of Soccer, St. Louis University, to be picked in the draft was Bruce Hudson, who was taken by the St. Louis Stars.

The Dedham "A" Team will sport a new look this year. Besides the new shirts and sox bought over the summer, they will be wearing shirt badges from Southend United, of the English 3rd Djvision.

John Bertos of the Boston Astros announced this week that they will play 15 home games this year. Ten league games and five internations.

NEWTON — Quincy, on the strength of two goals each by Rick Lucier and Frank scored six goals in the first two periods and it proved more than enough to defeat Newton North High last Tuesday at McHugh Forum, 7-2.

Quincy went out to an early lead and just kept pushing, not letting up until the final buzzer. Rick Lucier opened the scoring at 5:31 on a hard backhander beating Newton goalie Joe Steele to the left.

Dennis Bertone slammed home the second President goal at 12:15 when he put a hard wrist shot past Steele who was hampered by a Ted Wiedermann screen. Guest ended the first period scoring at 14:04 on a Lucier rebound.

The Presidents added three more goals in the second period after Steve Marchessault put the Tigers on the board at 2:43 when he slipped one by goalie Mark Fanning to give Newton a ray of hope. That hope was short lived, though, as Lucier added his second goal when he and Guest broke in on defenseman Ray Valente and Steele. Valente at the last moment commited himself to Guest who passed to Lucier for the goal. Peter Raymer scored and Guest added his 16th goal to put the Presidents in command, 6-1.

Third period goals went to Rick Cavanaugh for the Tigers and Bob Barry for the Presidents.

The game, which was broadcast as "Hockey Night in Boston" on radio station WCRB, was an interesting one, but Quincy had the manpower to outgun the Tigers. WCRB and the BCAA presented the three stars of the game with awards. Quincy defenseman Ted Wiedermann gained top honor, while Frank Guest picked up second star and Newton center Steve Marchessault gained third star.

The loss put a damper on the 2-5-1 Tigers, coming off of the 10-0 mauling of Rindge Tech, while Quincy improved their record to 7-1-0 to keep their one point behind league leading Brockton.

Three Newton young men star at Rivers

WESTON — The Rivers Country Day School enjoyed another undefeated weekend in varsity sports competition, and is well on its way to the most successful winter season ever. The basketball team (5-0 in the Private School League) increased its overall record to 9-1 with convincing wins over Beaver Country Day (60-48) and Providence Country Day (69-55). Leading the Rivers scorers in the PCD game were junior Jeff Miller (21 points), captain Art Bell (18 points) and junior Charlie Lilienthal of Newton (12 pts.).

Neither game was in doubt; however against PCD Rivers finished the game with 14 almost unanswered points in the last four minutes. The varsity and junior varsity (currently 6-0) will meet St. Sebastian's at 3:00 P.M. this Friday at the Newton school.

Rivers wrestling also traveled to Providence and conquered Moses Brown 54-18 for their third win in four starts. Remaining undefeated were Doug Green of Newton (at 127 pounds), Mark Brzozowski (138), Brad Widing (160), and Bruce Keltie (unlimited). The Rivers grapplers face Belmont Hill away Friday at 3 p.m.

The Rivers hockey team, playing its first sanctioned game in almost a decade, skated to a 2-2 tie with Roxbury Latin last Friday. Senior Trevor Gowdy connected for the first goal at 4:15 of the first period, assisted by Karl Smith-Petersen of Newton and Steve Lyons. Rivers second goal came at 4:05 of the last period and was scored by senior Greg Johnson, with the assist going to Matt Perry. The big Red skaters play Providence Country Day this Friday at 3:00 P.M.

Brimmer and May team opens season

Sunday, January 19 marked the opening of the 1975 gymnastic season for youngsters interested in competing in the United States Gymnastic Federation program which culminates in National Championships this coming spring. The Brimmer and May School in Chestnut Hill hosted the first compulsory competition of the season.

Mike and Jean Buzzi, directors of the Brimmer and May School of Gymnastics ran a well organized and exciting meet. Thirty five girls in the Beginner, Intermediate and Advanced level entered the competition. Some of the girls in the meet are familiar names to gymnastic enthusiasts but smoe are new comers to the USGF circuit.

Brimmer and May is the home gym school of Marcie Ravech and Lee Pistone whose gymnastic successes have been well publisized in the past. Lee was a USGF champion last year and Marcie was named as a National Champion at the Junior Olympics this past summer. In Sunday's competition Marcie won the Advanced All-Around title scoring highs of 9.25 on Balance Beam an 9.15 on Floor Exercise.

Lee had a fine meet winning the Intermediate Division with scores which included a 9.05 on Floor, 8.65 on Beam and 8.75 on Uneven Bars. Joining these experienced competitors was teammate Suzanne Laurie who won first place in the Beginning All-Around Division with a meet score of 8.75 in Side Horse Vaulting. Suzanne's effort was most impressive since it was her first official competition as a beginning symnast.

The performance of these three girls qualified them to progress on to the Compulsory and Optional USGF Massachusetts State Championships in the coming months. For Marcie it is the beginning of a season which could again result in Regional and National Championship competitions. Only girls in the Advanced category can go beyond the State level in the USGF program.

Marcie, Lee, and Suzanne comprise the "A" Team of Brimmer and May and are coached by Dr. Joseph Massimo a National Level Women's Coach.

A new group of young gymnasts also made their debut at this District level meet. Three members of Brimmer's "B" Team, under the coaching of Ms. Liz Attardo, qualified at the Beginning level for the State competition.

Joanne Schindler, Barbara Coakley, and Karen Carberry all scored over the requried 24.00 points in their compulsory exercises needed for continued competition. Joanne won second place in the Beginning All-Around in the Junior Age group (12-14 years olds) and Barbara and Karen were second and third respectively in the All-Around Children's Division. (10-11 year olds). In summary, all six girls representing Brimmer and May at this competition won awards for their performances, surely a fine showing for the youngsters from Chestnut Hill.

Dearborn on UPI team

WALTHAM — Fullback Bruce Buckley of Gloucester, Mass., center Dave Dearborn of Newton, Mass., and middle guard Mark Sack of Bloomfield, Conn., were named to the All-United Press International Eastern Collegiate Club Football Conferences first team.

Buckley, the heart of the Falcons' offense for the past three years, led the team in rushing and scoring as coach Hal Kopp's charges finished with a 2-1 league record, second in the Colonial Division East. The former Gloucester High star compiled 488 yards rushing in six games, and scored 44 points on five touchdowns, two field goals and five extra point conversions.

Buckley's best game was the season opener, when the burly fullback rambled for 210 yards, 97 of those on an electrifying 97-yard touchdown run during Bentley 24-6 victory over Lowell Tech.

Buckley was named Offensive Player of the Week for that performance. Dearborn, just a freshman, later copped that honor.

Bentley finished the season with a 3-3 overall mark.

Silver Lake Marathon set to go

NEWTON — For the first time in its nine year history, the annual Silver Lake Dodge Washington's Birthday Marathon will be run over the full official distance of twenty-six miles, three hundred and eighty-five yards. The race, scheduled for Sunday, February 16, is expected to break last year's record of 403 entries, since it will be the first full length distance race of 1975 sanctioned as a qualifying event for the international BAA Marathon in April.

In previous years, the Silver Lake road racing classic has covered a distance of nineteen and three quarter miles from Hopkinton Center to the automobile dealership headquarters at 444 Watertown Street, Newton. It was slated as the New England AAU Thirty Kilometer Championship. Record holder was former school teacher Abrose Burfoot, who covered the course in 1:32:20 as the 1973 victor.

The extended course, laid out by veteran marathon official Royce Sawyer, will cover an additional seven miles in Newton as runners turn off Route 16 onto Commonwealth Avenue for a distance of three miles to Center Street, then reverse the course on the opposite side of Commonwealth Avenue back to Route 16 for the stretch drive to the finish line.

More than fifty individual and team medals and trophies will be awarded to the top finishers. Additional awards will be presented to the first finisher over age 40 and the first woman finisher.

Entry blanks for the Washington's Birthday competition may be obtained from Silver Lake Dodge Marathon Director Frank Campion at 444 Watertown Street, Newton, or by calling 617-965-1300.

Wilfinger's schoolboy basketball ratings

By Eric Wilfinger
Staff Writer

This week's edition has been expanded. We will now rate the top 20 teams in Division I, top 15 in Division II, and top 10 in Division III.

There are only eight unbeaten teams remaining in the three divisions as six clubs saw their hopes of an undefeated season go by the boards this past week.

You may notice that Jamaica Plain with a losing record has cracked the top 15 in division II. But looking at their record they have lost 5 of their 6 games to division I clubs including Boston English, Boston Tech, Dorchester, and Hyde Park.

Last year they qualified for the state tournament only because they won their league championship, because they didn't win the 65 per cent of games needed to qualify. Yet they went to the state finals losing to North Andover.

This season, 59 per cent of games won is needed to qualify unless a league championship is won. Both Jamaica Plain & Jeremiah Burke may not win 59 per cent of their games but one will qualify by winning their Boston District League title, as both of them face by far the toughest schedules of any division II team.

The five local teams produced a combined record of 7-2 for the week. Norwood, now leading the Bay State League by virtue of their big win over Dedham Friday, coupled with South's loss to Natick, is now ranked 15th in division I, up three notches over last week. Dedham dropped from 17th to 19th, Xaverian went from 22 to 20th. Needham from 29th to 26th and in division II Westwood made the biggest jump, from 21st to 14th.

Western film series to open at Fine Arts Museum

The days of Jesse James, Buffalo Bill and Sitting Bull will be re-lived in THE LEGENDARY WEST, at the Museum of Fine ARts, Jan. 16 through March 22. The Winter film series will be screened in two segments: The Classic Western (Thursdays at 7 p.m.) and The Cult Western (Saturdays at 2:30 p.m.).

Panoramic sets, tension packed "show-downs," ambushes, robberies, and suspenseful chase scenes mark this genre of American film. Highlighting epic stories are themes about ideal moral values, codes of personal honor, and the triumphs of justice and law. Stars of the Westerns including John Wayne, Henry Fonda, William S. Hart, and Tom Mix became as legendary as the roles portrayed.

Stephen Zito, program planner of the American Film Institute Theater in Washington D.C., has selected the films and has prepared notes to be distributed at each showing. The series complements the Museum's first Bicentennial exhibition, Frontier America: The Far West, and is partially supported by a grant from the Natio-al Endowment for the Arts.

All films will be screened in the Lecture Hall. Individual tickets may be purchased for the Thursday and Sturday showings at the Lecture Hall. Subscriptions are available for The Classic Western. The schedule is as follows:

The Classic Western, Thursdays at 7 p.m. — with George O'Brien, Madge Bellamy.

Feb. 6 — Tumbleweeds (1925) directed by Kiag Baggott, with William S. Hart. The Great K and A Robbery (1926) directed by Lewis Seiler, with Tom Mix.

Feb. 13 — The Battle of Elderbush Gulch (1913) directed by D.W. Griffith, with Lillian Gish, Mae March. Stagecoach (1939) directed by John Ford, with John Wayne, Claire Trevor.

Feb. 20 — My Darling Clementine 1946) directed by John Ford, with Henry Fonda, Linda Darnell.

Feb. 27 — Shane (1953) directed by George Stevens, with Alan Ladd, Jean Arthur.

Mar. 6 — The Searchers (195S) directed by John Ford, with John Wayne.

Mar. 13 — The Wild Bunch (1969) directed by Sam Peckinpah, with William Holden.

Mar. 20 — Once Upon a Time in the West (1969) directed by Sergio Leone, with Henry Fonda.

The Cult Western, Saturdays at 2:30 p.m. —

Jan. 18 — Tall in the Saddle (1944) with John Wayne.

Feb. 1 — Wagonmaster (1950) with Ben Johnson, Joanne Dru.

Feb. 8 — Buffalo Bill (1944) with Joel McCrea, Maureen O'Hera.

Feb. 15 — Ride the High Country (1962) with Randolph Scott, Joel McCrea.

Feb. 22 — Hopalong Cassidy Enters (1936) with William Boyd. Powdersmoke Range (1935) with Hoot Gibson, Harry Carey.

Mar. 1 — Ride Ranger Ride (1936) with Gene Autry Young Buffalo Bill (1940) with Roy Rogers.

Mar. 8 — Jesse James (1939) with Tyrone Power, Henry Fonda.

Mar. 15 — She Wore A Yellow Ribbon (1949) with John Wayne, Joanne Dru.

Mar. 22 — Broken Arrow (1950) with James Stewart, Jeff Chandler.

INDEPENDENT and ADVENTUROUS

Q. My son Richard was born on November 22, 1965 at 9:16 p.m. in Dorchester, Mass. I always thought he was a Sagittarius but I am hold he is a Scorpio. Tell me something about him, will he ever slow down?

R.M.

A. Your son's chart dindicates he has considerable inner drive, much energy and a need to do as he pleases whether others approve of his actions or not. His mind functions quickly and can be accurate when he keeps it under control. There are times when he may waste some of his energies in a display of temper and at such times he loses control and may say things that are regrettable.

He is not likely to run away from an argument. In fact he is inclined to welcome an opportunity for a competition that a battle of wits has to offer.

All through life he is apt to differ strenuously with others even with superiors or those in authority. He will need to learn not to give others the impression he has a "chip on his shoulder" inviting others to knock it off.

He should be a good student combining a sixth sense which might be called intuition with his keen intellect. When he sete his mind to it he could study deep subjects and plan for mhe future. All through life he is apt to try to attract attention and may act dramatically to attain same.

Cross country skiing at Jan. YMCA Camp

If there's snow on the ground the weekend of Jan. 25, the Greater Boston YMCA plans to introduce area youngsters to the latest winter sporting craze—cross-country skiing. For two winters, the Y's Ponkapoag Outdoor Center on the Blue Hills Reservation in Canton has been encouraging the sport as a healthful, family activity which is safer and less expensive than its downhill cousin.

The woodland Y, located off Route 128, will also offer tobogganning, skating, pony rides, crafts, and winter nat e exploration during its January "Weekend Mini-Camp" for 8-12 year-old boys and girls. The camp runs from 5:30 p.m. Friday, Jan. 24 to 4:30 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 26. The Y suqgests registering well in advance by calling 696-4466 on weekdays.

The weekend campers spend Friday and Saturday night with their counselors in heated dormatories on the reservation. The Y feels that in addition to the activities themselves, this brief stay away from home can also be a beneficial experience for the child who has never ettended overnight camp. The cost is $30 per child, but less when two attend from the same femily.

The outdoor center is the only facility in the state offering a regular program of nonsummer resident camping for children, and different seasonal activities are featured each month. During the week, staff naturalists operate a program of outdoor education for area school systems.

Bloodmobile at Marshall's

WOBURN MASS — Jan. 6. The Bloodmobile from the Greater Boston Chapter of the American National Red Cross called upon Marshall's home office in Woburn, where 43 productive pints of blood were obtained from 86 employee donors (28 were first time donors).

Herb Sedlis, director of the Red Cross Boston Chapter, was very pleased withthe response, stating "for a first-time effort it was a beautifully run program".

He further stated that Doris Gaudet, Marshall's personnel administrator should be complimented highly for her scheduling and assistance in the program. Because of the great response, the Bloodmobile will be visiting Marshall's again during 1975.

Navajo weavings at Art Museum

Bold geometric designs are synonymous with Navajo weaving. A selection of 36 woven blankets and dresses from the second half of the 19th century will be on exhibit on in Navajo Blankets at the Boston Museum, January 8 23 through March 16.

A high point in the history of the American Indian art, Navajo blanket designs combine tradition and inmovation. While the Navajos learned weaving techniques from their neighbors, the Pueblos, it did not take long for them to establish a reputatiom for original design. Weaving was an art inseparable from life; a blanket was a "second skin" to be worn as an expression of the weaver's character.

As the railroad opened up the West, commercially prepared yarns and synthetic dyes brought a new range of colors to Navajo looms. Americans from the East sought samples of Indian art for their drawing rooms, and encouraged the production of explosively patterned "eye dazzlers," and pictorial blankets.

These weavings are a vivid record of a proud people with a stronc. sense of identity and a clear distinctive complement to the Museum's first Bicentennial exhibition, Frontier America: The Far West.

Chestnut Hill Mall reports gross sales over $5M in first year

Despite recession, inflation and a general business downturn, the Mall at Chestnut Hill reported gross sales in excess of $50,000,000 in its first year of operation.

According to the report, these figures average out to more than $150. per square foot of leased space annually for 54 retail tenants.

The International Council of Shopping Centers reports that these figures are nearly 250 per cent greater than the national sales average per square foot for enclosed retail malls, making The Mall at Chestnut Hill the most successful enclosed shopping center in New England, and very likely in the United States.

Individual retailers in The Mall have recorded unusually impressive sales figures in this first year:

– Louis Men's clothing store in The Mall has had the greatest sales and profits figures in its first year of operation of any men's clothing operation in New England retailing history.

– The Filene's Chestnut Hill Mall operation has become the most successful Filene's suburban store.

– Bloomingdale's home fashion store in just one year has become the most successful Bloomingdale's operation of its kind.

Latest industry figures, released by the International Council of Shopping Centers, show that as of 1972 the median gross sales figures per square foot for an enclosed shopping center in operation for 1 - 3 years is $51.14. The Council includes an inflationary factor of 21.23 per cent to make these figures current, and on this basis, the nationwide sales average is $62. per square foot as opposed to the more than $150. per square foot recorded by The Mall.

Citizen Seminar on "Metropolitan Government"

The Greater Boston Chamber of Commerce is joining with Boston College to present a Boston Citizen Seminar on "Metropolitan Government," to be held on Tuesday, January 28th at 3:45 p.m. in the Enterprise Room of the State Street Bank and Trust Company, 225 Franklin Street, Boston.

Participants in the panel discussion will be: Lloyd Brandt, vice president, First Bank System of Minneapolis, Minnesota; William L. Archer, Q.C., Toronto, Ontario, Canada; Robert C. Wood, president, University of Massachusetts; and Philip H. Peters, president, Greater Boston Chamber of Commerce. Joseph P. Healey, president, Middlesex Bank, will moderate the Seminar.

A question-and-answer period will follow presentations by the four panelists. The afternoon program will conclude with a reception, to which all are invited.

MONEY SAVER IDEAS

Send in your money saver ideas today and perhaps you'll win a $10 gift certificate for your next trip to Capitol. From Holbrook, Mrs. David Wohlander: When making an apple pie, cook the skins in just a little water. You will have a small amount of applesauce, a lovely pink color, a delicious flavor, requiring none or just a hint of sugar. If you make applesauce, just remove the cores, stems, bruises, etc, and you will have much the same results - a real moneysaver when it comes to saving sugar. Don't throw out the skins when making anything with apples! Mrs. Kenneth Schwartz of Randolph: I make my own breading for baking and keep it on the shelf in a tightly covered jar ready for use anytime. For every cup of corn flake crumbs, I add 4 tbs. regular flour, salt, pepper, garlic powder and paprika (amounts of seasoning depending on taste). I use this for my oven baked chicken, veal or pork chops. You can either put some mixture in a plastic bag or put some of the mixture an a piece of wax paper and simply dip chicken or whatever in it before baking. This works out more economically than packaged mixes. I'd like to hear from you. Just drop me a line,

Grossman's Ode to the 3000

By RICHARD S. GROSSMAN
Sports Correspondent

1. Now the Boston Garden was straitly shut up because of the prowlers of the night: none went out, and none came in.

2. And Weston, who was called Adams, said unto Led, who was called Zepplin, "Come unto my arena and we shall collect gold (that's legal now) and silver and coin of the devalued realm. For all the Children of ROCK will harken to thine voice and a mighty fee will be collected at the gate."

3. And so it came to pass that the Children of ROCK came to the house of Weston to buy admission to that house on the day that Led would call out to them.

4. All the faithful came and waited.

5. And lo it was dark and inclement and Weston, who was kind at heart, said, "Enter my house, Children of ROCK that you may be more comfortable."

6. They compassed, then entered the house of Weston and in their gratitude they smote the house of Westy.

7. And they utterly destroyed all that WAS in the house Weston. They partook of the Adams suds, that was called BUD. And the concession stands, from which Adams had hoped to reap high profits were not spared the ritual of the Children of ROCK.

8. And lo the Children of ROCK finished their ritual by smashing the suds bottles on the floor, that was ice. 9. But all the souvenirs, hockey sticks and other spoils reaped were not kept by the Children of ROCK for they were not consecrated unto them.

10. And lo — the Police, who were called many

Ted Smiles

Ted Williams hears of big baseball salaries and smiles

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Hank Aaron, and not Catfish Hunter, is the highest-salaried baseball player right now because he's drawing $250,000 as a designated hitter with the Milwaukee Brewers this season, and that's $100,000 more than Hunter's getting in salary alone.

Bone-fishing in the Florida Keys, Ted Williams hears of salaries like that and smiles a little.

He's happy for Hank Aaron and Catfish Hunter, and says more power to both. Ted Williams always said what he thought but never liked blowing his own horn. He still doesn't. So when he hears and reads about the salaries being paid in baseball today, he only thinks about, but still won't talk about how he could've been the first "designated hitter" ever 15 years ago ... with the New York Yankees ... at $125,000 a year.

Williams was making that salary with Boston when he retired in September of 1960. He was 42 and he went out in style, ripping one into the right centerfield seats at Fenway Park off Jack Fisher of Baltimore in his final time at bat. The Red Sox fans went bananas as Williams circled the bases.

A few weeks later, after Pittsburgh beat the Yankees in the World Series on Bill Mazeroski's seventh game home run, the Yanks began making changes. Casey Stengel was let go. The late Dan Topping, one of the co-owners of the ball club, got on the phone and set up a meeting with Ted Williams' business rep, Fred Corcoran, at a local hotel.

"Is Williams really serious about quitting?" Topping asked, as soon as they had gotten together.

"Yes, he is," replied Corcoran.

"Lemme ask you a question. Do you think he'd be interested in playing one more year here in New York? We'd use him only as a pinch hitter and pay him the same salary as he's getting in Boston, but I don't wanna call Tom Yawkey unless Williams is agreeable. You know I've always been a great Ted Williams' admirer. He played for me in the Marines."

This, by the way, was not an unusual procedure for Dan Topping. He had tried getting Joe DiMaggio to stay on one more season after DiMaggio had announced his retirement with the Yankees nine years earlier, offering him the same $100,000 salary he was drawing at the time, but Joe had declined.

Anyway, Corcoran told Topping he'd get in touch with Williams and sound him out on the offer.

By some coincidence or not, right around this time, American League President Joe Cronin began pushing an idea of his. Maybe he did it because Ted Williams was on the way out, and he had always liked the big, curly-haired kid. Why not have someone hitting for the pitcher every time the pitcher was due up, Cronin urged. It would generate more excitement in the game, Cronin argued. He was espousing the designated hitter idea 13 years before his league adopted it, but he couldn't get too much support for it then.

Williams wasn't especially intrigued with the idea of pinchhitting either. Not once a game, anyway, which was all he could've done then under the existing rules.

"Hell, no," he answered when Corcoran asked him if he was interested in Topping's proposition. "You don't get any kind of batting average pinch hitting once a game."

Naturally, batting average meant something to Williams. It was something he had worked for his entire career, winning the batting championship six times, fashioning a lifetime average of .344 and finishing up with a fine .316 percentage in his final season. Bear in mind he was 42 at the time.

Corcoran kept after Williams, and sometime after their original conversation, he asked him how he'd feel about pinch hitting four times a game without having to play in the field at all?

"That's different," Williams said. "Something like that would be fine, but I'm not interested in going to bat only once a game."

Corcoran was completely captivated by the designated hitter concept, especially if it could mean the return to the game of his long-time friend, Ted Williams, so he called the late Ty Cobb in Royston, Ga.

"Whadd'ya think of using a pinch hitter each time the pitcher is due up—someone like Ted Williams?" Corcoran asked Cobb.

Cobb thought awhile.

"I like the idea," he said.

"How would you feel about the same guy pinch-hitting each time?"

"I don't think I'd like to see any such change in the baseball rules."

"You already have seen changes in the rules. In your day, the sacrifice fly was counted as a time at bat. Remember?"

"That's right," Cobb conceded, laughing. Then he had a question.

"Are you trying to keep Williams in baseball—just his bat?" he inquired of Corcoran. "If you are, I think I'll make a comeback."

Ty Cobb, who always felt he could, was 74 at the time.

Steelers' youth blasts sports myth

Now that Super Sunday has mercifully faded from the sports scene, taking with it the pretensions and cliches, it is time to reflect on this media event.

Let us first look at the Super Bowl game itself, forget all the fumbles, missed handoffs and dubious penalties. The better team won. The Steelers were younger, meaner and hungrier. I have always thought that the experience and age factor are overplayed when analyzing a championship game. The Philadelphia Flyers put an end to that myth. Did you happen to see who fumbled the kickoff that led to the decisive Steeler touchdown? Bill Brown. You know-that wild, experienced veteran? If it was Lynn Swann, we would have heard about the inexperience and jitters of a rookie in his first Super Bowl. With Bill Brown and his ten years of "savvy", the ball took a crazy bounce.

The key to the game was the Steelers penetration and mobility. Pittsburgh has the most active set of linebackers in the game and this will always limit a scrambler like Fran Tarkenton. The activity and pursuit of linebackers was the most important element in the Patriots win over the Vikings earlier in the year, give me Jack Ham and Andy Russell and I will always beat Fran Tarkenton.

Same final thoughts on the Super thing. The only thing more embarassing than Bobby Walden punting is Fred Cox doing anything . . . Carl Eller is the living example of man living on his reputation. One gets the impression that Carl is still looking for Frank Pitts on the end around in the 1970 Super Bowl . . When Franco Harris breaks into the open field, he bears an alarming resemblance to a runaway freight train . . . five dollars or a gallon of gas to anyone who can name the Pittsburgh Steeler offensive line . . . will someonw please tell me why the Steelers insist on starting Frank Lewis and Ron Shanklin at wide receiver? Lynn Swan and Frank Stallworth are younger, faster and more talented. Another case of the myth of experience over youth . . . It seems to me that once you stop John Gilliam, the Vikings offense grinds to a halt . . . if I hear another person tell me how great Chuck Foreman is, I shall scream. Foreman is the most overrated back in the league. He is an extremely poor pass receiver and seems to have the knack of fumbling at the most critical times.

Have you caught your breath from this barrage of pearls of wisdom? Good, because the oysters have been resanded and we have a few more pearls . . . the inconsistency of the Steelers over the year just magnifies the splendor of the Dolphins undefeated season two years ago . . . After seeing everything, if you had one game to win, would you want Terry Bradshaw or Bob Griese as your quarterback? The youth and vigor of the Steelers are best seen in their extraordinary corner linebackers - the age and slowness of the Vikings are best seen in their linebackers . . . the final score of the Super Bowl does not truly reflect the one-sidedness of the ballgame. The Steelers were always in control and if the two teams played ten times, my guess is the Steelers would win at least eight of the games . . .

Only in sports would we be asked to cry tears of happiness for a seventy-year-old millionaire who has backed a loser for forty-two years and made his money at the race track . .. whatever happened to Joe Gilliam , Ed Marinaro, Oscar Reed and Frenchy Fugua? Those "cold" pills Dwight White must have taken before the game really seemed to get him up for the game.

As a final salute to Super Sunday, let us give you some key phrases to memorize to impress your friends before next year's affair. Ready? I think the game will be won in the trenches. This game will be won on breaks. Rocky Bleir always gives you 110 per cent. Fran Tarkenton has never been hurt. That is because he is a controlled scrambler. Bud Grant is usually icy and almost always placid. Dave Osborne is a bread and butter runner and really smells the goal line. Finally, Terry Bradshaw is not a dumb quarterback. The rumor got started because formal schooling was declared illegal at Louisiana Tech after he graduated.

Mixed Bonspiel held last week

The finals of the 18th Annual Invitational Mixed Bonspiel were held last week before a capacity crowd with the Brae Burn rink of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Chandler, Mr. George Bissell and Mrs. Deborah Clark being crowned the winners of the first event, the Harold V. Farnsworth Trophy, which Mrs. Farnsworth presented to them. Skip Bud Chandler drew his last rock into the house to decide the close and exciting match against the Winchester rink of George Whitten, skip, with Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Neill and Mrs. Whitten.

The Neiley Trophy, the second event, was also won by a Brae Burn rink in a tight contest. Skip Frank McDonough, Mrs. McDonough and Mr. and Mrs. David Melville came from behind to overtake the Baie D'Urfe rink from Quebec which was skipped by George Flemming. Frank McDonough accepted the trophy from Mrs. Neiley on behalf of his rink.

The third event, the Barton Trophy, was a match between two Canadian rinks with Capitol Winter of Fredericton, N.B. prevailing over Border Curling Club of Quebec. Capitol Winter was skipped by Laurie Menzies with Mr. and Mrs. Robert McLeod and Mrs. Menzies.

Dr. and Mrs. Michael MacKenzie were co-chairmen of the four-day bonspiel which came to a euccessful conclusion with the bagpipers playing Auld Lang Syne.

OUT OF ACTION

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — University of Pennsylvania forward John Engles, who has averaged 17.2 points and 10 rebounds per game this season, will be out of action the rest of the season after undergoing knee surgery Tuesday.

Engles, a 6-8 junior, tore a ligament in his right knee during Penn's game with LaSalle Saturday night.

Scramble for top in College hoop

All indications during the first half of the college basketball campaign indicate that a wild scramble for the top prize is more than likely during the NCAA championships, with at least a handful of teams rating a good chance to capture the crown.

Not only has UCLA been winning for 11 years, there was very little drama associated with its monotonous cycle. Come tournament time, not even the various school PR directors could arouse much serious enthusiasm for the other contenders.

Things promise to be different at the end of this season, though, with the chances slim that any team enters the playoffs as an odds-on favorite. Only two major teams still are unbeaten, No. 1 Indiana and No. 4 Louisville, which twice has been extended into overtime, including Saturday's 55-53 triumph over Drake.

North Carolina State, last year's NCAA winner, already shows two losses this season, the latest a 103-85 debacle to Maryland last Thursday, and barely avoided a third setback by edging No. 14 North Carolina, 88-85, in overtime Saturday. And once-invincible UCLA, currently ranked second, suffered a 64-60 loss to Stanford Friday night before bouncing back for a 102-72 trouncing of California.

New legislators train for 2 weeks

It's back to the classroom for the 60 new members of the Massachusetts House of Representatives this week, including Rep. Richard J. McGrath, D., from Newton.

The first-year legislators (50 Democrats, eight Republicans and two Independents) will be participating in the Legislative Orientation Program, a comprehensive introduction into the procedures of the Great and General Court.

House Speaker David M. Bartley (D-Holyoke), a member of the Executive Committee of the National Legislative Leaders Conference, said the Massachusetts orientation program is "geared to enable the new legislator to get a handle on the issues he or she will be facing . . . an idea of the resources available to them, and a basic understanding of the legislative parliamentary procedure. In short, a couple of years worth of on-the-job training in a couple of weeks."

Quality and comprehensivess of the seminars, which run through Thursday, Jan. 16, are monitored and maintained through the participation of the Institute for Government Services of the University of Massachusetts, the Institute for Politics of the John F. Kennedy School of Government of Harvard university, and the Bureau of Adult Education of the Department of Education.

The Legislative "head start" program offers a wide variety of information to the new legislator, covering the Executive end Judicial functions of government in addition to the Legislative. Participation in the program is on a bi-partisan basis.

A sampling of the schedule shows that the sessions began January 7 with topics ranging from "Realities of Legislative Life" to "Legislative Services and Resources, mechanics, facilities and technical staff."

On Jan. 8, legislators received their first course in legislative procedure, followed by an afternoon session on the status of the Massachusetts economy, with a panel of leaders from both business and industry participating.

Jan. 9 was scheduled as "media day," with members of the State House Press, radio and TV corps, and legislative and UMass media people explaining the relationship between the public official and the media.

The Jan. 10 sessions deal with legislative procedures and workshops on economic growth, health care, and transportation.

The Executive Branch of state government was highlighted in the opening day of the second week, with the Jan. 13 sessions devoted to introduction and remarks by the constitution officers, a workshop on Executive-Legislative relations with Governor Dukakis, Lt. Gov. O'Neill, and the cabinet secretaries.

The Jan. 14 schedule included a continuation of legislative procedures, plus an afternoon session on "Budget, Revenue and Taxes." This panel includes Robert McClain, new Undersecretary of Administration and Finance, Richard Manley, president of the Mass. Taxpayers Foundation; John Tynan, budget director of House Ways and Means: Northampton vayor Sean Dunphy, president of the Mass. Mayors' Assn., and William Capron, Associate Dean of the JFK School of Government, Harvard University

Thursday, Jan. 16, is reserved for a panel on the Massachusetts Judiciary, with Chief Justice G. Joseph Tauro of the Supreme Court, Chief Justice Walter H. McLaughlin of the Superior Court, and Chief Justice Franklin H. Flaschner of the District Court, as principal participants.

Easing Social Security Taxes

Commentary by Gus Tyler

"STEP ON IT!"

NEW YORK - The first week in January was bad news to many hourly wage earners and salaried people because their take-home pay was reduced by 5.85 per cent of their regular income. The deduction was for Social Security — a tax they have not been paying for many weeks or months.

For millions of others — indeed, for most breadwinners — the "bad" news was old news. They had been paying the same 5.85 per cent tax right up to the last hour of 1974 and they will now go on paying up to the last hour of 1975.

None of this involves any shenanigans. It's all legal. Some people pay all year round and others do not. The less affluent pay 52 weeks a year; the more affluent do not.

The reason is that the Social Security tax in 1974 was only imposed on the first $13,200 earned (in 1975 that will go to $14,000). So if you made no more than that sum, you paid to the last drop. But if you earned, let's say, $26,400, you quite paying sometime last July.

In one way, this Social Security tax is probably the most regressive on the books. (By "regressive" we mean that the tax hits the bottom harder than it hits the top.)

Here's why: - .

If you earn $13,000, you pay on your whole income — which is about a 6 per cent tax on what you make. If you earn $26,000, you pay on only half you income — which makes it about a 3 per cent tax. If you make $52,000 you pay on only a quarter of your income, which makes it a 1 ½ per cent tax, and so on.

The injustice of such a tax system is somewhat tempered by the fact that there is a ceiling on what anyone can collect from Social Security. In other words, the $52,000-a-year man does not collect on that basis; he collects on the $13,200 for which he paid. Likewise, there is a minimum, no matter how low your income.

But, in any event, the present near-6 per cent tax is unduly burdensome on low-income people. If you make $5,000 a year, you pay $300 in taxes. That's a big straw on the back of an overloaded beast.

The founders of Social Security never intended the tax to get as high as it is, although they knew that the overall cost of the system would be great in the 1970s. At the beginning, the system paid out to people who were aged, eligible for retirement, but who had paid virtually nothing into the fund. These first retirees were paid out of the funds that came pouring in from week to week.

When the next generation reached retirement age and were ready to collect, the funds they had put in were already eaten up by the previous generation.

So the second generation had to retire on the newest funds coming in from a third generation. As the number of retirees grew — first plus second generation — and as earnings as well as retirement checks got bigger, the cost of the whole system became greater.

The founders of the retirement system foresaw all of this. Hence, in one of their first reports they predicted that it would be necessary and desirable at a given point for the Social Security system to get direct assistance from the general treasury. (In time, we passed that point.)

If this pescient advice were taken, we could have a tripartite system. The present 12 per cent on payrolls could be split up three ways — 4 per cent each for employer, employe, and government — instead of the present 6 per cent for two parties.

Assuming that the federal income tax is truly progressive (which implies the closing of loopholes for the rich) the Social Security system would somewhat repair the present inequities in our way of raising money for retirees.

Mr. O'Malley is survived by his wife, Mrs. Mary Louise O'Malley, five sons, C. Drew, Mark E. and Kevin R. of Newton Centre, V. Grady of Bronx, N.Y., and Euguene Eugene F. of San Francisco, Calif.; three sisters, Mrs. Lucille McLoughlin of Brocklyn, N.Y., Mrs. Genevieve Good of Cohasset and Mrs. Marie Celeste Wilhelmy Bethesda, Md., and one granddaughter.

Burial is in Evergreen Cemetery, Brighton.

Mercedes V. Dwyer

A funeral mass was said in St. Bernard's Church Tuesday (Jan. 21) for Mrs. Mercedes V. (Vahey) Dwyer.

Mrs. Dwyer, 73, of 46 Eddy St., West Newton, was the wife of retired Newton Patrolman Cornelius J. Dwyer. She died Friday (Jan. 17) in Newton-Wellesley Hospital after a brief illness.

A lifelong resident of Newton, Mrs. Dwyer is survived by her husband, two sons, Police Sgt. Neal R. of West Newton and John A. of Westport, Conn.; a daughter, Mrs. Virginia Thompson of Natick; four sisters, Mrs. Nonie Cooney and Margaret Vahey, both of Hyannis, Mrs. Mary O'Brien of Hingham and Sister Gertrude Therese of New Jersey, and 17 grandchildren.

George J. Carlo

A funeral mass was to be celebrated at 9 a.m. this morning (Jan. 23) for retired Newton Firefighter George J. Carlo.

Mr. Caflo, 63, of 45 Smith Ave., West Newton, died Sunday (Jan. 19) in Newton-Wellesley Hospital after a brief illness.

After a long career, he retired from the Newton Fire Dept. in May, 1971. He was a World War II veteran and a member of American Legion Post No. 440.

Mr. Carlo is survived by his wife, Mrs. Yvonne M. Carlo; and three sisters, Mrs. Lena O'Kane of Allston, Mrs. Margaret Benard of El Segundo, Calif., and Mrs. Catherine Gray of Medfield.

Burial is in Newton Cemetery.

Earl L. Paquette

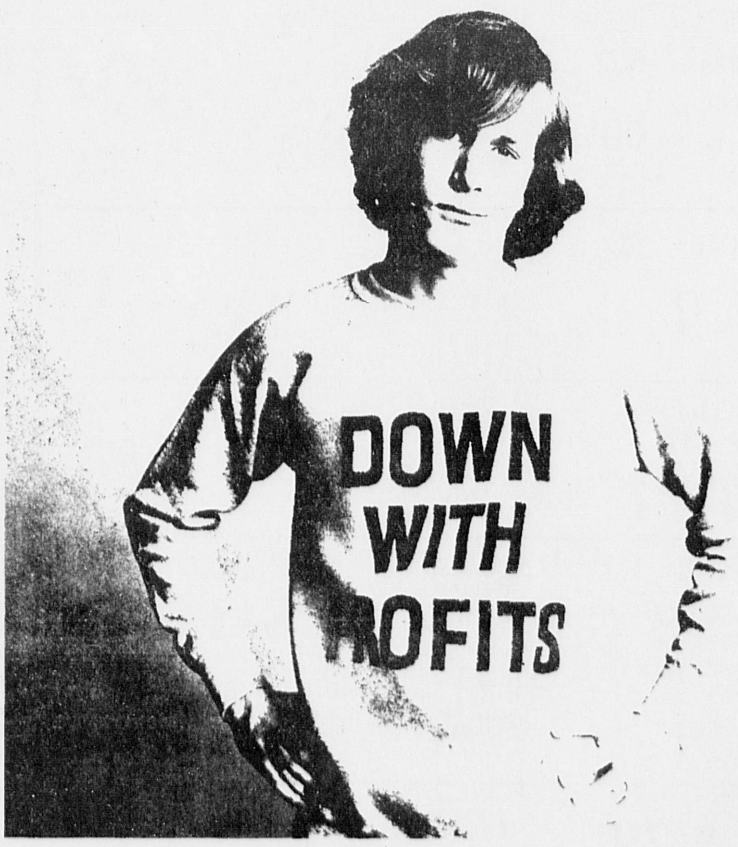
A funeral mass was said in St. Ann's Church, Wayland, Monday (Jan. 20) for Earl L. Paquette.

Mr. Paquette, of 101 Walker St., Newtonville, died Friday (Jan. 17) in the Veterans Administration Hospital in West Roxbury after a long illness.

He was a native of Newton and a graduate of Newton High School. He was a veteran of the Korean Conflict. He most recently worked as a rigging instructor and then as a rigger-foreman at the Boston Naval Shipyard. He was a member of the Waltham Lodge of Elks.

Mr. Paquette is survived by one brother, Ernest G. of Framingham; two sisters, Mrs. Claire T. Keller of Wayland and Dorothy A. Paquette of Newtonville, and several nieces and nephews.

Burial is in Calvary Cemetery, Waltham.



He just might lose his shirt.

Sweat shirt literature helps some people get things off their chest. Gripes against our social system, for instance. Or our economic system, where the gripes concentrate on profits.

The young man in our picture forgets that he bought the shirt with the money some worker earned for his labor. And labor is a major beneficiary of that sale—since employees get 2/3 of the corporate income dollar.

The manufacturer of the shirt could not survive without a profit, nor could the retailer who sold it. No matter how you feel about profit—without it, neither labor or management, nor retailer or wholesaler could survive.

The very price of the shirt is established by the profit system. If one merchant takes too great a profit his price may be high. This in turn will encourage a competitor to take less profit at a lower price in order to get a bigger share of the shirt business.

In a word, profit is an incentive to beat the competition with new and better products at more attractive prices—all of which results in more and better jobs.

Profit is a built-in part of the American economic system which has given us by far the highest standard of living in the world.

So let's not lose our shirt—or our head.

We all profit from profits.

TV PROFILE

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Pat Finley, the elfin beauty who plays Bob Newhart's sister in "The Bob Newhart Show," lives in a house that fits her own diminutive dimensions.

She calls it the tiniest house in Los Angeles.

Located in the hills near the Hollywood Bowl, Pat's home consists of three rooms (livingroom, kitchen, bedroom), an upstairs-downstairs floorplan, and none of the rooms are larger than 10 by 18 feet.

But there are two fireplaces, two patios and a balcony. Moreover the small plot of ground is surrounded by towering trees.

"Where could you get all that in an apartment unless you had really terrific wallpapers?" Pat asks.

Pat is single. She's never been married and contends that she's never wanted to marry. Currently she doesn't even have a steady fellow, although she's lived here for three years.

She does own a pair of mutts, Louise and Emma.

Small though it is, Pat's home is a showcase. It is furnished with beautiful antiques which gleam in the reflection of highly polished hardwood floors. Plants in pots abound everywhere. She is especially proud of the profusion of pansies on the balcony.

Born in North Carolina, reared in the state of Washington and a veteran of the New York stage, Pat Finley is a shrewd businesswoman who earns more from her outside activities than she does in show business.

She is a partner in The Film Group Inc. of Seattle, a distribution company for motion pictures. She's also a spokeswoman for a small chain of retail stores in the northwest.

For those reasons, and because she is investing in real estate in Oregon and Washington, Pat travels to Seattle at least a half dozen times a year to look after her interests.

Still, Pat is essentially a feminine woman who dotes on her home.

She unabashedly claims she is a fine cook. In recent years she has developed several recipes for vegetarian dishes. But if she wants to show off for guests she mixes a special avocado, mandarin-orange, spinach salad with a variety of greens.

Sometimes Pat is able to put her business and performing lives together to the advantage of both. The wardrobe she wears comes from the stores she represents in the northwest.

Pat's closet holds a comfortable mixture of chic dresses and pant suits along with a variety of blue jeans.

She definitely prefers casuals, and dresses to please herself on occasional dates. Usually her escort takes her to dinner followed by a movie.

When she isn't working on the show, and she often has several weeks off, Pat sings in small, intimate nightclubs. She recently was the opening act for Joan Rivers in a Los Angeles club.

On weekends she visits friends and not infrequently heads for the beach with Louise and Emma to let them run along the surf.

In the evening Pat likes to throw a few logs on the fire, turn the stereo to soft music and read a book.

On working days she reports to CBS Studio Center at 9:30 in the morning and generally is home by 6. Most of her scenes are played with Newhart and Bill Daley, who plays her fiance on the show.

Pat would rather sing than act, but above all she prefers the business world and her interests in the Pacific northwest where she believes her real future lies.

Production Steals the Thunder from Actor's First Macbeth

By GREGORY JENSEN

STRATFORD -UPON-AVON, England (UPI) — Nicol Williamson is winding up the Royal Shakespeare Company's longest Stratford season with a highly controversial "Macbeth."

But for once the controversy isn't over Williamson, an actor once called "the terrible tempered tiger of the English stage." It's about the production.

Trevor Nunn, artistic director of the Royal Shakespeare, produces Shakespeare's difficult play like a kind of black mass. It fairly reeks of evil.

Williamson's performance had been anticipated as the high point of a rather disappointing Stratford season. After a decade of bravura performances, Williamson himself said Macbeth was "the big one for me. The biggest of my life."

But it was Nunn's directorial approach that steals the show.

He plunges into evil immediately, before a word of Shakespeare's is spoken. Suddenly tall curtains whisk around a coronation scene, and in grotesque shadows projected on them the king is murdered with an inverted crucifix.

Themes of inverted religion permeate the production. In this version the three witches whose spells and predictions so ensnare Macbeth are almost the least supernatural of the elements.

Lady Macbeth, on her first appearance, slashes her wrist to summon spirits of darkness with her own blood. Before murdering his best friend Macbeth invokes the underworld with chants over an inverted cross on an open Bible.

The sets themselves are those for a black mass. All the scenes, including those on the witches' "blasted heath" and the battle on the battlements of Dunsinane, take place in a kind of church. It is decorated in black.

Director Nunn sees Macbeth's tragedy increasingly played out within the man's own mind. Once his first murder is done, this Macbeth is gradually seen with fewer and fewer people.

By the end he is alone, like a demented Hitler, raving at unseen enemies from atop a bunker made of high-piled church furniture.

Critics divided sharply over Nunn's controversial black magic approach, but they united in praise of the two leading actors.

Helen Mirren, returning to Stratford after a four-year absence, plays Lady Macbeth with brisk skill, though her sexy swinger type seems oddly at variance with Nunn's overall approach.

Williamson, on the other hand, fits the approach like a hand within a mailed glove. Showing a man destroyed by forces of evil he can invoke but not control allows Williamson to play with all the stops out.

His performance is characteristically physical, typically powerful. From him Macbeth's great speeches come unpoetically, but filled with new meaning, as if they were being thought of for the first time. His Macbeth surrenders with reluctant willingness to the forces of darkness within himself.

Yet strong though Williamson's portrayal is, it remains true that when this "Macbeth" is remembered, it will be Nunn's conception which comes to mind.

Stratford's season, which opened in March, continues with "Macbeth" and the season's other productions until Jan. 25.

Welcome home to Farrar Pond Village in Lincoln

On a rolling plateau high above a large, spring-fed pond, Farrar Pond Village is located in an area heavily wooded with pines, oaks, and especially beautiful white birch.

Depending on the season, one can enjoy hiking or cross-country skiing. And there is canoeing, sailing, and skating on Farrar Pond.

Your home at Farrar Pond Village, while modern in every respect, uses wood and related materials to preserve the traditional warmth and simplicity of New England architecture. Design and placement afford maximum privacy and assure pleasant views of the natural surroundings. Units are built in clusters of 5 or 6 with a mix of single and two story town houses, planned in three phases, the first is complete and includes 27 units. Phase two and three, yet to be constructed, will contain 23 and 30 units respectively, bringing the total number of homes to 80.

All utilities are underground. Drives, walkways, and parking areas, though well-lighted and easily accessible, also blend in with the overall environment of the village.

Each dwelling unit is designed with people in mind. The two-bedroom units have approximately 1,350 square feet and the three-bedroom units approximately 1,870 square feet. Your home at Farrar Pond Village will have radiant electric heat with individual room controls, double-pane glass windows and sliding doors, wall-to-wall carpeting throughout, and a fireplace in the living room, more than one bathroom, but most important, each home has a large, full basement. For extra comfort and privacy, extra-heavy insulation has been used in all ceilings, walls, and floors and for safety each unit is connected to an alarm system for smoke and heat detection. With 19 trains daily to Boston, Lincoln is a commuter town, the station is only five minutes from Farrar Pond Village. By car over Route 128 and the Mass Turnpike, many cultural activities are even closer at hand. The DeCordova Museum offers concerts, exhibitions, and evening classes in various art forms. Drumlin Farm Wildlife Sanctuary with its extensive nature education program is also in town.

If you were to seek the ideal place to live in today's world, a place which offered the relaxed pace of the country, the progressive thinking of the suburb, the cultural benefits and commercial conveniences of the city, you would need to look no further than Lincoln, Massachusetts. This is just what the developers of Farrar Pond Village did in their quest for the perfect site.

Boston 200, the official bicentennial group, thinks that approximately 15 million people will be coming to the Greater Boston area during the celebration.

One of the organizations lending assistance is the Greater Boston Real Estate Board. The Board, considering this a two-year project, met recently with Boston 200 staff to determine the type of help the real estate industry can provide. At the meeting (L-R) are: David H. Bartley, President, Steve Clark, Boston 200 staff; Andrew F. Hickey, Executive Vice President; Kathy Kane, Director, Boston 200; Raymond T. Warren, President, Brokers Institute; Anthony DiMatteo, managing director, Member Services, Noel Leary, managing director, Brokers Institute; David Floreen, assistant managing director, Rental Housing Association; Alan Turetz, Director, Public Relations, William W. Austin, Jr., President, Multiple Listing Service.

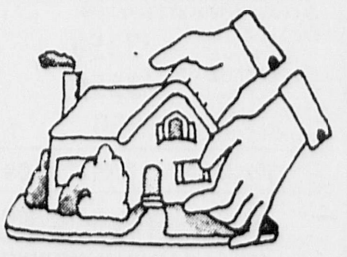
No expansion in National hockey league

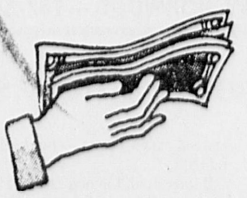
MONTREAL (UPI) — Expansion appears to be giving way to consolidation as the key operative phrase in the National Hockey League.

Admitting that the failing economic situation finally has caught up to the prosperous world of hockey, NHL President Clarence Campbell said Tuesday the league might honor its commitment to admit Denver and Seattle by allowing the backers of those prospective franchises to buy existing teams.

Campbell, following a meeting of the league Board of Governors, said this solution possibly could be achieved as early as next season.

Buying... selling?





Real estate brokers can save you time and effort. They know the market . . . what properties are available . . . who the best prospects are. They know procedure . . . and can help with the dozen and one details that enter into a real estate deal. It's smart to have them on your side when you buy or sell property.

Colorful shoes are new style for men

By WALTER LOGAN

NEW YORK (UPI) — Warren Edwards, 26, started out in his native London as a designer of jewelry and fashion accessories who had his own shop at the age of 19. He is now in the shoe business in a midtown New York boutique that is becoming the mecca of the entertainment world.

You might not see the likes of his shoes in some midwestern city like Oklahoma City, but they fill a need in the East for people who want to be ahead of anyone else in high style and have the money to do it. They come in a wild variety of shapes, sizes, colors —and heel heights.

Beatle John Lennon drops by occasionally for a few pairs of the latest. So does pop singer Elton John. Or Tony Bennett and his wife. Or such luminaries as Cher and Dina Ross looking into the distaff side of the business that is handled by his business partner, Susan Bennis, 22.

Edwards —and Miss Bennis —design their own shoes and boots which are hand crafted in Italy. The lines are more or less complementary but Edwards' emphasis is on the men's line and the emphasis there is on high style that refrains from being too theatrical.

Perhaps the most outstanding thing is the variety of colors ranging from a very red brown through a dozen shades of tan and brown to navy and bone. The most popular leathers are glove soft calfskins, but there are patents and suedes. In boots the most popular looks are loose-leg cossack styles almost to the knee and tighter fitting western boots. Some of the bootheels are three and four inches high.

In the very high-style range the heels may run as much as an inch and a half, but there re none of the "funky" clodhopper shoes affected these days by teen-agers. The toes on many of the shoes have returned to the more pointed look fashionable in the 1950s. But there are at least 20 different lasts and there is everything from pointed toes to rounded off and squarish looks. The style comes in a combination of everything —the workmanship, the unusual shades, the luxuriousness of the leather and new ways of treating classic patterns.

Edwards is a photographer as well as a designer and his career has taken him to London, Milan, Paris and other European cities where he combined designing with fashion and advertising photography. He ended up in New York working in a New York boutique known as the Chelsea Cobbler.

It was there he met Miss Bennis who also worked there. The business was a bit tenuous and they pooled their resources to take it over and turn it into a boutique of the same name with more emphasis on shoes than the accessories also sold there.

They admit they were bucking a trend to go into business during such perilous economic times and with prices ranging from $35 to $175. But Edwards reports business thriving with more and more theatrical stars heading their way, money clasped in their hands.

"Individuals today have need to invest their money carefully and selectively, Edwards said. "One of our aims is to provide quality and individualized merchandise. We believe in creating our Couture Collection; we have been successful in our goal."

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING
CITY OF NEWTON PLANNING BOARD

On Thursday, January 23, 1975, at 7:30 p.m., in the War Memorial Auditorium at City Hall, 1000 Commonwealth Avenue, the Planning Board will conduct the third in a series of public hearings, open to all City of Newton residents, relative to the preparation of a Community Development Plan for inclusion in the City's application for federal funding under Title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974. Designated as Phase 3 of the Citizen Participation Plan promulgated by the Mayor to enable all Newton residents to participate in the formulation of the Community Development Plan, this hearing will be devoted primarily to the discussion of programs to be included in the final Community Development Plan.

The Citizen Participation Plan, Summary of Title I — Housing and Community Development Act of 1974, a survey of community needs entitled Identification of Needs, with supplementary material entitled Identification of Needs, 1972 Citywide Survey: An Analysis of Citizen Opinion, Survey of Citizen Recommendations for the Community Development Plan, Preliminary Community Development Plan, and Proposed Community Development Plan have been distributed throughout the City and are available at the Planning Department upon request.

Due to the importance of this matter, it is requested that presentations be limited to ten minutes duration, and that written statements be prepared for submission to the Planning Board

Please note that any completed Survey of Citizen Recommendations for the Community Development Plan forms not yet returned to the Planning Department should be submitted prior to this hearing.

MORTGAGEE'S SALE OF REAL ESTATE

By virtue and in the execution of a power of sale contained in a certain mortgage given by Philip P. Januszkiewicz and Mary Jane Januszkiewicz, both of Newton, Middlesex County, Massachusetts to Elaine Cohen and Helen Showstack, as Trustees under a Declaration of Trust known as Gerald Lawrence Trust, dated April 24, 1961 and recorded with the Suffolk County Registry of Deeds in Book 7552, Page 457, which mortgage is dated November 27, 1973 and recorded in the Middlesex South District Registry of Deeds, Book 12559, Page 185, of which mortgage the undersigned is the present holder. For breach of the conditions of said mortgage and for the purpose of foreclosing, the same will be sold at public auction on February 14, 1975 at 2 p.m. on the said mortgage premises, all and singular the premises described in said mortgage.

A certain parcel of land with the buildings thereon situated in Newton, being now numbered 19 Ellison Road and being shown as a portion of Lot 21 and the whole of Lot 22 on a plan entitled "Property of Bonelli-Adams C. Newton Centre, Mass." dated August 1, 1919 by Russell H. Whiting, Civil Engineer, recorded with Middlesex South District Deeds, Plan Book 297, Plan 10, being bounded and described as follows:

EASTERLY by said Ellison Road, eighty-four (84) feet;

SOUTHERLY by Lot 23 on said plan, one hundred nine and 23-100 (109.23) feet;

WESTERLY by Lots 101 and 102 on said plan, ninety and 13-100 (90.13) feet;

NORTHERLY by the remaining portion of said Lot 21, one hundred four and 01-100 (104.01) feet.

Containing 9229 square feet of land, more or less.

Being the same premises conveyed to us by Ruth G. Chessman, by Deed dated June 1, 1970, recorded with the Middlesex South District Registry of Deeds in Book 11839, Page 603.

Subject to a first mortgage held by the Cambridgeport Savings Bank.

Terms of Sale: The purchaser shall pay one thousand dollars in cash as a deposit at the time and place of sale, and the balance shall be paid in cash within 20 days from the date of sale. The said premises will be sold subject to any and all unpaid taxes, tax titles, assessments and municipal liens so far as the same may legally exist.

Elaine Cohen and Helen Showstack, Trustees under a Declaration of Trust known as Gerald Lawrence Trust, dated April 24, 1961 and recorded with the Suffolk County Registry of Deeds in Book 7552, Page 457.

By its attorney, Joseph Meyer Cohen, 18 Tremont Street, Boston, Massachusetts, 02108.

Montreal fire victims

No chance for escape

MONTREAL (UPI) — The 13 victims of the Club Gargantua gangland execution did not have a chance to escape the smoke-filled storeroom, although it appears one of them made a desperate try to get out.

The 10 men and three women were herded into the room, trapped by a heavy jukebox shoved against the only door, and left to die after the bar was set on fire.

Body burns suffered by one of the victims, a 250-pound man, indicated he may have rammed the six-foot by six-foot door with his body trying to break it down, police said.

"But he couldn't have had much chance to have a go at it because of all the smoke and not having enough room," a policeman said Tuesday.

One of the victims, club manager Regent Fortin, 43, had been shot in the back. The others, all dead of asphyxiation, may have been innocent bystanders. They included Fortin's wife Claire.

"If there was only one primary victim, they may have needed to get rid of witnesses," police said.

Fire investigators said the panic-stricken victims could have suffocated in as few as five minutes in the dense smoke.

Many of the victims were young, in their 20s. One of them was a topless dancer in the bar. Another was a man who, according to his wife, had dropped in for a beer on the way home.

Neighbors said they did not hear any gunshots or screams during the predawn hours Tuesday when the mass killing took place.

The bar was known to police as an underworld hangout, and a police official said, "It is definitely a gangland killing with revenge as a motive."

Lt. Maurice Labarre said the fire apparently was started atop the jukebox and the dense smoke quickly streamed into the tiny storeroom. Labarre said he and three other firemen had extinguished a fire and after making certain there were no more flames, entered the storeroom about three hours later.

"Me and my three men moved the jukebox, broke down the door and went into the locker room. There was too much smoke and you couldn't see anything. Then I stepped on a body. They were all together at the back of the room.

Constable Jean Gauthier said the jukebox was "heavy enough that it would have taken more than one person to move it," which lead police to theorize at least two killers were involved.

"I was really surprised. We didn't think there was anyone in there."

Buttons and canvases displayed at libraries

Begin the New Year with a resolution to view the works of three Newton artists and to examine an unusual Button Collection at four different branches of the Newton Free Library.

The paintings of Gloria Lerner of Newton Centre are on display at the Highlands Branch of the Newton Free Library now through Jan. 25.

Mrs. Learner belongs to the Newton Art Association and has exhibited at the Newton Savings Bank. The exhibit includes paintings of wintry scenes, floral arrangements, and portraits.

At the Newtonville branch Reva M. Loew will exhibit lighthouse paintings on shingles. She also will display twenty-four postcard views of lighthouses, now through the end of January.

Emilie Sheehan will exhibit paintings at Auburndale Branch through the end of February.

Mrs. Sheehan prefers to use water colors when doing landscapes. She has studied with Davis Carroll, at the Museum of Fine Arts, and the Charles River Art Center, and is a member of the Newton Art Association.

Her paintings have been exhibited in several Newton Banks, at Newton Highlands Branch Library, and the Onset Bay Gallery. Several of Mrs. Sheehan's paintings are in the Newton Free Library's circulating art collections.

The button collection at West Newton Branch Library, is on loan from Mrs. Winifred Dyke, a former Newton resident and library staff member now living in New Hampshire. She is a member of the Button Collectors Association of America.

Contact the individual branches or call 527-7700 for information about library hours.

Performance

Berklee College of Music alumnus John Voight (right) of Auburndale is the featured bassistst with the "Stars of Swing," a sextet appearing at the Charles Play house. The ensemble will also give a guest per formance on Channel 5's "Good Morning," Thursday, Jan. 30. Pictured with Voight is Bill Elgart, formerly a resident of Newton.

Glee club auditioning

The Highland Glee Club of Newton invites male singers of all voice parts to its rehearsal Monday, Jan. 27.

This 45 member group, from a wide area, meet at 8 p.m. each Monday during the season at the Methodist Church, Newton Centre.

Its Spring Concert, which will be given April 22 at the Aquinas Junior College in Newton, will include music by Greig and Gounod and pieces from Romberg's Student Prince, and Gershwin's Porgy and Bess.

Also in May, a combined concert with the A Cappella Singers of Framingham (Women's Chorus) is planned.

A charter member of the New England Federation of Men's Glee Clubs, the Highland meets with other federation members in an annual contest and combined concert which is held in May.

Italian film showing Sunday in Nonantum

The Newton Free Library's Third Annual Italian Family Film "Father's Dilemma" will be screened Sunday, Jan. 26, at 3 p.m., at the Nonantum Branch Library, 144 Bridge St.

The Saturday Review called it "one of the brightest, jolliest Italian Comedies ever produced."

A grand prize winner at the Venice Film Festival in 1950, the film stars Aldo Fabrizi, Gaby Morlay, and Adrianna Mazzotti. The comedy is the story of a father on a happy Easter morning, the squabbles he becomes embroiled in, and the lessons he finally learns.

According to drama critic Bosley Crowther, the dealogue in Italian is "apparently full of good juicy colloquial jabs" that are not obvious in the English subtitles.

Members of the Women's Auxiliary of the Sons of Italy will serve coffee and refreshments.

Library director will review books

Ne8wton Free Library Director Virginia A. Tashjian will review just published books as well as old favorites at a special morning program, Jan. 30, at 10:30 a.m. at the West Newton Branch of the Newton Free Library.

One in a popular series, the book reviews led by Mrs. Tashjian and Branch Librariane are held at different Newton Libraries throughout the city. A loyal and enthusiastic group of readers regularly attend each session.

Pat Stier of West Newton welcomes all regular and new library patrons to the book review-coffee hour on Thursday.

The book review series continues Feb. 27 when Mrs. Marie Simpson reviews books at a coffee hour at Auburndale Branch Library.

'The King and I' at Mt. St. Joseph

"The King And I," the Rodgers and Hammerstein musical play, is being presented by M,ount St. J,oseph Academy on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings at 8 p.m. at the academy auditorium, 617 Cambridge St., Brighton.

The cast of "The King And I" include 100 talented players, singers and dancers including Newton Centre residents Kathy Smith, as "Royal Wife in Favor," and Patricia and Matthew Smith as "royal children."

Nicky and Jeanne Abruzzi, twins, of Newton Highlands will play Prince and Princess Ying Yaolak.

Maryanne, Susan and Jennifer Prendeville of Newton Centre; Patricia Murphy of Newton, Eileen Swan of Newton Centre; and Richard Barry of Newton will also perform. The children are all students at Newton Catholic and Mount St. Joseph.

Tickets to "The King And I"" are $2.00 available from students or at the door.

7 Newton children appear in 'Aladdin'

The Boston Children's Theatre Touring Company will open W with their spring production, "Alladin," March 8 and will be traveling weekends through May.

This new and exciting adaptation of one of the favorite "Tales from the Arabian Nights" will be directed by Joy Graustark, with Mark Greenglass as technical director. Settings are by Jack Werner and costumes by Vivian Dooley.

The cast, chosen from students in the theatre's Creative Drama Classes, will include: Meghan and Kate Conley of Newton, Karin Kreider of Auburndale, Emily Phillips of Newton Centre, Rachael Reef of Chestnut Hill, Joanne Charness of Newton, and David Lerman of Newton Centre.

Organizations interested in sponsoring an appearance of the Touring Company should contact the theater immediately while open dates are still available.

Also now in rehearsal, the Boston Children's Theatre production of "Pinocchio" will open Feb. 15 at New England Life Hall, with performances scheduled for school vacation week Feb. 18 through Feb. 22, and March 1.

Group rates are available for schools, scouts, churches, birthday parties, etc. The districulion of free tickets has been made possible in part through the cooperation of the Massachusetts Council on the Arts and umanities.

For information on the Touring Company or "Finocchio" write or call the Boston Children's Theatre, 263 Commonwealth Ave., Boston, Ma 02116, tel. 536-3324.

Library to show several films

The schedule of the Newton Free Library includes the following films.

On Thursday, Jan. 23, three films, "Underground Film", "Film: The Art of the Impossible", and "Hollywood, The Dream Factory" will be screened at Newtonville at 9:45 a.m. and at 7 p.m. at the main library on 414 Centre St., Newton Corner.

The Third Annual Italian Family Film "Father's Dilemma" will be screened at Nonantum on Sunday, January 26 at 3 p.m. The film is in the Italian language and has English subtitles.

On Thursday, Jan. 30, "The American Image" and "The Photographers" will be screened at Newtonville Branch, 345 Walnut St., at 9:45 a.m. and at the Main Library at 7 p.m.

Piccadilly theatre group will give drama reading

Members of the Piccadilly Square Theatre Company of Newton will present readings from the theatre of Shaw, Pinter, Inge, and Annouilh at the Newton Free Library, 414 Centre St., Newton Corner, Tuesday, Jan. 28, at 7:30 p.m.

The Piccadilly Square Theatre Company opened its first season in December with a production of Shaw's "Arms and the Man."

A British thriller, "Ladies in Retirement" is the second scheduled production with its premier set for Feb. 20. The company is planning to stage "Tartuffe" in April, and a play for children is planned to open in May.

The producers, Anita Sangiolo, Muriel Dolan, and Frank Dolan describe their new company, housed in the Lutheran Church in Newton Centre, as an equity group providing a new concept of professional theatre for the suburbs.

The Piccadilly Square Theatre Company is an outgrowth of the Newton Theatre Company, the Boston Drama Quintet, and the Newton Summer Theatre. For more information about their productions call 894-7614.

The public is invited and refreshments will be served.

Policewomen hearing Friday

The city of Newton and the Newton branch of the Massachusetts Police Association will be parties to a show-cause hearing on Friday (Jan. 31) at Middlesex Superior Court about the hiring of 12 women police officers.

Last week, the police union tried unsuccessfully to obtain an injunction against the city.

Friday's hearing will determine whether Newton should be allowed to proceed with its intention of hiring the women, with funding from the federal government.

The grant of $164,000 is to be used to find out whether women can do exactly the job as men officers.

The police union has strongly opposed the hiring of the 12 women, calling the advancement of their names on the Civil Service list a form of reverse discrimination.

Civil Service calls the practice "selective certification."

The groundwork is being laid by Perini Land and Development Company of Framingham to introduce a proposal for 225 condominium units for construction on the north side of Commonwealth Avenue on land better known as "old Norumbega Park." The designs will be unveiled at the Feb. 4 meeting of the Auburndale Association.

According to Conal Doyle, assistant to David Perini, president, there will be three "mid-rise" buildings, each six stories high. These buildings will house 180 units. The remaining 45 units will be two to two and one-half story townhouses.

Doyle stressed the plan was being exposed to citizens "to open up a dialogue" so the developer could get "input" from the community. He said the plan was not fixed, but a flexible design.

Perini formerly owned the land jointly with the Kanavos Corporation whom they recently bought out for $400,000. Doyle says "whatever Kanavos did is past history."

The developers will aim their condominiums at an upper middle class market who can pay "$50-80,000" but say they "are not trying to hit the Towers market." The Towers condominiums ranged in price from $70,000 to $250,000.

"The majority of parking will be underground," stated Doyle. "The top platform would be reserved for visitor parking" and some parking for the three mid-rise apartments would be "clustered in the center of the three buildings."

Doyle said architects, Sasaki Associates of Watertown, have also included the design of a "berm" which is a mound of earth landscaped with trees and grass to act as a visual barrier from Islington Road. Some of the units will be visible, noted Doyle, "because you would need a mountain to hide it completely."

The units would include one to two and one-half bedrooms. The amenities planned for the tenants "are in the feasibility stage." However, Doyle said that they might include two outdoor tennis courts and a swimming pool." In addition, the developer was thinking of adding an indoor squash and handball court.

Perini also owns approximately three acres on the south side of Commonwealth Avenue on which they plan to construct a "modest sized suburban office building of 100,000 square feet or five stories with structured parking." Doyle says Perini is presently negotiating for the option to purchase the adjacent Citgo station.

He also commented that Perini has concluded a deal to buy Dr. Lombard's house on the north side. This agreement calls for the company to take title in 1976.

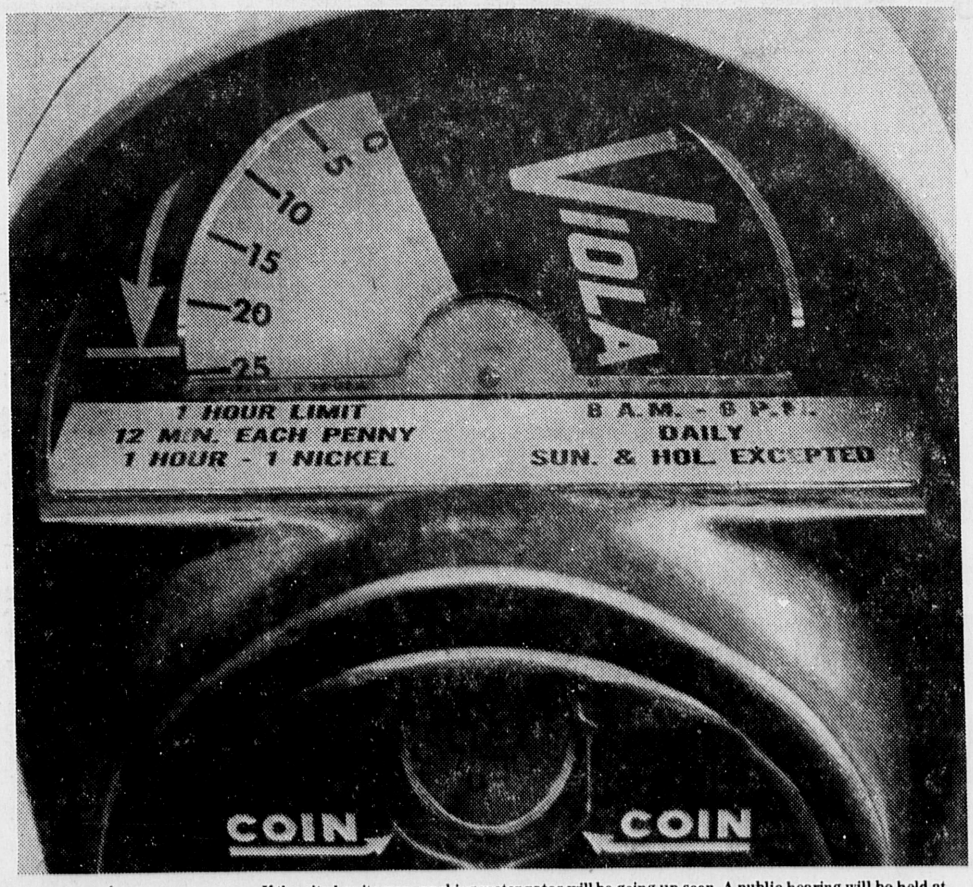
The developer intends to turn over approximately six to eight acres to the city for a pedestrian pathway through the park close to a nearby knoll instead of on the river bank where he states one would be only six inches away from the river. Doyle claims the property is essentially open now because of an MDC easement granted six years ago. However, the land is fenced right down to the river.

Steve Hopkins, a real estate developer responsible for Newton-at-128, has been hired by Perini. Also the developer hired Robert McAuliffe to prepare an environmental impact statement for them. Hopkins has initiated a meeting with the Conservation Commission, the Recreation Commission and representatives from the MDC.

Although Doyle said he had never heard of the Norumbega Association, he did say he had spoken to Daniel Sullivan, who is co-president of the Association. Sullivan's wife, Ann, said the developer wanted to meet with abutters. However, Sullivan declined such a meeting, wanting Perini to make a public presentation of the plan at the Auburndale Association.

Several months ago, Norumbega Association was responsible for collecting 1400 signatures from residents who wish to retain the property as a park in Newton.

The Auburndale Association meeting will begin at 8 p.m. at the Auburndale Congregational Church at Grove and Woodland Street.



Goodbye

If the city has its way, parking meter rates will be going up soon. A public hearing will be held at City Hall next Thursday (Feb. 6) on a proposal to buy new parking meters and raise the rates on the old ones. Under the new plan, there will be no more 12 minutes for a penny. Rather, the rate will be 5 cents for 30 minutes, 10 cents for an hour, 20 cents for two hours and 30 cents for three hours. Budget process looked at by Committee

By RICHARD WILLIAMS
of the Graphic staff

School Committeewoman Joan Needleman asked Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink to make a nonbinding report on where he would cut $1 million from his proposed budget of $31 million for school year 1975 to 1976.

Fink reported at the meeting Monday, Jan. 27, that his prime consideration, if given such a mandate, would be to preserve program quality for the average child in the schools.

Stressing continuously that, "I'm not recommending this," he said he would cut busing to the two mile limit required by state law, eliminate School Committee expenses for legal contingencies and staff studies eliminate out of state travel, which he said would make Newton "the best school system east of the Charles."

He would also eliminate, if he were required to make the cut, all sabbatical allowances, adult and continuing education, community schools, the evening school recreation program, new equipment for Newton North High School, and he would cut back maintenance of all plants to this year's level .

This would save about $610,000, he said. For an additional $813,000, he would eliminate all after school activities, including high school, junior high, and elementary athletics, summer high school, and creative arts programs on weekends and in the summer, and custodial overtime for these activiites.

This wou ld save a total of about $1,424,026.

Fink said if the School Committee told him to present an annual budget of a certain dollar amount, it would be avoiding its responsibility as a decision making body.

Restating his earlier priorities in the budget, he said he would meet state mandated requirements, maintain a quality programs for all children, and equally distribute the educational resources to all students.

In a long discussion at last Wednesday night's meeting, termed "one of our better discussions" by Committeeman Alvin Mandell, the committee spent about half an hour on trying to look at its policy in dealing with the budget.

Committeeman Emanuel Beckwith said the School Committee is similar in its position to the School Department as a board of directors is to the heads of a corporation, and it is reasonable for the committee to ask the superintendent to present a budget reduced by $500,000 or any amount.

Fink disagreed with the analogy, saying the schools are not producing units, as in a manufacturing plant.

"Somehow people expect the School Committee to do what the the state and the city can't do. They expect it to absorb a 13 percent (inflationary) increase'" Fink said.

"I sense the frustration of the committee in going through the budget. What we're going to do here is peanuts.

"The state law doesn't permit a $2.3 million cut in bilingual and special education, and we have to provide transportation, heat, electricity, and water, and salaries are negotiated. So where can you cut?" he said.

After this discussion, the committee went back to its page-by-page budget analysis which it finished Monday just before midnight.

The most criticized program was sports. more

Many members prefer the emphasis on lifetime sports, and directed questions to the school athletic directors about the availability of football and hockey programs sponsored by the Recreation Department.

These are the most expensive sports because of the need for more coaches in case of accidents. Junior high hockey costs $9,746, and football costs $16,590 for the complete program, according to Fink. Fink.

One citizen said she would rather have no program than have to worry aobut the safety of her children.

One reason for the high cost of Junior high hockey is because the Fessenden School no longer rents ice time to the teams.

Mandell said he would support cutting the number of coaches at the schools and allow the schools to distribute the remainder, eliminating Saturday morning basketball, gymnastic, and wrestling clinics, and dropping the swimming program for elementary and junior high schools, which will cost $33.693 in transportation costs to the Newton North pool.

City development program ready

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
of the Graphic staff

Citizen participation in municipal planning and the expenditure of the money coming under the new federal Housing and Community Development Act became the emphasis of the final public hearing on the first year of the program.

Newton will receive $655,000 this year and a total of some $4.5 million over the six years covered by the act.

Citizen participation is a requirement of the law.

While the Planning Department is responsible for the creation of the community-development program, the Planning Board is responsible for seeing to it that citizens know about the plan and that their opinions and wishes are paid attention to.

Planning Board Chairman Stanley Miller said again and again during the hearing to various speakers, "We have heard you," and explained how the plans had been altered since the first and second hearings, especially in relation to the building of low-income housing in Nonantum.

Nonantum residents have repeatedly said that no low-income housing is needed or wanted in Nonantum.

The proposed plan over the next three years puts most of the money into housing, whether new or rehabilitated, and allocates other large chunks of the money to the redevelopment of Newton Corner.

Most of the speakers at the hearing from Newton Corner wanted the timing of the expenditure of money advanced so that Newton Corner would finally get the attention from the city that its residents feel it deserves.

Nonantum residents felt the same way, except that they feel strongly that the city should defer to their wishes on housing and concentrate on improving the physical environment of Nonantum.

The Newton Corner residents were concerned to a great extent with traffic problems created by the coming of the Turnpike extension about ten years ago that have never been rectified.

Several speakers questioned the eligibility of urban design assistance to Victory Field sale voted by aldermanic committee

City-owned land at Victory Field, Nonantum, was on its way to becoming a parking lot for American Legion Post 440 after a 6-0 vote of the City Planning Committee Monday night to approve the sale of the land.

The 32,000-sq.-ft. parcel, what remains of Victory Field after the original sale of land to Post 440 for its building, will accommodate more than 50 new parking spaces for post activities.

The post plans to build a 40x100-ft. park between one side of the parking lot and a lot designated for four units of low-income family housing for the Newton Housing Authority.

There will also be a grass strip planted along California Street between the parking lot and the street.

The post has offered $16,000 for the land.

Under a new ordinance the City Planning Committee decides whether any city-owned land should be sold.

The offer next goes to the Finance Committee, which must advertise the land for sale and will ultimately decide on a purchaser and a purchase price.

Recreation notes

Archery classes resume

Archery Classes

Archery classes have resumed at the Newton Centre Playground Field House on Tyler Terrace and will continue through April 4. Classes will be held Friday evenings, the first class for students 8 to 15 from 7 to 8:30 p.m., and the second for thoses ages 16 years and older from 8:30 to 10.

Registration for these classes may be made by calling the Recreation Department at 969-3171. A fee of $1 will be charged. Equipment will be furnished. Early registration is suggested as classes are limited.

Four police officers promoted

Newton Police Chief William F. Quinn pinned gold badges on four Newton Policemen last Friday night at a ceremony attended by police families, and employees of the City and the court.

Promoted from the rank of sergeant to lieutenant were Community Service Commander Charles E. Feeley and Detective James V. Cox.

Promoted from the rank of officer to sergeant were Safety Officer Roy A. Fairweather, and Detective Robert Whelan.

Mayor Theodore D. Mann administered the oath of office to the men.

The biographies of each man follows:

Charles E. Feeley

Charles E. Feeley, 33 year veteran of the force has been safety officer and more recently, commander of the Community Services Bureau was promoted from sergeant to lieutenant.

Feeley is a second generation police officer. His late father, Charles C. and Uncle Francis, both served as detectives on the Newton Police Department.

He was educated in the Newton schools and has attended Albright College. He studied safety-community relations and human relations at Michigan State University; Howard University; St. John's College, Annopolis, Maryland; Fitchburg State Teachers College; Northeastern University; Federal Bureau of Narcotics, Federal Bureau of Investigation.

As part of the Newton Safety Education program, Feelley taught Driver Education at Newton High School for seven years.

In addition, he has lectured on police-community relations or juvenile justice at 27 colleges or universities and instructs at seven police academies.

He is a past president of the Nonantum Boys Club, the forerunner of the present Newton Boys Club, of which he ia a member of the Board of Directors.

More recently, Feeley was director of the National Conference of Christians and Jews Youth Brotherhood Camp at Camp Tel-Moar, Hampstead, New Hampshire.

He was also chairman of Governor Sargent's Drug Rehabilitation Program 1972-1973, treasurer of Massachusetts Safety Officers League, past president of the Massachusetts Juvenile Officers Association and past director of the Newton Mental Health Association.

James V. Cox

James V. Cox, with 24 years service, 10 years as a detective, was raised from sergeant to lieutenant.

Cox is a native of Allston, a graduate of Brighton High School and joined the department after serving with the United States Air Force as a supply officer.

He has been second in command of the Detective Bureau for the past five yers and has been involved in every major investigation including burglary, narcotics, and murder, and sometime acts as police prosecutor.

As a detective, Lieutenant Cox completed courses with the Maesachusetts State Police on organized crime, crime scene & search, and courses on investigation and identification of narcotics at federal and state schools.

In addition, he has taken courses at Newton College, Bentley, and Northeastern University. He also instructs in the Newton Police Academy

Roy A. Fairweather

Roy A. Fairweather, a seven-year veteran as a patrol officer, was promoted to sergeant. He has been working in the Community Services Bureau, principally as a safety officer, teaching pedestrian and bicycle safety in Newton schools.

He has also trained as a Social Security Supplemental Income Investigator to assist senior citizens whose needs might be called to the attention of the police In addition, he has been working with juveniles, and also is active teaching womens groups on personal and home safety.

Fairweather is a graduate of Newton High School, Wenworth Institute, and holds an associate degree from Northeastern University in Law Enforcement.

When in high school, Fairweather received the William E. Connors Award for character, sportsmanship, and athletic ability on the baseball team.

Robert Whelan

Robert Whelan, 22-year veteran police officer with the last five years as a detective, was promoted to Sergeant.

Whelan is also a second generation police officer. His father, the late Thomas Whelan, served with the Newton Police Department, as did his late brother Thomas, who served with both Newton and the Metropolitan Police Departments.

He was educated in Newton schools and later in the Naval Air Force, where he attended radio, radar, and gunnery schools. Later he was assigned to detach service to attend Columbia University to study ground control approach and administration.

As a police officer, he has attended narcotic schools conducted by the Federal Bureau of narcotics, Massachusetts State Police and Ex-Governor Furcolo's program on narcotic-detection and control.

Presently, Whelan is a member of the American Legion Post No. 440, Sons of Italy Lodge Primo Umberto Newton, Board of Directors Newton Police Benefit Association and in the past he was president of the Newton Police Memorial Association for five terms, along with chairman of the Grand Annual Policemen's Ball and the annual Police Memorial Breakfast.

Marrazzo held for receiving stolen goods

Police arrsested Salvatore Marrazzo, Jr., 20, of 14 Ryan Ct., West Newton, Monday, on a warrant for receiving stolen goods.

Police Sgt. Arthur Fryar and Det. Joseph J. Donahue, Jr., made the arrest at 7:05 p.m.

Police said the arrest was in conncection with goods taken from Anthony's Antique Shop, 17 Auburndale Ave., West Newton' but did not know exactly wha stolen goods he was charged with receiving.

Drinan sues to prevent imposition of oil tariff

Cong. Robert F. Drinan (D-Mass) has filed a lawsuit to enjoin the imposition of President Ford's oil price increases. If the suit is successful, it would prevent the President from raising oil prices which would cost the New England region over $800 million per year.

"This energy program must be stopped," Drinan declared. "I cannot imagine any set of proposals which would strike at the economy and consumers of Massachusetts quite as much as the President's package, and I am awestruck when I read of the economic hardship which these proposals would bring about."

President Ford has already signed the executive proclamation which will implement the first stage of the new oil tariff as of Feb. 1. "Unless the Congress or the courts act to prevent the tariff from going into effect," Congressman Drinan said, "this program could have a devastating impact on the Northeast. If the whole Ford package is approved, including the decontrolling of oil and gas prices, its total cost would exceed a staggering $2 billion just for New England. Bringing that amount down to a more personal level, the average family's energy bills would rise by $275 to $345 a year. This would cancel out any positive effect that the proposed tax cut might have on the Massachusetts economy."

Several Massachusetts public utility companies will join Drinan in the suit, which will attempt to deny the President's authority to impose such tariffs. Specifically, the plaintiffs will allege that under the Constitution only the Congress has the power to approve duties such as the oil price increases recently proclaimed. They will argue that the $3-perbarrel fee on imported oil along with smaller license fees implemented by former President Nixon in April, 1973, must be enjoined as an unconstitutional delegation of power to the Executive Branch.

Drinan is sponsoring legislation designed to halt the President's energy program in addition to filing the lawsuit. He has filed a joint resolution along with other members of the New England Congressional delegation which will delay the effect of the tariff program on oil imports and decontrol of "old oil" for sicty days. The Congress would then be granted a 30-day period in which to disapprove any new increase in tariffs, fees or quotas on oil imports. It is possible that the Congress may vote on the legislation this week.

"We cannot allow these devastating energy price increases to go intoeffect," Drinan declared. "The President's ill-advised energy program would create untold hardships for Massachusetts families who would not be able to meet the new price increases. In view of the economic recession and our rising unemployment rate, we must convince the President of the need for equitable energy solutions. Positive action is needed, but let us insure that Massachusetts and other New England states can survive the impact of these energy polices."

FBI, police raid 2 Newton locations

Newton Police and the Federal Bureau of Investigation collaborated for a gambling raid on two Newton locations Monday at 2 p.m.

The places raided were 52 Henshaw St., West Newton,. and 25 Capital St., Newton Corner.

FBI Special Agent James O. Newpher said the persons in the buildings were identified but not arrested, and the records and gambling paraphernalia will be presented soon to the federal grand jury in Boston for possible indictments of the persons involved.

A spokesman in Newpher's office declined to say who or how many persons were involved.

Newton Police Chief William F. Quinn and Det. Lt. Richard E. Duffy assisted the 40 FBI agents that coordinated the two Newton raids with three in Watertown, two in Brighton, and one in Cambridge.

Newpher said the arrests came after seven months of investigation, and many of the operations take in over $100,000 a week on wagers on horses, sports, doqs, and numbers.

The maximum penalty under the new federal gambling statute is five years imprisonment, $20,000 fine, and loss of all property used.

Mayor's choice for NHA challenged by aldermen

The reappointment of Henry J. Wilson to the Newton Housing Authority has been denied by the aldermanic Land Use Committee. It will be voted on by the full Board of Aldermen Feb. 3.

Wilson was appointed by former Mayor Monte G. Basbas in 1970 and took office in March, 1971.

The motion to deny the reappointment was made by Ald. Matthew Jefferson. "I don't see his actions as positive or negative," he said. "To my mind this is a static appointment."

Jefferson argued that he and other members of the Land Use Committee had asked Mayor Theodore Mann to appoint "advocates of housing" to the Authority as vacancies came up.

The mayor's most recent appointment to the Housing Authority before Wilson's reappointment was that of Leo Karas, which also ran into trouble at the Board of Aldermen before it was finally approved.

"The mayor has never seen fit to appoint a minority person — black or any other minority — and we are using federal funds here."

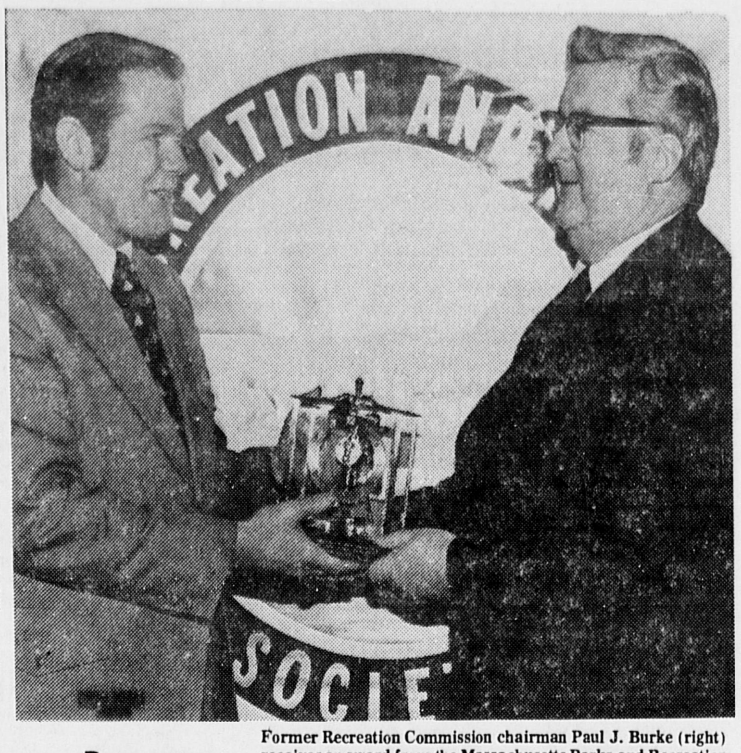
Ald. Michael Antonellis pointed out that the appointment is a reappointment, that in his opinion Wilson is "knowledgeable and enthusiastic," and that to deny the appointment "would be taking something away from somebody who wants it."

Chairman of the committee Ald. Joseph McDonnell reported that he had discussed the reappointment with Mayor Mann "at great length," and the mayor wanted Wilson to stay, principally because he serves as a representative of the elderly.

Antonellis commented that it would be "a poor thing to do — to vote against Wilson because he's white."

"No," McDonnell said, "I could vote against him because he's not an activist. There has ben been no housing proposed by the Housing Authority except that proposed by the Board of Aldermen."

Voting against the reappointment were Ald. David Cohen, Richard McGrath, and Jefferson; in favor was Antonellis; McDonnell and Terry Morris abstained.



Present

Former Recreation Commission chairman Paul J. Burke (right) receives an award from the Massachusetts Parks and Recreation Society. Newton Recreation Commissioner Russell Halloran (left) made the presentation.

Burke honored for recreation activities

Paul J. Burke, member of the Newton Recreation Commission and its former chairman, was honored recently by the Massachusetts Parks and Recreation Society for his outstanding contributions in the field of recreation over the years.

Burke was presented with a clock as a token of the society's appreciation by Newton Recreation Commissioner Russell J. Halloran.

A native of Newton, Burke was educated in the Newton Schools and graduated from Newton High School and Burdett College. During World War II, he served in Europe for three years and was wounded twice.

Burke, vice-president and a junior partner of Davis Sales Associates of Wellesley, is married to the former Carolyn Mitchell of Newton. They and their three children live at 161 Randlett Park, West Newton.

He served on the Board of Aldermen from 1964 to 1968, and was appointed to the Recreation Commission in 1970. He served two terms as chairman. Active in community affairs, he has worked in numerous fund drives and was president of the Newton Community Center from 1972 to 1974.

One of the founders of the Charles Cosgrove Memorial Scholarship Fund, Burke served as its co-chairman over the years.

He has been chairman of the St. Bernard's Church Athletic Program for five years, and has participated, coached, managed and sponsored teams in all sports programs of the Newton Recreation Department. In addition, he has been active in Little League, Babe Ruth Leagues, Pop Warner Football, and the Newton Youth Hockey Program.

Metropolitan education reviewed

by ELEANOR SIEGEL
of the Graphic staff

Metropolitan education options were reviewed by the Citizens Committee on Declining Enrollment at their Jan. 23 meeting. Metropolitan programs were discussed by resource people invited to the meeting by Robert Hayden, a member of the committee and of Black Citizens for Newton.

The speakers were Marsha Feld, director of the Metropolitan Planning Project; Mrs. Thelma Moss, executive director of Experimental Schools in Dorchester and John Moynihan, project director of tha the Metropolitan Educational Project (EDCO).

Each of the speakers who presented their programs noted the land of money available. Mrs. Feld told members of the committee that the project she is involved with, which is based in Newton is funded only until June.

Newton is one of the districts signed in on this pilot program which opens Feb. 10. The two participating schools are Newton South High School and Bigelow Mrs. Feld told members the program offers "a significant learning experience in an integrated climate." The course offerings will focus on basic skills and enrichment.

She emphasized that several communities together "can do what no community can do alone...you just couldn't mount this kind of program alone."

This program could fit into the closing or consolidation of schools by possible making a building available, with Newton's consent, for either a metro center or for an ethnic center.

One type of magnet school was described to the committee members by Thelma Moss, who runs such a school in Dorchester. This school was founded under state legislation in 1969. Funded at one site, the K-12 program was "integrated, not racially balanced."

This innovative program is governed by students, parents, parents and teachers and operates on a system of performance contracts. The present teacher pupil ratio is 1:6. Mrs. Moss says she believes "we are 10-20 years ahead of our time."

"Educational experiences are enriched by making use of the institutions, businesses and resources throughout the city."

"We have seen kids whom noone believed in get into Brandeis or go into businees for themselves." If a building were given over to a program such as this, Mrs. Moss said the program could be implemented within six to eight months "lead time."

The last presentation on the agenda was made by John Moynihan, director of EDCO, a collaborative of 12 towns providing education for students, some of whom Moynihan described as "potential dropouts." He said EDCO also "uses the resources of the city integrated with an a good academic program."

Asked "how EDCO could fit into Newton and what can it do for the city," Moynihan replied he was "biased against a building since I do not deem it to be the exclusive context for education." However, funding was again an issue in this program.

Hayden, in a later interview, stated "I wanted the committee to be educated about what is happening and let them see what the future could hold if metropolitanism was a part of the solution (to declining enrollment)."

Stressing that he was speaking as a private citizen, and not as a spokesman for BECON, Hayden said "there are a number of things that can be done to keep the buildings oepn and at the same time improve education." Hayden will submit a report at tonight's committee meeting. He said he had received letters from citizens indicating "great interest and support."

Also, this evening, Lois Alexander will begin a presentation on Chapter 766 The meeting will begin 7:45.at City Hall.

Land Use Committee

Sidney Hill additions 'legalized'

The Sidney Hill Country Club was voted 6-0 permissive use by the Land Use Committee Monday night for unauthorized construction of additions to its Florence Street building.

A new parking plan presented by the club, outlined by attorney Robert Freeto, showed 356 parking spaces, six more than is needed for the present facility.

The issue of what will be needed in the future if the Sidney Hill expands as it has indicated was skirted at this week's committee meeting.

The action of the Land Use Committee in effect "legalizes" the card room, four outdoor tennis courts, and walkways and driveways, all built without benefit of permission of the Board of Aldermen.

Conditions attached to the positive vote were that Sidney Hill would stop charging for parking and would use a dumpster of a type approved by the director of the Department of Public Works.

Land Use Committee Chairman Joseph McDonnell pointed out to Freeto that if Sidney Hill goes ahead with its plan to build more tennis courts, another 9-24 new parking spaces will be needed.

Sidney Hill has withdrawn several additions planned, including an addition to the coffee shop, paddle tennis courts, and a barbershop.

A separate petition will be considered for the use of an existing beauty shop, which a representative of Sidney Hill

Newton's WNTN sold

Newton radio station WNTN has been sold by the former owner, Charles Bell of Weston, to Orestes Demetriades and John A. Booras.

The sale price was $285,000.

The station started here in 1969 under former mayor Monte G. Basbas. At that time, the intention of the station was stated as providing Newton coverage, especially the Board of Aldermen and the School Committee.

For a while, there were several local programs, including a call-in talk show and during 1970 brief programs about the Charter Commission, which was then in the process of writing a new city charter, and a daily program from the Chamber of Commerce.

Gradually the station trned more and more to music to appeal to the youth audience, and public affairs got less and less air time.

The new owners have an application for a license pending before the Federal Communications Commission.

The programing proposed by the new owners will expand slightly on the amount of public affairs over that proposed in Bell's last licen e application.

The new owners have said in their license application that they will broadcast the school menu, a social calendar, accident reports, and gardening reports, in addition to the previously under negotiation program with the Newton-Needham Chamber of Commerce.

Another program proposed by the new owner is "Burning Issues," which is projected for 15 minutes every Saturday.

The zlogan of the new owners is A-H-A, which means "aid, help, assist," the goal of the station, to get apparently peopl to help each other in all ways.

The application is presently under consideration by the FCC. The FCC Broadcast Bureau is in Washington, D.C. Suggestions should be made there .

Shut up and vote

1973 was a significant year for the Board of Aldermen. Early in that year, two major proposals were made. One was for a so-called Life Care Center; the other was for a regional refuse disposal district.

And now, a mere year and a half later, every stalling tactic exhausted, one of these proposals has actually been approved.

One, mind you.

The other has one more stalling tactic to overcome.

Granted, the Life Care Center has been presented to the Board twice, and, granted, the second time it was proposed it did take less than a year to get done discussing it.

Or is this discussion?

Is this debate ad nauseam productive, piercing, insightful, meaningful, useful and necessary? Or is it the result of aldermanic lethargy on the one hand and downright enchantment with talk for talk's sake on the other?

Last week, two aldermen were instrumental in stalling money for transfer-haul.

Why?

Their views on the subject, and vehement opposition are a matter of record. Fellow aldermen and interested citizens have listened to hours and hours of argument (the same one, actually) from Ald. Richard McGrath in particular on this subject.

This, by the way, is the same Ald. McGrath who never once to our knowledge attended a meeting of the regional refuse committee to make his views known at a time when they might have affected recommendations.

No, he chose the course most often used by aldermen. It's wait until the recommendation is made, and particularly if it's going to be approved, work to tie it up and bog it down and delay it for as long as possible.

After all, it will pass when your arsenal of parliamentary weapons is exhausted, and all you're actually wasting is everyone's time.

How considerate of you.

Incidentally, Ald. Joseph McDonnell was nice enough last week to demonstrate that it's possible to tie up and bog down even AFTER a vote is taken.

New facts had "just come to his attention" at last week's Board meeting on the Life Care Center after the center had been approved by a 16-8 vote.

That's interesting. The same set of facts came to our attention five weeks ago.

Tactics such as these are unfair. The majority rules here. If legislators at any level have listened responsibly to both sides of an issue and have made a decision, then they should be allowed to vote.

After all, that's what we elected them to do.

Railing on and on after minds have clearly been made up is nothing but an act of sheer rudeness.

The Needle's Eye

Eschew the budget

By DON LEVITAN

It is a fact that with over half of the school budget deliberations completed, little has been accomplished.

Questions from the committee have been mild, friendly and somewhat paternal to the administration and patronizing to the residents.

There is little doubt that a sense of frustration has pervaded the arena. An incisive examination of priorities and expenses is and has been lacking. But so is a definitive statement of policy. It is hoped that the remaining meetings will deal with these basic issues.

In the interim I will attempt to provide you with a point of view and a frame of reference on a portions of this year's proposed school budget.

The requested budget, $31,004,731, is an increase of $1.5 million over last year. On the basis of previous years' experience, I would add to this approximately $2.5 million for extra budgetary school-related functions; and, further, the potential $2.5 million yet to be negotiated for teacher's salary increases.

Thus, the grand total of the School Committee deliberations is not really $31 million but is $36 million. more X

As indicated last week, it behooves the School Committee to be aware of this. After all, we are talking about a potential tax impact of more than half of our total municipal budget.

While I have made it a habit to avoid phrases like "belt tightening," "period of austerity," etc., the fact does remain that money at this time is particularly hard to come by.

Inflation is pushing every one of us against the wall. While this is happening, our Newton school budget continues to rise while enrollment decreases.

If ever there was a time for the Newton School Committee to invoke the law of parsimony, it is now.

Of the total $31 million, we have been told that 78 percent is in salaries. Translated into dollars, $24 million plus, and this is where the fulcrum of the budget is found. If any cuts are to be made, they should be made here. This is where the action is; and once cuts are made, other programs will begin to reflect the changes.

To date the School Committee has successfully abrogated its responsibility by evasion and waffling on the major issues.

Budgets do not set policies, they reflect them. And the budget the School Committee is contemplating is a result of its actions or inactions.

Nor ie now the time to ask the superintendent how he would reduce the budget . His suggestions, if adopted, would guarantee the un-election of School Committee members this fall.

Now is not the time to ask what would be the effect if a million dollars or so more were cut.

The time was before. The School Committee had this opportunity when a clandestine meeting was held in late summer jointly with municipal officials to examine ways to approach the school budgetary process. This meeting went for naught. It's in the past, and as many of you know, the past is prologue.

Now is the time, however, for the School Committee to assume its responsibility, not avoid it.

After all, they are elected to set policy and the superintendent is appointed to carry it out.

Housemaster Gaudet goes on sabbatical

By SANDRA FINN

Adams Housemaster Norman Gaudet will leave NNHS in February to take a half-year sabbatical. English teacher Anthony J. Temmallo will replace him.

During the second semester, Gaudet will be taking courses in Human Relations at Harvard. He and his family will then travel to Europe for the summer. Gaudet plans to be back in September.

"I will use this sabbatical to explore two areas that interest me," explained Gaudet, who has never taken a sabbatical before.

"One is the total curriculum and its relation to the seventies; the other is human relations and values in our schools," continued Gaudet.

Gaudet feels that public schools tend to shy away from the subject of human values.

"This is a delicate issue," said Gaudet. "How can we teach honesty, consideration, and fairness? How can we teach students to make moral decisions?"

Gaudet hopes to return to NNHS with some fresh ideas on the subject. He added that he hopes to develop a program with the faculty.

"I plan to prepare material at Harvard that I can use in helping teachers become more sensitive in helping kids develop values," said Gaudet.

Gaudet added that another reason for taking a sabbatical is that he needs time to think, read and reflect. He also plans to visit other schools and exchange ideas.

Gaudet has been in education for twenty years. He received masters degrees in French and education from Harvard in 1951.

Gaudet came to Newton North in 1959 as a teacher. He was made Adams Housemaster in 1969.

"I think it's time to examine where I've been and where I'm going, to reflect on my experiences as both a teacher and a housemaster, and see how I can better benefit myself and the school," said Gaudet.

Temmallo doesn't plan any drastic changes for Adams House. "But," Temmallo said, "I do feel that Mr. Gaudet would welcome any programs or ideas that would benefit Adams House students."

"I want to help," said Temmallo.

Temmallo has been at Newton North for six years. He's been very active in a number of programs at NNHS.

Temmallo is optimistic. "It can't help but be interesting. And I'm sure that I'll be a more effective teacher because of this opportunity."

Political Highlights

Spiro Agnew heads toward first million

Most of the persons, who were really close to former President Richard M. Nixon, are either in prison, just out on parole or living under the grim threat of future prison sentences.

Nixon himself is a recluse at his home in San Clemente, Calif., reportedly broken in health and spirit, and in financial difficulties.

But the man accused of the most serious offenses of anyone in the Nixon administration is free, well, happy and on his way to becoming a millionaire.

Former Vice President Spiro Agnew's "bagman" is serving an 18-months jail sentence. An engineer, who admitted paying Agnew a bribe, was sent to jail for 12 months.

To keep the record straight, the crimes of which Agnew was accused, allegedly were committed before he became Vice President. But to this bystander the allegations against Agnew were much more serious than those against Charles Colson, John Mitchell, John Dean, Haldeman and company, most of whom were charged with lying and covering up the Watergate break-in.

Yet, Spiro Agnew, who was fined $10,000 after pleading nolo contendere to charges of income tax evasion and was sentenced to three years of unsupervised probation, apparently will make more than $1 Million during that period of probation.

In this time when many law-abiding citizens either are out of work or are encountering rough going because of inflation, Spiro Agnew is being paid a base salary of $100,000 a year plus one-third of the profits of a lucrative real estate business. He is capitalizing handsomely on the contacts he made while Vice President of the United States.

One of his partners says Agnew is making more money than he ever did as a lawyer.

He declares that Agnew has a four-year contract and that Spiro will be a multi-millionaire at the end of that four year period.

Another partner asserts that he was "tremendously impressed" by Agnew's "stature and honesty" when he met him five months after Spiro resigned from the Vice Presidency (in disgrace).

What seems wrong to this onlooker is not that Spiro Agnew is making so much money but that there appears to be two standards of justice—one for Spiro Agnew and a different set for other persons in the Nixon administration who were accused of lesser wrongdoing.

The guess here is that Spiro Agnew would be doing business in the slammer for much less compensation if he had the misfortune to appear before Judge John Sirica.

Wallace softens views; has black in cabinet

George Wallace is a most remarkable man. He was gunned down by a kooky would-be assassin during his 1972 Presidential Primary campaign in Maryland and left paralyzed for life.

Although his critics had claimed he was physically unable to perform the duties of his office and should retire from the Governorship, he was reelected to a third term as Governor of Alabama in November.

He recently assumed the oath of office at his third gubernatorial inaugural. Almost immediately, word came out of Montgomery, Ala., that Wallace's 1976 campaign machine was ready to roll.

While practically all political observers take it for granted that Wallace will be a candidate for President next year, Wallace's supporters insist he will not make a final decision on the matter until about the middle of this year.

However, Wallace spent about $2 Million last year getting his campaign machinery oiled up and all plans smoothed out in preparation for another Presidential run.

Up to the present time only three Democrats have officially announced their intention to run in the 1976 Presidential Primaries. They are former Governor Jimmy Carter of Georgia, former Senator Fred R. Harris of Oklahoma and Congressman Morris K. Udall of Arizona.

None of the three is likely to send any shivers up Wallace's back or frighten him out of next year's Presidential contention.

Once one of the ardent segregationists in the Old Confederacy, Wallace has tempered his views toward the Blacks and has made major gestures toward them.

Wallace managed to poll an estimated 20 per cent of the black vote in his successful reelection bid last November. He has appointed a Black as a member of his Cabinet. He is appointing other Blacks to positions just below Cabinet rank.

For Wallace that reflects a tremendous change in his attitude toward Blacks since the campaign days when he told his listeners that no demonstrators had better risk throwing themselves before the wheels of his automobile.

The softening of Wallace's position toward Blacks will not cause any rush of Black leaders to the Wallace Presidential bandwagon, but it may lessen the force of their opposition to him.

George Wallace doesn't shape up as the next President from this vantage point. But he could have a good deal to say about who the next President is.

Youth Commission record reviewed

To the Editor:

As one of the Commissioners mentioned in your editorial of Jan. 21, I deeply regret and wish to correct your implication that the Youth Commission functioned as a do nothing commission which rejected the "expertise" offered by the Human Resources Dept. head.

I wish to first state my record on the Commission. This record is documented in the minutes of the Commission.

(1) I served on the Commission three years and attended meetings consistently.

(2) When the incidents of vandalism in Newton Centre occurred in early 1973, I took on the chairmanship of the Street Worker Pilot Program. I met weekly during that spring and summer with other Commission members and Newton citizens during which time we developed a program, selected an agency to supervise it, and then assisted the agency - through weekly meetings to run it.

(3) For eight months thereafter, the Commission Committee met every other week to evaluate the pilot summer experience in the light of overall community need. We met with leaders of agencies and Youth organizations all over the city to assess the proper scope and need for an ongoing year round street worker program.

(4) After the Dept. of Human Resources head filed for the Action Grant funding of this program, I continued to meet bi-weekly with an Advisory Group for the Street Worker Program. This group consisted of three other Commission members. We developed the entire operating procedure for the current program and worked very closely and cooperatively with the Dept. of Human Resources in the screening and selection process that took close to six months.

To my way of thinking - you have very much misrepresented the issue. The issue was not that the Commission was talking and not doing. There would be no Street Worker Program today if that were the case. The fact is that since the inception of the new Dept. of Human Resources, the direction of accountability and responsibility of the Youth Commission has gradually eroded to an advisory capacity.

I personally made numerous and lengthy efforts to work out my relationship to the Dept. of Human Resources head. The issue is not one of personality conflict for me. It is, rather, a basic difference of opinion around what it takes to make a Commission work.

I lived through a period when the Commission thrived on the challenge of responsibility and accountability. I also lived through a painful period of slow dying, over conflict over who did what, and of who makes the decisions. I realized that for myself, I needed the opportunity to participate with responsibility. I made every effort to let the appropriate people know of my dilemma by letter and through face to face discussions. I was told clearly that under the new Ordinance, I could not function as I had.

For me there was no other recourse but to resign. Your editorial suggests that only people who want to accomplish something for youth should consider the position of commissioner. I disagree. Unless there is a change in the present ordinance and in the working atmosphere between the Commission and the Human Resources Dept. head, only those who wish to talk and advise need apply.

CAP-Energy plans hearing on electricity use and rates

The Citizens' Action Program on Energy has called a public hearing for people to state officials what they think of their electric bills and what can be done to lower them.

The hearing will be held at the Gardner Auditorium of the State House Saturday, Feb. 8, at 10 a.m.

CAP-Energy is a coalition of consumer community, senior citizen and labor groups from all over Massachusetts.

The major goals of CAP-Energy are to establish fair rates and to halt rate increases.

At present, large commercial and industrial users pay much less than tenants and homeowners for electricity. These rates encourage wasteful use of energy, while making the consumer subsidize the big corporations, CAP believes.

CAP hopes to have established a rate structure that charges all users the same amount for each unit of electricity used.

While the current rate structure exists, CAP says, no utility should be allowed to increase its rates. Electric companies should economize by lowering promotional costs, executive salaries, profit rates, and other expenditures before asking for a rate increase.

CAP also wants to establish a "Lifeline" rate, which would be a small fixed charge for the unavoidable basic amount of electricity that everyone must on use each month.

For people with low or fixed incomes, the Lifeline rate is vital, according to CAP, since they cannot afford to pay constantly increasing prices for this necessity.

Parents can roam and kids can read

A shelf of books for young children to read is featured just inside the front door at the Newton Free Library, 414 Centre St., Newton Corner, to help occupy youngsters who accompany their parents to the library.

Books on the children's shelf are for use at the Main Library and do not circulate.

The Junior Main Library, at 126 Vernon Street, (around the corner form the main library) and the children's rooms at each of the ten branch libraries continue to serve Newton boys and girls, and offer a growing, challenging collection of books and non-book materials for circulation.

A selection from the Junior Library for the special shelf in the main library includes "Awake and Dreaming." Zemach; "Little Bear's Visit," Minarik; "I Know A Giraffe," David Omar White; "Androcles and the Lion," Hawkins; and "Soo Ling Finds A Way," Behrens.

Editorial 'grossly unfair'

To the Editor:

Your editorial of Jan. 23 is a grossly unfair and distorted assessment of the Youth Commission.

In the two years that I have been a commissioner under the dynamic leadership of Rev. Charles Coylie, I have seen consistent progress in developing, coordinating, and carrying out youth programs in Newton. A look at the minutes of our meetings will verify the extent of our activities.

In addition to monthly meetings, the Commission and Advisory Board members have participated in numerous task forces and sub-committees in order to concentrate on specific problems. An example of this additional commitment is the Streetworkers Program. Faye Snider and an outstanding subcommittee organized and implemented this vital project, meeting weekly over a long period of time. Monthly progress reports were given to the full Commission and Advisroy Board.

During the same period, other Commission committees were involved in youth agency evaluations, a Thanksgiving food drive for needy families in Newton, and the establishment of a youth advisory committee to encourage greater participation on the part of Newton students.

Recently, while working on a reorganization of the Commission to increase its effectiveness, we discover that our current ordinances were not consistent with those of the Department of Human Resources and the other two Commissions. The Aldermanic Committee on Legislation and Rules is in the process of reviewing the ordinances and will, I an confident, revise them to correct the discrepancies.

It is true that the resignation of Charles Coyle and Faye Snider will be a great loss to the Youth Commission. However, it is not "well on its way to a total eclipse," and I personally resent your inference. All the Commissioners and Advisory Board members have a fine record of service to the community in the field of youth activities and problems. With the addition of two new Commissioners who have already been appointed, we are ready to assume new and greater responsibilities.

some of the villages, although each would get only $5000 in assistanc

The provision of financial assistance to neighborhood service area councils may be illegal, according to some people at the hearing. The program budget shows $7500 for this purpose.

So far, only Newton Highlands has established a council, but Anton Pruckner, chairman of the Newton Corner Citizens Committee announced the intention committee, of the Newton Corner citizens to begin the work to set up a council.

Opponents of funding the councils feel that to do so would violate the city charter which allows the establishment of the service areas and councils as sub-units of city government but forbids their being the recipients of any city money.

Since the money is coming to the city, they feel, it cannot be spent on the neighborhood service area councils.

John McIsaac, the owner of a tract of land on Staniford Street, Auburndale, on which he wants to build 140 units of housing, announced at the hearing that he considers the planned use of some of the money to acquire his land for conservation and housing for the Housing Authority to be an "attempt to defeat Chapter 774"(the antisnob zoning law).

McIsaac has appealed to the state for a comprehensive permit to allow him to build. The Newton Zoning Board of Appeals denied his appeal.

McIsaac said that he will take the city to federal court if any federal money is spent on Staniford Street landtaking.

A group of citizens, loosely organized for the hearing, was led off by Alan Schlesinger of the Newton Community Development Foundation, a housing organization.

Schlesinger commented that the program did not specify whether the housing assistance is limited to low and very low income persons "as required by the law."

He cautioned that a rehabilitation feasibility study must be done to make sure the goals can be accomplished and to determine whether the need and willingness to rehabilitate exist in Newton.

Schlesinger emphasized, as did other speakers from the group, that the effect of rehabilitation could be to increase rents.

The rehabilitation program should have as its primary object to obtain money, he said. This could be accomplished by using community development funds to insure loans that could be made by a cartel of local banks.

"Direct grants are all right," he said, "but should be subject to strong criteria."

Robert McKay of Auburndale, executive director of the Citizens Housing and Planning Association in Boston, questioned whether the proposal to use $40,000 of the money on comprehensive planning is proper. "The city should be doing it anyway," he said.

"Who is going to carry out these programs?" he asked. "The Planning Department has competent planners but they are not administrators."

"It appears we are trying to develop one department to do housing, renewal, project planning, and code enforcement.

"There's only one well now — we don't have to have city agencies all fighting each other."

McKay went on to say that in his opinion the first year's budget is unrealistic — "you can't get it going in one year." He pointed out the absence of a rehabilitation study, which he estimated would take six months to do.

The money not spent, he suggested, could be used to develop "social planning."

"You can use up to 20 percent of the money for social planning. Get the agencies together and let them develop a plan," McKay said.

The final program proposal should be ready this week for review by the mayor, who will then forward it to the Board of Aldermen with his comments.

Final Board action must have taken place by the end of February. After action by the Board the program must go to the Metropolitan Area Planning Council for review. If approved by MAPC the program and the application will be sent to the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Scrutiny of applications during this first year of the new form of revenue sharing is not expected to be especially critical. The second-year applications will receive close attention, according to material distributed by the department.

Budget process looked at —

Mrs. Reichard said she supports junior high hockey but cannot support the swimming program.

Chairwoman Eleanor Rosenblum moved the committee on to the books and supplies section, which she referred to as "read them and weep."

This part of the budget went up 12.4 percent, to $735,359. Superintendent Fink said it would even be higher if some students did not buy some of the paperbacks used in classrooms so they could write in them.

In discussing the high school summer program, which is budgeted $84,063, Fink said mostly lower income children enroll in this program who do not go away for the summer.

This prompted Mandell to say, "Newton Public System is not a social agency."

At Monday night's meeting, Beckwith urged the Citizens Advisory Committee on Declining Enrollment to present its report as soon as possible, preferably before its deadline of March 13.

Noting the committee reserved the right to decide on closing any elementary schools up until April 1, Mrs. Reichard urged a special meeting be set for March 17 after the report is presented.

Director of Support Services John Gilleland presented his part of the budget totalling $634,300.

Committeeman Gerard Byrne thought the budget should reflect an anticipated savings of at least $81,000 from the move of the administration into the remodeled F.A. Day School, projected for January.

UNESCO condemned by Mass. State Senate

The Massachusetts Senate has become the first legislative body in the United States to condemn the ejection of Israel from the United Nations Economic, Social and Cultural Organization (UNESCO).

The action came on a resolution introduced by Sen. Jack H. Backman (D-Brookline-Newton) and co-sponsored by Sen. Alan D. Sisitsky (D-Springfield), which was passed unanimously.)

The resolution cites UNESCO's denial to Israel of assistance for scientific, educational and cultural programs and notes that leading statesmen. scholars and artists form many nations have publicly condemned the action as inconsistent with the United Nations charter as well as UNESCO's own charter to abstain from political activity and concern itself only with humanitarian issues.

The Senate, through its resolution, cites Israel's outstanding contributions through UNESCO to the well-being of all humanity as well as its contribution financially, many times more than its received.

Backman stated, "We must not allow the very existence of the state of Israel to be threatened by the blackmail of the Arab oil cartel. The long-range peace in the Mideast will only take place by joint cultural, educational and humanitarian efforts coupled with economic cooperation.

Fink speaks on 'racial isolation'

by ELEANOR SIEGEL

Strong arguments against "racial isolation" were voiced by Aaron Fink, Superintendent of Schools, on Friday evening when he spoke before the congregation at Temple Beth Avodah where he was invited to talk about METCO.

Rabbi Robert Miller told congregants before the speech that this "question will be raised in every house of worship...we are vitally concerned and interested in achieving a religious mandate so we can live in peace and harmony."

The rabbi said we "have watched the violence and racial polarization and retreating into our own little world felt what transpires in South Boston does not affect me...but it is all part of one humanity." He said "as a Jew I must ask what can I do which might mitigate tension and polarization."

Fink spoke against a segrated suburb saying that "never in history has a central city declined without the suburban areas declining as well." Emphatically he stated that "it is absolutely essential to provide an opportunity to reduce racial isolation."

He warned the audience not to believe that the racial problem could be contained in Boston, but instead urged them to believe "this is our problem also."

Asked if the newly expanded METCO program would cost the taxpayers money, he asserted "nothing could be further from the truth." He went on to explain that Newton will be reimbursed by the state for the expensive increases of staff.

Fink said tht that "80 per cent of the METCO students continue beyond high school which is in proportion to the whites in Newton who continue." He also pointed out that the impact of the program was felt in classroom with a racial mix. There Fink said studies have shown a "reduction in stereotypic thinking among those children."

"I am committed to the belief that an integrated education is better than a segregated one," said Fink. He noted that even if students "were returned to their Boston classrooms peacefully, Newton should still seek to increase METCO and not absolve themselves of responsibility."

When asked about busing poor whites into Newton under some program, Fink warned about "confusing socio-economic integration with racial balance."

Fink mentioned that minority staff members were sout sought out by recruitments .

The question of a black commons room in Newton South was raised and Fink was asked why it was available to only blacks. He said it is a cultural center open to all whites. He further stated there had been no room to house the center in the main library.

Sidney Hill additions—described as used "99 percent" by women who spend the whole day at Sidney Hill anyway, therefore not needing additional parking space.

The Law Department must decide whether the beauty shop can properly be considered an accessory use of the club.

In other business the Land Use Committee denied without prejudice a petition for rezoning of land at Neshobe Road and Washington Street and denied outright a petition for permissive use to build a medical office building at the same site.

The land was the subject of a petition for a similar building last year. The petition was denied mainly on the basis of objections from the neighborhood and the fear of unmanageable traffic increases.

Ald. Terry Morris said Monday night that another vote to deny permissive use would be "saying that the land is undevelopable."

The problem of ingress to and egress from the land has been and stil is the problem. The would-be developers wanted the access from Washington Street but would settle for a previous Planning Department approval of access at the base of Neshobe Road.

Neighbors objected to the Neshobe Road plan, which would have required making Neshobe Road one way to prevent users of the medical building from using Waban residential streets as a way out. An amendment to the zoning ordinances proposed by Ald. Michael Antonellis was passed by the committee with a 4-0 vote. Antonellis' amendment calls for the necessity of obtaining permissive use to place any sign except an identification sign on unzoned land. All city-owned and MBTA-owned land is unzoned. The amnedment would apply to signs visible from a public way, and would apply to scoreboards in parks and commercial signs on MBTA property.

Kindergarten sign up starts at Davis School

If your child will be five years old by Dec. 31, 1975, he or she is eligible to enter kindergarten in September, 1975. The child's birth certificate and imunization record must be brought.

Jaycees are looking for DSA candidates

The Newton Jaycees have announced the beginning of its search for the 1975 Distinguished Service Award recipient. Any person between the ages of 18 and 35 who has contributed time and effort to community betterment outside the normal occupation is eligible for the award. Nominations may be submitted to any member of the Newton Jaycees.

The D.S.A. will be presented at the Annual Awards Night Banquet to be held at the Sidney Hill Country Club on Sunday, March 23. In addition to the 30th Annual D.S.A., the 2nd Annual Notable Newtonian Award and 2nd Annual Silver Tool Kit Award, both sponsored by Silver Lake Dodge, will also be presented.

As in 1974, the Awards Night Pogram will also include the Miss Newton Beauty Pageant, which is the first step toward the Miss Universe Pageant.

Echo Bridge Saga

You'll love visiting our area - it has an historic past.

Located on the Charles River below historic Echo Bridge, this was once the site of an Indian reservation whose inhabitants fished from the banks of the Charles The tribe built fish and eel wiers above the falls and used the rocks along the shore for drying their catch.

Although the tribe is now gone, every transfer of land, even today, must still include a clause guaranteeing the original drying rights of the Indians

In 1688, John Clark came to Newton Upper Falls and purchased this land in order to build a grist mill. During Revolutionary times, Simon Elliot added to the old grist mill and built one of the largest snuff businesses in New England; a business that endured through the late 1800's. The mill was then transformed into a silk mill complex; and for 80 years, people worked there spinning silk, silk yarn and embroidery silks.

Echo Bridge was built in 1876, and owes its appellation to the fact a voice will echo under the bridge as many as 18 times. Stone steps lead up from the bottom of the solid granite bridge to a commanding view of the river falls.

Today, 30 companies occupy buildings on this site. The newly created mall features a complex of shops offering a wide variety of unusual items.

Here, you may buy antique jewelry and furniture at Ida Lubin Antiques, Two Sisters Antiques, Van-Clott Antiques or Americana Antiques; or get needlepoint and rug-making items at the Creative Home. Gifts, stationery, greeting cards, potted plants and accesories or custom made clothing are available at Especially Yours Boutique, The Paper Tree, Green Things II.

The Wood Hut features one of the largest selections of woodenware in New England. Plexiglass items, storm doors and windows cut to order can be ordered from Newton Plastics.

And finally, the entire shopping excursion can be topped off with luncheon or dinner in the gracious dining rooms of the Mill Falls Restaurant overlooking Echo Bridge.

The map in the upper right hand corner shows you how easy it is to get to the Echo Bridge Mall.

Ample free parking is also available.

Bottle deposits, ban on fliptops sought by Pines, Harrington

State Reps. Lois G. Pines (D-Newton) and Peter Harrington (D-Newton) have again filed legislation to mandate a deposit on all carbonated beverage and beer containers sold in Massachusetts and to ban the sale of flip-top cans.

Rep. Pines is optimistic that the legislature will pass the bill this session. "The recently enacted, successful Oregon and Vermont returnable-containers laws have produced significant economic gains."

According to Rep. Pines and Harrington, Oregon's Bottle Bill has created 365 new jobs in the beverage industry with an annual payroll of $1.6 million; beverage prices have not been increased; beer and soft-drink sales have increased; and there has been a 92 percent reduction in the number of cans and bottles littering roadsides.

"The switch to returnables would save 18.2 billion kilowatt-hours or enough energy to heat all the homes in a northern city with a population of 46,000. More than nine million people could be supplied with electricity for one whole year by the energy wasted during 1974 through the use of throwaway containers rather than returnable bottles. Crusade for a clener environment has calculated that the energy wasted by the use of nonreturnable soft-drink and beer containers last year was the equivalent of 115,000 barrels of oil per day; or approximately 1.7 billion gallons of gasoline, enough to operate nearly 1,700,000 automobiles, averaging 10 miles per gallon for a typical driving year of 10,000 miles," Rep. Pines said.

Under the proposed Massachusetts legislation, a minimum deposit of 6 cents would be required on containers with a capacity of less then 32 ounces. A 10-cent deposit would be required on containers with a capacity in excess of 32 ounces.

The legislation is supported by CPPAX, Alternative Energy Coalition, and Massachusetts Public Interest Research Group.

Accessories save the day

If you're going to be in style this summer, begin now to learn the art of "tying."

Scarves are on every neck this season and for good reason. During these days of tight economy, women are inventive as they try to find new methods of saving money. No other accessory can do as much for a dress, sweater or pantsuit than the scarf.

Recognizing the importance of the scarf as fashion's "top" accessory, scarf creator Glentex has come up with a total concept of scarfing including a variety of shapes and sizes in a myriad of patterns and colors.

Long - longer - longest stands for the versatile oblong that offers a potential of many tie-ways. In crisp-handed twill, wear it tie style under a shirt collar or to brighten sweaters and shirt dresses.

Turn it into an ascot to fill in a jacket or open neckline or wrap it high, wide and handsome about the throat and anchor with a stick pin or Art Deco clip.

In chiffon, loop the oblong lightly about the throat, ends flying, to soften a late day dress or to bring a spot of color to the single-hued matte jersey long dress or pajamas so in now for evening. And in its extra-long interpretation, in any fabric, drape it to show outside over a cape, a coat or a bulky coat-sweater.

Motifs, like lengths, adapt to any occasion, running the gamut from the traditional paisleys, dots, stripes and foulards to deliciously feminine florals and avant garde Art Deco designs.

Squares, too, have vast tie-way and fashion potential, ranging from the smallest nineteen inch size to the giant-sized forty-five inch. Use the "baby" size to make a perky cowboy knot with jeans. Larger squares can be triangled, folded on the bias or lengthwise to become pouf fillers, butterfly bows, true neckties and many other easy-to-tie scarfisms about the neck.

And like the oblongs, the scarf squares are interpreted in twill and chiffon as well as sheer challis and cotton, all of them offering a diversity of designs and colors.

It's no secret that women have been shopping for scarves in the men's department. Last spring Yves St. Laurent showed fashions whereby men's scarves in gay prints trailed around the neck and down the back.

This summer, the French designer is wrapping men's tie-print silk scarves around the head peasant-style, knots them under the chin in babushka or simply wraps oblong, striped scarves casually around the neck.

Another accessory that has gained in importance is the handbag. Because of slightly longer dress lengths, there is a new look in handbags.

While the clutch remains one of the most popular shapes both for daytime as well as evening, the shoulder bag remains No. 1 for comfort as well as good looks.

According to the manufacturers and importers who make up the National Handbag Association, top-handled bags and reptile textures are the two new trends this year. They also feel that top handle bags will be a refreshing change from the shoulder bags—the new silhouettes include shopping bag and knitting bag shapes, satchels, and all manner of totes. Some come with optional shoulder straps, but many are going it along...a sure sign that designers really believe in the look.

To choose the right handbag, a woman must match her outfit in proportions as well as mood. That means bigger bags have made a quick return to go with fall's big looks—voluminous capes, swirling skirts and full blouses.

Trimmer bags go out with lighter looks and evening clothes. Clutches are still in the picture, but not as prominently as a year ago.

The woman traveling to a sun spot will opt for the genuine awning fabric (with soil, water and fade resistance) in bold stripes, gathered on a comfortable rattan handle. Another resort bag to carry into spring is the sky-blue floral print shoulder bag that reverses to plain white with floral trim...and it's machine washable.

Softness sets the scene for evening handbags—there is the subtle one-color look of jersies, silks and velvets as well as a clever combination of beads and silk floss embroidery whereby the bag is abloom with flowers to achieve a multicolored effect.

Bead and silk embroidery evening bag for special evening.

Information please

This is the reader's column. If you have a question or a recipe to share with other readers, please write to: Information Please, Transcript Newspapers, 420 Washington St., Dedham, Mass. 02026

Question: My husband and I were shopping in Quincy center and had lunch in a new restaurant, the Blazing Salad — it was excellent. I ordered a dish called Fatush and loved it; do you suppose the restaurant would part with the recipe?

Mrs. H.S., Dedham

Answer: Vicky Thomas, owner of the Blazing Salad was complimented and very happy to share the Fatush recipe. "Actually," she said, "Fatush is a bread salad and I use the pouch-like bread, Sahara, for it." Here it is:

BLAZING SALAD'S FATUSH (BREAD SALAD)

4 medium tomatoes, cut in wedges
2 large green peppers, cut in strips
2 medium onions, chopped
10 stalks celery, diced
Dressing: ¼ cup Wesson oil
¼ cup lemon juice
Salt and pepper to taste
1 large cucumber, diced
5 sprigs parsley, chopped
4 rounds of Sahara bread
2 tablespoons dry mint, pulverized

Combine tomatoes, green peppers, onion, celery, cucumber, parsley and dried mint. Separate bread into 2 rounds and toast in oven until light golden (do not allow to burn); break bread into small pieces. Pour dressing over salad, mix well, add toasted bread; mix lightly and serve immediately. Serves 4.

Question: A neighbor of mine told me of a most interesting dish she used to make, particularly in the winter time. It's a rice and lamb all made in one pot and perhaps, if you know of such a recipe you would offer it. Thanks.

Mrs. K.C., W. Roxbury

Answer: I do hope this is similar to the dish you're looking for:

LAMB PILAF WITH VEGETABLES

4 tablespoons salad oil
1½ pounds boneless lean lamb, cut in 1-inch pieces
1 cup white rice
1 large onion, sliced
1 clove garlic, mashed
1½ cups chicken broth (may be home made, canned or made with bouillon cubes)
1 teaspoon ground cumin
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
2 zucchini squash, thinly sliced
1 can (1 lb.) tomatoes, drained and corsely chopped
¼ cup seedless raisins

Heat the oil in a large frying pan (one with a tight cover) using medium heat. Put in meat and cook until browned on all sides. Cover, reduce heat, and simmer until rice is tender, about 20 minutes, adding more broth or water, if needed. Arrange squash, tomatoes, and raisins over meat. Cover again and continue cooking for 10 minutes. Serves 5.

Recipes from our readers are always welcomed. We thank Mrs. Mildred Brown for her hearty old time chowder:

VEGETABLE CLAM CHOWDER

1 large potato, peeled and diced in ½ inch cubes
1 onion, chopped
2 stalks celery, finely chopped
2 carrots, finely chopped
¼ cup finely minced parsley
1 bay leaf
⅛ teaspoon EACH whole basil and pepper
1 can (10½ oz.) condensed chicken broth
1 cup water
1 teaspoon salt
1 can (1 lb.) tomatoes, pureed
2 tablespoons EACH butter and flour
2 cans (10 oz. ea.) whole baby clams

Combine potato, onion, celery, carrot, 2 tablespoons of the parsley, bay leaf, basil, pepper, chicken broth, water, salt and tomatoes. Cover and bring to a boil, simmering gently until vegetables are just tender, about 10 minutes. In a small pan, heat butter and blend in flour, stirring and cooking for 1 minute. Gradually stir in ½ cup of the liquid from the vegetables. Stir this sauce into the soup. Add clams and their liquid and bring just to a boil, stirring. Remove from heat and ladle chowder into serving dish. Sprinkle remaining parsley over all. Serves 6-8.

Question: I've found that flank steak goes a long way towards serving 4 people. I'm also a cook who doesn't like to linger in the kitchen and this cut of meat cooks quickly — do you have an interesting recipe other than just broiling it? Many thanks.

Mrs. S. J., Norwood

Answer: Any cook on the run will love this dish:

FLANK STEAK WITH MUSTARD SAUCE

2 large onions, chopped
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 pounds flank steak, sliced diagonally into ¼-inch thick strips
1 tablespoon flour
2 tablespoons vinegar
2 teaspoons dry mustard
1 teaspoon paprika
½ teaspoon thyme
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon cayenne
1 cup water

In a heavy skillet brown the onion in 2 tablespoons butter. Push to side of skillet. Dredge the steak slices with flour, add them to the pan, and brown quickly on both sides. Remove to a heated platter. To the same skillet add 2 tablespoons butter, stir in 1 tablespoon flour, and the remaining ingredients. Simmer for a few minutes and pour over the steak slices and serve immediately. Serves 4 (Serve with hot fluffy rice or buttered noodles.)

Food and fashion

by Ruth Lenson

Across the kitchen counter

Ruth Lenson

The frugal Pennsylvania Dutch and the thrifty Italian homemakers have one thing in common: noodles or pasta, depending on where you come from. To both cooks, they are the mainstay of many a meal since they have a wonderful way of making food go further.

Pasta is a general name used to describe macaroni, spaghetti and noodles of over 300 varieties and shapes. Macaroni is short and tubular, spaghetti is longer and rod-shaped, noodles are flat and usually formed into ribbons. If you look on your grocer's shelves you can find elbows, rods, shells, bows, stars, alphabets, spirals, curly ribbons, fine and wide noodles. Lasagne, one of the more popular pastas, looks like a noodle but is actually macaroni as it includes no egg. Noodles differ from macaroni and spaghetti in that they are made with eggs.

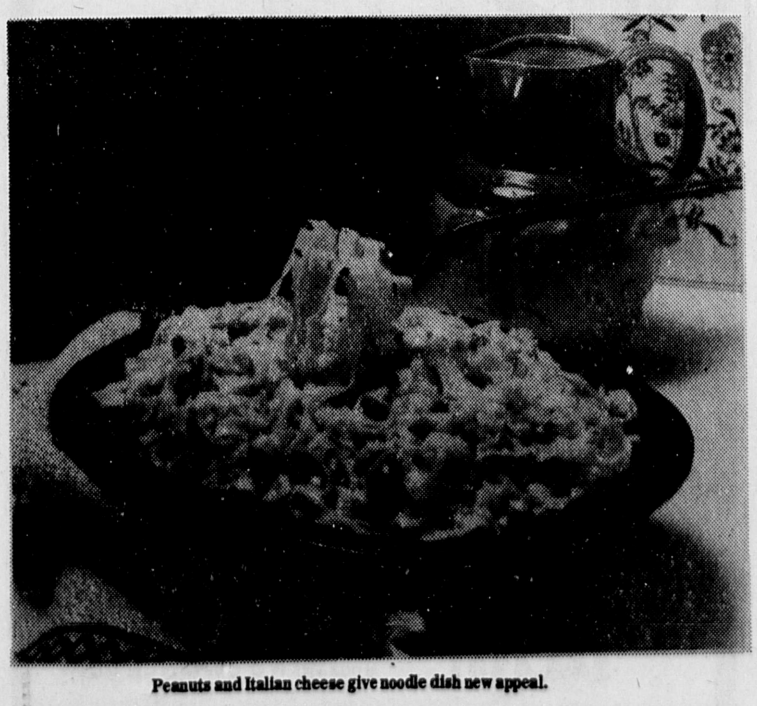
The secret in preparing pasta is to cook it until it is tender yet firm, not sticky. The less water you use, the more vitamins you save. Pasta is entirely bland so it needs the excitement of good spicing, ripe cheeses, olive oil and what have you to arouse the tastebuds.

You thought pastas were a no-no on a diet? Not so! Actually, according to the Durum Wheat Institute, pasta made from enriched durum wheats is ideal for calorie-controlled meals. Macaroni foods themselves are relatively low in calories—102 cal. per ounce for uncooked spaghetti and macaroni and 107 per ounce for uncooked noodles. And they combine readily with lean foods to stretch your calorie budget (and often the much-abused food budget too). Develop expertise with the many pastas available—pasta is a thrifty way to stretch meat, fish and poultry.

PASTA SNAX
(SNACKING THE INEXPENSIVE NUTRITIONAL WAY)

2 cups enriched noodle bows
2 cups enriched rotini
1 cup long macaroni, broken into 1½ inch pieces
Vegetable oil for deep fat frying
2 tablespoons seasoned salt
1 teaspoon onion salt
1 cup peanuts

Cook all pastas together in boiling, salted water (2 quarts water plus 1 tablespoon salt) until tender, yet firm about 10 minutes. Drain thoroughly on absorbent paper. Fry, a few at a time, in preheated 400 degree oil for 2 minutes, or until golden brown. Spread out on absorbent paper. Combine seasoned salt and onion salt. Sprinkle over warm pasta; mix in peanuts. Yields: 10 cups delicious pasta snax.



Peanuts and Italian cheese give noodle dish new appeal.

NOODLES WITH NUTS

1 pkg. (8 oz.) fettuccine egg noodles
1 cup ricotta or creamed cottage cheese
½ cup grated Parmesan cheese
½ cup finely chopped peanuts
½ cup milk, scalded
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper

Cook noodles according to package directions; drain. In large bowl, thoroughly blend cheeses, peanuts, milk, salt and pepper. Add noodles and toss lightly until noodles are coated. Makes 6-8 servings.

NOODLES FLORENTINE

2 pounds noodles, medium, cooked according to pkg. directions
½ cup olive oil
2 cloves garlic, finely chopped
½ cup freshly grated Gruyere cheese
Freshly ground black pepper
6 cups chopped, cooked spinach
2 teaspoons dried tarragon
2 tablespoons lemon juice
½ cup butter
Salt
Freshly grated Parmesan cheese
Buttered, toasted bread crumbs

Preheat broiler. Drain noodles and mix with olive oil, garlic, cheese and pepper to taste; drain spinach and to it add tarragon, lemon juice, butter and salt to taste. Make a bed of hot spinach in bottom of a lightly greased baking dish. Place noodles on top and sprinkle lightly with crumbs and cheese. Put under broiler for 5 minutes and serve at once. Serves 6.

ONE POT MACARONI AND BEEF

1½ pounds ground beef
1 medium onion, chopped
1 green pepper, chopped
2 cups uncooked elbow macaroni
2 cans (7½ oz.ea.) tomato sauce
1½ cups water
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce

Brown beef with onion and green pepper over medium heat in large skillet; pour off excess fat. Add uncooked macaroni and remaining ingredients; stir well. Cover; simmer for 25 minutes or until macaroni is tender. Stir occasionally adding more water if necessary. Serve immediately. Serves 4-6.

SOUR CREAM NOODLE BAKE

1 pkg. (8 oz.) medium egg noodles
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 pound ground chuck
1 can (8 oz.) tomato sauce
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon garlic salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 cup cottage cheese
1 cup sour cream
½ cup green onions, chopped
¾ coarsely shredded Cheddar cheese

Cook noodles according to package directions; rinse and drain. Melt butter in skillet; stir in chuck and cook until it loses its pink color. Add tomato sauce, salt, garlic salt and pepper. Cover and simmer 5 minutes. Fold together noodles, cottage cheese, sour cream and onions. Spoon half the mixture into bottom of 2½ quart casserole. Cover with half the meat mixture and repeat layers once again. Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese. Bake at 350 degrees for 35-40 minutes until cheese is melted.

DIETER'S CONFETTI MACARONI AND CORN

7 oz. elbow macaroni
1 cup thinly sliced carrots
2 cups (1 lb. can) cream style corn
¼ cup chopped parsley
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
½ teaspoon seasoned salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons enriched dry bread crumbs
1 teaspoon melted butter

Cook macaroni and carrots in boiling, salted water (2 qts plus 1 tbs. salt) for 4 minutes; drain. Neither will be tender. Meanwhile, combine corn, parsley, Worcestershire sauce, salt and pepper in large bowl. Mix in drained macaroni and carrots. Turn into greased 1½ qt. casserole. Combine bread crumbs and butter; sprinkle over top of casserole. Bake in preheated 350 degree oven 25-30 minutes or until bread crumbs are browned. Serves 8. 149 calories per serving.

NOODLE Tip: An 8 oz. pkg. of macaroni, noodles or spaghetti yields 4 to 5 cups when cooked. 1½ cups uncooked elbow macaroni yields 3 cups when cooked.

Children's Hospital receives gift from Noemi No. 11 women

A gift of $68,500 was presented by Noemi No. 11 to Dr. Melvin J. Glimcher, orthopaedic surgeon-in-chief of Children's Hospital Medical Center, for the Hospital's new Gait Analysis Laboratory.

Noemi No. 11, United Order True Sisters, is an organization of women devoted to philanthropy for crippled children. The group has worked for seven years to raise money for the laboratory.

The laboratory which is part of the Department of Orthopaedic Surgery, is the first of its kind in New England and one of only five in the United States. Its facilities are part of the new Rehabilitation Engineering Research Center, a joint program of Children's Hospital Medical Center, Harvard Medical School, and Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The broad aim of the program is the rehabilitation of children with a wide range of disabilities through the close collaboration of engineers, physicians, and other health professionals. Dr. William Berenberg, Senior Associate in Medicine at Children's, is director of the Harvard-M.I.T. Rehabilitation Engineering Research Center.

The Gait Analysis Laboratory, which will serve as a diagnostic referral center for children with disorders of walking, contains facilities for their complete biomechanical and electromyographic gait analysis. With the aid of computers, cameras, and sophisticated electronic equipment, physicians and engineers will analyze the electrical signals and function of muscles. Using the same theories and equipment, physicians will also apply their knowledge to analyses of upper extremeties.

"Once we discover how these muscles function in gait" said Dr. Glimcher, "then we can devise ways to enable many of these children to walk more normally and to feed and clothe themselves — a giant step forward in allowing them to become independent and self-reliant adults."

Dr. Glimcher is the Harriet M. Peabody Professor of Orthopaedic Surgery at Harvard and Orthopaedic surgeon-in-chief at Children's Hospital. Others associated with the Gait Analysis Laboratory are: Dr. John E. Hall, chief of clinical service of the Department of Orthopaedic Surgery at Children's; Dr. Sheldon Simon, assistant in orthopaedic surgery at Children's, and Dr. Carlo De Luca, research associate at Children's.

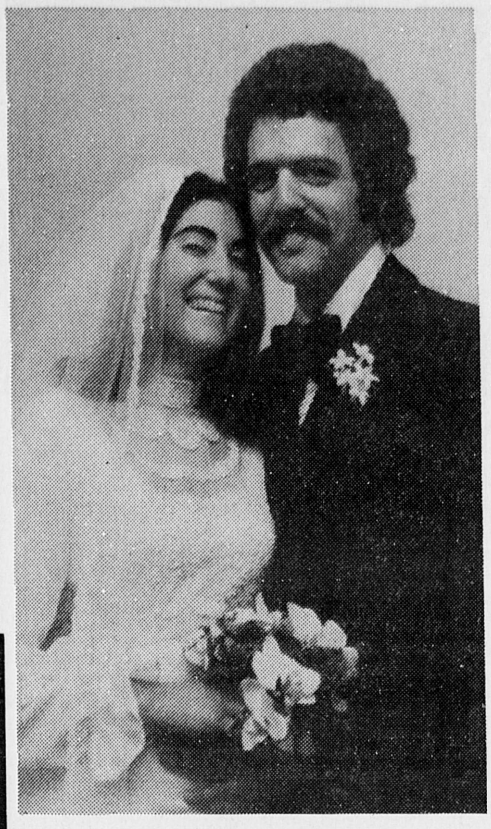
Goodwill will pick up at homes

The Morgan Memorial Goodwill Industries collection truck is in Newton on Wednesday of each week, and people wishing the truck to stop at their home should call Goodwill at 482-1894 for an appointment. During the winter months, Goodwill needs clothing, furniture, shoes, books, tools, small and large appliances in workable condition, toys, sporting goods, and all kinds of household goods, such as bric-a-brac, flatware and pictures. Material given to Goodwill is tax deductible at the donor's fair market value appraisal and is used in Goodwill's job counselling, evaluation, and training programs for handicapped and disadvantaged people. In 1974, 783 persons were helped.

Weddings

Mr. and Mrs. Mark L. Bell make Cambridge their home

Dr. and Mrs. Philip M. Kramer of Worcester have announced the recent marriage of their daughter, Barbara Marilyn, to Mark Lewis Bell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Aaron S. Bell of Newton Highlands. The couple were married at Temple Emanuel, Worcester.



Mr. and Mrs. Mark L. Bell

Mrs. Bell is the granddaughter of Louis Kramer of Swampscott. Mr. Bell is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Bell of Newton, Mrs. William Goldstein of Belmont and the late Max Götz of Holliston.

Linda Ellen Kramer was the maid of honor for her sister. Attendants were Mrs. Steven Gould, the bride's sister; Mrs. Nathaniel Pitnof and Miss Molly Bell, both sisters of the bridegroom.

Stanley Steinberg was best man. Joseph Bell was junior usher for his brother. The ushers were Nathaniel Pitof, Steven Gould and Charles Holtzman.

Mrs. Bell graduated from Classical High School and the University of Pittsburgh and has a masters degree in guidance. She is an elementary school teacher in the Concord Public School system.

Mr. Bell graduated from New Preparatory School and attended Babson and Wentworth Institute where he studied business and architecture. He is presently a sales representative for Charett Corporation in Cambridge.

After honeymooning in Puerto Rico, the couple have made their home in Cambridge.

Research honeymoon for the Elliot J. Feldman's

Lily E. Gardner, daughter of Thomas and Jean Gardner of London, England, was married to Elliot J. Feldman, son of Mrs. Sarley Feldman of Newton at the home of the groom's sister, Mrs. Herbert Heinstein.

Dr. Steven W. Silberblatt played a processional for the ceremony which was conducted by Rabbi Samuel Chiel and Cantor Gabriel Hochberg of Temple Emanuel, Newton.

In addition to the bride's parents and the groom's mother, other attendants were Dr. Peter L. Sheras, Robert L. Krulwich, T. David Brent, Mr. and Mrs. Heinstein and their sons, Jonathan, Robert and Steven.

Mrs. Feldman holds an M.A. in Contemporary European Studies from Reading University in England and is completing a doctorate in political science at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and is a research fellow of the DAAD in Bonn, West Germany.

Mr. Feldman is a graduate of the University of Chicago and M.I.T. He is an assistant professor of Political Science and European Studies at Johns Hopkins University's School of Advanced International Studies.

After research trips to London, Paris, Bonn, Milan, Rome and Israel, the couple will reside in Bologna' 8 Italy.

Couple write own ceremony; bride will retain own name

Jean Walker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. Lee Walker, was married recently to Dan Robinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey H. Robinson.

The bride will retain her own name. The couple were married in the chapel at the Wayside Inn, Sudbury by Rabbi Phillip Berkowitz. No rings were exchanged. The couple wrote their own wedding ceremony taking excerpts from The Prophet by Kalil Gibran and Come Sweet Death by B.D. Napier.

After the wedding ceremony, the couple were taken by surry to the 1800 ballroom at the Inn. There, a recorder ensemble played 18th century music.

Miss Walker wore a white dress and veil. The groom and other members of the wedding party also wore white. All the articles of clothing worn by the bride, groom and attendants were hand made.

Attending the couple were Lorilee Ann Walker, sister and the bride's sister; Judy Robinson, the groom's Beverly Barkalow. Susan Bruyn played the flute and Frank Walker sang Scarborough Fair accompanied by Amy Robinson guitar. on the

The couple plan to live in Marshfield.

Women's club program features opportunity for antique appraisal

The Newton Center Women's Club will provide members with an unusual opportunity to have one object of art from the period 1800 to 1900 appraised by expert Jack McHugh at their Feb. 11 meeting.

Mr. McHugh of the King Philip Antique Shop, Wrentham, has a reputation as an authority on the subject of American pottery and porcelain from 1800 to 1900.

Members will also meet Monday, Jan. 27 at 1 p.m. The Literature Committee will present a program at 1:30. Mrs. George S. Wattendorf, chairman, will discuss "The War Between the Tates" by Allison Lurie and "The Man from Greek and Roman" by Goldman.

On February 14 the club will have a gourmet Valentine luncheon catered for $3 per person. The hostesses will be Mrs. Ross L. Trenholm, Mrs. Anthony Leone and Mrs. Wendell R. Freeman. Reservations must be made by telephoning one of the three hostesses. Mrs. Rene J. Marcou is program chairman and Mrs. William Lane Bruce is president.

Bowen to hold a kid's concert

The Bowen Nursery School will sponsor a children's concert for pre-schoolers to sixth graders featuring Doug Lipman on Saturday, Feb. 8 at 10:30 a.m. in the school gymnasium. Admission is 50 cents.

Lipman, a teacher at the school, has given children's concerts at the Children's Museum and the New England Folk Festival. His experience has included teaching folk guitar and musical activities for children. During the concert there will be audience participation, singing and stories.

The nursery school is a non-profit parents' cooperative school housed in the elementary school which is on Cypress Street.

Auction at BSO party to feature novel items

The Boston Symphony Orchestra's 1975 Preview Party will be held in Symphony Hall, Wednesday, Feb. 12 from 5 to 7 p.m. The special event of the evening is a live auction beginning at 6 p.m. The premiums auctioned at the party are only available as preview party exclusives.

Among those items will be a secion of the cast iron stair railing of Symphony Hall which is being removed to accomodate a new elevator. The initials on the medallion are BMH, for Boston Music Hall, the original name of Symphony Hall.

One of a kind "outings" are offered by members of the symphony family including a day of white water canoeing in New Hampshire in the spring and a day cruise out of Falmouth on a 38 foot Hattaras cabin cruiser (lunch provided.)

Also to be auctioned will be a three day visit for a family at a summer country home in northern Ontario, dinner for two hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas D. Perry, Jr., the orchestra's executive director, with guest, Seiji Ozawa, music director.

If tennis is your bag, you can choose between a doubles match with the New England Patriot's Jim Plunkett and Randy Vataha, or Talcott M. Banks, BSO trustees president and his partner, John L. Thorndike, BSO treasurer.

All events will be arranged at mutually convenient times for the activities involved.

Guests of honor are Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Fiedler and Mr. and Mrs. Edo deWaart from the Netherlands.

Wine and cheese will be served along with an a la carte bar. Party chairwoman is Mrs. Malcolm MacDougall. Chairwomen of the 1975 musical marathon is Mrs. Thomas Gardiner and co-chairwoman is Mrs. A. Lloyd Russell of Chestnut Hill.

Members of the council of friends from Newton who are assisting at the Preview Party are Mrs. Robert M.P. Kennard, Mrs. Samuel A. Levine, Mrs. W. Lloyd Allen, Mrs. Victor D. 50th Anniversary party for the John Mitchells

Clara and John Mitchell of 192 Adams Ave., West Newton, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary recently. An open house reception was hosted by their four children at the home of their daughter, Carolyn Burke of West Newton. The Mitchells also have three sons, John, Jr., Edward and Stephen.

Eleven grandchildren were at the party along with over 100 relatives and friends. Among the many congratulatory messages was a telegram from Senator Edward Kennedy.

Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell were married at St. Mary's in Waltham. Mrs. Mitchell was one of the original woman traffic supervisors and served for 25 years aa a as a member of the Newton Police Department. Mr. Mitchell was retired last year as an employe of the city of Newton.

Davis PTA sets nostalgia night

The Davis School P.T.A. in West Newton is planning a Nostalgia Night with Alan Dary, at the Nonantum Post No. 440, 295 California St., Newton, on Friday, Feb. 21 at 8 p.m.

Dress up if you like in the era of the 50's and have a wonderful time listening and dancing to the music of days gone by.

Door prizes and a fund raising raffle will be held in conjunction with the dance.

This affair is not restricted to Davis School parents; all friends and neighbors are invited. Tables of 10 can be reserved.

Nostalgia Night tickets at a cost of $2.50 per person or $5.00 a couple may be obtained by calling Mrs. Marvin Cruse at 965-4493.

Aid for cancer research

The Aid for Cancer Research group has awarded Dr. Susan Pitman the Sidney Farber Fellowship for $28,000. Dr. Pitman is involved in the clinical research on new anti-cancer agents.

Taking part in the presentation were Dr. Emil Frei, III, director of the Sidney Farber Cancer Center; Mrs. Les Sontag, chairman of the presentation committee and Mrs. Murray Shlager, president of the group.

Police wives re-establish association

The Newton Police Wive's Association, inactive for many years, has been re-established. Although the admission of women onto the police force was the knotty point which galvanized the women into unity, Gayle Salemme, newly elected secretary explained that "policeman's wives have a totally different life from other women."

Mrs. Salemme said the association would give other wives the opportunity to "share experiences." She noted that the impact of a policeman's hours was one example of a problem the wives could face together.

"What these hours do to a family and the fact that some people have difficulty adjusting" Mrs. Salemme felt was one area in which the association could be a positive factor.

Another outgrowth of the association's formation was that members might become active in community projects. The women were investigating providing assistance to needy families, setting up a baby-sitting co-op and sponsoring holiday parties and picnics for members and children.

Over 40 women attended the first meeting at which officers were elected. Those elected were Nikki Likely, president; Rose Bellevue, vice president; Gayle Salemme, secretary and Debbie Nacnair, treasurer.

Professor to be guest at Temple Shalom

Dr. Harrell F. Beck, professor of Old Testament at Boston University School of Theology, will join Rabbi Murray I. Rothman in a pulpit conversation in the sanctuary of Temple Shalom of Newton Friday, Feb. 14, at 8:15 p.m.

The theme of their conversation will be "Justice and Love in Judaism and Christianity."

Students of the Boston University School of Theology will be special guests at the Sabbath Services and at the reception which will follow in Temple Shalom's social hall.

Temple Shalom of Newton is located at 175 Temple Street in West Newton. The community is invited to attend.

Boston Symphony Orchestra musical marathon Mar. 6-9

One of Boston's most eagerly awaited musical events, the Musical Marathon to benefit the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Inc., is scheduled to take place this year beginning Thursday, March 6, through Sunday, March 9 on WCRB (1330 AM-FM 102.5) in Waltham. An all-time high goal has been set at $100,000.

Beginning at 7 p.m., Thursday, March 6, listeners will have the opportunity of selecting unreleased, taped live performances by the Boston Symphony and Boston Pops to be broadcast for two weeks on WCRB, 24-hours-a-day. Over 2,500 performances are available dating back to 1943 and performances by Serge Koussevitzky. Also included in the Musical Marathon catalogue are over 300 performances by the Boston Pops conducted by Arthur Fiedler.

Special premiums will again be offered to donors to the Marathon. Returning are the popular canvas tote bags (over 600 were requested last year raising over $15,000), and neckties, as well as canvas carry-alls and specially designed Boston Symphony Orchestra gift-wrap paper, all with the Boston Symphony-Musical Marathon design by Marblehead Handprints.

The Orchestra's recording company, Deutsche Grammophon of Hamburg, Germany has produced a limited edition collector's item recording entitled "An Anthology of Boston Symphony Orchestra Music Directors" — historic performances performed by the BSO under the baton of its Music Directors since 1917 and Karl Muck. This will be available only through the Musical Marathon.

In addition, there are athletic events, music lessons and recitals offered by members of the Orchestra. There are performances available by Joseph Silverstein, the Orchestra's Concertmaster, to benefit your favorite charity, as well as concerts by the Boston Symphony Chamber Players String Trio, the Tanglewood Festival Chorus, and "Wuz", the first jazz ensemble from the Boston Symphony.

For those who like to travel, there is a trip to Bermuda or a tour of the Berkshires in BSO Executive Director Thomas D. Perry Jr.'s 1936 classic Ford or in harpist Ann Hobson's 1951 MG classic. John Salkowski, a BSO bass player will again offer his cruise of the Boston Harbor, this year to be accompanied by noted author Edward Rowe Snow.

During the next month, over 500 volunteers from the Council of Friends of the BSO will assist the Musical Marathon Committee (under the direction of Mrs. Thomas Gardiner of Manchester, Massachusetts) by addressing over 65,000 Musical Marathon catalogues and Preview Party invitations to be mailed, as well as organize the distribution of the catalogue and poster throughout the greater Boston area. Several hundred additional volunteers will be on hand at WCRB to take telephone pledges and process the mountain of paperwork resulting from an anticipated 3,000 plus pledges to the Orchestra.

The special Musical Marathon telephone number, (617) 891-1234 is now in service. Requests for the catalogue to be sent by mail should be made by calling the special number and leave the name and address of the recipient.

The official "kick-off" of this year's Marathon takes place Wednesday, Feb. 12 with the Preview Party in Symphony Hall (5 to 7 p.m.). A wine and cheese tasting format is planned, and BSO Overseer Chairman Vernon Alden and Trustee Philip K. Allen will be auctioneers raising high bids for special premiums available only at the Preview Party.

Musical entertainment at the Preview Party will be by the "Wuz" - a jazz ensemble of members of the Orchestra.

Additional information about the Preview Party may be obtained from the Marathon Office, tel. 266-1492 Ext. 148.

Come let us reason together

By DR. WILLIAM KNOX

"THE MARRIAGE CEREMONY"

The traditional marriage ceremony in all denominations is the process of change, the music is changing...both instruments and selection. The ritual is changing. The clergyman usually knows not to ask the woman if she will "obey" this man. That went out three decades ago. Now many young people are writing their own vows and selecting their own great prose and poetry. The beauty and pagantry and festivities continue in 95 per cent of the wedding which are held in churches.

I'm not sure that what happens at the wedding ceremony is very convincing to anyone anyway. The commitment must be more than what is made in the ceremony or it won't bring happiness.

For one thing it takes time for two people to talk through . . . and live through their ideas so that they can reach agreements on the basic concepts necessary for the marriage relationship. If all a woman wants is a roof over her head . . . and in exchange she's willing to "love and obey this man whose right hand you now hold". . . well O.K. But that's not what most people want in a marriage. Consider the following which might be agreed upon before wedding day and written into their hearts . . . and perhaps into the ceremony.

"We agree to talk with each other." That may sound too simple. . but when I see so many marriages breaking up because one or the other won't talk, I'm led to believe that it's vitally important that there be mutual agreement for communication.

Talk about feelings. . . about events. . . about plans. . . the future. . . the children. . . the hurts and troubles of life . . . an open sharing of thoughts to the point of reaching agreements.

We agree not to interfere with the personal life of each other." That means no restraints by one partner over the other. In true love each wants only what will be fulfilling to the other. . . and finds joy in enhancing that growth. But this commitment means that there's to be no twisting of the other to make "you the way I want you."

"We agree on a sexuality which shows respect for each other. . . affection and sexual fulfillment." There's a total sexuality of the relationship between a man and a woman which includes touching. . . indications of affection. . . the wink across the room. . . the unexpected phone call. . . the greeting card other than special days. . . and when these kinds of events are taking place the two persons are better prepared for making love in bed. There the relationship should be free and open . . . without inhibitions . . . without holding back . . . and with enlightened variety.

"We agree on a continued companionship." The sad faces of husbands and wives sitting out there in restaurants. . . not talking. . . or limited conversation is in sharp contract to some dating couples whose evening out is filled with fun. When the fun has gone out of the marriage, the marriage has become a drag to both persons.

The marriage ceremony, no matter how beautiful the organ or guitar. . . the voice of the clergyman's ritual or your own. . . won't change either of you as persons.

ASTROLOGY

By Oscar Weber

LIBERAL ATTITUDES

Q. Your column is very interesting as I am interested in Astrology and would appreciate your opinion of my character and horoscope. My birthdate is May 2, 1935. I was born in Lawrence, Mass. time unknown.

I have been told that I have a good insight of other people's character but I don't seem to be able to read myself as well as others.—Mary

A. Since as little as two minutes in the time of day of birth can make a significant difference in the calculation of the Ascendent and HOuse position of the planets in a horoscope, yours cannot be calculated. However, by considering the position of the various planets in the Signs of the Zodiac and the angular distances between them called the aspects, some characteristics may be judged in a general way.

From such it appears that you can be quite determined, are ready, willing and able to assume responsibilities and you do have a fine insight not only into other peoples character but also into all manner of things except yourself. Most folks find it difficult to be objective where their own feelings and personal matters are involved.

While you do have a good sense of the material value of things you are inclined at times to be liberal in your expentitures of not only money but also with your affections.

Rich, fatty foods and excess of all kinds should be avoided or you may ruin your digestion. Have your physician prescribe a diet for you and stick to it.

You are intuitive, have a fine imagination and like to satisfy your intellectual curiosity. Be discriminating in choosing your friends and acquaintances or you may attract some - who will make trouble for you.

For questions to be answered through this column, mail the year, month, day of the month, city of birth, time of day if known and questions to Ask Oscar, Box 114, Canton, Mass. 02021. Please sign your name which will not be published. Selected questions can only be answered in this column.

College hoop roundup

An epidemic of "Upsetitis," that hit several high-ranking college basketball teams over the weekend and shook up the top ten, nearly claimed another victim Monday night when Illinois came out with an aggressive first half against top-ranked Indiana. But then there was the second half.

"We were struggling," said Indiana Coach Bobby Knight following a nervous 73-57 victory — the Hoosiers' 22 straight regular season win. "They played a real aggressive zone and we couldn't establish any kind of rhythm. Most teams that have zoned up have had to abandon it early."

Illinois showed Indiana a 2-3 zone and in the first half the score was tied seven times as the Illini shot a superb 65 per cent from the field and Tom Carmichael grabbed 11 rebounds.

But it's tough to keep up an effort like that very long and Indiana, which led only 36-34 at the half after Quinn Buckner hit a shot at the buzzer, waited for the Illini to cool off a bit. The Hoosiers came out with tight pressing defense in the second half and slowly stretched their lead to nine points. Then Illinois' hopes came crashing down when Carmichael fouled out.

Buckner had six steals along with his 17 points for Indiana. Scott May, who fouled out with about seven minutes to play, held Rick Schmidt to 10 points and led the Hoosiers with 19 points. Nate Williams led Illinois with 17 points.

Elsewhere, second-ranked North Carolina State whipped Duke, 95-71, sixth-ranked Alabama beat Florida, 73-67, seventhranked Kentucky edged Vanderbilt, 91-90, Michigan State clipped Northwestern, 54-50, Houston dumped Stanford, 74-68, Ohio State defeated Purdue, 93-87, Michigan nipped Wisconsin, 75-73 in overtime, Tennessee ripped Louisiana State, 99-79, Auburn edged Georgia, 65-64, Furman whipped Davidson, 99-76, Canisius tripped Buffalo State, 100-99 in overtime, Niagara beat Jacksonville, 78-76 in overtime, Oregon romped over Air Force, 77-47, and New Mexico State beat Tulsa, 76-64.

With All-America David Thompson hitting 22 points and freshman Kenny Carr notching 21, North Carolina State easily beat Duke to gain a share of the lead in the Atlantic Coast Conference standings.

Duke was paced by Bob Fleischer's 19 points.

Thompson scored 15 of his 22 points in the second half as the Wolfpack padded a 49-37 intermission edge. Carr's 21 points matched his career high. Other Wolfpack players in double figures included Moe Rivers with 20, Monte Towe with 16 and Phil Spence with 10.

Maine's Warner still best hoop scorer

BOSTON (UPI) — Maine keeps losing but Black Bear center Bob Warner is proving to be a consistent winner.

The 6-6 junior from Saco, Maine leads the Yankee Conference in scoring and rebounding and is second in field goal percentage, according to weekly statistics released Monday. Warner tops New England major college scorers with a 20.5-point average and is in the top five nationally with a 14.5 rebounding average.

He also is shooting at a .561 clip from the floor, second to teammate Steve Condon's .566 percentage.

Kevin Kelly, who did not have a free throw attempt last week, leads the foul shooters with an .870 mark.

Kerry Walker of Boston University is second in scoring with an 18.9 average while John Murphy of Massachusetts is third with 18.8 points per game.

John Thomas of Connecticut is the conference's second leading rebounder with 10.4 caroms a game and Murphy is third at 9.4.

Ron Gottschalk of Vermont is the third best field goal shooter with a .541 average. Lee Wilson of Connecticut is second in free throw percentage with an .861 accuracy and Jim Burke of Massachusetts is third at .846.

Cutting the fat from your food bill with milk

Milk is a big part of almost everybody's food budget. Not only do children need a lot of it for growth, grown-ups need it too for body maintenance. It's our main source of calcium and rich in protein and riboflavin.

But the more you know about butterfat, the more "fat" you might be able to trim from your food bill each week. Because we offer you a wide selection of butterfat contents in the milk we sell - all at different prices.

The average milk-drinking family can actually save up to a dollar or two a week by determining which butterfat content is right for their needs.

Here are some guidelines for milk that may help you weigh one value against the other.

1. Whole milk. It has approximately 3.25% butterfat present, evenly dispersed through the milk by the process of homogenization. And all the whole milk we sell is fortified with Vitamin D. You get about 160 calories per 8-ounce glass.

2. Skim milk. It has all the nutrients of whole milk except for fat, which is cut to a maximum of o.5%. An 8 ounce glass contains 90 calories.

3. 1% milk. Our own Look-Fit brand fortified with Vitamin A & D. 114 calories per 8 ounce glass.

4. 2% milk. When fresh whole milk and skimmed milk are mixed together you get 2% butterfat content. Like whole milk, it is also fortified with Vitamin D.

5. Instant Nonfat Dry Milk. Using nonfat dry milk offers the greatest possibility for saving money. All the protein, minerals, and most of the vitamins of the fluid milk are retained, and it is fortified with vitamins A & D. It has the advantages of needing no refrigeration in dry form, of easy storage and of mixing and measuring easily. When reconstituted, it has 0.1% butterfat and contains 90 calories per 8-ounce glass.

Basketball player of the week

CENTERVILLE, Mass. (UPI) — Guard Pat Tallent, who scored 89 points in the last three George Washington University wins, has been named ECAC player of the week.

The 6-2 junior, brother of first year GWU Coach Bob Tallent, had 30 of his points in an upset win over West Virginia, the team's first at West Virginia in 17 years.

Carl Winfree, who had 28 points and eight assists along with 11 rebounds in Sacred Heart's win over previously undefeated Bentley, was selected as the top weekly Division II player. The sophomore guard added 20 points in just 27 minut.y wplay in an easy win over Trenton State.

Colby center Brad Moore capped a record breaking week by taking the ECAC Division III honors. The 6-5 senior center from Hallowell, Maine, had 92 points and 49 rebounds in three Mule wins to make him Colby's all time scoring and rebound leader. Moore had 40 points and 23 rebounds in a rout of Tufts.

Hawaiian golf draws top stars

HONOLULU (UPI) — America's top golfers fled to the surf and sun today, hoping their swings will lead them to victory in the $220,000 Hawaiian Open.

The prestigious tournament, celebrating its tenth anniversary, opens with a pro-am round Wednesday. The 72-hole showdown begins Thursday.

The last two days of the tourney will be televised live to fans on the chillier continental United States, who will see the flowers and palm trees at the seaside Waialae Golf Course.

The tenth anniversary tournament will be played at the par-72, 7,154-yard course at the base of Hawaii's most famous landmark, Diamond Head.

Defending champion Jack Nicklaus, who led all four rounds last year, will be trying to repeat his performance. But he'll be battling against the tournament's history.

In its ten years, no golfer has managed to defend his previous Hawaiian Open victory successfully.

Among the early arrivals were Arnold Palmer, Lee Trevino, Art Wall, J. C. Snead and Chi Chi Rodriguez.

The golfers reported the course was in fine shape, and said they looked forward to playing.

Tufts senior wins NE Unsung award

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI) — Tufts senior Brian Suslak, who overcame osteomyelitis to play football last season, has received the 26th annual Tobacco Table award as New England's unsung hero.

The 6-3, 235-pound defensive tackle from Rye, N.Y., missed his entire junior season after undergoing surgery to correct the bone disease that weakened his lower leg. He played four games last season despite an unrelated knee injury, closing his college career with a fumble recovery that led to Tuft's winning touchdown against Rochester.

Suslak, 21, said he was "unaware a bone infection could be so unexpectedly rewarding."

Several hundred persons turned out Monday night to honor Suslak for his courageous comeback.

Suslak said he played football last season, despite the danger of a permanently crippling injury, "because I had to prove to myself that I could do whatever I wanted to do. I never thought about the possibility of injury while I was playing."

BOUT SCHEDULED

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Plans for a 12-round bout between former world heavyweight champion Joe Frazier and Jimmy Ellis scheduled for March 2 in Melbourne, Australia were formally announced here Monday.

The announcement also said negotiations were "in the process" for heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali to defend his crown against the winner, also in Australia.

Frazier, 31, will receive a guarantee of $250,000, and the 35-year-old Ellis, former WBA heavyweight champion, will get $75,000.

ABA transfers Pacers ownership

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — The American Basketball Association has dealt with one of its faltering franchises by approving its sale and may deal with another by moving it.

At their annual midseason meeting, ABA owners Monday transferred the ownership of the Indiana Pacers and Commissioner Tedd Munchack said he will personally run a franchise to be established in Cincinnati next season

Munchack said, however, the ABA will operate only 10 teams next season, leaving the impression perhaps either Memphis or San Diego —two of the other league sore spots —will be moved.

Indiana ownership was switched from the Indiana Pro Sports, Inc., to a six-member group owned by Tom Benford Terms of the transfer were not announced.

The Pacers, once a shining example of what the ABA hoped to be, is one of two clubs currently receiving league money to keep operating. Memphis is also a recipient of league funds while San Diego has been drawing only half the number of fans its management says it needs to break even.

San Diego owner Dr. Leonard Bloom said he will ask the league for permission to sell stock in his club.

Munchack said he will not serve past this season as ABA commissioner. The search for his successor is one of the orders of business left for the ABA owners, something they are not expected to complete before the end of today's final session.

Also on today's agenda will be further discussions on the possibility of a national television contract.

In other action Monday, league owners awarded the 1976 All-Star game to Denver and said the contest will be played on a weekend instead of in the middle of the week as has become the custom.

Newton basketball . . .

South beats Bedford; Brookline tops North

NEWTON — It was a so-so week for basketball in Newton last week. Newton South was victorious in Dual County League action, topping Bedford 63-43 with an awesome offensive attack. Newton North was on the short end of a 67 -52 decision against Brookline in the Suburban League Friday.

Mark Aronson was the big news for Newton South Friday as he hit for 15 points in the win over Bedford. Fourteen of his points came on shots from the floor. Matt Sabetti added 15 points for South, also, with an amazing nine coming from the free throw line. Other high scorers for South were Chandler Bosworth (13 points) and Bob Harris (11 points).

South took the lead in the first quarter and was never headed as they combined strong offensive scoring with a tough defensive effort. They grabbed a 15-10 lead at the end of the first quarter and stretched the lead to nine points by halftime.

The final half was all Newton as the aggressive defense held Bedford to 14 points in the third quarter and only nine in the fourth. South was aided immensely by recurrent Bedford fouls. The Lions managed to hit on 19 free throws while Bedford got only 9; shots from the charity stripe alone provided South with half the margin of victory.

Newton North did not fare quite as well Friday evening as they bowed to Brookline 67-52. Steve Grant had a big night offensively for the Tigers, hitting for 24 points. He was followed by pivotman John Williams, who hit for 14. Mark Young, coming off a big 35 point performance against Rindge Tech, provided almost all the offense for Brookline as he hit from all over the court, finishing the game with 36 points in a fine evening's work.

North clung to a slim lead in the first quarter, winding up with an 18-13 advantage, but Young and his teammates went to work in the second period, hitting 19 points and holding the Tigers to only eight. They dominated play again in the third quarter, outscoring Newton 19 to 11, and then managed to stay even in the fourth quarter to preserve the victory.

Newton sextets up and down

Lions upset Bedford in shocker

By MARK COOPER
Sports Correspondent

In a season filled with "ups" and "downs" (mostly downs), the last four games for the Newton South hockey team have represented the ultimate in both extremes. Three clobberings administered by Concord-Carlisle, Lincoln-Sudbury and Acton-Boxboro were sandwiched around a sole victory, a stunning upset by the Lions over league leader, Bedford High School.

The encounter versus Concord was never a contest, as for the zillionth time this season, the Lions' opposition opened the scoring. Tim Moreau, tallied for Concord at 3:52 and two more scores at the six and eight minute marks of the period hiked the lead to 3-0.

Despite this deficit the Lions refused to quit, and their hustle paid off as South got on the scoreboard at 1:15 of the middle stanza. Dave Peneilla notched the goal from the slot on a good wrist shot. Yet individual mistakes led to three consecutive Concord scores and as the second period ended the Patriots had an insurmountable 7-1.

Concord upped its lead to 8-1 as the final period commenced, before South answered with a Donny Ferrai goal on a nice setup by Glenn MacKenzie. Concord closed out the scoring with two insurance tallies and the final results was a 10-2 Patriot massacre.

Bedford Upset

Before South's next tilt versus powerful Bedford, Coach Neil Mcphee called an unusual team meeting that evidently had some effect on the improved play of his team.

With morale low, dissension high, and South needing a victory to snap out of a prolonged losing streak, the Lions took to the ice and skated and hit as they hadn't all season long. From the opening faceoff until the last second of the game, South outfought, and outhustled its overconfident foe.

Although South pressured Bedford early in the game, the Pioneers scored on their first shot of the game. Third line right wing Tim Lane trickled a shot off the goal post and behind a surprised David Satter.

Now came the critical point in the game. Would the Lions slowly fall behind and out of contention? Or would they hang tough and battle for the tying goal?

The latter was the answer as South continued its excellent offensive and defensive play throughout the remainder of the first and second periods.

Forward Glenn Mackenzie was especially tough as he made his presence felt with many bone-bruising checks.

It was essential that South score the next goal of the game and the Lions did just that at 1:32 of the final stanza, as Mark Cooper tallied on a slapshot from the blueline.

At exactly the four minute mark of the period, Charles Gennetti took a faceoff in the Newton end, faked goalie Satter completely out of position, and then beat the Lion netminder cleanly. Bedford led 2-1, and again everyone waited for the South collapse, until Danny Ferrari rapped home a rebound of a Cooper shot to tie the score once again. This goal set the stage for the winner only 36 seconds later as Brian Cain tipped in a Cooper shot giving South their final margin of 3-2.

Afterwards in a delirious Lion locker room, Mcphee called thw win the best one his team had had in three years. Incidentally, it was the Lions' first win in exactly three years against a team with a .500 record or better.

Versus Lincoln-Sudbury, a team Newton has never fared well against, the Lions played well for one period and then saw their efforts cave in as Sudbury blasted home four second period goals.

With the score 1-1 after a period, thanks in large measure to Kenny Schmidlein's goal near the end of the period, South was looking for their second upset in as many outings. Goalie Satter, peppered from all angles, yielded all nine goals in the Lincoln rout.

One of the most encouraging aspects of the contest from a Lion standpoint was the offensive production os forwards Jan Waalewyn, Glenn Mackenzie, Jimmy Hart and Kenny Schmidlein. Each accounted for a goal in the Lions' biggest offensive explosion in two years. Yet the final score of 9-4 shows that good defensive is essential to winning hockey and the Lions certainly lacked that quality in their second straight loss this season to Lincoln-Sudbury.

Acton on Top

In the Lions' final game to date, South took on the defending state champions Acton-Boxboro Colonials. The final score of 10-2 in favor of Acton was indicative of how thoroughly South was outplayed during this contest.

After only seven minutes of the first period the Lions were down 2-0. South once again refused to quit and sophomore center Howie Cooper sent Glenn Mackenzie in alone on the Acton goalie, and Mackenzie drove a blistering slapshot into the Acton cage, and for the moment at least, the Lions were in the ball game.

With the score 2-1 in favor of Acton midway through the second period, the Colonials went on the powerplay and beat Satter on a slapshot from the point. In the next five minutes the defending state champs pumped four more goals past a bewildered Satter, and hio replacement Bobby Driscoll. Driscoll played admirably in relief of Satter, yet even his heroics were not enough to staveoff the aggressive Acton team.

Midway through the third period the score was 10-1 Acton, and only a late tally by Mark Cooper made the final score 10-2. The three losses in four games dropped the Lion slate to 3-9-0 and severely damaged their chances for a .500 season.

South's next games are versus Weston High School, Monday night, and Westwood High Friday night at Natick's West Suburban Arena.

All are invited to attend.

Weymouth teams top Tiger six

By RON MacLEAN
Sports Correspondent

NEWTON—A disallowed goal and a score of arguable Newton penalties hampered the Tigers, as they were defeated 5-2 by Weymouth South on Wednesday and lost by the same score to Weymouth North on Saturday.

Weymouth North scored first when Rich Castagnazzi knocked home a Dan Walker rebound at 5:32 of the first period. The Maroon moved out to a 3-0 lead by the end of the first period on goals by Ray Weeks and Barry Keefe.

Weymouth drew first blood in the second period, also, as Mark Haley scored at 4:03 on a wrist shot from 10 feet. Tiger Dave Solomon got one back when he flew down the right wing and shot one past Weymouth goalie Mark Holden. Assists on the play went to John Carey and Bon Karem. Karem scored Newton's second goal at 11:08 when he went in alone on Holden to shoot it in. Weeks ended the scoring for Weymouth in the third period.

Tiger goalie Ken Hagerstrom handled 35 shots, while Holden was shot at 38 times. Newton was enraged several times on penalty calls, as whenever there was a conflict the Newton player was sentenced to a minute and a half.

WEYMOUTH SOUTH 5
NEWTON NORTH 2

A third period goal by Weymouth sophomore Steve Salvucci insured the Weymouth victory after a controversial disallowed goal had taken the strength from a Newton comeback last Wednesday.

The disputed goal came early in the third period with the score 4-2, when junior Joe Doyle took a pass from Walter Olsick and apparently kicked the puck to his stick and put it in behind goalie Jeff McCue.

The official behind the net seemingly had the better position and ruled it a goal, but the trailing official, at the blue line, overruled and said that Doyle kicked it in. So, instead of narrowing the margin to one goal, the Tigers were down by two and couldn't get moving again.

Weymouth opened the scoring as Mark Hamilton scored the only first period goal at 9:22 on a shot from 10 feet out. Bob MacQueen scored the second goal at 6:39 of the second period but Newton got it back one minute later when center Steve Marchessault scored from 5 feet, slipping one by McCue on a Doug Jessup pass. Bill Egan also collected an assist on the play. Weymouth apparently put the game away 4-1 on goals by Concanon and Reardon, but Walter Olsick scored with four seconds left in the second stanza, from Gus Quaranto, and Doyle's goal at the start of the third period could have given the Tigers the momentum to pull it out.

The loss was a disappointing one, as the Tigers felt that they should have beaten Weymouth the first time the teams met. Tiger goalie Joe Steele handled 30 shots while McCue saw 24 come at him.

The second period has been a tough one this year for the Tigers, as they have given up 4 goals to Weymouth South, 6 to Brockton, 5 to Weymouth North in their first meeting, and three clinching goals to Quincy, thus putting them out of reach.

The two games brought Newton's record to 2-7-1, with games coming Wednesday at Cambridge Latin, and Saturday at Brookline. Saturday's game has a 5 o'clock starting time.

Record does not tell the whole story about North swim team

By RICK GORDON
Sports Correspondent

Although it is common practice to measure a team's success by its won-loss record, in the case of the Newton North swim team their 2-3 mark tells very little.

The Tiger swimmers hit the coveted 100 point mark last week for the first time in their brief two year existence. The exact count read 101-64, a surprisingly lopsided victory over arch-rival Brookline.

The undermanned Brookline squad was never in this one as Newton jumped to a quick 12-2 lead in the medley relay, never to be caught. Newton coach Benn Merritt was permitted the luxury of pulling some of his regular starters and giving valuable meet competition to some less experienced swimmers down the stretch.

The winning relay team consisted of Steve Breithkruez, Bill Zani, John Wish, and Mark Fallon.

The 200 freestyle was one of three events Newton failed to win against Brookline; Dave Bagley finished second in that one.

Charlie Wu won the individual medley for the first time this season, further stretching Newton's lead to 15

Scott Pohlman, who heads the list of Newton freestyle sprinters, captured another first, in the 50, just ahead of Ed Devine and John Volante in second and third.

With Ken Freedberg sitting the meet out Newton only entered one diver, but true to form Bob Bontempo took first for the Tigers by a wide 40 point margin.

John Wish and Robert Hershfield finished one-two in the butterfly and Newton's lead hit 59-29.

Sophomore Doug Jassett, swimming his first 100 freestyle of the year, outswam teammate Bruce Miller for another Newton victory.

In the 500 freestyle, the only Brookline dominated event of the day, Marty Waters' third was the best Newton could manage.

Theo Nelson and Jerry Kenslea triumphed in the final two individual events, Nelson in the backstroke and Kenslea in the breaststroke.

Brookline was able to salvage a win in the freestyle relay but it was little consolation for the day's drubbing. Mike Nolan, Bagley, Miller and Fallon wound up second in that race.

The Brookline team will be here again tomorrow to participate along with six other teams in the Suburban League meet. Brockton, who crushed Newton earlier in the year, appears to be the strongest team. Newton should have swimmers placing high, however, with Waltham probably offering the second best challenge.

Newton swam against Waltham two meets ago. The Tigers lost that one by four points.

In the record book it was just another loss, however, beneath the surface the 43-39 defeat meant more. It marked the second time in as many years the Tigers had lost "heart-breakers" to the Waltham team.

For the record, Newton started off quickly with a first place in the medley relay. A disqualification cost them a second as well and that was the difference right there. The winning Newton relay team was Breithkruez, Zani, Wish, and Devine.

Steve Schaefer, the team's premier distance man earned a runner-up spot in the 200 yard freestyle. Bagley became Newton's second entry of the day to be disqualified, in that event. Schaefer later took another second, that one in the 500 yard freestyle.

John Wish, Newton's top statistical performer of the day, finished second ahead of Charlie Wu in the individual medley and copped a first in the butterfly ahead of teammate Robert Hershfield.

Scott Pohlman, who also continued to impress, captured a pair of seconds in the 50 and 100 yard freestyles.

Newton's best finisher in the diving was Bontempo in third. The only other Tiger to win was Zani, his victory coming in the breaststroke. Breithkruez took a second to lead Newton in the backstroke.

After 10 events Newton trailed by only two at 37-35. With victory riding on the freestyle relay the confident Waltham swimmers outdistanced Newton to secure victory.

It has to be discouraging to lose meets on such things as false starts, but with the talent and depth displayed in the Brookline meet Newton can expect an encouraging showing in tomorrow's league encounter and bright things in the future.

Forbes, Catfish have much in common

It is time ladies and gentlemen, for our bi-weekly riddle. What do Catfish Hunter and Dave Forbes have in common? No, it is not that one man's last name describes the other man's personality. No, it is not that each man's deal will take three years. Give up? It is that both of these athletes are getting exactly what they deserve. Let us take a closer look at these two men who have dominated the Boston sports pages in recent weeks.

Catfish Hunter's situation was so unique that we were not really sure for whom we were rooting. We knew we wanted Hunter to sign with the Red Sox but we were also offended that this man was deciding between millions while we were figuring out where the next car payment was coming from. When the decision finally came, it was anti-climactic—as if, after all the millions were being thrown around, Hunter killed the fantasy by actually taking the money.

We were all disappointed that the Red Sox didn't sign him but the team's statement on the matter seemed both sensible and almost heroic. We heard Dick O'Connell tell us how the bidding could cause dissension on the Red Sox and how Hunter's demands could ruin the team's basic structure. Then the local scribes chimed in with words of praise on the Red Sox integrity and good sense. We were almost thankful that the Red Sox dropped out. Almost. The whole thing made me sick.

We will take the business argument first. The important thing to remember is the Hunter's situation is totally unprecedented. The ball club's salary structure might be raised slightly but the other stars on the team are contractually bound to certain salaries' and Hunter's free agent status does not alter it at all. Additionally, Hunter's money is not up front—that is not paid to him at once. It is over a period of years, with many fringe benefits as part of the amount.

This would be paid back in full with increases of attendance and future play-off shares. I know. Hunter does not assure a pennant. But he has proven to be the best pitcher in the game and more importantly, the best pressure pitcher in the game. The Red Sox could afford to sign Hunter—mostly, they could not afford not to sign him.

We heard no squawks or outcries when Bill Walton or Kareem Abdul-Jabbar got two million dollars for signing out of college. That was because they got it through "legitimate" channels—the draft. This brings us to the second area of discussion—the morality of the whole deal. I am convinced that this aspect of the Hunter situation is the thing that sets most people on fire.

Somehow we see Catfish as immoral or unethical by putting himself on the market. A "situation like this could mean dissension on the Red Sox." Worrying about more dissension on the Red Sox is like worrying about a thunderstorm during a ten-year flood. As far as Hunter's being unethical, picture him as a Harvard Law School graduate. He signs with a firm in Oakland and is quickly recognized as the best young lawyer in the country. He then discovers his firm has cheated him on his salary so he is legally free to look for other firms. What is his most sensible approach? Exactly what Catfish Hunter did.

So, please do not hand me those self-righteous arguments that the Red Sox were smart not to sign Catfish Hunter. They were stupid and outmaneuvered from getting the one man who could change the ballclub. The Red Sox official explanation smacks of hypocrisy, excuses and downright ineptness. Ah, to be a Red Sox fan. Nothing but tears of aggravation and sadness.

Now to Dave Forbes. His situation is more complex than Hunter's and much more important. Where Hunter's case is completely unprecedented, Forbes' case could have happened a dozen times—just change the names.

I do not want to see Forbes in jail. He is a young man who did nothing more than half the hockey players in the league do each week. His only problem is that he got caught. However, here is the crucial point in the whole Forbes mess. Because other people do it does not make Forbes any less guilty. We heard the "everybody does it" argument with our former president. Remember—every politician does it. How about our heroic ex-vice-president, Mr. Agnew. Remember, all politicians are crooked. I did not buy it then and I will not buy it now. Irresponsible and illegal actions must be stopped.

This type of argument has always been used when we term people "scapegoats." The problem with scapegoats is that they usually are absolved of their guilt. John Dean was terrific in nailing the crook in the White House, but he is still a criminal and should be in jail. William Calley may have just been following orders but he did pull the trigger and murdered many innocent people. He may be a scapegoat but he is also a criminal and should be in jail. So, while other hockey players use their sticks illegally and hockey is by nature a violent sport, Dave Forbes is still guilty of assault with a weapon. He is as guilty as Juan Marichal was when he attacked John Roseboro with a bat. Both should be punished.

One final note. If we dismiss Forbes assault with intent to injure as just part of the game of hockey, what does that say about hockey.

Senior citizens active in February

The Newton Senior Drop-In Center in Newtonville has a full program for February to which all citizens of Newton over 60 years are welcome.

On Mondays the health clinic is run by two nurses, Priscilla Joseph and Brenda Boyce, who test everyone this month for diabetes and take blood pressure. No appointments are necessary.

On Tuesday mornings hospital work is done by everyone wishing to do community work, and in the afternoon chess is taught by Mr. Morris Bernbaum.

Wednesdays, Mrs. Grace Burley teaches bead jewelry in the mroning and we have arts and crafts in the afternoon with Mrs. Esther Toher. Many people bring a sandwich on Thursdays and lunch together.

On Friday mornings Mrs. Connie Casella teaches knitting and corcheting and Mrs. Mary Evans helps everyone with sewing problems. Conversation Italian is taught by Mr. Francis Argento on Friday afternoons.

These programs begin at 10 a.m. and 1 p.m. Another popular activity at the center is bowling. Everyone meets at 11:30 a.m. on Thursdays and rides together to a bowling allev.

Coffee, tea, and cookies are served at all times at the center, which is open Monday through Friday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Our Senior Centers are sponsored by the City of Newton and directed by Mrs. Mildred Stetson and Mrs. Betty Werman.

Homemaker service honors Miss Curran

Mr. and Mrs. Alex R. Miller are opening their home in Waban on Feb. 2, to members and former members of the Board of Directors of Intercommunity Homemaker Service for a reception in honor of Katherine Curran, who is retiring after 11 years as executive director.

Miss Curran came to the service, now at 1150 Walnut St., Newton Highlands, when it began. With her foresight and ability, the agency has grown from one employing 11 homemakers to its present enrollment of 53.

Last year these people served 47,876 hours, helping over 330 families by providing trained, competent help in homes disrupted by illness, disability, or other crises threatening the family unit.

Intercommunity Homemaker Service officially opened for business in March 1963 to provide service to four communities: Brookline, Needham, Newton and Wellesley. Its first home was in the Red Cross barn in Newton.

It was incorporated under the Laws of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts in June 1963. A grant of $60,000 for a three year period was obtained from the State Department of Health through the Communities Facilities Act.

Three towns (Brookline, Needham and Wellesley) each contributed $400, and Newton gave $1,000 to set up a fund to help needy families pay for service.

Since 1963, the service has moved four times to acquire more space. A staff of four is kept busy trying to meet the needs of five communities for service.

From being entirely supported on government bounty, Intercommunity Homemaker Service has become an almost entirely independent community agency. It has been accepted as a participating member of the United Way of Massachusetts Bay, and receives private donations.

Miss Curran has been active in improving acceptance and standards for Homemakers throughout the state and is currently serving on the Executive Board of the Massachusetts Council for Homemaker Home Health Aides as treasurer.

Firefighters aid muscular dystrophy

Newton firefighters recently raised $261.39 in a canister drive for the Greater Boston Chapter of Muscular Distrophy.

Chief Frederick Perkins and Canister Campaign Chairman Lt. Frank Howley announced that money will help support research grants and fellowships, two free clinics, and a summer camp in Haverhill.

North harriers top Waltham 42-39

By RICH RAUM
Sports Correspondent

NEWTON—Newton North took a battered track team suffering from numerous injuries to face an enthusiastic Waltham squad just jumping at the chance to beat them.

In the 40 years that coach Ed Boyle has coached the Tigers they have never lost to them.

Today was no exception as the Tigers won 42-39.

Waltham got off to an early lead, as Otho Kerr won the mile in 4:43:9. Howard Pierce and Andy Kluboch gave Newton a second and third.

Newton could only manage to "split" Waltham in the thousand, as Tony Morales ran well to finish second for the Tigers.

The 600 was close right to the finish. Greg Kerr just edged out Newton's Ken Tocci for first. Rich Raum took third.

At this point, Newton was finding it very difficult to win a race. The 300 was no exception as again Waltham ran off with first place. Kwek Randall and Kevin Jones took second and third for the Tigers.

Rich Schilder ran his fastest 2-mile of the year to finish third for Newton.

Then, a strange thing happened. Newton won a race. James Connolly took first and Rich Jaffe took third for the Tigers. Returning to form Waltham took first and second in the dash. Al Shocket grabbed a third for Newton.

Luckily Newton excelled in the field events.

John Cardillo, Tom Cardillo, and Pete Saravis gave Newton a sweep in the shot put.

Hinchey and Ricker took first and second for the Tigers in the High jump.

But the true drama of the track meet was yet to occur.

Going into the relay Newton had a very slim lead, 42-39. The winner of the relay would win the meet.

Newton jumped off to the lead in the first leg and held onto it for the remainder of the race, for an apparent victory.

The Tigers, unable to contain their joy, went out onto the track to congratulate the relay team. This would have been fine, but the Waltham runner had yet to cross the finish line.

As a result Newton was disqualified and had apparently lost the meet.

At this the Tigers broke out in a fit of rage and entered the locker room dejected and helpless.

But, as the Tigers were brooding, Waltham was also being disqualified for running out of their lane too early. When the news hit the Tiger locker room, a wild scene of enthusiasm commenced.

The Tigers won the meet, and more importantly, kept theirhopes alive for a Suburban League title.

Newton faces Rindge Tech tomorrow, in a do-or-die meet. The Tigers trail Rindge Tech by one point in the standings. A victory will put them all alone in first place. A loss will just about kill their hopes.

All has been said. All's left is to do.

Weeks Jr. High five fall twice

By RICHARD GROSSMAN

NEWTON—"He too serves a purpose who only stands and cheers." (Henry B. Adams).

Such was the case last Wednesday at the Weeks gym when Meadowbrook Junior High School edged out Weeks Junior High School 34-33. The chairless gym was packed with the faithful from both schools.

Meadowbrook took a quick 2-0 lead at :57 of the quarter. By 3:52 Meadowbrook had opened a 9-4 lead and it looked as if they were off and running. Surprisingly enough, they were not; neither team was. At 6:50 of the quarter Matt Fitzgibbon of Weeks made it 9-6, ending the scoring in the quarter. When there was no scoring going on (which was often) both teams were gainfully occupied in scrambles under the basket and turning the ball over.

At 1:03 of the second quarter Joe Dennis closed the Meadowbrook 'lead' to one (9-8). Peter Balcanoff put Weeks in front with a hoop at 3:51 of the quarter. The only Meadowbrook scoring of the quarter came at 5:37 when Jay Geller converted on a three point play. Weeks, not wanting to be outdone, tied the score at 12 at 6:45, with a Matt Fitzgibbon bucket. The quarter ended with Weeks outscoring Meadowbrook 6-3. The halftime score was 12-12.

At the half Meadowbrook coach Huntly, a Weeks teacher, said, "Our main problem was our shooting, we were 6 for 26 (23 per cent) on field goals the first half. The Weeks team didn't have a good shooting average either. Weeks has a good team and a hustleing defense."

Meadowbrook started the second half aggressively, with a press to match, and by :59 held a 17-12 lead. The Meadowbrook lead held steady and at 3:12 the lead was 21-15.

At 3:55 of the quarter, R. King of Meadowbrook started down the court, on a fast break, pursued by Joel Dennis. When King, a guard, started his layup, Dennis, a center, went up to attempt a block. There was much confusion after the collision, King was shaken up but was able to return later. One referee immediately called Dennis guilty of a flagrant foul, but then had a conference with the other referee and decided not to toss him out of the qame.

The quarter ended with the score 26-18.

The final quarter was fast and furious, with a crowd to match. Weeks started off by pulling to within 5 of Meadowbrook (26-21) at 2:47 of the quarter. That is when the seesaw battle started. First Weeks would cut the lead to 3, then Meadowbrook would make it 5, and so on and so forth. With 1:07 left in the game, and the score 33-29, Peter Balcanoff came from nowhere to intercept a Meadowbrook pass. Balcanoff fed the ball to Matt Fitzgibbon who put it in but missed the three point play. Ten seconds later Andy Kaufman tied the game up with an impossible outside shot. The stage was set for overtime, but with three seconds left, Meadowbrook's Michael Buchsbaum was sent to the charity stripe for two shots. The roar of the crowd had come to a crescendo as Buchsbaum made one, but one was enough as Weeks last second shot failed. The final score was 34-33.

After the game coach Huntly said, "Both teams put out 110 per cent, no coach could ask for more from his team. It was an excellent job and two team efforts."

Weeks coach Bannen said, "Both teams wanted this game very badly. It was one of the most competitive games of the year, both teams are already looking forward to the next game. One of the best matchups were the centers, Taylor and Dennis. They played each other like pros, and both played the fourth quarter with four fouls."

High scorers in the games were for Weeks: Center Joel Dennis-10, Matt Fitzgibbon-10, Peter Balcanoff-7. For Meadowbrook: Center Stuart Taylor-14, Jay Geller-9.

Defeated By Bigelow

On Friday Weeks faced the Bigelow Junior High School Bobcats, at Bigelow, and lost 49-38. The loss set the Weeks record at 1 win and 5 losses.

The play started slow and deliberate with Weeks keeping it that way. Weeks pulled out to an early 8-4 lead at 5:15 of the quarter. The quarter ended with the score 12-6. The Weeks lead was largely due to the shooting statistics. In the quarter, Weeks shot 6 for 12 (50 per cent) and Bigelow shot 2 for 11 (18 per cent).

In the second quarter Bigelow started a catch up; by 4:00 of the quarter they held a

"Man and Movement" exhibit of photography at Science Museum

A photographer who has been recognized for four decades as a master at capturing the essence of movement is now exhibiting highlights of his career in the Washburn Gallery at Boston's Museum of Science.

Gjon Mili, Albanian born and a premiere photographer for Life magazine for 34 of its 36 years, utilizes to its limits the remarkable ability of a strobe flash to crystallize the flow of motion into a sharp, breathtaking picture. Caught by a flash of light that lasts only a tiny fraction of a second, ice skaters, athletes, and everyday people in motion all demonstrate the unconscious grace of the human body.

Mili spent his boyhood in Southern Roumania and came to the United States in 1923 to attend the Massachusetts institute of Technology, where he received a B.S. in electrical engineering. He went on to do graduate work with Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company and subsequently became a research engineer in the Westinghouse Lamp Division.

A Mili's fascination with the possibilities of stroboscopic photography grew, he devoted more and more time to perfection the procedures and his ability. In 1938, photography became his full-time occupation. He cites his long association with M.I.T. professor Harold E. Edgerton, whom he met in 1937, as a major motivating force in his career.

Mili employs a variety of techniques to produce his svartling photograpjs. Using a single flash of light "from the strobe, he is able to freeze one moment of motion on his film. Using multiple flasjes and expowures, Mili records the succession of movements "that combine to make a single "completed movement. Through this technique, for example, a girl skipring rope is seen within a latticework of white tracery produced b the revolutions of the rope.

Another approach that has yielded interesting effects for Moli is photographing a stationary estsubject while penning thg camera across it. The repeated image that parades across the resulting photograph gives an effecvive feeling of symmetry.

In his study of motion, Mili has aimed his camera at participants in all of the performing arts and a list of his subjects reads like a who's who. But he has not limited himself to theatre—a 1973 assignment from Time, Inc. took him to the . Watergate hearings, where he spent four months and nearly 200 rolls of film photographing the witnesses.

Some of the unusual pictures that came out of this assignment can be seen in Life's The . year in pictures—1973.

In all his work, Mili seeks to capture with his camera moments that are much too fleeting for the human eye. The exhibition at the Science Museum, entitled "Man and Movement," gives us an intriguing look at those sights. The photographs will remain at the Museum through March 31.

Clean and sand your sidewalks

Officer-in-Charge James J. Gavin today appealed to the customers of the Boston Postal District to clean and sand their sidewalks and stairs as soon as possible after a storm to reduce the hazards associated with inclement weather.

These injuries cause lost work time, disabling injuries, and also a tremendous amount of suffering to the letter carrier, in addition to financial loss to the Postal Service and to the taxpayers.

The cost in the Boston Postal District last year was well over $50,000 with approximately 157 carriers injured. Of this total, 24 carriers required medical attention and 55 were disabled and unable to work

Peace Corps and Vista agents to be in area Feb. 10-14

A five day drive in Eastern Massachusetts to find much needed tradesmen to serve as Peace Corps and VISTA volunteers will be held Feb. 10-14 at Carlton House Motor Inn in Quincy.

A special team of representatives will be available for information between the hours of 9 a.m.-9 p.m. A special telephone number is available during the campaign—(617) 328-5503.

According to Dante Memmolo, of ACTION, over 12 percent of all Peace Corps volunteers are older, married tradesmen who do not have a college degree. In recent years, developing countries throughout the world have found out the American Blue Collar worker gets the job done. Since 1968, tradesmen participation inthe Peace Corps has grown by leaps and bounds. All levels of tradesmen have joined from the apprentice, to journeyman to the master.

They come from all walks of life, both young and old. others came because they were tired of the nine to five grind, others came for adventure$and a chance to teach their skills to othevw . Stilh others came because they felt that two years out of$tneir lifetime was some small contribution that , ""&they could give to people throughout the world.

Since 1970, the Peace Corps has invited a limited number of families overseas. The Peace Corps provides all trans"portavion costs to"and from the country, complete medical coverage, "$houwing, a reasonable living allowange, and saves $2000 for a volunteer. If married, everything doubles.

The Peace Corps is now workmng in 61 developing countries"in Asia, Africa, and Latin America.

On the domestic side, a smaller number of tradesmen are at work as VISTA's (Volunteers$in Service to America). In . Redding, California, fov instance, two tradesmen are at work using their carpentry experience to assist a community Action Program in the renovation of 66 homes. The majority of homes under renovation are occupied by older Americans and American Indians.

A few of the many skills needed include: carpentry, general construction, plumbing, well driller, welder, auto mechanic, machine skills, millwright, drafting, refrigeration, air conditioning, heating, masonry, toll and die maker, printer, iron worker, boiler maker, and others.

Postal inspectors warn against missing persons fraud scheme

A new type of "rissing persons" fraud, which preys upon those whose loved ones have disappeared, has been uncovered by the U.S. Postal Inspection Service.

Investigation by Postal inspectors recently resulted in the conviction of the operator of a Warren. Mich., "recovery bureau" on mail and wire fraud charges.

The operator attempted to collect $20,000 from a California man on the basis of fraudulent claims that his "recovery bureau" knew the whereabouts of the Californian's missing former wife and children, according to Postal inspectors.

The Californian traveled to Michigan on the basis of promises that he could find and recliam his family there. He became suspicious when his contact demanded a $20,000 advance payment. He refused to pay and returned to California.

Subsequent investigation by Postal inspectors disclosed that the ex-wife and children had never been in Michigan. The Michigan operator's claim that he had information about the missing family resulted from his receipt of a routine notice from a private investigator seeking assistance in finding his California client's ex-wife and children.

The operator was found guilty on four counts of mail and wire fraud and was sentenced to three years probation.

But the Postal Inspection Service cautioned that families with missing children or spouses should be alert to persons who demand money for information leading to the whereabouts of those missing persons. Law enforcement authorities should be contacted when such overtures are made, to assure their validity, the Inspection Service advised.

Information from the VA

Q—I am a female veteran going to school under the GI Bill. Can I claim my husband as a dependent?

A—Yes. Since October 1, 1972, female veterans have been entitled to claim their husbands as dependents.

Q—Can a veteran's wife uoe his educational benefits?

A—Only if he is 100 per cent permanently and totally disabled from service-connected conditions.

Q—I am a World War II veteran. Can I get dental treatment at a Veterans Administration hospital?

A—The Veterans Administration provides dental treatment on a one time basis for veterans up to one year from their date of release from active duty. After that, dental treatment is provided only for service-connected conditions.

The image vs the facts

Cigarette ads link smoking to all the good things in life. But the strategy—so successful for so long—is hitting snags, reports the Norfolk County-Newton Lung Association.

The Federal Trade Commission is being asked to stop ads for L&M cigarettes because they associate smoking with "physically vitality, muscular strength and wholesome outdoor activity."

The central image in one of this cigarette brand's national campaigns is a rugged young guy, stripped to the waist. This hip, outdoorsy figure is either building a log cabin, sitting beside a mountain stream, or striding through open meadows—always with a cigarette.

"The overwhelming visual message of the advertisement," said the charge filed by Public Communications, "is that cigarette smoking is naturally associated with physical strength, independence and health." Although the ad carried the required health warning, "the unmistakable visual message is that smoking is not hazardous to one's strength or health." The image refutes the facts.

The FTC is also under pressure from groups such as Action on Smoking and Health (ASH) to require a much larger health warnings on all ads. One proposal even suggests that the major diseases caused by smoking—emphysema, chronic bronchitis, lung cancer, coronary heart disease—be listed in the health warning. Cigarette industry groups have indicated the larger, longer warnings would virtually nullify their ad message and amount to a ban on advertising.

Music to fill air at International Boat Show

The International Boat Show, Feb. 8-16, at the Hynes Veterans Auditorium, Prudential Center in Boston, will have a special musical touch this year. Two outstanding United States Navy bands from Newport, R.I. will perform Monday and Tuesday of the Boat Show, Feb. 10 and 11.

On Monday, the 16 piece Long Island Sound, under the direction of Chief Musician Otto Schauble, will hold concerts at 3:30 p.m. and 8 p.m. The Long Island Sound, part of the big Northeast Navy Band, specializes in brass and amplified music.

The Newport Brass Quintet, a classical and jazz group, will perform Tueeday, Feb. 11 at 3:30 and 8 p.m. The quintet, led by Musician 3rd Class James Saflund, has gained much acclaim as one of the finest groups of its kind in the country.

As part of Tuesday's festivities, the Navy plans to conduct an enlistment exercise in their area at 9 p.m.

Any armed service personnel in full uniform or yacht club member in full uniform will be admitted free of charge during these two special nights only.

The International Boat Show hours are 1 to 10:30 p.m. daily and 1 to 7 p.m. both Sundays, Feb. 9 and 16.

Church sponsors family night Friday

Central Congregational Church of Newton, located on Walnut Street just north of Washington Street in Newtonville is sponsoring a special Family Night Friday, Jan. 31.

All members of the Newtonville community are cordially invited to attend along with the members and friends of the church. It will be a fun night centering on the talents and good spirits of the people present.

It will begin with a pot luck supper at 6:30 p.m. Everyone attending is asked to bring a main dish, or a salad, or a dessert for eight people. Beverages and rolls are provided.

The program will begin at 7:30 p.m., and will simply be an old-fashioned talent night. Can you sing a song? Or dance a jig? Or tell a story? Or perform a skit? Or do anything that will make people laugh and be happy?

Central Church is a community church, and invites people of all ages, creeds, and backgrounds to join with us in a family festival.

Temple will have Shabbat and service

Friday evening, Jan. 31, Temple Beth Avodah will hold a family worship service at 8 p.m. The service, guided by Rabbi Robert Miller, will be conducted by the fifth year Hebrew class. The service will be enhanced by the Junior Choir, and an Oneg Shabbat will follow.

An innovation this month will be a fifth year Hebrew Family Shabbat dinner preceding the service.

Organized by the parents of the students, the traditional dinner will be replete with Hebrew songs, dances, and the comraderie of the Temple family. Rabbi Miller and his family will lead the prayers over the bread and wine.

Members of the community are cordially invited to attend the worship service, and share in the pleasure of the Oneg Shabbat. For further information please call the temple office, 527-0045.

Greek customs topic of meeting

A glimpse of Greek customs and traditions is the topic for the annual meeting of the Church Women United of Newton Feb. 7 at noon at the Greek Evangelical Church, 115 Centre St., Newton Centre.

The women of the church, located in the former First Church building, will serve a Greek menu of moussaka, pilaf, and Greek salad. Mrs. Argos Zodhiates will be the hostess of the day.

Virginia Hayden, president of Church Women United of Newton, will chair the business meeting which will include the election of officers. Following the annual business meeting, the pastor of the Greek Evangelical Church, the Rev. Argos Zodhiates, will lead the group in worship and share with the group the history of the church in a talk titled, "Can Our Churches Afford a Missionary Moratorium?"

Rev. Zodhiates was born in Cypress and educated in Egypt. He was minister for eighteen years of the largest Evangelical church in Greece which was in Katerini at the foot of Mt. Olympus.

For six years he served an interdenominational church in Birmingham, England, before coming to the United States in 1966. He founded a church in Long Island City and came to Newton in 1970 to organize the Greek Evangelical Church.

Rev. Zodhiates had the distinction of being the official delegate representing his denomination at the first Ecumenical Assembly of the World Council of Churches held in Amsterdam in 1948. He broadcasts daily on a radio program which is transmitted to Greece from Monte Carlo via transworld radio.

Tickets for this luncheon are available through Mrs. R. Curtis Reed, 527-0103. Reservations and money must be received by Jan. 31. Child care will be available, but parents are reminded to bring a lunch for their children.

Church women ready for annual Tri-Church Day

The women's groups of three Waban Churches will join together once again on Wednesday, Feb. 5, for their annual TriChurch Day to benefit Newton-Wellesley Hospital. It is a tradition that was established over 40 years ago.

The women will gather at 10 a.m. at the Union Church to sew articles for the hospital, and, will meet at the same time at the Church of The Good Shepherd to roll bandages and prepare surgical dressings.

Luncheon will be served at St. Philip Neri Church at 12:30 p.m.

Speaker at the luncheon will be Russell Harrington from Carter Memorial Methodist Church in Needham. Harrington, a member of the church's youth group, will present a lecture and slide show of a recent trip that the young people took to Haiti.

Chairmen for the Tri-Church Day are Mrs. Philip Chesarone for St. Philip Neri; Mrs. Frederick Hunt for the Church of The Good Shepherd; Mrs. Carol Alexander and Mrs. William B. Hadley will serve as co-chairmen for the Union Church.

The highest altitude in Connecticut can be found at Mt. Frissell in Salisbury, 2,380 feet.

Max Steiner composed the music for "Gone With the Wind" and "King Kong."

South had won nine in a row

By HOWIE APPELSTEIN
Sports Correspondent

NEWTON—Before the Wayland match, the Newton South wrestling team was still undefeated. Coach Arelis Kojoyian saw his grapplers win their eighth and ninth matches of the year as the Lions topped a much improved Weston team, 33-15, and a very tough Milford squad, 34-15.

THE REAL STORY OF BABE RUTH STARTS SUNDAY, FEB. 2
SUNDAY HERALD ADVERTISER

Going into the match against South, Weston had three wrestler who were undefeated. They were in the first three weight classes, 100, 107 and 114.

Weston's 100-pounder remained unbeaten as he pinned South's Ronny Lombardo in the first period. Chuck Dippo usually wrestles at that weight but an injury forced him to miss the match.

Luis MacDonald, one of the many undefeated wrestlers on the South team, stayed that way by soundly decisioning his once unbeaten foe by an 8-4 score. Bobby Paisner at 114 pounds easily won his match in the battle of the unbeatens as he crushed his opponent by an 11-2 count.

Gary Fireman absorbed his second defeat of the season at 121 lbs. when he was shut out 7-0 by his strong Weston counterpart. Frank Tarantino won his second match of the year at 128 lbs. as he came out on top of a 4-0 score.

Co-captain Peter Nathanson copped his eighth straight win of the season at 134 lbs. as he outclassed his man by a 9-0 margin. Howie Appelstein needed only one minute and eight seconds to pin his foe in the 140 lb. weight class. That was Appelstein's seventh win against only one loss.

Craig Sowsy ran his record to 5-0 with a 5-3 win at 147 lbs. Aaron Moynahan lost his first match of the year at 157, losing in a very tough bout, 14-10. South coaches Kojoyian and assistant Chuck Hurwitz were not exactly thrilled with the officiating in the match as they felt Moynahan got robbed, but the wrestler said after the match that the official did not lose it for him.

Keith Washington at 167 lbs. lost by a 3-0 score. The score at that time stood South 21, Weston 15.

Co-captain Peter Maples clinched the match for the Lions when he pinned his man midway through the third period. Maples' record now stands at 8-0, and over two years he has a record of 21 wins, 0 losses and 1 tie.

Heavyweight Scott Groper ran his record to 8-0 also with a pin in the third period.

Tough Milford match

The Newton South gym was packed with people to see if the Lions could get their ninth win in a row against an extremely strong Milford team.

The Lions got a great break in the match before it even started as their 121 lb. grappler stepped on the scales at the weigh-in and was one-half pound overweight, giving South a very important six point forfeit.

Coach Kojoyian told his team before the match, "You've got a great break, but you must take advantage of it. Everyone must wrestle his best because Milford's still got a very tough team."

Milford took an early lead in the match as their 100 pounder beat Chuck Dippo by a score of 11-4. Crowd-pleasing Luis McDonald got his ninth straight win of the year as he topped his foe, 11-7. Bobby Paisner's unbeaten streak came to an end as he was beaten 10-3 in the 114 lb. match match.

All Gary Fireman had to do was to take off his orange-and-blue robe, walk to the middle of the mat and get his hand raised for the forfeit. The robes were acquired this year by Coach Kojoyian and both the wrestler and the fans like them very much.

Bruce Arafe wrestled the best match of his Newton South career as he won over an undefeated opponent at 128 lbs., 7 to 4. Kojoyian called this match the key to South's victory.

Peter Nathanson and his Milford opponent, Dave Nigroddi, were both District champions last year, Nigorddi at 121 lbs. and Nathanson at 128. Last year at the District matches they became good friends, also. This year it figured to be a great match between the two undefeated wrestlers at 134 lbs.

It could have been, but Nigroddi injured his ankle early in the second period and could not continue wrestling. Nigroddi gamely tried to wrestle on the bad ankle, but he just could not put any pressure on it. Nathanson showed a lot of class by not going for Nigroddi's ankle after he had injured it.

With six points in the match, South led 19-6. The Lions had now gotten six points by forfeit and six by default in the match.

Howie Appelstein dropped his second match of the year at 140 as he lost by a 3-0 score. Craig Sowsy lost his first match also at 147 by a 7-6 score. Sowsy was leading 6-5 but the referee called two questionable stalling violations against him and awarded the match to his opponent.

Aaron Moynahan became the second South wrestler to win by default as his Milford opponent injured his ribs in the second period. Moynahan was leading in the match 8-4 at the occurrence of the infury.

Keith Washington lost a very physical match at 167 lbs., 12-5. Actually, South coach Kojoyian could have gotten six points out of the match for intentional injury. At one point during the match the Milford Wrestler picked up Washington and slammed him to the mat. Washington was slightly dazed but he continued wrestling.

Peter Maples decisioned his foe 5-0 at 187 lbs. and Scott Groper closed out South's victory with a pin in the second period.

Scientific agriculture probably was first used by the Dutch in the first half of the 17th century. They used a crop rotation system to keep their limited land area fertile.

"Did better than we thought," Fairbanks

FOXBORO, Mass. (UPI) — The New England Patriots, whose lack of depth showed in the final part of last season, drafted players in different positions in the opening day of the National Football League draft.

The Patriots, 1-6 after a 6-1 start, picked up a tight end, linebacker, defensive tackle, running back, quarterback, defensive back and two wide receivers Tuesday over the first seven rounds. In addition, they acquired another running back by trading a draft choice.

Top choice was tight end Russ Francis, who left the University of Oregon and did not play in his senior year. Linebacker Rod Shoate, one of Coach Chuck Fairbanks' former players at Oklahoma, was the second round pick; Ohio State defensive tackle Pete Cusick, projected asa middle guard, was the third round selection.

The Patriots traded discontented wide receiver Reggie Rucker to Cleveland to gain a second fourth round pick, then used the Browns' selection to take Southern California running back Allan Carter. The other fourth round choice was wide receiver Steve Burks of Arkansas State, who also had been used as a quarterback, runner and punter.

In the fifth round, the Patriots also had two choices, one coming from Philadelphia via Monday's trade of running back John Tarver. First choice of the round was 6-4 quarterback Steve Grogan of Arkansas State. The other pick was defensive back Steve Freeman of Mississippi State.

Fullback Leon Crosswhite, another of Fairbanks' former Sooners, came in a trade from Detroit for the sixth round selection and an undisclosed 1976 draft choice.

New England's final pick of the first day was wide receiver Lawrence Williams of Texas Tech, a seventh round choice.

Fairbanks summed up the crew of picks by saying, "Maybe we did a little bit better than I thought we could drafting in the position we did. I won't know how we did until I see all of them in practice next fall but at this particular moment I do feel good."

The team had gone into the draft looking for a runner with outside speed and several defensive backs. They may have gotten their runner in Carter, who has 9.5 speed in the 100-yard dash. Freeman, not rated among the top five secondary men, was the only cornerback picked.

What the draft did net was insurance players. Francis, a 6-6 240-pound pro wrestler and a draft pick of the Kansas City Royals baseball team, could replace Bob Windsor, if the veteran tight end's torn knee ligaments fail to heal. Cusick, 6-2, 255 pounds, could fill in at noseguard in New England's "stack" defense if Arthur Moore is unable to recover from a severe knee injury.

Grogan, at 6-4 and 205 pounds, is the "active option quarterback" the Patriots hope to use behind weak-kneed Jim Plunkett.

Shoate gives the Patriots a chance to trade one of their many linebackers, while Burks and Williams will have to fill the hole left by the trading of Rucker.

Cross leaps to No. 1

BOSTON (UPI) — The excitement in Worcester is reaching a level not seen in years where the Crusaders are establishing themselves as the best major college basketball team in New England.

Holy Cross, now 12-3 following a crushing win over Georgetown last weekend, picked up 11 of the 15 first place votes cast by New Engalnd Division I coaches and a total of 69 points.

Providence College, the region's top vote getter most of the season, dipped to second place with 59 points. The Friars, nipped by Penn last weekend, collected two first place votes.

Boston College held third place with 51 points that included the remaining two top votes.

Weeks Jr. High falls-slim 15-14 lead. The lead jumped back and forth, but at the end of the half the score was 21-21.

Weeks' shooting percentage dropped from 50 per cent at the quarter to 39 percent at the half, while Bigelow's shooting percentage went up from 18 per cent to 32 per cent.

Coach Bannen said of the first half," Both teams played well. If we can keep up our good defense, we will win."

Coach Brown of Bigelow, said, "We haven't been playing our game. Weeks has controlled the game and slowed it down, that was to their advantage. We haven't been running our plays. In the second half we are going to try to establish our type of game."

Frank Duffy of Weeks commented about the first half, "This game has been a true example of Junior High basketball."

"We controlled the play. Our main problem was our second quarter shooting, except for (Peter) Balcanoff (15 pts. in the first half)," was Andy Kaufman's reaction to the first half.

Another factor was that Weeks was taking more and more shots from the outside as the game went on, not driving to the basket.

It looked as if Coach Brown's comments about the second half were correct. The quarter started out quick, sure enough Bigelow took a 26-21 lead at 2:01 of the half. Weeks must have realized what was wrong because the game started to slow down after that point. By 5:45 Weeks had come back to make the score 27-26. Again Bigelow put on a spurt of speed and by the quarter's end they held a 31-26 lead.

In the final quarter the Weeks shooting percentage was 23 per cent, while Bigelow's was an impressive 73 per cent. That tells the story.

Coach Brown had this to say about the game, "We controlled the second half with better defense. We pressured Weeks into mistakes and pulled past them. Weeks has a well disciplined team."

The game statistics showed everything. Bigelow was 20 for 41 (49 percent) with 19 turnovers while Weeks shot 15 for 48 (31 percent) with 12 turnovers.

High scorer8s were for Weeks: Peter Balcanoff-19, Andy Kaufman and Ralph Berry-6. For Bigelow: Fruman-16, Averbuck-14, Medalie-13.

Women Building Dream Home

By DOROTHEA BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI) — What happens when a group of women get together to plan and build a "dream house?"

They compromise, even as you and I.

The nine-room house, now a reality in Dallas where it was constructed for the National Association of Home Builders (NAHB) Convention and Exposition (Jan. 19-23), is attractive, livable. But it isn't entirely to specification.

The planners drew up their ideas —more than 100 of them, leading to the "100-Plus Idea House" label —at a design seminar cosponsored by American Home magazine and the NAHB Women's Auxiliary at the association's spring meeting last May. The objective was a livable, enjoyable home that would not only save fuel energy but conserve the energy of the housewife and her family.

"This will be a house by and for women who spend much of their time homemaking," the planners told American Home. It is that, although "construction by committee" and some of the hard facts faced by anyone who builds a house caused some changes along the way.

It was executed by a team consisting of archit p fz3 dozen or so builder members of the Home & Apartment Builders Association of Metropolitan Dallas, a handful of editors, and scores of suppliers and subcontractors. American Home, which will feature it, did the decorating and General Electric, a cosponsor, designed kitchen, laundry-sewing room and lighting.

Compromise No. 1: the women wanted a two-story house. The Idea House is an attractive, somewhat unusual, 2,600-square-foot one-level home —two rectangular wings, linked by an entry foyer, and a separate carport with storage space. The change was dictated primarily by marketing considerations in the Dallas area.

The change required compromises in floor plan; at first glance, for instance, a woman might wish kitchen and laundry-sewing-hobby room were not separated by the family room. The individual rooms, however, are so outstanding there is little room for complaint.

The large kitchen is a rounded U-shape inside a rectangle. This gains storage space in corners and allows for a family-sized table and chairs in the center. One corner, adjacent to the family room, is open from counter to ceiling with a breakfast bar located on the family room side. There is an abundance of cabinets and a pantry closet. Appliances include two self-cleaning wall ovens, built-in microwave oven, energy-saving frostfree refrigerator-freezer with door dispenser for crushed ice and cubes, quick-cleaning cooktop, soundproof dishwasher, garbage disposer and trash compactor.

The laundry-sewing-hobby room is nearly 12 by 15 feet, providing ample work and storage space, including cabinets, open shelves and closets. There is a built-in ironing board that can be left open, automatic washer and dryer, sin'., sewinghobby counter. It is bright and airy, a pleasant place to work and a place where you can close the doors on clutter.

In the same wing are the family room with vaulted ceiling and fireplace, separate dining room with eight-foot storage recess, and two children's bedrooms with compartmented bath between.

In the connecting wing, designed as a private domain for adults, are a vaulted ceiling living room, master bedroom with bath, and a study-guest room and powder room.

Each wing has separate controls for heating and cooling. To save ground space, the air-conditioning system is mounted on the roof of each wing and concealed within two redwood, box-shaped cupolas.

The exterior is of light-reflecting pale brick with inserts of grooved exterior siding set on the diagonal. The hipped roofs of cedar shingles have wide overhangs for shading against strong sunlight in summer. Gutters and downspouts are concealed.

Among 24 energy-saving ideas incorporated, the house has maximum insulation and all windows have double-glazed insulating glass. To save nearly half the energy required for conventional incandescent lighting, fluorescent lighting systems were utilized for eight major locations and those incandescent units that were used called for small bulbs.

The house is not inexpensive. Cost figures are not in yet and would, of course, vary in different parts of the country. However, there are ideas in it for almost anyone.

Working drawings are availa-ble for the kitchen and laundry-sewing rooms and for the entire house. For information write the NAHB Women's Auxiliary, P.O. Box 266, Hermitage, Tenn., 37076.

Yard Man

By BESSIE FORD

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — Earis Silers puts on his hard hat in the morning, swings onto his old bicycle and pedals about 17 miles to his job as a yard man.

At the end of the day he has to walk his bike part of the way to his home in a rural area outside of Montgomery, because the road is uphill.

The husky, 53-year-old man thinks he has a pretty good way to make a living. He has been at it 26 years and has worn out countless pairs of brogans.

"I have my regular customers and do pretty good some days," he said. "I'd rather be doing this than picking up something that doesn't belong to me."

Taking care of lawns is Silers' business and residents of affluent neighborhoods know him by his reputation. He does not solicit work from door-to-door, or advertise his services, because he has no telephone. But his satisfied customers pass the word around and he keeps busy.

Silers does not know how to drive, but he is as proud of his bike as if it was a flashy sports car.

"I bought it on April 26, 1965, for $60," he said. "They asked $72.95 for it but I got it cheap."

Up front in the basket under a worn black plastic trash can liner are his tools needed to keep the bike running. He has a hand tire pump, assorted cans of oil, and several types of wrenches. Often it also carries food or soft drinks home to the family he supports.

Silers cannot use public transportation to get him to and from his jobs because there is no reliable system in Montgomery. When operating, there were only a few buses running to the areas where Silers finds his work and they have been parked for some time, first because of a strike and then later because of a controversy over who should run them. Even when they were running, it would have been difficult for Silers to try to gauge his selfemployment to their haphazard schedules.

So Silers pedals his bike for several hours each day, often through rain or searing heat.

Silers has no formal education but has memorized the letters of his name. He can recognize it when it is spelled out in large letters.

His only thoughts for the future are to keep on doing what he is doing now. Retirement is out of his mind.

"I can't retire anytime soon," he said. "I have got to work or I'd starve to death."

Brokers Institute has new president

RAYMOND T. WARREN

Raymond T. Warren, of Framingham, has been elected President of Brokers Institute, a division of the Greater Boston Real Estate Board according to David H. Bradley, President of the Real Estate Board.

Warren will serve for one year as the leader of the 1200 member division. Bradley pointed out this is not a paid position and that Warren is motivated only by his desire to see the professionalism of the real estate industry continue to grow.

A real estate veteran, Warren heads his own company (R. T. Warren, Inc., REALTORS) which specializes in residential real estate. He joined the Greater Boston Real Estate Board in 1959 and has since become a very active member. He has served as a member of the Professional Standards Committee and his fellow REALTORS twice elected him President of local Council N of the Brokers Institute. In addition he is a past Director of the Brokers Institute and a past Director of the Massachusetts Association of REALTORS.

Active in the Framingham community, he served as Chairman of Area Tomorrow Task Force on Population and Employment Projections of South Middlesex Area Chamber of Commerce. His civic interests also include serving as a member of the Framingham Historic District Commission.

In his capacity as President of Brokers Institute 1975, Warren will be assisted by Wesley B. Swanson, Swanson Associates and D. Francis Zullo, of D. Francis Zullo Insurance and Real Estate as Vice President. Florence Kates of Florence Kates, REALTOR is secretary.

He is a graduate of Syracuse University (B.S. Business Administration) and served with the U.S. Army in Korea. In addition, he is a graduate of REALTORS Institute of Massachusetts (GRI) and hold the professional designation of Certified Residential Broker (CRB). aES

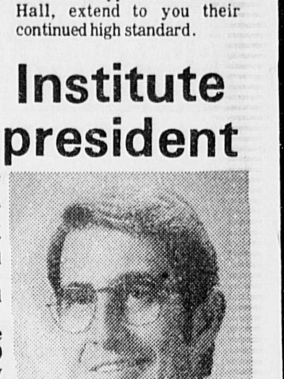
Needham man elected president



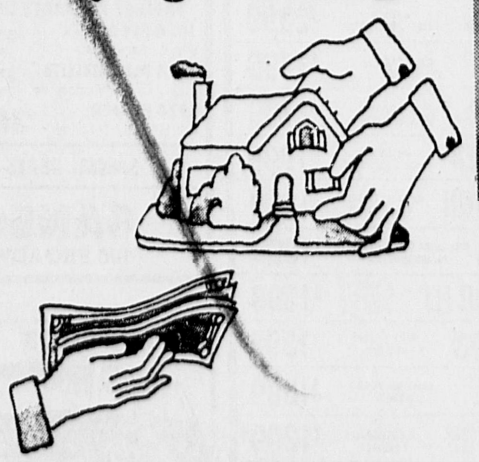
PETER S. DAMON

Peter S. Damon, of Needham, has been elected President of the Metropolitan Mortgage Bureau, a division of the Greater Boston Real Estate Board, according to David H. Bradley, President of the Real Estate Board.

The Metropolitan Mortgage Bureau surveys 83 municipalities in four counties (Suffolk, Middlesex South, Norfolk and Essex) to provide a comparison of 1-3 family house sales and prices for each year, on a three month basis. Other information available includes: exact location of property; land size; seller; price; mortgage; mortgagee; buyer; building type; assesment value; and mortgagor.

Damon thinks that "The real estate trends and historical background of the housing market in a specific area, supplied by the Bureau, are important to real estate professionals in all areas of the industry."

Buying... selling?



Real estate brokers can save you time and effort. They know the market . . . what properties are available . . . who the best prospects are. They know procedure . . . and can help with the dozen and one details that enter into a real estate deal. It's smart to have them on your side when you buy or sell property.

SUPERTANKERS

Supership, by Noel Mostert. (Knopf, $8.95)

The author's thesis is that supertankers with their immense cargoes of oil are spoiling the oceans. He believes further that their potential for pollution on a monstrous scale is far too much for nature to handle.

Everything about them is outsized. Longer than a football field, the biggest carries 372,000 tons of oil. And the supertankers keep on being built larger. A million-top ship now is being contemplated.

Chockful of facts, perhaps too many facts for the reader to digest, the book envisions a frightening new world of the sea where computers operate the ship and the captain is called a "manager."

"As ships get bigger and more technical and difficult to handle, and as they simultaneously set afloat upon waters quantities without precedent of dangerous and damanging substance," Mostert says, they increasingly are more poorly run with profit the overriding consideration.

The probability of frequent oil spills is outrageous, as he describes it, and man with all his technology stands helpless in the face of a major oil spill. He singles out what happens to birds in an oil spill, the efforts of humane persons to try to clean off the birds and the advice of some experts to kill such birds outright because they stand little chance of survvival anyway.

But, Mostert writes of the perhaps useless effort to save the birds, "it nonetheless represents one of the very few acts of resistance in which ordinary powerless people can indulge to avoid total despair over the havoc they see at their feet and the feeling that theirs is a complete surrender to the whole range of maritime folly that causes it all."

In an angry and eloquent call for action, the author writes, "What is left of the seas

One way to wrap a skirt is to do the tulip silhouette. This is much like an apron tied in front but with the underlayer cut conventionally. Halston showed it in his new collection.

"Clothes communicate," says Joan Raines, a vice-president at her mother's firm, Adele Simpson. "They tell who she is, what she does, her taste, her flair."

MORTGAGEE'S SALE OF REAL ESTATE AT 45 TUDOR ROAD, NEWTON

By virtue and in execution of the Power of Sale contained in a certain mortgage deed given by Barnett Feldstein and Edith M. Feldstein, husband and wife, to the Cambridge Savings Bank, dated June 8, 1964, and recorded with Middlesex South Deeds, Book 10548, Page 501, and registered as Document No. 406344, noted on Certificate of Title No. 114683, issued from the Middlesex South Registry District of the Land Court, of which mortgage the undersigned is the present holder, for breach of the conditions of said mortgage and for the purpose of foreclosing the same will be sold at public auction on the premises hereinafter described on Thursday, February 13, 1975, at Eleven O'clock A.M., all and singular, the premises described in said mortgage, to wit:

"A certain parcel of land with the buildings thereon situated in Newton, being bounded and described as follows:

SOUTHEASTERLY by Tudor Road one hundred forty (140) feet;

NORTHEASTERLY by Lot 32B as shown on a plan hereinafter mentioned, one hundred twenty-one and 34 100 (121.34) feet;

NORTHWESTERLY by Lots 17 and 18 on said hereinafter mentioned plan, one hundred forty and 56-100 (140.56) feet;

SOUTHWESTERLY by other land of said mortgagors, being the parcel next hereinafter described, one hundred eight and 80 100 (108.80) feet.

Said parcel is shown as Lots 32A and 33 on said hereinafter mentioned plan.

All of said boundaries are determined by the Court to be located as shown on a sub division plan, as approved by the Court, filed in the Land Registration Office, a copy of a portion of which is filed in the Registry of Deeds for the South Registry District of Middlesex County in Registration Book 167, Page 385, with Certificate of Title No. 25038.

Also another certain parcel of land with the buildings thereon situated in said Newton, being shown as the lot containing 1091. Sq. Ft. on a plan entitled "Plan of Land in Newton, Mass.", dated Sep tember 12, 1932, by E.L. Moulton, Civil Engineer, recorded with said District Deeds in Record Book 5688, Page 571, being bounded and described as follows:

SOUTHEASTERLY by said Tudor Road, four and 69-100 (4.69) feet;

NORTHEASTERLY by the parcel hereinafter described, one hundred eight and 80-100 (108.80) feet;

NORTHWESTERLY by land of owners unknown, twelve and 60-100 (12.60) feet;

SOUTHWESTERLY by Tudor Lane by two lines measuring fifty-one and 40-100 (51.40) feet and fifty-six and 15 100 (56.15) feet, respectively.

Both of said parcels being the same premises conveyed to said mortgagors by Foster Furcolo by deed dated June 1, 1964, duly registered with said Land Registration Office and duly recorded with said Deeds.

Both of said parcels are subject to restrictions and easements as appear of record so far as the same are now in force and applicable.

Both of said parcels are subject to and have the benefit of the right of way as set forth in an instrument duly recorded with said Deeds, Book 5688, Page 572."

Sale will be made subject to unpaid real estate taxes, tax titles and municipal liens, if any there are.

A deposit of One Thousand Dollars ($1,000.00) will be required to be paid in cash or certified check by the purchaser at the time and place of sale; other terms made known at sale.

Reg. 36476

To the City of Newton, a municipal corporation, located in the County of Middlesex, and said Commonwealth; Westley S. Medaglia, Carmela M. Medaglia, John A. Bornas, Margaret R. Bornas, Vincent A. Cornaro, Lucy A. Cornaro, and Dominic Butera, all of said Newton; and to all whom it may concern:

Whereas, a petition has been presented to said Court by Peter Burns and Hattie Burns, both of said Newton, to register and confirm their title in the following described land:

A certain parcel of land with the buildings thereon, situated in said Newton, bounded and described as follows:

Southeasterly by Sheridan Street 81.50 feet; Southerly by the junction of said Sheridan Street and Lind Road 23.55 feet; Southwesterly by said Lind Road 102.15 feet; Northwesterly by land now or formerly of Orison G. Hagar and Doris E. Hager 87.67 feet; Northeasterly by land now or formerly of Vincent A. Cornaro and Lucy A. Cornaro 117.45 feet.

The above-described land is shown on a plan filed with said petition and all boundary lines are claimed to be located on the ground as shown on said plan.

If you desire to make any objection or defense to said petition you or your attorney must file a written appearance and an answer under oath, setting forth clearly and specifically your objections or defense to each part of said petition, in the office of the Recorder of said Court in Boston (at the Court House), on or before the 17th day of March next.

Unless an appearance is so filed by or for you, your default will be recorded, the said petition will be taken as confessed and you will be forever barred from contesting said petition or any decree entered thereon.

Witness, William I. Randall, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this 16th day of January in the year nineteen hundred and seventy-five.

Attest with Seal of said Court.

Rep. Pines opposes new federal oil tax

State Rep. Lois G. Pines (D-Newton) and State Sen. John W. Olver (D-Amherst) have introduced a resolution co-sponsored by over 40 legislators in the Massachusetts state legislature strenuously opposing the proposed $3-a-barrel tax on imported crude oil.

The resolution urges the Massachusetts Congressional delegation and the Commonwealth's attorney general to enjoin the President from imposing what Rep. Pines termed "an unconstitutional tax levy."

Rep. Pines said, "The $3-a-barrel tax on imported crude oil will be disastrous for New England and Massachusetts. It represents a simplistic and misguided solution that will impose its burdens disproportionately on one region of the nation. Instead of the tax, we in the legislature are proposing a national policy of allocation of available oil, which we believe will bring about effective conservation and an equalization of the burden in all sectors of the nation."

"If the $3-a-barrel tax is allowed to stand, tens of thousands of jobs will be lost as industries and businesses are forced to close, further aggravating the present unemployment crisis in Massachusetts. Increased welfare and unemployment claims would make unavoidable new state taxes this year. We cannot permit this added burden on the already oppressed Massachusetts taxpayer. Estimates show fuel charges on electric bills would increase substantially, in some cases as much as 30 percent. Furthermore, the proposed tax would deny taxpayers in Massachusetts the economic benefits of the anticipated cut in federal personal income tax. A policy that promotes or enforces energy conservation is the most effective way to reduce oil imports.

Yet there is nothing in President Ford's energy program that encourages energy conservation. There is not one word encouraging mass transit. We recognize that substantial oil imports contribute to inflation and a severe balance-of-payments deficit. But the answer to these national problems is not in higher prices for New England along," Rep. Pines said.

"Instead of higher prices, we are suggesting a mandatory national program of allocating oil resources. A mandatory allocation program will allow the burden to be distributed equally in all parts of the nation and will permit a reduction of oil imports. An allocation program applied only to gasoline could probably attain Mr. Ford's goal of a one-million-barrel-a-day reduction in oil imports."

Lecture on anxiety

Richard I. Shader, M.D., associate professor of psychiatry at Harvard Medical School, will deliver a Fried Lecture Monday, Feb. 3 at 8:30 p.m. at Newton-Wellesley Hospital's Usen Auditorium.

Shader's lecture, titled "Psychopharmacological Approaches to the Treatment of Anxiety," will be accompanied by a 35mm slide presentation.

The director of the Psychopharmacology Research Laboratory at the Massachusetts Mental Health Center, Shader is also the director of clinical psychiatry at the Center.

He currently serves as a consultant to the Food and Drug Administration, as well as an adviser to the World Health Organization. He is a member of the Council on Medical Education and Career Development for the American Psychiatric Association, and will soon begin a term as chairman of that group.

A graduate of Harvard College and New York University School of Medicine, Dr. Shader is a fellow of both the American Psychiatric Association and the American College of Neurosychopharmacology.

The lecture is open to the medical community.

February films set at library

Great escapes of the week can be made when the Newton Free Library screens free films every Thursday, at 9:45 a.m. at Newtonville Branch, 345 Walnut Street, with the same film shown at 7 p.m. at the Main Library, 414 Centre Street, Newton Corner.

"Henry V," a stunning and imaginative visual interpretation of Shakespeare's historical drama starring Laurence Olivier, is the feature film scheduled for Thursday, Feb. 6.

On Feb. 13, "T'ai Chi Ch'en," a martial art now used as exercise; "China: A Hole in the Bamboo Curtain," which focuses on the People's Republic; and "Forbidden City," a tour through the Ku Kung, a museum in the center of Peking, will be shown.

"A View from the Bridge," the powerful film adaptation of Arthur Miller's play, is scheduled for screening on Feb. 20.

On Feb. 27, film fans are invited to view "All Boys Called Patrick," an early work on the French film-maker Jean-Luc Godard; "Direction D'Acteur de Jean Renoir," depicting Renoir's work with an actress in preparing e film scene, and "Frances Flaherty: Hidden and Seeking," a blend of biographical facts and poetic perspective about the widow of film maker Robert Flaherty.

A selection of books related to the films is available for borrowing.

Annotated film schedules, with dates, are available at all Newton libraries, or call 527-7700 for more information.

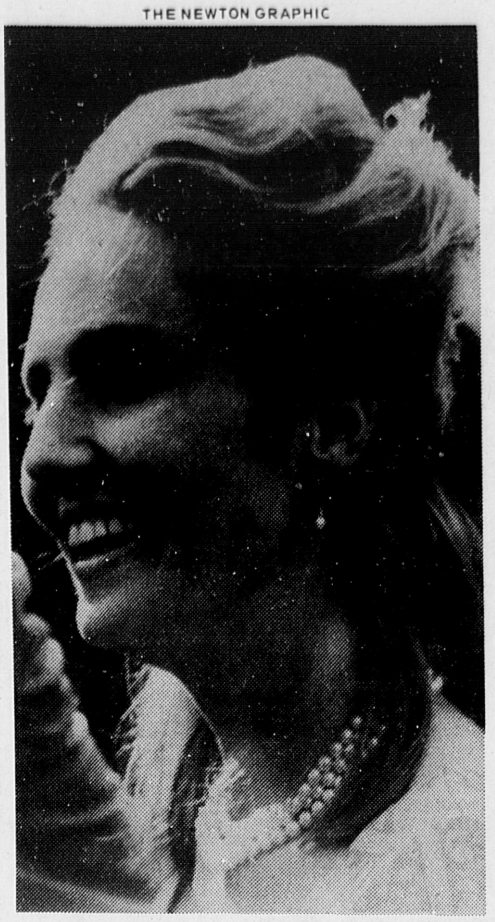
Purse stolen through window

Alice M. Lamrock, of 6 Leonard Ave., Newtonville, had her purse with $1000 in it stolen from her first floor bedroom table Saturday morning.

According to police, the window was left open slightly to allow fresh air into the house, and the thief opened the window the rest of the k way and lifted out the purse with a broomstic some time between 1:45 and 10 a.m., Jan. 25.

The handbag was recovered nearby at 224 Newtonville Ave.

Taken was $900 in $50 and $100 bills, $98 in singles, and assorted silver, police said.



Soloist

Virginia Eskin, piano soloist with the Boston Symphony Orchestra and the Boston Pops, will be playing with Jerome Rosen and Charles Kavaloski at the second concert of the All Newton Music School scholarship series Sunday, Feb. 2, at 3 p.m. The program will include the horn trio of Brahms.

Creative arts program begins at Service Centers

The Newton Community Service Centers, Inc., announces its winter creative arts program beginning Feb. 24, under the direction of Mrs. Judy Kelleher.

There will be classes for adults as well as pre-school and elementary aged children.

For the younger ones our Parents and Tots (ages 2-5) class provides a child's first introduction to creativity and social awareness with the special support of mother and teacher. There will be experiments with many forms of art media. Mother and child engage in mutual creative efforts—painting, puppet making and building things—in a creative, relaxed atmosphere free from siblings and telephones.

A Nursery Arts class, with experiences similar to Parents and Tots but without the parent, for children aged 3-5, will be held on Monday afternoon with Joan Witt as instructor.

For the older child 5-7 years old, Kindergarten Discoveries provides more opportunity to discover the pleasures in exploring a subject in depth. This is a refreshing 1½ hour program from 1:30 to 3 p.m., for kindergarteners that combines creative art with stories, films and games for an exciting way for kids to learn. Instructors will be Joanne Holland and Peggy Wolman.

Media Workshop is a class for 7-12 year-olds who love art and want lots of time to create. Since the workshop is 1½ hours long, it enables the child to work at his own pace. Clay, wood and weaving, for example, will be available at all times.

Nursery combination of Music and Art will be offered again. This is an exciting class for children who are independent enough to work without their mothers. In this class children will make use of their bodies and voices as instruments in singing, dancing and miming, along with foot painting. This class will provide the opportunity to explore and develop the capacity to move rhythmically in conjunction with various art media.

Creative Arts Program is stimulating and exciting for all ages. Classes fill quickly, so application should be made early. For more information, contact the Newton Community Service Centers Inc., 429 Cherry St., West Newton, or phone 969-5906.

New performers to appear in 'The House of Bernarda Alba'

New members and familiar faces are featured in the Newton Country Players' winter production, "The House of Bernarda Alba," by Garcia Lorca.

Making her debut for the Players in the part of Bernarda, is Cheryl Kaplan of Newton. A graduate of Newton South High School, Ms. Kaplan appeared there as Beatrice Carbone in "A View From the Bridge," the Governor's wife in "Caucasion Chalk Circle" and Dolly Tate in "Annie Get Your Gun." She spent two seasons with the Boston) Childrens Theatre, including two seasons touring with their Stagemobile, and also stage managed two productions for the Loeb Experimental Theatre.

Newcomers Debi Brottmiller and Myrna Feldman appear as daughters of Bernarda. Ms. Brottmiller, Angustias, studied oral interpretation of literature at Indiana State University where she did extensive work in the Readers' Theatre. She compiled scripts for and directed, several Readers' Theatre productions. Myrna Feldman is making her stage debut as Amelia in this production and is a speech therapist in Melrose.

Also appearing as Bernarda's daughters are Catherine Ives, Paula Finkle and Linda Pandolfe.

Catherine Ives, Adela, is a graduate of Brandeis University's theatre arts program.

Paula Finkle was last seen for the Players in the fall musical "Pal Joey," in which she played the part of Gladys Bumps. She is a graduate of Boston University with a bachelor of fine arts degree in acting. She is a first grade teacher in Lynn, and plays the part of Magdalena in this production.

Linda Pandolfe, Martirio, is a vice president of the Newton Country Players and appeard in "Pal Joey" as "the kid". A Wheelock graduate, Ms. Pandolfe is employed as head teacher at the Chinese Christian Church Day Care Center in Boston.

Production dates for "The House of Bernarda Alba" will be Feb. 21 and 22 and March 1 and 2, at the Pomroy Playhouse, 84 Eldredge St., Newton Corner. Additional information can be obtained by calling 332-1308.

Consumer council notes TV series

Channel 2, WGBH-TV, has begun showing 25 programs of specific consumer interest, the recently established Consumers' Advisory Committee of Newton announced.

The half-hour programs, produced by Baltimore Public Television, can be seen every Thursday evening at 8:30 p.m. The series began Jan. 16 with "Supermarket Strategy." Of special interest will be a program on "Credit Infofmation" scheduled for Jan. 30. On July 3, the series will culminate with a program entitled "Clothing."

Any further questions about the informative Channel 2 series or about any consumer issue can be directed to Peter Lauder of the Consumers' Advisory Committee. He can be reached any Monday or Thursday from 9 a.m. until 3:30 p.m. at the Newton City Hall.

Following are the topics and dates of the programs.

Miguel Rubin to play guitar at Pine Manor

Classical guitar enthusiasts will have a chance to hear Miguel Rubio, young virtuoso concert guitarist and protege of Andres Segovia, in a concert at Pine Manor Junior College, 400 Heath Street, Chestnut Hill, on Monday, Feb. 10, 8 p.m., in the Founder's Room.

Rubio heads the departments of guitar of the Conservatories of Music in Geneva, Lausanne and Berne, Switzerland, and is also in charge of guitar instruction at the Escuela de la Guitarre in Spain.

The public is cordially invited to attend at no charge. Please call 731-7089 for further information.

New York Ensemble plays with NNHS band

The Newton North High School Concert Band will combine with the country's outstanding New Rochelle High School Wind Ensemble from New Rochelle, New York, on Friday, January 31.

The New Rochelle Wind Ensemble performed last year as the feature performing group at the national convention of the Music Educators National Conference in Anaheim, Calif. The conductor of the group is James Wayne.

During the evening, Scott Karas, Newton North senior, will be featured as percussion soloist with the Newton North Concert Band. Additionally, the band will give the New England premier of "Southern Teir Suite", a descriptive composition of several small towns in western New York, by Walter Hartley.

Tickets for 8 p.m. concert at Meadowbrook Jr. High School are available from any band member or at the door.

Reservations can be made by calling 964-9810, extension 348.

Piccadilly Playhouse rehearses second show

The second production ot the Playhouse at Piccadilly Square in Newton Centre is in rehearsal for opening night Feb. 20.

"Ladies In Retirement" by Percy and Denham, an old-fashioned murder-thriller, is the first season's "change-of-pace show' situated between the classical comedies of Shaw's 'Arms And The Man" and Richard Wilbur's version of Moliere's "Tartuffe."

Inquiries regarding remaining season subscriptions or special theatre party rates may be made by calling 734-0400. Individual tickets go on sale Feb. 10.

PUBLIC MEETING AT BETH ISRAEL HOSPITAL FOR INTERESTED COMMUNITY MEMBERS

Beth Israel Hospital proposes to purchase from Emmanuel College the dormitory building, Julie Hall, which is immediately adjacent to the Hospital on Brookline Avenue. It plans to use the structure for dormitory purposes in part and also, after some modifications, for administrative purposes. To these ends, an application for Determination of Need has been filed with the Massachusetts Department of Public Health.

In recognition of potential interest in this project by Members of the communities adjacent to Beth Israel Hospital and those elsewhere who use the Hospital for some of their health needs, a public meeting for informational purposes will be held at the Hospital on Saturday, 8 February, in Sherman Auditorium, at 10:00 a.m.

All interested persons welcome.
